23 Dead, 900 Hurt in 6-State Tornado

TERRIFIC WINDS BLAST AT AREA; RED CROSS AIDS

Tornadoes struck ripped over a 600-mile strip of six southern and midwestern states yesterday, leaving in their wake at least 123 dead, 900 injured and millions of dollars in property damage. Terrific winds cut across the northwestern section of Mississippi where at least 50 were known dead and approximately 620 others injured. High winds also left a trail of death and destruction in western Kentucky and Tennessee, struck south central and north central Indiana and killed at least 20 in central Illinois. Storms were reported as far west as western Missouri.

The toll of dead and estimated number of injured by states:

Mississippi	65	620
Illinois	20	120
Kentucky	16	20
Tennessee	20	100
Indiana	20	100

Mississippi, hardest hit, rushed all available aid to the disaster zone, covering an area of 100 miles wide, mostly rural with only a few scattered cities, was without communication for several hours in many places. Torrential rains following the high winds and washed out many roads.

Sends Aid
The American Red Cross dispatched 50 disaster workers into southern and midwestern states to direct aid to the victims of the disaster. Red Cross workers called 100 Red Cross workers to duty in the disaster areas. The Red Cross has established in Memphis, Tenn., with Nat C. Wilson of the Washington staff in charge.

The Memphis Red Cross telegraphed national headquarters and 10 chapters in 10 states and 20 nurses had left for the Grand Rapids, Miss., area.

Buck Private, 34, Leads Symphony Through Number

RICHMOND, Va., March 17—For 10 years Allen Furnham of Boston has played first violin in the Philadelphia symphony orchestra. Then he was drafted into the army.

He was overjoyed when he learned that the orchestra would play at Camp Lee, where he is stationed, and last night he got leave to go to the concert.

When the concert had completed his orchestra conductor Eugene Ormandy paused on the podium and suddenly asked Private Furnham to come forward.

They played for 15 minutes in uniform directed the gray-beards of the mild symphony through the program. When the concert finished, they clapped him back for two curtain calls.

Allies Thrill At Shift of MacArthur

UNITED PRESS STAFF CORRESPONDENT
A surge of optimism thrilled the embattled United Nations today with announcement that Gen. Douglas MacArthur had assumed supreme command in Australia.

That MacArthur had assumed supreme command in Australia was a relief to the United Nations, which had been anxious to see him in command of the Allied forces in the Pacific.

MacArthur's appointment as supreme commander of the Allied forces in the Pacific was a significant step towards the defeat of Japan.

LABOR GIVES UP RIGHT TO STRIKE UNTIL WAR ENDS

WASHINGTON, March 17—Lions of organized labor indicated today that labor had yielded its right to strike during the war as a more effective answer to the problems of production and national unity than restrictive legislative enactments by congress.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Philip Murray, chairman of the CIO, who called at the White House with members of the labor-war board, discussed after an hour's conference with the President that it was agreed wage rates and standards would be fixed to prevent strikes, or interruption to production, through three methods:

A collective bargaining commission or mediation, or operations of the national labor board.

The top men in organized labor, discussing by turns the parity with the chief executive, gave a pleasure in satisfactory production of war materials with labor devoting every force and effort to turning out war supplies.

Murray said it was agreed that labor would give up its right to strike as a more satisfactory answer to the problems of production and national unity than restrictive enactments by the federal congress.

It was agreed that the 40-hour week shall be recognized as standard, that the overtime rate shall be 1 1/2 times the regular rate and double time for Sunday.

It was left undecided, he added, whether double time would be paid only on work on the Sabbath, or whether it would be paid for any overtime work on the Sabbath.

Hero of Bataan Made Chief for United Nations

WASHINGTON, March 17—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, foremost commander of the allied war chiefs, arrived in Australia from the beleaguered Philippines today and has assumed supreme command of the United Nations forces there in Australia's hour of need.

The colorful defender of the Philippines reached Australia after a secret airplane flight, only a few hours after official disclosure that American troops—air and ground forces—in considerable numbers—have landed in Australia and are preparing to meet Japan's blows against the southwest Pacific bastion.

MacArthur, the war department announced, was ordered by President Roosevelt to leave the Philippines 23 days ago and go to Australia "as soon as practicable."

The 62-year-old general, whose name has become a household word in the Philippines where his stand against what seemed like hopeless odds won him undying fame, was the request of the Australian government which regards him as the only man capable of leading the Japanese sweep of conquest.

Congressional circles here cheered the announcement and said that MacArthur's arrival in Australia will boost the morale of all the United Nations fighting forces in a critical hour.

Chairman Tom Connally, D. Tex., of the congressional relations committee, predicted that the United Nations troops will "respond gloriously" to MacArthur's leadership.

MacArthur was accompanied to Australia—nearly 2,000 miles south of his command in the Philippines—by his wife and son, who during recent weeks are believed to have been in Corregidor fortress in the Philippines.

EUROPE REPORTS THREAT OF GERMAN ATTACK ON ICELAND

NAZI BATTLESHIP CLAIMED LOOSE

By The Associated Press
London quarters today saw the threat of a possible German attack against Iceland or upon American-British supply lines to Russia as a result of Nazi orders closing all Norwegian ports from North Cape to Alesund, and at the same time warning that German's might-ship, the new 30,000-ton Tirpitz, may be loose on the high seas.

The Norwegian coast would make a likely landing-off point for any Nazi assault on Iceland, now guarded by United States and British forces.

A responsible London source, delecting the German order was "outgoing" cited these other evidence that a major war campaign in the north may be imminent:

1. Authoritative reports that the Germans have sent strong reinforcements to their Norwegian command.

2. Today's German high command announcement of intensified efforts in Lapland, where a north-bound force is only 50 miles from the vital tin-mining Arctic supply base at Murmansk.

3. Massing of Nazi warships at Tromsheim.

The news declared Germany was now believed to have between 150-200,000 troops in the north, compared with the 100,000 reported last summer.

Information Lacking
A British spokesman said that the powerful Tirpitz, sister ship of the Bismarck, might be expected to have avoided an attack by British aerial torpedoed off the Norwegian coast. He said that the Tirpitz was in the present whereabouts of the huge battleship.

The news had grave implications for the British, since a possible attack on the Tirpitz is so grave a menace to sea convoys that strong naval forces including battleships must be diverted from other work to meet her challenge.

Meanwhile, Russian forces battling to crush remnants of the trapped German 16th army in the Karelia Russia sector, south of Leningrad, were reported to have seized a key point on heights overlooking the battlefield and further tightened the noose about the beleaguered Nazis.

Soviet front line dispatches, identifying the point only as "N," said it had been one of the strongest centers of German defense.

May Be Norwegian
It has been reported that the ancient walled city of Novgorod, on the north shore of Lake Ilmen, one of the main anchorages of German defense.

On the Ukraine front, Russian detachments said they were capturing surrendering in mounting numbers as Marshal Semenov Timoshenko's Red armies battered their way to L'khovok, the Soviet "Pittsburgh."

In the Crimea, a bulletin from Admiral Hiltner's fleet headquarters asserted that Russian attacks on the Kerch peninsula, gateway to the Caucasian oil fields, were being resisted against German-Rumanian resistance.

The Nazi commander said the Russians suffered heavy losses in repeated unsuccessful attacks on the Kerch peninsula during the week when an early pre-spring thaw has given way to fresh snowfalls and siltier cold.

A Berlin broadcast said three days of fierce battles on the Kerch peninsula had cost the Russians 150 tanks and 7,000 to 8,000 killed.

A Red army communiqué said the Russians maintained their general offensive yesterday.

Places Recaptured
Several additional villages and towns were recaptured, the Russians reported, and the Red air force held the edge in planes destroyed last week, 215 to 75.

Soviet War News, organ of the Soviet embassy in London, quoted a purported appeal from 20 captured German officers for overthrow of Adolf Hitler by the German army. It said peace should be made while Germany's armed forces remained sufficiently strong to end the war with honor.

The Nazi command said 20 Russian planes were destroyed during the day in air battles over the ground, against a loss of only four German aircraft.

The newly African battlefield, British headquarters reported increased activity by Field Marshal Ewin Rommel's axis forces but declared that a strong, tank-led enemy column which advanced in the Ghat area withdrew in the face of British mobile units.

Premier Mussolini's high command and British prisoners had been captured and equipment destroyed in clashes southeast of El Mechili.

begun made available by 6,000 local draft boards.

However, none of these men will be called to the colors until early summer, probably in June, although many of them will receive questionnaires as soon as local order lists and other details have been organized.

Those thereafter the men receiving order numbers tonight will be called considerably faster than men already on local draft board rosters. The procedure will be as follows:

Order of Drawing
If a local board is called upon to process 100 men for induction, it will draw men from the old order list and the new order list accordingly to the number of registrants it has available in each group.

If, for instance, the board has 100 men available from the original list and 500 from the new list, the proportion would be nine to one. Ten men would be called from the old list and 90 from the new one.

Selective service and the new order list will be called earlier this month as the latest and at the same time the most efficient scheme against German-Rumanian resistance.

Gooding Driver Kills Cougar in Salt Lake City

SALT LAKE CITY, March 17 (AP)—Salt Lake City was invaded today by herds of wild deer, moving down from the snow-covered hills to seek food, and by at least one cougar which followed the deer.

The cougar's venture into civilization was ill-fated—it was run over and killed near the north city limits by Leo Rice, a Gooding, Idaho, motorist. Under his predatory animal laws, Rice was awarded the full, worth several dollars in fur, market.

Newspapers in Australia and continental readers have demanded MacArthur's resignation, pointing to his military genius, the faith he has in his troops, his leadership and "what is more important, the fact that he is the only successful general in the world."

MacArthur still remains supreme commander of his little army of 10,000 men in the Philippines. Inasmuch as his new command embraces that war zone, it is not surprising that he has disposed fresh and well-equipped American doughboys of the newly formed 31st and 32nd Australian, Dutch and British forces.

No Details
The war department provided no details as to why MacArthur made his successful flight from the Philippines to Australia—across a dangerous sea—by air. MacArthur is subject to Japanese air attack at any moment. Neither did it indicate whether he is well or ill.

Today's announcement revealed MacArthur's intent to go to Australia two weeks before the report sent to the government in California after the Philippines in an effort to crush MacArthur's resistance.

On March 9 the war department reported that Gen. Masaharu Homma, the Japanese commander, was believed to have committed hara-kiri in the Manila hotel to escape dishonor. The Japanese believed that the MacArthur forces on Iloilo peninsula. The next day it was learned that Homma was replaced by Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, conqueror of Malaya and a Singapore and Japan's most famous general.

Although Yamashita was expected to launch an all-out attack on MacArthur, the Bataan front has been ominously quiet for two weeks, presaging a Japanese withdrawal.

The arrival of aerial reinforcements, MacArthur's elevation to the supreme command of Australia, maximizes the most colorful career in modern U. S. military history. He has gone through the entire gamut of military honors, rising in 27 years from a lieutenant to the United States army's youngest chief of staff.

Identified With Philippines
As his life has been identified with the Philippines where he saw his first overseas service in 1905, MacArthur's high brightness and enthusiasm stirred by the war department's disclosure last night that "considerable numbers" of American troops have arrived in Australia.

They constitute the second "American expeditionary force" officially announced to have landed on foreign shores. The first arrived in North Africa on Jan. 25.

The surprise announcement came several days after it was here and abroad that large convoys of American troops and war materials were en route to the southwest Pacific. The troops arrived in the midst of growing demands among the allies for a more active role in the Pacific.

There were no details available regarding the American troops, but none of the name of their commander.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

MORSE—Donald M. Nelson has ordered an inter-office investigation of charges that the bulk of commodities produced in the United States are being hoarded over to ship to the Axis.

Behind this flare-up lies one of the most amazing episodes of union history. It is the story of a man who has been hoarded over to ship to the Axis.

Fact is that critics of this moral of alleged misdeeds have discussed the problem with the war production foreman, and he expressed certain appreciation for their effort. Had it not been for their revelations, it is probable that he would not have committed a rack of the book.

KINGS ROW

BY HENRY BELMANN

HOME COMING

CHAPTER XXVI

RANDY spread out the sheets of Parris' letter on the kitchen table. The letter had come two days ago, and she had read it a dozen times, but she returned to it again and again for the warmth and comfort, the safety and security that she derived from it.

"I am sure that you have already made Drake feel that he is needed and wanted in this world. I am writing him in this way so that he will certainly be needed and important in my life. We can't give him legs, but we can keep his mind and personality and soul. If you wish to call it that, whole and well."

Randy recalled last night that a long time ago Drake talked of real estate projects of some kind, and she remembered just what the idea were. The main point is to get his mind going on something definitely constructive.

"Drake has been more than a brother to me, and from this moment on you are more than a sister. In you two I feel that I have more than a professional reason for coming back to Kings Row. You know, of course, that I have always hoped for an appointment at the State Hospital for the insane. I have kept Dr. Nolan informed of my progress. He has promised to recommend my appointment when I have finished my work here in Vienna."

Randy folded the thin sheets of paper carefully. It was strange she thought, how well she knew Parris Mitchell.

GRADUALLY, as the weeks went by, Randy pressed the suggestions Parris had made in his letter. She was amazed to see how Drake felt more and more easily into the pattern she so carefully planned.

One day, following her carefully disguised leads, Drake recalled the old project for reclaiming the creek-bottom lands nearby. He glanced upon it with joy. He had begun from that day to move toward a normal life. Sometimes, as Randy studied the sharp-cut project, it seemed as though this catastrophe had burned Drake clear of every trait that had been a little careless and coarse.

"I'm going to move you downstairs next week, Drake."

He frowned. "Where?"

"The front rooms. That's going to be our living room, and the little room off to the side that never has been anything but a storeroom will be our bedroom."

He thought a moment. "It sounds pleasant."

"There is just one front window. It looks into the front yard. There's a big cedar tree outside, and across the road you can see around Harper's Hill on into the country. It's quieter, too. You don't hear the auto engines as you do back here."

Drake's face contracted suddenly. "I'll be glad to act when I don't hear them so plain. Sometimes I dream—I guess I'll always have dreams like that." Randy spoke very calmly, but her chest was tight. "You'll have a lot of other things to think about."

"Randy?"

"Remember this always. You've had a terrible accident and all that, but you're just Drake McHugh. You're no different. You can arrange your life anyway you want to. I'm here to see that it's done the way you want it, but you are Drake and I love you. I have to tell you that every day."

THE late-afternoon train clanked and rattled its merry, noisy way from Camperville toward Kings Row.

The passengers sat in the antiquated coach, avoiding, as much as possible, the touch of the gritty, greasy seats. There were a lot of patient misery—all but one. He was a young man who had stepped from the Chicago express just in time to catch the Kings Row local.

At the station he looked with some surprise at the new brick building.

"Hark, sir?"

"Why—the Central Hotel. There is a Central Hotel, I suppose?"

"Yes, sirree. Only one, in fact. Dis way, sah."

Randy rather dejectedly backed around the corner and clattered along lower Union street.

At the hotel desk, a thin, mousey-looking clerk bowed with an imitation of briskness.

"Like a suite, please."

"Suite?"

"Yes. Sitting room, bedroom, bath, and coffee."

"Well—we haven't exactly got that kind of an arrangement. I could throw two rooms together for you."

He watched as the newcomer wrote: "Dr. Parris Mitchell, Vienna."

The clerk turned the register around, wrote a number opposite the name. "Here, boy, take Dr. Mitchell's baggage to 217. Going to go into practice here, Doc?"

"Yes—the State Hospital."

"Sure enough! Doctor at the asylum, eh? Well, well."

"Send the baggage up. I'm going out first—down to the boat."

Out on the sidewalk Parris stopped and slowly drew on his gloves. Two men sitting in split-bottom rocking chairs, just outside the hotel door stared and glanced at each other. When Parris walked past one of them spoke slowly. "Say, did you see that fellow, putting on gloves?"

"Gloves—in August?"

"Oh, Mitchell. Used to live here, Parris Mitchell."

"What's he wearing gloves for?"

"He's been living over in Europe since Vienna, for five years. Maybe that's the style over there. Going to be a doctor over at the asylum. Well, now, Government job to start off on."

"Yep."

PARRIS walked across the square. At the corner he paused and thought a moment. Yes, Cross street, that was the shortest way to Randy's house. He had thought so often of coming home. Now he was here. This was Kings Row. He looked east and west on the cross street. This shabby, dingy-looking street, this village. A strange heaviness settled on his heart, and with it came a quick, keen wave of homesickness for Vienna. Vienna had meant friends, a comfortable something that was almost home—Vienna, was—he thought himself free of thoughts.

"Parris—my dear!"

"Oh, Parris, I'm so glad to see you!"

Randy had just started out when she met Parris. She swung
