

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

CONDUCT—The United States is still fighting a political war. And the responsibility rests on the officials and business groups on and off Capitol Hill as well as with those who have even more direct control over our affairs, including the President and his cabinet.

Members of Congress and Chambers of Commerce should have some sense of responsibility in the location of airfields, ship-building centers, factories, deposits, etc. Montana also a powerful claimant for the assembly plant of an airplane plant, although it was not wanted by the army. More recently participants in a western committee have favored the erection of an air defense center on a site selected by the experts.

It is not surprising that it is a spot continually overhung by clouds. Clashing interests have blocked for years the start on a military highway from the States to Alaska. Personal favorites of official zealotry have won commissions for which they were which frequently should be noted and the public individuals and groups have been almost as conspicuous as the Democrats in this undenounced sabotage.

And influence their promotion. P. D. R. could stop for the conduct and outcome of the conflict properly. But they dare not complain to their departmental superiors. The latter are forced to bow to the demands of lobbyists who control their appropriations and influences their promotion. P. D. R. could stop and let the military highway from the States to Alaska. Personal favorites of official zealotry have won commissions for which they were which frequently should be noted and the public individuals and groups have been almost as conspicuous as the Democrats in this undenounced sabotage.

RAY TUCKER—The rubber crisis is far more critical than the officials at Washington have permitted the public to know. The officials are in a quandary whether they will let the American people how much our civilization depends on this product—realize the consequences of the shortage and the danger of getting the supplies and weapons to our soldiers and their allies.

The deficit is still laddered down with men who have not thought of the "business as usual" complex. They have failed to move in time on such key questions as converting the automobile, refrigerators and similar industries to the output of equipment that will aid our enemies and the lives of the members of democracy. In decisions on aluminum, power and magnesium they have shown their complete lack of concern. Mr. Hoover himself has displayed a surprising faculty for retaining the friendship of controversial groups—New Dealers, the army and navy, congressmen, etc. He keeps his present post because he lurks behind the scenes.

Some blame lies at the door of the broad policy makers in the administration, who have been slow to recognize the sweep and implications of the world struggle and to realize their slight but ever increasing target. But in the last analysis the responsibility falls upon the W. P. B.

MISSIE MINERVA—Minnie Minerva was born and bred in the middle west near a bread, in the middle west where the tall green and rusting in mile-long rows. But Minnie Minerva hated the farm. Where women grow buckwheat and strong of arm. Where women grow buckwheat in the summer sun. And freckled and worn even the heat is done. She hated the chickens, the cows, and the hogs. And sweet men, and many dogs. For Minnie Minerva longed for the city. Where both men and women dress up prettily. J. Cuthbert Adams was Pittsburgh bred. He'd cut his teeth on a piston head. He'd committed to work on a subway train. And fought for space coming home again.

HIGH FINANCE—A prominent local businessman announced that he had purchased two $25 government bonds each month for one $100 bond during each 30-day period.

He had just told his son-in-law of this fact. The son-in-law felt awfully grieved as he sat on the street. Then said the businessman to the son-in-law: "Say, by the way, can you loan me a quarter? I have to have it in order to make up 25 cents to get to the baseball game tonight."

With no parental coloring of the facts, we could expatiate for an hour about the praise for this month-old young lady. But our sense of modesty forbids.

As usual as we admit little Miss Pat Slonek to be, however, we wish to enter a vigorous protest against such journalistic ability as we witness in the other day. We met Marie Shook and Ellen Fox, a couple of attractive young matrons of great intelligence. And when they greeted us, did they indicate they recognize our journalistic ability as we witness in the other day. THE GENTLEMAN IN THE THIRD ROW

PASSING THE W. R. BUCK—As our constituents know, the Chamber of Commerce recently referred to increase the purchase of two $25 government bonds each month for one $100 bond during each 30-day period.

He had just told his son-in-law of this fact. The son-in-law felt awfully grieved as he sat on the street. Then said the businessman to the son-in-law: "Say, by the way, can you loan me a quarter? I have to have it in order to make up 25 cents to get to the baseball game tonight."

THE GENTLEMAN IN THE THIRD ROW—The man in the military-style uniform with the swastika on his sleeve is looking down at the globe with a stern expression. The globe is labeled with 'ASIA FOR THE ASIATICS' and 'ENSLAVED EUROPE'. The man is holding a sign that says 'THE GENTLEMAN IN THE THIRD ROW'.

TWO KINDS OF COURAGE

Chief of staff in trade of most professional patriots, Fourth of July orators and rocking chair Nathan Hales is the word "courage."

It takes no artist to gild the heroes of American wars. We know they were heroes, endowed with the greatest courage, who made it possible for our country to survive. Many of us, at least in our hearts, thank God for them.

And we thank God for our heroes of today—on Bataan, in the far Pacific, in Hawaii, in the Atlantic and other places of danger around the world. They are living heroes, extolling the fearlessness of American heroes.

It takes no artist to gild the heroes of American wars. We know they were heroes, endowed with the greatest courage, who made it possible for our country to survive. Many of us, at least in our hearts, thank God for them.

But there are other kinds of courage, just as important, just as laudable. Read this column except for a later writer, a mother to her son with the Army guarding the Panama canal:

"All we can do is to be as courageous as we can under whatever circumstances. Our main thought, to save our country, though we ourselves die. We all die sooner or later. A soldier can give but little thought to his actual life. What really counts is how he acquires himself during the moments, days, years he does live during conflict."

"And so, if and when you deengage yourself in conflict, do not waste a moment or thought in preserving your own life. Instead, see how much you can accomplish for your own cause, how calmly and courageously you may do your task, be that great or small..."

Thus wrote an American mother to her soldier son. No general encourages his boys to make a last stand, no squadron leader before a bombing attack, no captain as the ship went down.

No mention of the sacrifice she is willing to make.

She will win no Distinguished Service cross for writing it, yet it took as much spirit and fearlessness as any hero requires on the battlefield.

Such qualities bred into American fighting men, such qualities that weapons, without tanks, guns and planes are useless—courage.

With courage like that at home and in the field, with courage like that in the heart of every one of us, we cannot lose. For with such courage there can be no question of every American doing his part—and more.

GET YOUR TEETH INTO IT

The U. S. Army's order for 5,000 pairs of socks for Alaska's defenders is more than an ordinary order for socks. It carries proof that the Eskimo citizens of this Arctic territory realize both their duty to defense and the danger they face from invasion.

The socks are made by Eskimo women from sealskin and reindeer hide. All sewing is by hand with reindeer sinews. In making the boot, the Eskimo woman crimps both edges of seal and reindeer hide with her teeth. The teeth become razor sharp, wear down to the bone.

HELPING HIROHITO

Down at Miami Beach, a man hailed a taxi. "Take me to 50th and Broadway," he directed. The bill was $300.

Does that make you mad? It should. Extravagances of this type went out of style Dec. 7, 1941. If you have extra money, buy bonds. The taxi driver was not at fault, but he should be looking forward to his tires. The fare did not gain time—planes still operate between Miami and Gotham as faster than taxi schedules.

It's time ALL Americans realize that dollars are being wasted that would do more for Japanese victories.

RIGORS OF RATIONING

The uses of adversity still are sweet, in spite of the sugar shortage. Many of us, for instance, are looking forward to the rigors of a rationed future in which there will be no soap operas, pleated trousers, castor oil. Sunday drivers and tapocas padding. That's more, the new style in men's clothes should be made of the blood of the Axis. Mr. Herbert Hoover would look in a single-breasted suit.

It won't be long now till we'll be going to places to forget everything—including the salt and pepper.

Cheating gum costs Americans $50,000,000 annually—which is a lot of money to stick under chairs and tables.

CARE OF YOUR CHILDREN

DRUGGERY IS NOT INSPIRING

I am not for doing things the hard way if there is an easy way where children are concerned. It is a pity that some parents think that they harm character in children if they do not make them do things the hard way.

I do not believe that is so. It seems to me that doing things the hard way discourages children and that is the best possible way to teach them to dislike the work that brings such experience along with it.

Miss Marie thinks that children ought to do long examples in long division like the hard-headed men and making sure that the answer never comes out even. I think teaching the examples ought to be short and easy and all answers even. I think the pupil has learned long division so well that he could work any kind of example without trouble.

That would mean he would be secure in higher mathematics. It is not so many generations ago that a child would be considered a difficult mathematical process. It really is just that for hard graders.

Some teachers think that children lose their interest in their duty if they are not given a hard job. They are at the back of the book and insist that the children do their job for their own sake. They are considering work should be easy, a review of something taught in the class, or to strengthen the memory of it for the next day. They are considering a pupil work hard for hours in the evening is not helping anybody much.

Then there are the chores about the house. I heard a woman who said that she had a vacuum cleaner that she did not use. She said that she had a vacuum cleaner that she did not use. She said that she had a vacuum cleaner that she did not use.

Wanted—Volunteers to Direct American Youth

America needs volunteers for youth leadership. It is one of the most important wartime services a woman can offer. Who says so? The office of civilian defense says so, in these words: "We need volunteers for youth leadership. Proper training of youngsters is an essential to lasting victory as the ammunition crumpled into our guns."

WASHINGTON SENATORS LEAD TOP PARADE IN GREAT PEERIT CIRCUIT

Capital Club Posts Great Camp Record

BY PAUL SCHEFFELS
NEW YORK, March 16 (AP)—Spring training may be a bore to baseball's veterans and the exhibition game tedious to the grind to both old timers and rookies but it has been like a tonic to the Washington Senators, "ugly ducklings" of the American League.

Classy Clifton's lead wound up in a tie for sixth place with the St. Louis Browns last year and this season a tie for eighth place. Clifton, fourth baseman to the armed services. His pitching staff headed by Edward Egan and the outfield led by a pair of veterans, but it has been like a tonic to the Washington Senators, "ugly ducklings" of the American League.

DETROIT, March 16 (AP)—All those reports about the Washington Senators going to trade pitcher Dutch Leonard and first baseman Jim Vernon to the Detroit Tigers for pitcher Bruce Newton and first baseman Rudy York were much ado about nothing.

Newson's salary for Detroit would be $30,000 to $40,000, which is a big jump for him. He would be a free agent after the season. York would be a free agent after the season. Zeller's lack of get finally agreed to York, putting at his disposal, C. Clifton to pitch in his own defense.

Bruins Average 4.3 Points Per Game in Meet

Coach Dode Cranney and his Twin Falls Bruins looked over the scores today for the district Class A tournament here and found that the best quintet had averaged 4.3 points per game for the six-game session that brought the championship to the Twin Falls club.

It will be the high-scoring offense that Coach Cranney will depend upon to take him into the higher brackets of the state championship race of the Class A tournament at Pocatello Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

The Twin Falls club faced 258 points in six contests—winning five and losing one. The team's defense in every game. Only low scoring contests was the one in which they were defeated. They won 20-10 on Friday night by a 21-20 score.

ORDERS FROM VIENNA

CHAPTER XXV

The next afternoon Mr. Patterson Lawes at the Barton County Bank called his glasses and reread the cablegram that had been handed to him.

Mr. Carter, the assistant cashier, came out of the vault. "What's up?"

"That young Mitchell—trying to be a fool."

"Cabled orders to turn over that—you know, the Tower estate that is left to him, to Drake McHugh."

RANDY adjusted the window shade, poked the fire, and made small rustling noises.

Drake spoke finally. "It's no use, Randy. You've got to talk to me sooner or later. Might as well be now as later. If something happened to Paris and he didn't let you know?"

Drake hesitated. "I don't know. I hadn't thought of it."

"Well, it's the same thing. Drake's your best friend. Drake picked up the message from the countess. He had almost worn it out since yesterday reading and rereading it. "Gee, he's a great friend, Randy."

"Of course."

"But—"

"But what, now? What?"

"This last sentence."

"Yes, I know. What about it?"

"You and Randy stick together till you get there. We'll work everything out."

"I know it by heart," she said softly.

"Of course he doesn't understand."

"Doesn't understand what?"

"What are you driving at, Drake?"

She waited. He did not notice how pale she had become.

"I tell you, Randy, I remember that if you have just a little money there—"

"His voice faded. "I've heard there was homes you could get into—maybe."

"How do you—would you deliberately treat me that way, and Paris, too?"

"I—I don't—"

Drake was looking at Randy with an expression half desperate with his own emotion, and half a sudden concern.

"Then listen carefully. Whatever you say, or however you feel—"

"You and Randy stick together—"

"I know it by heart," she said softly.

Drake raised his arms and clutched the head of the bed. Then he turned his face to the wall again, but one hand reached out for hers.

THREE days later Randy was hurrying about her house-keeping when Mr. Lawes called.

"I'm Patterson Lawes, I believe Mr. Drake McHugh is here at present."

"I think Drake would want me to deal with it—whatever it is."

Mr. Lawes reached for his leather dispatch case. "I hardly think you're Miss—"

"I am Mrs. Drake McHugh, Mr. Lawes."

"I hadn't been advised of that, Mrs. McHugh." He arose and bowed slightly. "I didn't know Drake was married."

"We were married yesterday."

"But—God bless me, the boy had to marry!"

"I didn't marry Drake because of his legs, Mr. Lawes. Suppose we hear about the business now?"

"Well, I have Mrs. McHugh, a communication that should be of great interest to both of you. I suppose it will help solve some problems—if you have any," he added hastily.

He looked at her sharply.

"Were you expecting a communication from Mr. Parris Mitchell in Vienna?"

"I expect a letter soon. I had a cable from him. Drake had one also."

"See, now, Mrs. McHugh—"

He laid the papers on the table and explained briefly their purport. Randy listened with an increasing dismay.

"I shall leave these with you, er—Mrs. McHugh."

Randy shook her head. "I don't know how Drake is going to take this. I'm so afraid he may think I asked Parris for help."

Mr. Lawes rubbed the back of his head. He was completely perplexed.

"I don't know, Randy. I just don't know what to say!"

Spots of high color stood out on Drake's thin cheeks. Randy was startled by his sudden

"I guess I—oh, I don't know. What do you think about it?"

"The discussion of Paris' offer had proved less troublesome than Randy had anticipated. Drake was not violent about it, but he was not easily convinced that he should accept it. She remembered a warning line in a second cablegram she had had from Paris: "As soon as he is well enough make him decide things. Give him full sense of independence."

"I don't know what to say, Drake. We've got to look at it as a loan, not as a gift."

"But what do you think I ought to do?"

"I don't know, Drake. After all, women haven't got much sense about money. You're a man and you know better than I do what's right."

"But how are we ever going to pay it back, Randy?"

"I don't know, Drake. Don't ever joke like that. You're a man, and above everything else you're my man. I've loved you for a long time, but now I'm going to be proud of you."

COALITION FIGHTS PROFITS ON WAR

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—Congressional friends of labor urged today they would fight for the national anti-inflation profits with any legislative wage controls that may be proposed by President Roosevelt.

Senator Hill of Alabama, the Democratic whip, and Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, both long-time supporters of labor, demanded that any action taken to place a ceiling on profits be accompanied by legislation which would take away most, if not all, of the profits on war production contracts.

Hill conceded that it might be necessary to apply brakes to wage increases to prevent inflation, but added that it was just as essential that war profits be limited.

La Follette said he was prepared to accept wage controls if they were accompanied by profit curbs, he thought the placing of an arbitrary ceiling over wages might result in sharpness of the industrial machinery.

While he declined to classify wages and profits as inflationary, the labor leader said that the present wage controls were not completed showing that if farmers carry a certain rotation, the spread of this pest would be cut down. These rotations and methods for control will be discussed at this meeting.
