Lincoln County ‘Stork’ Named Doctor of the Year

BY JOE CADOTTE
jcadotte@magicvalley.com

SHOSHONE • As the “Lincoln County stork,” the only physician in the county of about 5,200 residents, Dr. Keith Davis delivers babies and attends to patients day and night. From about 100,000 eligible doctors nationwide, Davis was named the 2014 Physician of the Year last month by the American Academy of Family Physicians, which deemed him “the small-town doc with statewide impact.” But Davis, 58, isn’t only the county’s sole doctor. He’s also its coroner, an emergency room physician at St. Luke’s Jerome Medical Center, and the emergency medical services director of Lincoln and Jerome counties. He also teaches rural family medicine at the University of Washington School of Medicine and Idaho State University. “I was in the office when I got the call,” Davis said of the award, given to two other Idaho physicians over the past decade. “I have to admit that I shed some tears of joy because it was really a thrill. I did not expect another Idaho

Man Goes to Trial in Infant Injury Case

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A trial began Tuesday for a Buhl man accused of squeezing his infant daughter so hard she stopped breathing.

Cory Jay Karlinsey, 31, was charged with felony injury to a child after the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare contacted Buhl police May 9, requesting they investigate a possible attempted strangulation of a baby a week earlier. St. Luke’s Magic Valley Medical Center had alerted Health and Welfare, a police report says.

“This case is about uncontrolled violence,” said deputy prosecutor Rosemary Emory in her opening statement Tuesday.

Emory said the baby, then about 10 months, seems to have fully recovered from the alleged May 4 incident, but the outcome could have been deadly.

The prosecution’s first witness was Buhl police Officer Bill Deetz, who went to the Karlinseys’ home in the 200 block of 12th Avenue North in Buhl.

Deetz said he interviewed Karlinsey and his wife, Jessica. Emory played several excerpts from the recorded interview.

“I just hit a limit,” Karlinsey says in the recording. “It takes me a really long, long, long time to hit that limit, and when I do it’s a quick burst of energy and then it’s gone.”

Karlinsey describes getting angrier and angrier and squeezing his daughter, then realizing she had stopped breathing. Then, he said, he began to try to revive her.

“And as I had her like this that was when I went from way up here in anger to way way way down here,” Karlinsey says in the interview.

“You were just trying to fix her,” Deetz says.

Karlinsey agrees and continues to explain how to tried to clear the infant’s airway and gently tapped her before he saw she began breathing again.

“A lot of thoughts were going through my head,” he says. “Wow, this could have been very, very bad.”

During cross-examination, Karlinsey’s attorney, Doug Nelson, asked Deetz about Karlinsey’s mannerisms and speech.

Deetz said Karlinsey explained to him that he had spinal meningitis as a child and a seizure disorder that resulted in a “dead spot” in his brain behind his eyes.

This caused Karlinsey to have difficulty articulating his answers and to speak slowly, Deetz testified. But, he said, he believed Karlinsey understood his questions and was not confused about what happened with his daughter.

Lora Roberts, a family nurse practitioner at St. Luke’s Magic Valley Medical Center, also testified.

Roberts said Jessica Karlinsey brought her daughter in May 4, and

New Kindergarten Readiness Program Focuses on Pre-reading Skills

BY TETONA DUNLAP

TWIN FALLS • The goal is to create great readers by third grade. The key is to start before children even set foot in kindergarten — starting in the home, with community support. In Jerome, 68 percent of kindergartners do not score at grade level. Nor do 58 percent of Wendell and 67 percent of Hansen kindergartners. Most students in these districts score either a 1 or 2 on a scale of 3, said LeAnn Simmons, executive director of the Boise-based Idaho Voices for Children. The “Ready for Kindergarten” program — which Simmons introduced Tuesday to the South Central Leadership Council and South Central United Way — will get kindergartners in the Jerome, Wendell and Hansen school districts ready to learn to read. Three workshops a year for parents and caregivers of children 5 and younger will focus on understanding developmental milestones and literacy skills and will provide tools and curriculum for child-care providers to ramp up skill levels of children based on their ability and interests.

The program is to begin next fall. The South Central Leadership Council was created three years ago by The Idaho Community Foundation, a statewide nonprofit whose goals include bringing community leaders, nonprofit experts, educational institutions and others together to address community issues. The Leadership Council identified early childhood education as its top priority. That’s when Simmons was asked to join the cause. The Leadership Council chose Jerome,

ELECTION 2013

Seven Candidates Vie for Four Council Seats

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

HAGERMAN • Seven candidates are seeking four seats on the Hagerman City Council. Incumbent council members Carl Jeffries, Steven Bland, Dale Christoffersen, Jay Hauser are seeking to hold on to their seats against challengers Fred Churruca, Krista Merrill and Alan Jay. Some of the candidates’ top concerns includes updating ordinances, the future of the city’s sewer system, water rate increases and fostering tourism opportunities. “I feel we have lost sight of the fact that we are a rural community with a large potential for tourism,” Churruca said. “There are all kinds of festival ideas we can create. ...now we have one event in the summer. The first time I came to Hagerman it had a town yard sale. There are any number of things that will attract people.” Churruca moved to Hagerman two years ago from the Nampa/Caldwell area. This is his first time running for City Council. “Hagerman needs to be ran like a responsible business for its citizens, with an eye on fostering business growth that will increase jobs and city income,” Churruca said. “This can be achieved without the ‘good ol’ boy’ standards of operation.” Merrill is making a run for a second City Council term. Merrill said water is always an issue in Hagerman. I think for so many years we didn’t pay high water fees or garbage fees,” Merrill said. “How long do you expect people to keep up with that? Is there something we can do to make that more efficient for the elderly? I’m more concerned with our senior citizens as prices keep going up and how that’s going to affect them.” Hagerman mayor, Pete Weir, said last year the residential water rate went from $20.95 to $26.26 and commercial increased nearly $15. Merrill also had concerns that some businesses are paying different fees, but didn’t know if it was different because they were grandfathered in. “It was just time for me to do something for the community again, be their voice,” Merrill said. “There hasn’t been a woman on the council for some time.” Jeffries, a councilman for five years, said his biggest concerns are looking at the future of the city’s sewer and water. “Our ponds are in good shape, but there is no room for expansion,” Jeffries said.

Here is a schedule of the Times-News’ continuing election previews:

Oct. 24 — Gooding
Oct. 25 — Wendell
Oct. 26 — Hansen
Oct. 27 — Hollister

He also said there are some ordinances that are outdated and the city’s water system pump house needs a new up-to-date electronic panel. Churruca said one ordinance he would like to see changed is the city’s dog ordinance. “We have no dog catcher and no place to keep them. Why are we passing a city ordinance when we have no catcher or place to put them?” he said.

Tepid Employment Data Stokes Fed Stimulus Hopes

NEW YORK (AP) • The prospect of more economic stimulus from the Federal Reserve pushed the Standard & Poor's 500 index to a fourth consecutive record close Tuesday. Investors also were encouraged by strong earnings from major U.S. companies such as Whirlpool, Delta Air Lines and Kimberly-Clark. The U.S. economy added 148,000 jobs in September, the Labor Department reported Tuesday, lower than the 180,000 jobs forecast. The report was delayed for 2 weeks because of a 16-day partial government shutdown.

Crop Walkers Raise $12,000 to Help Feed the Hungry

HEYBURN • Mini-Cassia supporters of the 2013 Crop and Hunger Walk raised $12,000 to help eradicate hunger around the world.

One-fourth of the money raised will remain in the Mini-Cassia area, to be shared by the Helping Hands Mission, Community Oasis Outreach, Rupert United Methodist Church Food Bank and the St. Nicholas Church Food Bank.

"We owe a lot of what we are able to due to the support of community events like the Crop Walk," said Cody Thornton, director of the Helping Hands Mission in Burley. The remaining money will

Night Speed-limit Changes on Idaho 75 Begin Next Week

TIMES-NEWS

HAILEY • A lowered night-time speed limit on Idaho 75 north of Hailey takes effect Oct. 30 to minimize crashes into wild animals, the Idaho Transportation Department announced.

The speed limit will be reduced to 45 mph between McKercher Boulevard and Buttercup Road from dusk until dawn to reduce collisions, wildlife fatalities and safety hazards to drivers.

A study of wildlife collisions in the Hailey-to-Ketchum corridor included exact locations, time of day, weather and light conditions. Idaho 75 north of Hailey had the most nighttime wildlife-vehicle collisions, usually during dry, clear conditions.

During the 2007-2013 study, 32 of 60 crashes in the 2.5-mile stretch involved wildlife, primarily deer and elk. Most of the crashes (23) were in the dark, and four occurred during dawn or dusk.

Speed limit signs with light-sensitive warning beacons will be installed to designate the beginning and end of the reduced speed zone. The installation was delayed by delivery of parts and equipment.

"The Crop and Hunger Walk depends on many community volunteers that always step up to the plate," said Mini-Cassia organizer Kris Hondo. "We want to send a big thanks to the Mini-Cassia area and everybody that made this happen."

The Sept. 28 event drew 192 walkers to Heyburn Riverside Park.

The Crop and Hunger Walk Committee begins working in July to get the event going and gather community support, Hondo said.

The committee thanked the City of Heyburn, Ramsey Heating and Electric, Dennis Peterson, Unit 54, Mr. Gas and everyone who walked or came out to cheer on the walkers.

"When you get a bunch of Boy Scouts using two-way radios, it's interesting to listen to what they're talking about."

"This morning, I went to cover the Magic Valley Amateur Radio Club's Jamboree on the Air event at the Twin Falls/Jerome KOA Campground. About 30 local Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts were learning about ham radio. ...

"A few of the boys were a little hesitant to talk to people they didn't know and couldn't see. But 10-year-old Matthew Hobbs took the opportunity to talk to a fellow Boy Scout — an 11-year-old in British Columbia.

"As they talked, I stood back and listened to him and others in the room. Here are three of the conversations I heard.

"1) Naturally, conversations with strangers start out with basic topics — name, age, where you live and what the weather's like. But during one conversation, the topic was a little more specific.

"Do you like bacon?" the British Columbia Boy Scout asked. ..."

McCauley the Obvious Choice for Buhl Mayor

Buhl is a city held back by its massive debt, and only one of the two men running for mayor is equipped to deal with such challenges.

Mayor Tom McCauley has more than a vision for the 4,000-resident city. He's already working toward bettering the city's financial situation, a necessity if Buhl is to ever benefit from the growth that's now bulging other Magic Valley communities.

Buhl voters passed a $23 million bond in 2006 — before McCauley's time — to build new wastewater and water treatment plants. The city's hands were tied. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency had come down hard on Buhl for the levels of arsenic in its drinking water.

That debt weighs like concrete shoes on the city. The user fees are enough to scare off would-be residents. Both candidates — the one-term incumbent and challenger Jeff Huntington — acknowledge that the service fees are substantially out of line with what's paid in other local communities. The owner of a $60,000 home, for example, might pay $140 a month for water. That's an oppressive rate, one that damages Buhl's prospects.

In 2016, the remainder of the 30-year bond can be refinanced. That means the next mayor will need to find a lower interest rate than the 5.14 percent the city now ponies up. McCauley, with more than two years to spare, has already tasked Zions Bank with finding him a better deal.

The fancy new infrastructure isn't all bad, though. Buhl's systems now can handle substantially higher loads. McCauley views himself, in some regards, as marketing agent in chief. He and the City Council, for instance, fast-tracked permits that brought Seneca Foods to town. In return, the mayor negotiated a deal by which the company will seek annexation, bolstering the city's tax base. It was the right move, one that will benefit Buhl for years to come. Bringing in new industry is the best way to drive down the oppressive water rates.

Huntington's lone critique of the current administration was over water rates. He proposes annual 2 percent increases instead of the higher and more varied year-to-year increases approved by Buhl's water advisory board. But Huntington's past proposals — until June he was Buhl's water superintendent — never made it past the advisory council. The lower increase wouldn't reduce the bills, but it would prolong Buhl's debt load.

Huntington's biggest challenge is separating his campaign from his recent firing. Who's to blame for the circumstances surrounding his dismissal depends on whom you ask, but Huntington didn't convince us that his bid was anything more than sour grapes.

It takes more than statements such as, "I'm running for mayor because I want to, because I can make a difference" to justify voter support. Huntington's primary task is to prove that he can offer new and better ideas. He must show that he's not running simply because of a vendetta against the people who fired him. He's failed.

The race for Buhl's mayoral seat shouldn't be much of a contest Nov. 5.

McCauley is the obvious choice and deserves a second term.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Hawkins Worth Voting For

To the residents of Twin Falls:

There are many reasons, I believe, that you should vote Suzanne Hawkins back on your City Council. Some, I am sure, you have seen listed in the past. She is a small-business owner, she has served on many different boards and held leadership positions, she has spent time volunteering and giving back to the community, she has raised six kids in the area, and now 10 (soon to be 12) of her 15 (soon to be 17) grandkids live in the area, giving her a stronger reason to be vested in the future of the community. And she has served on the council for more than a year, gaining the experience and knowledge needed to get things accomplished.

However, there probably are many things about her that you do not know, and that you do not get to see, so I have decided to share some of those with you today.

Suzanne works tirelessly to gain knowledge and to make sure she understands fully what she needs to in order to make the best decisions for you. You can hear what she has to say at council meetings, and you can follow her crazy schedule if you really wanted to take the time to do so, but what you don't see are the countless hours Suzanne spends researching, reading and making phone calls to ensure that she is fully prepared for every meeting and decision she is a part of. She understands that every decision affects the citizens of this community and makes sure that she is well informed and prepared so that Twin Falls continues to grow and thrive.

Suzanne is a woman of the utmost integrity. She is someone you can trust. I have seen her in her most vulnerable moments, when no one else can see. I have seen her in the face of adversity and turn the other cheek. I have seen her do the right thing when no one else is looking. If you could see what I have seen, you would be astonished at her character, at her giving heart and at her willingness to put others before herself. She is someone worth voting for.

Suzanne takes every opportunity to learn, grow and make a difference because she is invested in the community of Twin Falls. She cares about every person, and she cares about the future of the city. Suzanne has a Facebook page, and she welcomes questions and comments. She wants to hear your thoughts and opinions on city happenings. Take the time to send her a message and ask questions yourself.

Vote Suzanne Hawkins back on the Twin Falls City Council. Thank you.

Bullies and Cattle in America

During a recent public forum held by Maryland's Department of Education on the nation's new Common Core curriculum standards, a concerned but mild-mannered parent named Robert Small stood up with notebook in hand to ask a question. What happened next was a chilling scene right out of the Soviet play-book — and it was all captured on video.

"My question is, how does lowering America's educational standards prepare kids for community college?" asked Small, before being physically accosted and removed by a security guard. At this point, the audience of some 160 parents, teachers, administrators, and others were growing noticeably uneasy, prompting one individual to shout, "Let him ask his question!"

"Don't stand for this. You are sitting here like cattle!" a shocked Small pleaded with the audience. "Is this America?" he asked.

No one stood up in defense of Small. No parents. No teachers. No one.

Kimberly Bloom Jackson

As a teacher myself, watching a parent who was cool, calm, and collected aggressively be shutdown at a public school forum made my stomach turn inside-out. Teachers put an exorbitant amount of time and emphasis on anti-bully programs. Yet, when the real bullies come out, they cower within the comfort zone of the herd. It's disgraceful! But in my view, this tragic incident speaks to a broader and far more dire issue: America's constitutional crisis.

Not enough citizens seem to have what it takes to defend traditional principles of liberty anymore. Yellow-bellied politicians have sold themselves out for more power at the expense of those they serve, while those they serve suck their thumbs in dark corners. Such public apathy is exactly what emboldens the government bullies and their cronies to run roughshod over us. One only has to reflect on the escalating strong-arm tactics heaved upon Americans by the IRS, NSA, EPA, and now the DOE. If they're willing to arrest a concerned parent for insisting he be able to ask and receive an answer to his question at a public school meeting, what are they prepared to do next?

Perhaps the real question is, what are you prepared to do? Of the 160 individuals who attended the forum, Small was the only one in the room who cared enough and had the courage to stand up for himself and his children.

Small was arrested and bogusly charged with second-degree assault of a police officer, which carries a $2,500 fine and up to 10 years in prison. But that's not all. In yet another bold attempt to intimidate citizens into accepting how wonderful Common Core is, Small was also charged with "disturbing a school operation," which carries an additional fine of $2,500 and up to six months in jail. Translation? When you're invited to a public forum, best be careful about the kind of question you want to ask, lest you be hauled off by the authorities for exercising your First Amendment right!

Hmm, I seem to remember this kind of thing happening some years ago in Germany just before they . . . but that's another story.

Luckily, the video of the incident went viral on the Internet and enough citizens around the country made a stink. As a result, all charges against Small were dropped. This is what it takes to defeat tyranny. But what if there was no alternative media or powerful voices like those on talk radio? What if it were just up to the average citizen? Only time will tell if we, as a nation, will have the character to take back our education system and return America to the shining example it once was.

doctor to be picked so soon. I was resolved to the idea that they were going to pick somebody in a different state.”

But that recognition pales in comparison to his miracle touch, patients said.

Heather Rumble, of Gooding, said she started experiencing severe stomach pains four years ago. Fourteen physicians and specialists in Twin Falls misdiagnosed her ailment, and surgeons removed her gall bladder and appendix, but the pain continued, Rumble said.

Three months ago, friends recommended Davis.

“He explained to me that in medical school, if you hear a stampede, you automatically label it that because that’s what you see,” she said. “Dr. Davis said I was a zebra instead of a horse.”

She said she walked into his office and, after a few moments with his head on his fist, the doctor said: “You have a stomach migraine.”

“I was like, ‘Stomach migraine? I’ve never heard of that.’ No one I’ve known has heard of that.”

It’s a rare condition in which receptors in her brain sent the migraine to her body instead of her head.

“He gave me regular old migraine medicine, and within days the pain was over,” Rumble said.

Yet despite Davis’ many roles in the community, “He wasn’t rushed,” she said. “I could tell he just genuinely wanted to fix my problem and didn’t care about the money. A lot of times, I feel like doctors are sleazy and just in it for the money. Incidentally, the cheapest place I saw a doctor for my stomach was Davis.”

Rumple said Davis’ award didn’t surprise her. “He is the most impressive doctor I’ve ever been to,” she said. “He’s the most selfless person in his profession, for sure. He gives up so much of his time and energy to his patients.”

Davis, asked about his most memorable experiences, got teary as he described delivering babies.

“That’s an area where there can be great joy, but certainly great sorrow when you have loss,” he said. “Delivering babies is just the happiest thing a doctor can do. ...I’m a medical scientist, but I also believe in miracles.”

Davis delivered three of Melody Russell’s five children. He went “above and beyond” what any other doctor would do, she said.

“He’s very personable. He talks personally to us,” Russell said. “It isn’t just a patient to remember. He knows us personally and knows our family and knows each of us. Even the children that he didn’t deliver he knows personally. He asks about them and truly cares about each member of my family.”

When Davis determined that her husband had cancer, he broke the news at their house rather than at the hospital.

“He sat us down, and he told us that he had news that my husband had cancer,” Russell said. “The fact that he came to us — he did not just give us bad news in his office, he came to our home to personally tell us.”

“He’s not just a doctor, he’s a friend.”

Davis’ daughter Karla Davis said her father has no plans to retire any time soon.

“He’ll probably die doing what he loves,” she said.

FREE Hearing Tests For Age 65+

Free electronic hearing tests will be given from Monday, October 28th - Friday, November 1st, in Twin Falls and Burley.

Tests have been arranged for anyone who suspects they are losing their hearing. Such persons generally say they can hear but cannot understand words. Testing with the latest computerized equipment will indicate if you can be helped.

Everyone, especially adults over 65, should have an electronic hearing test at least once a year. If there is a hearing problem, hearing tests may reveal that newly developed methods of correction will help, even for those who have been told in the past that a hearing aid would not help them.

If you suspect you have hearing loss, call for a free hearing test appointment. Our licensed specialists are trained in the latest auditory testing methods and will be the first ones to tell you if you don’t need a hearing aid. If you do have a hearing loss, we will explain your results and provide you with a list of options.

Sentencing in Craigslist Rape Solicitation Case Delayed Indefinitely

alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • An Army Idaho National Guard member accused of using Craigslist classified ads to ask men to rape a woman in her home appeared in Twin Falls County District Court Monday to discuss progress on the case.

Justin Crawford's attorney, Lynn Dunlap, said he's still waiting to hear from the military about Crawford's disability status. That decision by the military could affect any sentence for Crawford, 33.

Dunlap previously said he is drafting a request to move Crawford's sentencing hearing from District Court to Mental Health Court or Veterans Court.

The next hearing in the case is scheduled for March 17 in District Court, though it could be earlier if results come back sooner.

District Judge Richard Bevan agreed to allow Crawford to stop checking in with a court compliance program.

Crawford, who was stationed in Mountain Home at the time, was charged with solicitation of rape in July 2012 after police said he used the classified ad website's "casual encounters" section to post an ad asking men to rape a Twin Falls woman.

"The person posting the ad told him she wanted to be forcibly raped as that was a fantasy of hers," a man who answered the ad told police.

The man exchanged several emails with Crawford and then was given the address where the woman lived.

He knocked on her door, then forced his way in. The woman grabbed a handgun and fired at the man, missing him, before he escaped.

The next day, another man came and forced his way in, and the woman held him at gunpoint until police arrived.

Crawford also was charged with solicitation of burglary, but prosecutors agreed to drop that count when he pleaded guilty to rape solicitation.

Crawford and the woman were acquainted before the incident.

Program

Wendell and Hansen as the pilot school districts for this program based on the percentage of kindergartners not scoring at grade level on the Idaho Reading Indicator (IRI).

New research by Anne Fernald, a psychologist at Stanford University, shows that at 18 months, children from wealthy families could identify pictures or simple words much more quickly than children from low-income families, the New York Times reported.

By age 2, affluent children had learned 30 percent more words than the children from low-income households, the study found.

In Hansen, 76 percent of children qualify for free or reduced-cost lunch, as do 69 percent in Jerome and Wendell.

"We have a lot of kids who cannot recognize any letters. There's nothing wrong with them. It's just not having those experiences at home or at child care," Simmons said.

All kindergarten through third-grade students in Idaho public schools are required to take the IRI at least twice a year. The screening identifies students who lack the skills needed to learn to read. A child who rates "1" is unable to identify any letters or sounds; a child rated "2" can identify some; a child who gets a "3" is ready to learn to read.

The effectiveness of Ready for Kindergarten will be measured by tracking parent, student and community outcomes. If it works, it can be replicated in other districts.

Simmons said she was influenced by a 2010 study by the Annie E. Casey Foundation. The study — Early Warning: Why Reading by the End of Third Grade Matters — showed how reading proficiency by third grade is essential to increase children's success in academics, life and careers.

"Don't expect immediate results," she said during the meeting. "This is not creating the end all; it's the beginning."

Dale Layne, superintendent of the Jerome School District, said he is excited that his district will be part of the program.

When parents register kindergartners in the spring, their children are assessed so parents learn what their child needs to know before kindergarten, Layne said. He said the district often works with Head Start to get this information to parents.

"Some parents are surprised by what their kid needs to know. We are not expecting that they should be kindergarten ready at that time, but it just gives them a head start on the type of skills kids should have in the fall," Layne said.

He said the assessment consists of letter and sound identification. In some homes where Spanish is the first language, he said, children might not be exposed to some of the sounds in English.

"Any time students are exposed to opportunities to develop language skills, they come in with those pre-reading type skills they need before entering kindergarten."

For Jobless over 50, a Challenging Search for Work

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) • When Charlie Worboys lost his job, he feared searching for a new one at his age might be tough. Six years later, at 65, he's still looking.

Luanne Lynch, 57, was laid off three times in the past decade and previous layoffs brought jobs with a lower salary; this time she can't even get that.

They're not alone. A new Associated Press-NORC Center for Public Affairs Research poll finds many people over 50 reporting great difficulty finding work and feeling that their age is a factor.

After Worboys was laid off and his hunt for another teaching job was fruitless, he sought counseling positions. When those leads dried up, he applied for jobs in juvenile detention centers, in sales and elsewhere. He finally settled for part-time work, all the while still scouring online listings and sending out applications each week.

"They're looking for the younger person," he said. "They look at the number 65 and they don't bother to look behind it."

The AP-NORC Center poll found 55 percent of those 50 and older who have sought a job in the past five years characterized their search as difficult, and 43 percent thought employers were concerned about their age. Further, most in the poll reported finding few available jobs (69 percent), few that paid well (63 percent) or that offered adequate benefits (53 percent). About a third were told they were overqualified.

Still, some companies are welcoming older workers, and 43 percent of job seekers surveyed found a high demand for their skills and 31 percent said there was a high demand for their experience. Once on the job, older workers were far more likely to report benefits related to their age — 60 percent said colleagues had come to them for advice more often and 42 percent said they felt as if they were receiving more respect in the company.

People of all ages have been frustrated by the job market and the unemployment rate for those 55 and older was 5.3 percent in September, lower than the 7.2 percent rate among all ages. By comparison, unemployment among those 20-24 was 12.9 percent, and among those 25-54, 6.2 percent.

But long-term unemployment has been rampant among the oldest job seekers. Unemployed people aged 45 to 54 were out of work 45 weeks on average, those 55 to 64 were jobless for 57 weeks and those 65 and older average 51 weeks.

Lynch, of San Gabriel, Calif., hated taking a step down after the earlier layoffs, but this time only one interview has come from 70-some applications.

"It's starting at the bottom," she said. "And frankly, I'm getting too old to be starting at the bottom."

This photo taken Oct. 18, shows Luanne Lynch, 57, in San Gabriel, Calif. Lynch was laid off from her clerical job in March and still hasn't managed to replace it.

Sluggish US Hiring Shows Effects of Budget Impasse

BY CHRISTOPHER S. RUGABER
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON • A dim view of the U.S. job market emerged Tuesday with a report that employers cut back on hiring in September just before a partial government shutdown began.

Just 148,000 jobs were added last month, a steep drop from August's gain, though they were enough to lower unemployment to 7.2 percent from 7.3 percent in August. The report bolsters expectations that the Federal Reserve will maintain its pace of bond purchases for the rest of 2013 to try to keep long-term loan rates low.

The government's release of the September jobs report had been delayed 2 weeks by the shutdown. Temporary layoffs during the 16-day shutdown will probably depress October's job gain. That means a clear picture of the job market won't emerge before November jobs figures are issued in December.

"The economy is too fragile for the Federal Reserve to touch," Sung Won Sohn, an economist at California State University, said. "The shenanigans in Congress have hurt confidence and increased uncertainties, most likely hurting both consumer and business spending as well as hiring."

Average U.S. job growth has fallen sharply in the past three months after a promising start this year. The economy added an average of 143,000 jobs a month from July through September. That was down from the 182,000 average gain during from April through June and well below the 207,000-a-month pace from January through March.

The report "reinforces the impression that the labor market was losing a little momentum heading in to the shutdown," said Josh Feinman, global chief economist at Deutsche Asset and Wealth Management. "The labor market is continuing to create jobs. ...It's just frustratingly slow."

Stocks rose after the report was released, in part because slower job gains mean the Fed will continue its stimulus efforts. The Dow Jones industrial average was up about 50 points in midday trading. Economists at Barclays now predict the Fed won't trim its bond purchases until March, much later than its previous forecast of December.

A tight job market has discouraged many Americans from looking for work. The percentage of Americans working or looking for work remained at a 35-year low last month.

The government doesn't count people as unemployed unless they are actively looking for work. Most of the drop in the Unemployment rates fell for white, black and Hispanic workers, as well as teenagers, young adults and Americans ages 25 to 54.

The national unemployment rate declined to 7.2 percent last month, down from 7.3 percent in August and the lowest since November 2008. Still, unemployment remains elevated more than four years after the recession officially ended. And many subgroups of Americans are suffering even higher jobless rates.

Here are more details from the government's report:

unemployment rate this year has occurred because many people have either given up looking or have postponed their job searches by remaining in school.

The September jobs report showed that some higher-paying industries added jobs at a healthy pace. Construction companies, for example, added 20,000.

Transportation and warehousing gained 23,400 jobs, governments 22,000. Manufacturers added 2,000 jobs. Lower-paying industries were mixed. Hotels and restaurants cut about 11,000 jobs, after strong hiring earlier this year. Retailers added 21,000 positions.

The budget impasse didn't stop Accumold, which makes components for medical devices, smartphones and other electronic goods, from boosting its workforce. CEO Roger Hargens said the Ankeny, Iowa-based company filled jobs in September and plans to add up to 65 to its 185-worker staff in the next few months.

Hargens says he is seeing more orders from customers who are shifting from Chinese manufacturers to U.S. suppliers.

"There's a big trend to move manufacturing back to the United States," he said. "It's really speeding up now for us."

Last month, average hourly U.S. pay ticked up 3 cents to $24.09. In the past year, pay has risen 2.1 percent, ahead of the 1.5 percent inflation rate.

The government revised its estimates of job growth in July and August to show a slight net gain of 9,000. It said employers added 193,000 jobs in August, more than the 169,000 previously estimated. But it said just 89,000 were added in July, the fewest in more than a year and below the earlier estimated 104,000.

The deceleration in job growth was a key reason the Fed decided in September to hold off on slowing its $85-billion-a-month in bond purchases. Many economists think the lack of clean data will lead the Fed to put off any decision on the bond purchases until 2014.

"It reinforces their hesitancy," Feinman said of the September jobs report. "It's more validation for their hesitancy to taper in September."

Detroit Faces Crucial Trial in Bankruptcy Case

DETROIT (AP) • Thousands of Detroit streetlights are dark. Many more residents have fled. Donors are replacing ambulances that limped around for 200,000 miles. Millions in debt payments have been skipped.

Is there really any doubt the city is broke?

A judge starts exploring that question Wednesday in an unusual trial to determine whether Detroit indeed is eligible to scrub its books in the largest public bankruptcy in U.S. history. Unions and pension funds are claiming the city failed to negotiate in good faith before filing for Chapter 9 protection in July.

A city isn't eligible for a makeover unless a judge finds that key steps have been met, especially good-faith talks with creditors earlier this year. It's a critical decision: If Detroit clears the hurdle, the case would quickly turn to how to solve at least $18 billion in debt and get city government out of intensive care.

"It's a crucial point in the case," said lawyer Chuck Tatelbaum, a bankruptcy expert in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. "There will be others, but this is the go or no-go. ... If there was ever a poster child for what Congress decided when they enacted Chapter 9, it's for a city like this."

Jim Spiotto, another bankruptcy expert in Chicago, said it's "virtually impossible" to argue that Detroit is solvent. "They're not paying their debts," he said. "Look at their blighted areas. Look at their services."

Nonetheless, unions and pension funds are challenging Detroit on the eligibility question. They claim emergency manager Kevyn Orr, who acquired nearly unfettered control over city finances following his appointment by Michigan Gov. Rick Snyder, was not genuinely interested in negotiating when they met with his team in June and July. Orr insists pension funds are short $3.5 billion and health coverage also needs to be overhauled.

Evidence will show that Orr "planned to file bankruptcy long before the purported negotiations had run their course, confirming that the 'negotiations' were no more than a check-the-box exercise on the way to the courthouse," Babette Ceccotti, an attorney for the United Auto Workers, said in a court filing.

Earle Erman, attorney for Detroit's public safety unions, said the city has cut wages and changed health care benefits without across-the-table talks. Another lawyer, Sharon Levine, representing AFSCME, said the city spent months "mapping out its path to Chapter 9," not looking for compromises that could keep Detroit out of bankruptcy.

Lydia Guadiana, of Detroit, waits for a D-Dot bus on Michigan Ave. in Detroit, Monday. Detroit buses are rolling again after a drivers' protest over safety issues halted operations for a day.

Libya: Militias, Politicians Meld in Explosive Mix

BY MAGGIE MICHAEL
Associated Press

TRIPOLI, Libya • Libya marks two years since the fall of Moammar Gadhafi on Wednesday, but instead of the freedom and development Libyans had hoped for, the country has fallen deeper into anarchy. Rival Islamist and Western-backed factions are melding with the country's dizzying array of militias, turning political feuds into armed conflict.

Militias that include Islamic extremists are lining up with Islamist politicians in parliament, who have been trying to remove Western-backed Prime Minister Ali Zidan and bring stricter Islamic rule. Other armed groups support Zidan's non-Islamist allies. The result is a fractured system where political rivalries have the potential to erupt into civil war. In recent months, the militia chaos has only escalated.

Zidan was briefly kidnapped by militiamen this month. Over the summer, eastern militias seized control of oil exporting terminals, sending production plunging from 1.4 million barrels a day to around 600,000, robbing the country of its main revenue source. Other militias in the south cut off water supplies to the capital for days.

Zidan's office manager, the defense minister's son and several judges have been kidnapped. Activists and clerics who speak out against militias have been gunned down, as have at least 100 security or military officers.

At the same time, al-Qaida-inspired militias are spreading. The group Ansar al-Shariah, which is believed to be behind last year's attack on a U.S. diplomatic post in Benghazi that killed the ambassador and three other Americans, is increasing its strength not only in Benghazi, but in cities further west like Sirte and Ajdabiya.

"We are not a state by the normal definition of the word," Zidan acknowledged to reporters in Tripoli on Sunday. "The government is rowing against the current, and this is very hard."

Since Gadhafi's fall, hundreds of militias have run rampant. They originated in the rebel bands that fought against the longtime dictator in the 8-month war that toppled him. Originally locally based, drawing their loyalties from a particular city, neighborhood or tribe, they have since mushroomed in size.

Too weak to disarm the militias, the military, police and government have tried to co-opt them, paying them to play security roles like guarding districts, facilities, even polling stations during elections. But the policy has backfired, empowering the militias without controlling them. The tight interweaving of militias and politics has escalated since Libya held its first post-Gadhafi elections just over a year ago. A non-Islamist bloc won a plurality in parliament, a defeat for hard-liners who have ridden elections to power in other Arab countries since the Arab Spring revolts of 2011.

Since the election, the democratic transition has gone nowhere. Efforts by parliament to create a body to draw up a new constitution have foundered. The non-Islamist bloc in parliament has fragmented and Islamist lawmakers have grown more aggressive in trying to unseat Zidan — even as both sides collect militia allies. "In Libya now, there is an armed wing for each politician," said Abdel-Hakim al-Balazi, spokesman for the Anti-Crime Department, a militia umbrella group that includes Islamic radicals. Al-Balazi himself has been accused by Zidan of involvement in his abduction and was placed at one point under house arrest.

Nothing illustrates the mingling of militias and politics better than Zidan's Oct. 10 abduction, following a U.S. special forces raid that snatched an al-Qaida suspect from Tripoli, enflaming divisions between Islamists and Zidan, who was accused of allowing the operation.

Dozens of gunmen swarmed into the Tripoli hotel where Zidan lives and dragged him off to a detention facility for seven hours until he was rescued by other militias. Zidan has depicted the abduction as the work of his Islamist opponents in parliament, accusing two ultraconservative lawmakers of plotting it. The two denied any role. The group implicated in the abduction is the Libya Revolutionaries Operations Room, a collection of militias headed by hard-line Islamist commanders.

BOISE • Milan A. Dunlap II "Tuffy," 64, passed away at the VA Home in Boise, Idaho, on Monday, Oct. 14, 2013, where he was adored by all.

Milan was born Aug. 11, 1949, in North Platte, Neb., to Milan A. Dunlap and Margaret J. Dunlap. With three older and one younger sister, Milan was soon to be nicknamed Tuffy; he had to be because we picked on him mercifully. The nickname stuck with him for the rest of his life even though he was a gentle, loving and giving man with a giant heart.

He would give you anything and everything because he wanted to take care of you. When a younger brother was added to the mix of siblings, Tuffy became a big brother and defender. Tuffy was so proud of his service in the Navy and his studies of electronics, but he was proudest of his children. He loved the outdoors and fishing became his favorite past time.

OBITUARIES

Bernette Marie Brown

June 18, 1917-Oct. 17, 2013

BUHL • Bernette Marie Brown, age 96, passed away peacefully Thursday night, Oct. 17, 2013.

She was born in Guttenberg, Iowa, on June 18, 1917, to Edward and Louise Pink. She attended St. Mary's School with her brother, Floyd, in Guttenberg. In 1935, Bernette traveled to Filer, Idaho, to visit her aunt and uncle. During that visit, she met and fell in love with Harold (Pete) Brown. They were married in Twin Falls, Idaho, on March 31, 1937. They were blessed with six children. They resided in the Filer area where Pete was manager of the Chester B. Brown Co. for 34 years. In addition, they farmed and raised livestock.

During their early marriage, Bernette worked as a legal secretary for Rayburn and Company. Bernette and Pete traveled to Alaska, Hawaii and Washington, D.C., and wintered in Mesa, Ariz. After Pete died in 1992, Bernette continued to live on their farm in Filer. In 2007, she moved to Moon Glo Village in Buhl. Throughout the years, she enjoyed having family gatherings where she was noted for being a great cook and having a full candy jar. Many weekends and holidays were spent going to the cabin on Baker Creek which was a favorite entertainment site for all her grandchildren. She spent many years going to sporting events to cheer for her grandchildren, and she was known to all the players on the girl's volleyball and basketball teams as "Grandma Brown."

Bernette was an avid reader, reading books of all genres, even books that her granddaughters sent her. Every morning she challenged herself with a crossword puzzle in the Times-News while enjoying a cup of coffee. She was known as the champion gin rummy player in the family. Her children and grandchildren became very aware of her "poker face" as she won most games. We'll always remember her 80th birthday when she decided to go parasailing on Payette Lake.

Living her Catholic faith and saying the rosary every day will always be a reminder to her family on how to live. Bernette was an active member in the Magic Valley Regional Memorial Hospital Auxiliary for 36 years and was honored for her 5,000-plus hours of service. She served on the board of directors for the McCauley Home in Buhl. She was a member of the American Cancer Society's Reach to Recovery, Town and Country Club, St. Anne's Study Club and the Buhl Catholic Women's League.

Bernette is survived by her three children, Virginia (Fritz) Martynowicz of Bend, Ore., Bruce (Sue) Brown of Filer and Greg (Helen) Brown of Buhl; son-in-law, Jerry Clark of Meridian; and daughter-in-law, Carol Brown of Puyallup, Wash. She was blessed with many grandchildren: Diana Brown of Fond du Lac, Wis., Rick (Soojin Chung) Brown and Janiece (Dean) Dunlap of Tacoma, Wash., Mike Martynowicz of Bend, Ore., Christine Everett of Scappoose, Ore., Julie (John) Trautman of Paradise Valley, Ariz., Mark (Jenny) Brown of Denver, Colo., Chad (Andrea) Brown of Filer, Cathy (Arnie) Sprints of San Bernadino, Calif., Jeff (Kathy) Clark of West Jordan, Utah, Matt (Amber) Clark of Meridian, Sean (Lauren) Brown of Boise, Kalinda (Mwangi) Gathinji of Washington, D.C., Jessica (Mike) Keller of Seattle, Wash.; and 19 great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband; her sons Rodney and Bob; her daughter, Barbara; her parents; and her brother, Floyd Pink.

Rosary will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 24, and a celebration of Bernette's life will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Oct. 25, at the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church in Buhl. A dinner will follow in the church hall. Burial will take place at 2 p.m. Friday at the Filer Cemetery for the family.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests memorials be made in Bernette's name to the Buhl Quick Response (Fire Department, 203 Broadway Ave. N. Buhl, ID 83316) or the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church (1701 Poplar, Buhl, ID 83316).

Funeral arrangements are under the care of Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls (www.reynoldschapel.com).

Margaret 'Peg' Sass

Sept. 1, 1917-Oct. 18, 2013

TWIN FALLS • Margaret "Peg" Sass, 96, died early Friday morning, Oct. 18, 2013, at Bridgeview Estates in Twin Falls, Idaho.

Born in Pittsburg, Pa., Peg and her brother, Paul, were the only children of Frank O. Huckins and Margaret B. Huckins. She graduated from York High School in Elmhurst, Ill., in 1935, and earned a Bachelor of Arts in business at the University of Chicago in 1939, where she met her husband, Bob, in the Harper Library. Their 66 years of marriage began Dec. 26, 1941, while on Bob's brief leave from Fort Benning, Ga. During the war, Peg lived on base raising daughter, Barbara (Sister Meg). Following Bob's return from the Pacific Theater, they lived in Springfield and Mount Vernon, Ill., where they were joined by children, Debbie, Larry, Stephen and David. In the summer of 1953, they packed into the family station wagon and moved to Idaho, where Bob had purchased an interest in a propane distribution business. Michael soon rounded out the clan.

Peg managed her household of six children on a tight budget. Always frugal, funds were set aside to provide for every child's health and education. Peg and Bob were active members of St. Edward the Confessor Parish; all the children attended St. Edward's School. Peg and Bob were in the first group of oblates at the Monastery of the Ascension.

Peg found her creative outlet in the arts, cooking and sewing. The family would often spend afternoons in the South hills or Snake River Canyon gathering chokecherries or currents and, for many years, she tastefully prepared the fish, fowl and game Bob and the boys brought home. She began painting in oils in 1960 and soon after discovered water colors — her favorite medium for years. Her winter landscape entry won best of show at the 1973 county fair. Peg discovered weaving in the mid-'70s, and joyfully plied her looms and spindles with nimble fingers and strong arms, often long into the night. She wove tapes, coverlets, place mats, garments and hats, ponchos and purses, stoles and scarves that can be found across the country.

Peg and Bob enjoyed their travels across the southwestern Indian lands and to the Holy Land, Italy, Greece and New Zealand. They survived a major earthquake in Guatemala on Feb. 4, 1976. Peg loved learning and sharing. She found befriending talented younger artists invigorating. She was an active member of the Weavers Guild, making many dear and gifted friends. She shared Bob's deaconate activities and hosted a weekly fourth day morning prayer group for 30 years, right to the end.

Peg is survived by all six of her children: Sister Meg Sass OSB of the Monastery of St. Gertrude, Debbie (Mike) Mikota of Napavine, Wash., Larry (Jan) Sass of Ponca City, Okla., Steve (Gail) Sass of Port Orchard, Wash., David (Heather) Sass of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Mike Sass of Summit, N.J.; 15 grandchildren (one deceased); and 25 great-grandchildren.

Memorial gifts may be sent to the Monastery of St. Gertrude, 465 Keuterville Road, Cottonwood, ID 83522, or the Monastery of the Ascension, 541 E. 100 S., Jerome, ID 83338-5655.

The Vigil service is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 24, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls. Funeral Mass will be celebrated at 11 a.m. Friday, Oct. 25, at St. Edward the Confessor Catholic Church, 161 Sixth Ave. E. in Twin Falls, with Father Mike St. Marie and Father Boniface Lautz OSB as concelebrants. Inurnment will take place at the Monastery of the Ascension Cemetery near Jerome, followed by public visitation in the priory cafeteria.

Services are under the direction of Trent Stimpson and staff at Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls. Condolences may be left for the family by visiting www.reynoldschapel.com.

WWII Vet Honored with Long-overdue Military Medals

TULSA, Okla. (AP) • Given the choice, World War II veteran Phillip Coon probably wouldn't want the formality and fuss of being honored on a military base with men and women standing at attention, dressed in full regalia — even if it was with a fistful of long-overdue medals he waited decades to receive.

So it's fitting that the awards were presented to the humble Tulsa-area man Monday evening in an informal ceremony at the Tulsa International Airport, with family and fellow veterans in attendance and little pomp and circumstance.

The 94-year-old survivor of a POW labor camp and the Bataan Death March received the Prisoner of War Medal, Bronze Star and the Combat Infantryman Badge after he and his son, Michael, returned from a trip to Japan to promote understanding and healing with the U.S.

A couple of dozen people applauded wildly after the medals were presented to Coon, who was seated in a wheelchair. He lifted his ball cap in recognition, exposing a shock of silver hair.

"I've been blessed to come this far in life," he said, a tear streaming down one cheek. "I thank the Lord for watching over me."

Japan's Foreign Ministry said Coon visited the site of the former POW camp in Kosaka next to a now defunct copper mine where he was put to forced labor. The veteran also met the mayor and other officials in Kosaka, in Japan's northern prefecture of Akita. Coon, who lives in Sapulpa in northeastern Oklahoma, served as an infantry machine gunner in the Army. He is also a survivor of the Bataan Death March in the Philippines in 1942, when the Japanese military forced tens of thousands of American and Filipino soldiers to trek for 65 miles with little food or water in blazing heat. As many as 11,000 died along the way.

It's not clear why Coon didn't get his medals before now, but such occurrences with awards are not uncommon in the military.

Traditional German-Russian Roots Shine in Minidoka Kitchen

BY COREEN HART
Special to the Times-News

ACEQUIA • Darlene Moser learned early in life to be thrifty and skillful in the kitchen.

Her traditional German-Russian kuchen — coffee cake — shined at Acequia Days, the town's centennial celebration in June. The silky fruit dish sold out, and the money helped spruce up the Acequia city park.

Moser, now 81, descended from a German-speaking Russian family in Odessa, Ukraine, grew up in South Dakota and moved to Idaho more than 60 years ago.

Most of her neighbors have had the pleasure of eating kuchen from her kitchen.

Kuchen is made in a pie dish, with a silky yeast dough crust, moderately sweet canned fruit and a sugary custard top. Moser uses apricots and plums for filling. Both fruit trees can weather extreme temperatures and still produce abundant fruit in southern Idaho.

The fragrance of the quick-baking coffee cake lures people to the table. It is delicious served warm or cold and freezes well.

Moser keeps a few in the freezer for unexpected events.

Her kuchen is one of several dishes still passed around Minidoka County today, akin to the rugged sagebrush roots of struggling homestead Idaho families.

Early Idaho cooks learned to use what they had on hand because until the 1920s, they had no markets at which they could pick up extras. Some shared cows, taking turns milking and cleaning up. Farm women canned fruit, vegetables and even sauces.

Although they raised sugar beets, they bought sugar in 100-pound sacks. It was a long and perilous buggy ride to town for most. They lived a hard life, but a slice of kuchen was a pleasure to help them forget aching muscles and jackrabbit raids on the crops.

The alchemy of tender pastry and fragrant fruit and custard was a very small financial burden, as many of the ingredients were home-grown.

Kuchen

German-style coffee cake

makes 12 or more

Pastry:

2 tablespoons yeast dissolved in 1/2 cup warm water
2 cups sour cream, warmed (do not allow to boil)
2 cups water
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
1 tablespoon salt
vanilla to taste - about 2 tablespoons
11 1/2 cups all purpose flour
Dissolve yeast in 1/2 cup warm water. In a large bowl, mix 9 cups of the flour, salt and sugar. Stir yeast into flour mixture, then add sour cream, water, three beaten eggs and vanilla. Stir and then knead, adding flour until the texture is silky smooth and tender. Cover, place in a warm place, and allow to raise to about double. Punch it down and allow it to raise a second time. Moser says the more often you punch it down and raise it, the more tender it will be.

Get out all your pie pans and butter the bottoms only. You may be able to re-use some pans as they cool. Just slide the kuchen out gently onto a plate.

Custard filling:

Stir together in a 5-quart pan with heavy bottom:
1 quart cream
1 quart milk
7 eggs, well beaten
7 tablespoons cornstarch stirred into the milk
1 teaspoon salt
Vanilla to taste

ABOVE: This is what Darlene Moser's kuchen, or German-style coffee cake, looks like just before popping into the oven. The top layer, custard, needs only a touch of cinnamon.

TOP: Carefully, Moser presses a sweet yeast dough into a pie plate. She'll spread home-canned apricots or plums about 1/4 inch deep on top of the dough, top it with a kind of custard that is translucent, then sprinkle some cinnamon on top.

Fast-Growing Fall Pumpkins

I grew pumpkins for the first time last year, and I have no idea why I waited so long. Pumpkin vines and fruits grow fast enough to interest everyone but a 3-year-old with attention deficit disorder. Pumpkins are magical enough to qualify them for fairy tales, nursery rhymes and a starring role in Halloween. Their popularity seems to increase each year.

You can choose from a multitude of varieties in several colors. Some are best for jack-o-lanterns, some for pies and some for seeds. There are even naked seed varieties that produce seeds without hulls, also known as pepitas. I particularly like the unusual varieties: some heirlooms, some new hybrids and some actually squash.

Cinderella (original name, Rouge vif D'Etames) is a gorgeous red-orange that grows into a flattened round shape. Fairytale (original name, Musque De Provence) ripens to a tan burgundy and is also flattened and deeply ribbed. As their names imply, both of these pumpkins look like your fairy godmother could turn them into a coach just in time for prom.

Warted pumpkins, such as Knuckhead, split people into two camps. You love them or you hate them. Some pumpkins require more growing days than we can provide in southern Idaho, such as Dill's Giant, which can grow to 100 pounds or more.

Our growing season might be marginal to get full color before frost on other varieties. Starting with young plants rather than direct sowing will buy some valuable time. If you want to see a great list of pumpkin varieties, check out the comparison chart at Johnnyseeds.com.

The two biggest challenges when growing pumpkins are space and water. They need plenty of both. Each hill — two to three plants placed close together — needs 50 to 100 square feet. Once the vines kick into action, water generously. Just as a long-distance runner needs lots of water, so does this marathon vegetable.

Slight wilting on a hot afternoon is not a concern. Morning wilt is, however. That indicates the need for more water.

Pumpkins should be planted to get at least six hours of direct sunlight. It is very common for pumpkin vines to get powdery mildew as the season progresses. If it doesn't show up until late summer, the plant probably can continue growing without any intervention on your part.

Crossing chicken Parmesan with pasta puttanesca

BY J.M. HIRSCH
AP Food Editor

A chicken Parmesan that's big on flavor, but not on fat? It's easier _ and more week-night-friendly _ than you might think.

I started with a basic breaded and baked chicken breast. For speed, I cut the breasts into thin cutlets. And that speed isn't just a convenience. It also pays dividends on texture. The less time the chicken spends in the oven, the more tender and moist the end result.

For a crunchy coating, I kept it simple _ panko breadcrumbs. Dunk the chicken in some egg, drag it through the breadcrumbs and you're ready to move on.

While the chicken bakes, the sauce comes together in just minutes on the stovetop. I used puttanesca _ the fast and flavorful pasta sauce _ as my inspiration. A few high-flavor ingredients pull it all together in no time. And with a lot less of the usual fat that clogs this dish. We do finish it with Parmesan cheese, but the sauce is so flavorful already, a little goes a long way.

CHICKEN PUTTANESCA PARMESAN
Start to finish 30 minutes
Servings 4
Ingredients
2 boneless, skinless chicken breasts
1 egg
1 cup panko breadcrumbs
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
1 tablespoon olive oil
4 to 6 oil-packed anchovies
1/4 teaspoon red pepper flakes
1 large yellow onion, diced
2 Roma tomatoes, cored and chopped
1/2 cup chopped pitted

Kalamata olives
4 cloves garlic, minced
2 tablespoons capers
5 large leaves fresh basil, chopped
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
Preparation
Heat the oven to 400 F. Coat a baking sheet with cooking spray.
One at a time, carefully slice each chicken breast in half horizontally to create two thin halves.

Place the egg in a wide, shallow bowl. In a second bowl, mix together the breadcrumbs, garlic powder, salt and pepper.
One at a time, dunk the chicken cutlets first in the egg, then in the breadcrumbs, pressing as needed to adhere them to the meat. Arrange the breaded cutlets on the baking sheet, then mist the tops with cooking spray. Bake for 20 minutes, or until lightly browned.

Meanwhile, in a large skillet over medium-high, heat the oil. Add the anchovies and red pepper flakes, then saute until the anchovies have dissolved. Add the onion and saute for 5 minutes. Add the tomatoes and bring to a simmer. Cook just until the tomatoes begin to break down, about 5 to 7 minutes. Remove the pan from the heat and stir in the olives, garlic, capers and basil. Season with salt and pepper.

When the chicken is done, transfer each cutlet to a serving plate. Spoon the sauce over each, then top with Parmesan.

Make a Watercress Curry Sauce

THE WASHINGTON POST

3 or 4 servings
This preparation might be a bit unexpected and rich-tasting for a weeknight. But you're worth it. The application is flexible; the sauce tastes as good spooned over thin slices of poultry as it does over a melange of grilled or sauteed vegetables.
If you're cooking for one or two, the sauce will hold in the refrigerator for no more than a day or so. It will not freeze well. Adapted from "The Complete Leafy Greens Cookbook: 67 Leafy Greens and 250 Recipes," by Susan Sampson (Robert Rose, October 2013).
Ingredients
1 bunch watercress
2 shallots

1 inner rib celery
2 tablespoons unsalted butter
1/2 cup dry white wine
1/2 cup no-salt-added vegetable broth
1/2 teaspoon kosher salt, or as needed
1/2 cup heavy cream
1 heaping teaspoon mild or hot tikka masala sauce (may substitute Indian curry paste, preferably Madras)
Roast chicken or turkey or grilled/sauteed vegetables, for serving
Preparation
Rinse and dry the watercress. Separate the stems and leaves into two separate piles. Coarsely chop the stems; finely chop the leaves, keeping the piles discrete.
Mince the shallots. Cut the celery into small dice.

Melt the butter in a large, heavy-bottomed saucepan over medium heat. Add the watercress stems, shallots and celery, stirring to coat. Cook for about 5 minutes, until softened and slightly golden, then add the wine, broth and salt, stirring to incorporate. Remove from the heat. Use an immersion (stick) blender to puree until the solids are finely chopped.
Return to the stove top, over medium-high heat. Stir in the cream, tikka masala sauce and the watercress leaves. Once the mixture begins to boil, reduce the heat to medium-low; cook for 10 minutes. The watercress should be tender and the sauce will have thickened a bit. Taste, and add salt as needed.

Serve warm, poured over roast chicken or turkey, or grilled or sauteed vegetables.

Latkes Lend Savory Crunch to Stuffing

BY ALISON LADMAN
Associated Press

Part of what makes the traditional Thanksgiving stuffing so irresistible is its delicious blend of lightly crisped top and sides with a tender and moist inside.

Turns out that combination also happens to be the mark of a great fried potato latke, one of the most iconic foods of Hanukkah. And since this year marks the rare convergence of Thanksgiving and the first day of Hanukkah, we decided to see whether we could unite these classic comfort foods in one dish.

The result is a wonderfully rich stuffing topped by a crispy layer of fried latkes. And it's good enough that you may want to make it for years to come, regardless of when Hanukkah or Thanksgiving fall on the calendar.

LATKE-CRUSTED APPLE STUFFING
Start to finish 1 hour 10 minutes (30 minutes active)
Servings 12
Ingredients
2 large russet potatoes
4 eggs, divided
1/2 cup all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons minced fresh sage
Salt and ground black pepper
Vegetable oil, for frying
1 large yellow onion, roughly chopped
3 stalks celery, roughly chopped
2 carrots, roughly chopped

1 green bell pepper, cored and roughly chopped
1/4 cup chopped fresh chives
2 medium apples, peeled and diced
1 large loaf (about 1 pound) challah bread, cut into 1/2-inch cubes and toasted
2 cups low-sodium chicken or turkey broth or stock

Preparation
Heat the oven to 350 F. Coat a large casserole dish or a 9-by-13-inch pan with cooking spray.

Into a medium bowl lined with several layers of paper towels or a clean kitchen towel, shred the potatoes. Gather the towels with the potatoes inside and squeeze out as much liquid as possible. Discard the liquid, dry the bowl, then return the potatoes to the bowl, removing the towels. Stir in 2 of the eggs, the flour, sage and a hefty pinch each of salt and pepper.

In a large skillet over medium-high, heat 1/4 inch of oil over medium-high. Working in batches, drop the potato mixture in 1/4 cup mounds into the oil, flattening them with the back of a spatula. Cook until golden brown on both sides, about 2 to 3 minutes per side. Transfer the latkes to a paper towel-lined plate and repeat with the remaining potato mixture.

In a food processor, combine the onion, celery, carrots and green pepper. Pulse until finely chopped.

the latkes. Set the pan over medium heat, then transfer the vegetable mixture to it and cook until lightly browned and tender, 5 to 7 minutes. Transfer the mixture to a large bowl, then add the chives, apples and challah. Season with a hefty sprinkle each of salt and pepper.

In a small bowl, whisk together the 2 remaining eggs and the broth. Pour over the stuffing mixture and mix well. Spoon the stuffing into the prepared pan. Arrange the latkes over the top. Wrap with foil or cover and bake for 35 minutes. Remove the foil or cover and continue baking for 10 minutes, or until 165 F in the center.

Virginia Residents Choose food-inspired lifestyle

THE WASHINGTON POST

It is a cloudless, blue-sky day at Willowsford, with the kind of breeze that deposits freshness in laundry hung outdoors and carries kitchen aromas to the windows of passing cars. Chef Bonnie Moore is checking on the progress of her students as they assemble sweet potato ravioli, using long, thin scarves of pasta that most of them have made for the first time.

"As we get hungrier, we tend to put more filling in the pasta than it can really hold," she warns the women at work table No. 6. Lunchtime is imminent, and everyone's rustic tomato and goat cheese tarts, a first course, are cooling on a wheeled rack nearby.

Willowsford is no remedial cooking school. It's a shiny new residential community in Loudoun County, Va., whose four separate villages are distributed among 4,000 acres. Moore is its culinary director, and her position is one of the features that has broken new ground here. Acres of working farmland and pastures, plus access and guidance to their bounty, are at the core of the developers' promise of "inspired living."

"I have never eaten as many vegetables as I have since I've been here," says Charmaine Smith, 37. She and her family moved to the village called the Grove from San Diego about three months ago. "We pick up stuff at Willowsford Farm," she says during a cooking class break. "My kids go to happy gardening hour there on Thursdays. We picked sweet potatoes a while back. I lost four pounds last week!"

In March 2012, the first of Willowsford's 135 families settled into tastefully designed homes prices range from the high $500,000s to over $1 million on rolling Virginia land where fields of soybeans, sod and silage corn were once industrially farmed. They can fish from their rowboats in Willow Lake, follow miles of trails among the development's 2,000 acres of conservancy open space and enjoy preferred status in Willowsford's community-supported agriculture (CSA) program.

A trained chef with stints at the Inn at Little Washington and at L'Academie de Cuisine as an instructor, Moore was brought onboard by the Willowsford team early in the planning stages. Her input in the recreational facility called the Lodge is evident in its 1,500-square-foot culinary space, which is outfitted to an enviable degree: two gleaming Blue Star wall ovens with French doors; a Gaggeneau steam oven; a large Wolf stove top and induction burners; a Miele speed oven and refrigeration and dishwasher drawers. There are enough portable induction burners and KitchenAid stand mixers for a class of 20 or more, and a commercial dishwasher/prep kitchen in the back.

"It's not hard to come to work here every day," she says.

Moore sees herself as connecting "the dots between the farm, the kitchen and the community." That means working with the Willowsford Farm team to find local purveyors of cheeses, meat, honey, baked goods and even kombucha for the twice-weekly Farm Stand that's open to the public not just Willowsford residents. She's quick to tout the Willowsford label Country White and Farmhouse Red, the result of a collaboration with Tarara Winery in Leesburg, Va. Bottles of both have been gently lubricating the morning.

That's because Vault Bags of rarely seen Indian Head coins issued by the U.S. Gov't nearly 100 years ago are being handed over to the general public for the next 48 hours.

Everyone is rushing to get as many bags as they can get their hands on because each one is loaded with nearly a quarter pound of rarely seen Indian Head collector coins dating all the way back to 1913.

"It's hard to tell how much these heavy Vault Bags could be worth someday. That's because after they were filled with U.S. Gov't issued coins, the bags are now sealed for good," said Timothy J. Shissler, Chief Numismatist of the private World Reserve.

Since this 2-day public release announcement is being so widely advertised, collectors can't be stopped from hoarding all the rarely seen coins they can get their hands on. So a strict limit has been imposed. Only 10 Vault have value for your children, grandchildren, or someone whom you want to impress. That's why these Vault Bags make the perfect gift. You just won't believe the expression on their faces when you hand them these heavy Vault Bags.

Bags each containing nearly a quarter pound of coins per resident, please.

"Coins like these are nearly impossible to find in circulation and when they're gone, they're gone," said Shissler.

"That's why everyone needs to immediately call the National Toll Free Hotline at 1-866-338-2777, use Claim Code BN629. If lines are busy keep trying, all calls will be answered," he said. ■

Pumpkin Pie and Doughnuts Are Meant To Be Together

ASSOCIATED PRESS
This Oct. 7 photo shows pumpkin honey doughnuts in Concord, N.H. To help bridge the holidays of Hanukkah and Thanksgiving, this recipe combines the classic fried doughnut from Hanukkah and pumpkin pie from Thanksgiving, into one delicious treat.

BY ALISON LADMAN
Associated Press

Hanukkah and Thanksgiving may not coincide very often, but these pumpkin honey doughnuts will make you wish they did.

To help bridge these holidays, we borrowed a classic dessert of each — fried doughnuts for Hanukkah and pumpkin pie for Thanksgiving — and brought them together in one delicious mouthful. The result is a terrifically moist fried doughnut rich with the flavors of pumpkin pie. A glaze of cinnamon and lemon-spiked honey ties everything together.

Alison Ladman is a recipe developer for the AP. Follow her on Twitter at <https://twitter.com/CrustAndCrumbCo>

PUMPKIN HONEY DOUGHNUTS
Start to finish 1 1/2 hours (45 minutes active)

Makes 3 dozen doughnut holes
Ingredients
2 teaspoons instant yeast
3 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
1/2 cup warm water
15-ounce can pumpkin puree (not pumpkin pie filling)
1 egg
1/3 cup honey
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon cinnamon
Vegetable oil, for frying
Preparation
In a medium bowl, stir together the yeast, flour, salt and pumpkin pie spice. Stir in the water, pumpkin and egg until a thick, smooth batter forms. Cover with plastic wrap and allow to rest for 45 minutes.
In a small saucepan over medium heat, combine the honey, sugar, lemon juice and cinnamon. Bring to a boil and stir well. Remove from the heat.
In a large, deep skillet over medium-high, heat 1 inch of oil to 375 F.
Working in batches, carefully drop the batter by the tablespoonful into the hot oil. A cookie or small ice cream scoop makes this easier. Turning occasionally, fry the doughnuts until deep golden brown all over and cooked through, about 5 minutes. Use a slotted spoon to transfer the fried doughnuts to a large bowl. Drizzle the honey syrup over the doughnuts and toss to coat. Repeat with remaining doughnuts. Serve immediately.

Motion Detectors Aid Dairy Farmers

BY M.L. JOHNSON
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. (AP) • A growing number of dairy farmers are using motion detectors to decide when to breed their cows.

Cows in heat move more than those that aren't, and that activity can be recorded by electronic boxes on their collars.

At Saxon Homestead Farm in Cleveland, Wis., data from the boxes is scanned and sent to a computer when cows go through a gate in the milking parlor. The gate sends cows in heat in one direction to be bred and the rest another way.

Activity monitoring systems aren't new, but farmers say interest is growing as the technology becomes more accurate and easier to use.

Farmers say the collars don't eliminate hormone use because some cows still need drugs to get pregnant, but they do reduce it.

Amish Menue at Yoder’s in Sarasota

This Oct. 12, image customers exit Yoder’s Restaurant in Sarasota, Fla. The restaurant is known for “homestyle Amish food” and is popular with locals and tourists alike.

BY BETH J. HARPAPZ
AP Travel Editor

SARASOTA, Fla. • It’s 2:30 p.m. on a Saturday in October — well past lunch, and the slowest time of year in Sarasota, where the beautiful Gulf Coast beaches are most crowded in winter and spring.

But the line for “home-style Amish food” at Yoder’s Restaurant is out the door, with a 45-minute wait for a table. Salivating customers snake past a sign listing varieties of pie as waitresses walk by carrying trays heaped with fried chicken.

Yoder’s is located in Pinecraft, an Amish-Mennonite neighborhood that swells in the cold months as buses bring visitors from Amish and Mennonite communities in Ohio and Indiana. Its comfort-food menu reflects traditional Amish home-cooking with yummy staples like noodles, pot roast, meatloaf and mashed potatoes. But the food is prepared with a light touch, avoiding the oversalted goo and blandness that gives this type of cooking a bad name.

The menu is also sprinkled with surprises you don’t expect to find at an Amish restaurant: Asian chicken salad, “Amish quesadillas” (chicken, cheese and mushrooms), and a salad of mixed greens, crumbled gorgonzola cheese and dried cranberries. Breakfast includes a veggie Benedict — spinach, tomato, and avocado with hollandaise sauce and fresh fruit on the side.

No meal here is complete without trying Yoder’s famous pie, which comes in two dozen varieties. The most popular flavor is peanut butter, with layers of crunchy peanut butter topping and vanilla pudding. Also popular are coconut, banana cream, strawberry and chocolate peanut butter. Some varieties are offered seasonally, like mincemeat.

In some parts of the country where the Amish spurn modern ways, you’ll find horse-and-buggies plying the roads, but here the only horse and buggy is a model in Yoder’s parking lot. Local adherents of the faith instead get around on three-wheel bikes, which form a virtual parade in some parts of town in winter.

Pinecraft is also famous for its post office, which the Amish community bought from the U.S. Postal Service after the branch was scheduled to close, and for its simple church, called the Tourist Church. Both are just a block or two from Yoder’s. The TLC network has even filmed some of its “Breaking Amish” episodes in Pinecraft. The reality show looks at young people who were raised Amish and Mennonite as they experience life outside those communities and decide whether to go back to them.

Yoder’s, which opened in 1975, has a gift shop and produce market onsite as well. The restaurant seats 130 people but on a busy day in peak season routinely serves 1,500. Customers are a mix of locals and tourists, and only a few are Amish. It’s not unusual to hear all kinds of languages spoken on the line to get in; some vacationers will drive an hour from Tampa-St. Petersburg or even two hours from Orlando to eat here.

And after putting away all that fried chicken, noodles and pie — or, if you must, a salad — there’s no better way to enjoy the rest of your day in Sarasota than at Siesta Key beach, just a short drive — or three-wheeled bike ride — away.

District IV BLUE BLOODS Start State Soccer Journey

Upstarts Twin Falls and Canyon Ridge took the league by storm but faltered at the district tournament opening the door for two of the old guard, Jerome and Wood River, to qualify for the state competition.

BY DAVID BASHORE

dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • There's a saying in the English soccer game: "Form is temporary; class is permanent."

It means that teams might have a good run over the course of a season, or even two, but the best-built programs are the ones who have success year after year.

Never was that more evident than in 2013, where the 4A District IV boys soccer scene was thrown on its head during the regular season, when upstarts Canyon Ridge and Twin Falls took the league by storm.

At the district tournament, however, those two teams faltered and two of the old guard — Jerome and Wood River — again qualified for the state tournament, which begins Thursday in Caldwell for nine local teams.

"I always tell them at the beginning of the season that they have to keep up with the tradition of working hard. That's just what they did throughout the season," Jerome coach Robert Garcia said, referring to his 2013 squad that won the Tigers' fifth district title in seven years. "It's always in their mind that they have to keep that tradition going from player to player, and we've had a lot of mentors from last year, take on the younger kids and mentor them."

Jerome hasn't played for a state championship in that stretch of domination, but the Tigers are perennially close. They get help from players past, who pitch in with the new kids and give them pointers on little things that could provide an edge.

Jose Hernandez, a captain from last season, used his experience as a Jerome forward to give the 2013 players tips on shooting techniques and how to be more prolific scorers.

"It means a lot when they come back, even if they go to college they still come back when they can and they watch us and support us," said Jerome goalkeeper Edgar Juarez. "They all grew up with us and we all played together. We just want to keep it going."

On the girls side of the 4A tournament, Twin Falls is also in the midst of its golden generation. The seniors on this year's team have played for four district championships and won three.

Last year, they took the school's first girls soccer trophy home. Now, they want it all.

"There's still a lot for us to prove. When we have won districts three years in a row, it's still such a big accomplishment, but now people want to see us do something at state," said Twin Falls forward Maddie

Watkins. "It's the next level and it's time for us to prove we're good enough for that."

Twin Falls is on the opposite side of the bracket from Century and Bishop Kelly, two of its banes at the state tournament. But Middleton, which snapped Bishop Kelly's record winning streak by blighting it with a tie, is the Bruins' first-round opponent.

Wood River qualified on the boys and girls sides of the 4A tournament, joining the Community School in representing its valley on both sides of the 3A tournament. It's the first time since 2005 that all four teams qualified for state in the same year.

The Wolverines aren't expected to be among the title contenders but are rising at the right time. The Cutthroats, their girls especially, could be in the mix at the 3A level.

Kelly Feldman's team is 15-0 on the season and has only conceded four goals, scoring 85. But they're only concerned about Shelley, their first round opponent on Thursday.

"I don't want to make it a pressure point, so I really try to just stay away from it. It means nothing, to me, because you're only as good as your last game, and state is the real test. Being undefeated at this point is neither here nor there," Feldman said. "My team gets the drill: just because we've walked through the conference, it doesn't matter, it's how we can do at state."

"Of course it's in the back of everybody's minds, it's our goal to play in that final and win it."

The Community School reached the title game for the first time last season, falling to McCall-Donnelly.

Smash-mouth Football a Dying Art in Pass-happy NFL

ASSOCIATED PRESS

On Peyton Manning’s first drive of his first game as a visiting player in Indianapolis, the Denver Broncos faced third down and 1 yard to go. Manning handed the football to Knowshon Moreno, who was stopped short. Denver punted.

On Manning’s third drive, again he faced third-and-1, again he gave the ball to Moreno, and again the play was stuffed. Again, Denver punted.

“Hit a little rut there,” Manning said hours later, after the Colts gave his Broncos their first loss of the season.

Other NFL offenses failed on similar plays Sunday, and it happens week after week: In the most critical of short-yardage situations, teams are converting at the lowest rate since at least 1995. The days of smash-mouth football, of bruising backs pushing piles forward with the help of run-blocking offensive linemen, are gone. Teams that have perfected the pass are not as equipped as they used to be for getting a key yard — or even inches — on the ground.

“The concept of running the football,”

former NFL coach Marty Schottenheimer said, “has kind of taken a back seat.”

One of his 1980s Browns teams had two 1,000-yard rushers in the same season. One of his 1990s Chiefs clubs led the league in yards rushing. His tenure with the Chargers in the early 2000s featured LaDainian Tomlinson.

Times have changed. “People have decided that the best, most efficient, way to go about it is to go ahead and spread the field out and try to get the quarterback a chance to do a pre-snap read,” Schottenheimer said. “And essentially, the play is called after the quarterback has stood there and looked at the defense and its deployment and figured out where to throw.”

Increasingly, teams can’t gain what they want on the ground on third or fourth down with 2 or fewer yards needed for a first down or a touchdown. And increasingly, they’re passing on those plays.

In all of those situations — third-and-2-or-less, fourth-and-2-or-less, including goal-to-go — NFL teams were successful 58.5 percent of the time through games of Oct. 14, according to STATS. That is a lower rate on such plays than for any full season since 1995 (that’s how far STATS data goes back).

The rate in 1995 was 65.1 percent. In 2008, it was 63.7, and has been declining steadily since.

“My only answer,” Steelers defensive coordinator Dick LeBeau said, “would be they don’t quite run as much as they used to.”

That, of course, is true. Games this season are averaging 53.2 running attempts, the fewest in the Super Bowl era, and 213.7 yards rushing, the third-fewest. Passing, meanwhile, is on pace for records of 72.3 throws and 489.2 net yards passing per game.

In 1987, for example, offenses were far more balanced, with 62.8 runs and 64.2 passes per game.

“We’re more of a throwing league. ... Whatever you do more, you’re likely to get a little better at,” LeBeau said.

Plus, he noted, “It’s easier to throw the ball over somebody’s head for 40 yards than it is to pound down the field 3 at a time.”

Community School’s Hannah Dies battles with Fruitland’s Bryndee Ryan during the 3A Soccer State Championships Oct. 18, 2012 at Sunway Soccer Complex in Twin Falls.

SoccerContinued from Sports 1

Their closest games this season were a 2-0 win over Wood River and a 3-2 win over fellow tournament qualifier Filer, which led 1-0 and 2-1 in the game. Otherwise, the Cutthroats haven’t been touched this season.

On the boys side, Gooding is geared up for a repeat and its third title in five seasons.

“I’m having a hard time even getting a good practice, because they’re so jacked,” coach Roger Johnson said. “But the kids are excited and they set their goal. I didn’t set it; my job is to help them get there.”

Gooding faces the Community School in the first round, meaning the best the three teams from District IV (Wendell has also qualified) can do is finish first, second and fourth. That would mean three trophies back to what’s generally viewed as the most difficult district in Idaho 3A soccer.

“I wish we didn’t have to play our own league until at least the second round, (but) to me, it doesn’t matter who we play, because they’re the last eight teams in the state and they’re all good,” Johnson said. “(The Community School) has played us really hard twice, so who knows. As long as we can go out and play our game, we should be OK. We don’t make any changes for any team we play. You’ve got to play your own game, and that’s the biggest challenge is it’s easy to get caught playing someone else’s game.”

TournamentRAFT RIVER 3, GRACE 1

MALTA • Raft River will face Butte County at 5:30 p.m. on Thursday at Hagerman after defeating Grace, 25-9, 27-29, 25-17, 25-19.

Both Alexis Tuckett and Taryn Whitaker sparked the Trojans with double-doubles. Tuckett had 15 kills and 14 digs and Whitaker finished with 10 kills and 20 digs.

Jacki Carpenter also added 18 digs. Marka Baker and 15 assists Lauren Schumann together totaled 37 assists with Schumann leading with 22 and Baker contributing 15.

BUTTE COUNTY 3, HANSEN 2
ARCO • Butte County eliminated Hansen in a five-set match, 22-25, 25-19, 16-25, 25-21, 17-15.

Jenna Harris led the Huskies offense with 20 kills, Renee Peters followed with 13, Yvette Alaniz added 11 digs and had four service aces, and Courtney Carter had 10 kills. Reese Peters passed out 40 assists. For the Hansen defense, Alaniz and Renee Peters each had 10 digs and Carter led at the net with three blocks.

Ferguson: Beckham's Mission Was to Be Famous

LONDON • Alex Ferguson criticizes David Beckham's preoccupation with fame in his new autobiography. At Manchester United, Ferguson developed Beckham into one of the world's most recognizable athletes. But the midfielder left United in 2003 for Real Madrid under a cloud after his relationship with the manager broke down. "David was the only player I managed who chose to be famous, who made it his mission to be known outside the game," Ferguson writes in the book, which will be released Thursday. "I felt uncomfortable with the celebrity aspect of his life." By moving to the Los Angeles Galaxy in 2007 after four years at Madrid, Ferguson said, Beckham "surrendered a part of his career." During the 2002-03 season, Ferguson was concerned that Beckham's "application level had dropped" and his "work-rate was dropping." There was no turning back after a February 2003 match against Arsenal. Ferguson was unhappy that Beckham neglected to track back when Arsenal scored its second goal in a 2-0 win. "As usual, with David at that time, he was dismissive of my criticism," Ferguson wrote. "It's possible that he was starting to think he was no longer needed to track back and chase." In the locker room, Ferguson recalls Beckham swearing nearby. "I moved towards him, and as I approached I kicked a boot. It hit him right above the eye," Ferguson recalled. "Of course he rose to have a go at me and the players stopped him." After that, Ferguson told the board that Beckham had to leave. "The big problem for me — and I'm a football man — he fell in love with (former Spice Girl) Victoria and that changed everything," Ferguson said Tuesday at his book launch.

DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married, heterosexual cross-dressing male. My wife understands and is supportive, and we have a wonderful life together.

DEAR ABBY Jeanne Phillips

During the past week I have been caught unexpectedly by three different neighbors, and we are now in a state of panic. We're not sure what to do. If you have any suggestions, we are all ears.

— CAUGHT IN A PANIC
DEAR CAUGHT: Because you would prefer to keep your cross-dressing private and this is October, you could tell your neighbors your female attire is what you'll be wearing to a costume party. It's plausible.

However, when someone is "caught" engaging in a private activity once — that's an accident. When it happens three times in one week, I can't help but wonder whether on some level you would like to be more open about your lifestyle.

If you're not aware, a resource, The Society for the Second Self (Tri-Ess International), offers support for heterosexual cross-dressers as well as their spouses, partners and families. It has been in my column before and is the oldest and largest support organization for cross-dressers and those who love them. It promotes cross-dressing with dignity and decency, and treats spouses on an equal basis with their cross-dressers. You can learn more about it at www.tri-ess.org.

DEAR ABBY: My best friend's husband has been texting me. When he did it the first time, he had been drinking and my friend was asleep. Some of the things he said made me uncomfortable, but I also didn't like that he said his wife didn't know what he was doing. He stopped after I told him I was uncomfortable with it.

Now he has started up again, offering support because my mother passed away recently. I am honestly not sure whether he's trying to be a good friend or if he's looking for something more, and that scares me. I don't want to start trouble between my friend and her husband, especially because they seem so happy together. Any ideas on how to handle this?

— UNSETTLED IN OHIO

DEAR UNSETTLED: Yes. Your friend's husband may be a genuinely sympathetic person — or he could be trying to take advantage of you while you're emotionally vulnerable. Listen to your gut. Tell him you appreciate his thoughtfulness, but you already have a support system in place and are receiving all of the emotional support you need.

DEAR ABBY: My 17-year-old cousin died in 2010, and I'm still hurting. I have tried to get over it, but we were really close. When I walk the halls at school, I hear people say bad things about him. When I bring his name up, no one has anything good to say about him. It seems like they don't really care that he was my cousin and I loved him.

How can I ask these people not to say bad things about him?

— HURTING IN INDIANA

DEAR HURTING: Because people forget that the young man who died was your relative, feel free to remind them. All you need to say is: "You know, he was my cousin and we were close. I still miss him, and I wish you wouldn't say things like that about him when I'm around."

Losing a relative at any age is hard, but when the person is young, it can be even harder. Because you are still hurting and it has been three years, consider talking about this with a school counselor or joining a grief support group. Your clergyperson can help you locate one.

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 23, the 296th day of 2013. There are 69 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Oct. 23, 1983, 241 U.S. service members, most of them Marines, were killed in a suicide truck-bombing at Beirut International Airport in Lebanon; a near-simultaneous attack on French forces killed 58 paratroopers.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1864, forces led by Union Gen. Samuel R. Curtis repelled Confederate Gen. Sterling Price's army in the Civil War Battle of Westport in Missouri.

In 1910, Blanche S. Scott became the first woman to make a public solo airplane flight, reaching an altitude of 12 feet at a park in Fort Wayne, Ind.

In 1915, tens of thousands of women marched in New York City, demanding the right to vote.

In 1941, the Walt Disney animated feature "Dumbo" premiered in New York.

In 1942, during World War II, Britain launched a major offensive against Axis forces at El Alamein in Egypt, resulting in an Allied victory.

In 1954, West Germany was invited to join the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, which it did the following year.

In 1956, a student-sparked revolt against Hungary's Communist rule began; as the revolution spread, Soviet forces started entering the country, and the uprising was put down within weeks.

In 1973, President Richard Nixon agreed to turn over White House tape recordings subpoenaed by the Watergate special prosecutor to Judge John J. Sirica.

In 1980, the resignation of Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin was announced.

In 1987, the U.S. Senate rejected, 58-42, the Supreme Court nomination of Robert H. Bork.

In 1991, Cambodia's warring factions and representatives of 18 other nations signed a peace treaty in Paris.

In 1995, a jury in Houston convicted Yolanda Saldívar of murdering Tejano singing star Selena. (Saldívar is serving a life prison sentence.)

In 2001, The nation's anthrax scare hit the White House with the discovery of a small concentration of spores at an offsite mail processing center. President George W. Bush announced he had authorized money for improved post office security following the deaths of two postal workers from inhalation anthrax.

Ten years ago: As thousands of anti-war demonstrators protested outside, President George W. Bush thanked Australia for sending troops to Iraq and Afghanistan as he spoke to the country's Parliament. Later in the day, the president concluded his Pacific trip with a visit to Hawaii, where he dropped flowers into the water at the sunken battleship USS Arizona. Madame Chiang Kai-shek, widow of the Chinese nationalist leader, died in New York at age 105. In Game 5 of the World Series, the Florida Marlins beat the New York Yankees 6-4, bringing the team within one game of winning the baseball championship.

Five years ago: Badgered by lawmakers on the House Oversight Committee, former Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan denied the nation's economic crisis was his fault but conceded the meltdown had revealed a flaw in a lifetime of economic thinking and left him in a "state of shocked disbelief." The Tampa Bay Rays evened the World Series at one game apiece by beating the Philadelphia Phillies, 4-2.

One year ago: In a debate with Democratic rival Joe Donnelly, Indiana Republican Senate candidate Richard Mourdock said that when a woman becomes pregnant during rape, "that's something God intended." Former Penn State football assistant Jerry Sandusky was transferred to a Pennsylvania state prison from the county jail where he'd been held since his conviction on child molestation charges.

Times-News Classifieds 208-733-0931 ext. 2

IF OCTOBER 23 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Confidence runs high during the next four to six weeks. You might safely pose as a high flyer without a safety net since you're fearless and forthright. Hang tight, however, and wait to implement your major material plans until next January, February or March, when your ambitions and business acumen are in high gear. Late December or January could be the optimum time to take a dream vacation with a romantic partner, or just a good time to jot down all the ideas that flower.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Gentle persuasion does the trick. Remain tolerant of other people's opinions and willing to give every person the benefit of the doubt.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Reach out to friends, family and loved ones. A professional tie possibly becomes a bit trickier to handle. Past problems might create a blockade, but you have the ability to overcome this with a sincere apology.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You can easily achieve a meeting of the minds if you're willing to meet someone halfway. You can juggle the checkbook or handle intricate calculations. Take pride in your ability to be accurate without being critical.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may be riveted on business all day, but the night is a different animal. Loved ones will do their best to fulfill your every need and intuitively read your mind. Enjoy good times while they last.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Start something lasting under desirable conditions and the outcome will be pleasing. Focus on enhancing your reputation without appearing to be a cutthroat business person. There's enough to go around.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Count on someone to be there when needed. Your reliance upon family members, as well as partners, will be rewarded by support just in the nick of time. You can tighten the purse strings best by clipping coupons.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Listen to the voice of reason and inspiration before you act. This is a good time to ask for forgiveness, ask for assistance, or to make a good thing better. Entering into new business arrangements isn't wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may be a bit more idealistic and visionary than usual. You can see the long-term benefits of supporting local stores and businesses. Your energies are charged up, so you can easily tackle intensive studies.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Stay out of the limelight. Cozy times at home might be your best bet. Pop popcorn, out on a movie and share the sofa with a loved one. You may end up exchanging sweet nothings big-time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Love the one you're with. Make the best use of amorous alignments to delight a partner or amuse a lover. This isn't an auspicious time to start a new romance, but you can breathe new life into old ones.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Remain flexible and willing to adapt to sudden changes in plans. You won't be punished by the fickle finger of fate for being extra nice to the new guy in your office, or making a generous donation.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): If your love life were a party, you'd be attending Woodstock. As often happens during any heady social event, unbalanced judgment could affect serious business matters. Don't aim too hard to please.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Against this coming end you should prepare."
— William Shakespeare

It is not immediately clear what is the best slam for North-South to reach with today's cards. The bidding has several points of interest since North has enough for a positive response to the two club opening but no convenient suit to bid. South might re-bid three diamonds rather than two no-trump. Once he treats his hand as balanced, the highest-scoring small slam is reached.

The lead of the heart jack gets declarer off to a friendly start, but how should one play the hand — either at teams or matchpoints? Clearly if diamonds divide 3-2, South has 13 top tricks. He must, however, guard against a 4-1 diamond split, a break that occurs almost one time in four.

If South unblocks his clubs and leads to the diamond ace to cash the club ace, the 4-1 diamond split may defeat him. (The opponents may cash one club or more when they gain the lead with the fourth diamond.)

To overcome this difficulty, declarer must give up a diamond trick before he uses up his diamond-ace entry to dummy. He must, of course, cash his king and queen of clubs at tricks two and three before making the essential move of conceding a diamond trick.

This line of play guarantees the contract unless diamonds are 5-0. Declarer wins the return and uses the diamond ace as his entry to dummy to cash the club ace and discard his heart loser.

ANSWER: Your choice is to jump to three diamonds, suggesting about eight playing tricks in diamonds and inviting your partner to bid on if he has a trick. Or you can rebid no-trump (one no-trump shows 18–20; two no-trump shows 21–22). I prefer the diamond bid. With no quick tricks in your hand and with such a broken diamond suit, I'd be worried about the clubs running against me.
