PRESSURE VICTIMS: The standing of congress with the public seems to sink lower almost day by day.

Individual members of both houses stand above the general low level. We know that congressmen represent a fair cross section of the American body politic.

That is one reason why we re-elect members whose conduct has offended us grievously. Except now and then, voters take the line in Idaho's matter which we have seen so many apparently good men degenerate in congress.

But congress would not have become a rubber stamp for the White House if its members as a group had not been used to be statesmen and transformed themselves into $10,000-a-year messenger boys.

For years now congressmen have walked the slackwire under pressure groups. Beginning with a presuming sincere desire to further the interests of unfortunate or oppressed groups, congressional blocs have drifted into becoming servants of the alleged "leaders" of special interests.

But too often these "leaders" are phonies, and the interests of the people. So the bloc congressmen—which includes most of them—have been misled into working for special interest benefits, antagonistic to the general welfare, which often the special interest do not really want.

Illustrations? Plenty. Much labor legislation. Workers are willing to sacrifice to the limit to win this war, but timid congress has heeded misrepresentative industry and unions.

Protection? At the expense of the war output. Farmers are willing to sacrifice. But a rabby congress listens to so-called "farm spokesmen" and refuses to treat farmers as loyal, give-until-it-hurts-like-hell Americans.

Industry? Industry is willing to sacrifice. Taxpayers, tradesmen and consumers. But congress lingers scandalously far behind this nation's war effort.

We can save congress if its members will get to the point of giving the pressure group game they are injuring themselves as much as their country.

MORGENTHAU'S CONFIDENCE: The more we hear of Secretary Henry Morgenthau, the more we think he's the man for the job as head of the United States treasury during these trying times.

While congress and other members of the administration have been howling for additional tax money for the war program, Secretary Morgenthau has continued to frown on compulsory savings, withholding taxes and like measures.

Not only does he feel that the American people are getting their hands outstretched too far, but he apparently has no bureaucratic lust for setting up and administering the tremendous personnel that would be necessary to handle all the details of these compulsory programs.

Recently he said that none of the compulsory savings plans that had been suggested by or to congress would sell as many war bonds as the $12,000,000,000 a year he believes he can sell by a voluntary campaign.

To hear out Mr. Morgenthau's contention, Harold Graves, assistant secretary of the treasury, has just wired Idaho war savings headquarters, that the American people over-subscribed their May quota of $600,000,000 by $2,000,000.

This does not mean that we are in the clear by any means, because we will increase our war bond purchases by 33 1/3 per cent to meet quota requirements for June.

It is easy to understand Philip Murray's motive in objecting to permitting the Federal Savings Company to publish the War Labor Board's directive that employes could withdraw from the union before a maintenance of membership clause became effective.

Mr. Murray would much prefer that dues payers remain in ignorance of legal rights reserved to them for the last twelve months of 1942.

But it is not easy to understand how, even with tongue in cheek, he could claim that the company was exerting illegal pressure by telling employes of their privilege—or even by withdrawing from general publicity, the exercise of "such rights," though no urging was charged. Doesn't an employer retain any rights at all, except to pay, and pay, and pay?

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

POT SHOTS

with the GENTLEMAN IN THE THIRD ROW. This is a warning to girls in the WAITING ROOM.

Everything is military these days, even the women, so Pot Shots here offers a treat for you as long as you were at bottom of the column today.

Who is army chief of staff and at what military school he was graduated? 2. What is the commanding officer of the 1st Infantry Division of a battalion? 3. What was the Langley? 4. Distinguish a few items of the 1st Infantry Division.

PEOPLE ARE FUNNY, HUH? Brooding through the press association grip this morning, Pot Shots took a peek at the building next door. A clean-cut and clear-headed fellow.

Dear Pot Shot: I can't say the same for state but I discovered the following: We were taught to remove the hat in the presence of death. In the picture in the Times-News yesterday, a dead youth and Patrolman Barron, V. K. had removed his hat.

Dear Pot Shot: I want his legal name in history. Tharamadise L. Pragasopoulos.

Dear Pot Shot: Yes, as fact, the job said he wanted the change of address and economy. Probably so his collectors can't find him because they can't spell his name.

OUR OWN 37 YEARS AGO DEPT. The T-N editorial department has been delving on the history of the twig into the past history of the twig to produce those 13 and 27 years ago departments.

Dear Pot Shot: Add to Pot Shots dictionary: False alarm, as defined by the cadence of the first morning bell in the schoolhouse, never.

Dear Pot Shot: Buffalo Bill, who's coming to town soon is the only one of the 13 in his youth as a justice of the peace. He was a man of ceremony with much laughter.

Dear Pot Shot: One day a man and a woman came in and said they wanted to get married. It flabbergasted me. I looked at them and saw a young man I could not find any Bible. Found an old third reader though. Didn't make much difference. I wasn't going to read it anyway.

Dear Pot Shot: The sky would make a perfect covering for these June nights—it didn't look so much.

MILITARY QUIZ ANSWERS: 1. Gen. George C. Marshall; 2. Colonel; 3. Lieutenant-Colonel; 4. Captain; 5. Navy; 6. Army; 7. Army; 8. Army; 9. Army; 10. Army.

FAMOUS LAST LINE: I'd like to see the Elsie club—to get a milkshake—uh.

THE GENTLEMAN IN THE THIRD ROW: This is a warning to girls in the WAITING ROOM.

HISTORY OF TWIN FALLS

AS GLEANED FROM THE FILES OF THE TIMES-NEWS. 15 YEARS AGO—JUNE 8, 1927. SERIAL STORY

CARIBBEAN CRISIS

BY EATON K. GOLDTHWAITE

COPYRIGHT, 1936, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE PLAN IS REVEALED

CHAPTER XXXI
A KNIFE. Sebastian had been killed like this. A thrust from behind while asleep. Sebastian, MacDowell—the toll was mounting.

The call to the deck had been a decoy. An actress had been there in wait. Already MacDowell was dead or dying. Only the torch of the ship had saved Talcott. No wonder Struthers hadn't been worried about what would do to Talcott's return to New York! At last the plan was completely revealed.

A trumped-up charge so ridiculous that Talcott would be completely willing to return and "face the music"; a dumb detective who would be so stupid as to be unable to defend himself; so dumb that whatever they had told him would sound like gospel truth; so dumb that he could be eliminated at the proper time.

That was the final piece in the auditor's fabric. It was to appear that Talcott, unable to face disgrace, had murdered the detective and then jumped overboard.

Unwittingly he drew a shaking hand before his eyes and turned away from the horribly stiff form. Sebastian, MacDowell, Talcott—what was the end? With Talcott still alive, what would happen next? Up to now it had been perfectly planned, perfectly timed and executed. They had struck him with a corpse. When he went to report it to the captain the story would come out. He was, he realized, in as bad a position as if they had succeeded in losing him overboard.

No. Not quite. He was still alive. Who had been the assistant on the boat deck? Halsey? He couldn't possibly have been Halsey. Halsey was in the lounge playing bridge with June Paterson and Martha Swenson and the doctor. And the attacker had been a smaller man than Halsey; strong though he might be, Talcott couldn't have disposed of Halsey so easily.

Who then? Webber? Talcott recalled the business of the voices at the door. The more he thought of it the more positive he became that Webber had been on the outside and the steward on the inside of the door when a prearranged conversation was exchanged. It was the steward who had told him who Webber was supposed to be; that definitely. Meet the steward with Webber.

But, who was Webber? "Think," he said savagely. "You've got to think. You've seen him before. Him or his likeness. A photograph, maybe—"

And then with stunning force it struck him. The gray-eyed man at the desk in the little room in Charlotte Amalie. The emulgated copy of a photo made twenty years before. "This man is a Nazi agent; brilliant and unscrupulous. He speaks five languages as easily as if each were his mother tongue. We believe him to be in the Islands—"

Webber was Baron Gerhardt von Stamm!
The ship was not improving in stability. They seemed to be running into a blow. In the pitching stateroom with a dead man for a companion, Talcott dressed rapidly. There could be no sleep for him now. He had to act, and act quickly. A double advantage he possessed now: Webber's plan had failed and he knew who Webber was. It was a slim margin but he had to act on it before Webber became suspicious.

The Nazi agent had gone out from his cabin shortly after the arrival of his "message." The message had been a blind; an opportunity for Webber to change places with the steward. Thus there were at least two against him. How many more? He could not tell.

Should he gamble and go straight to the captain now? It was the proper course, but he wasn't so sure. The majority of murders would, after listening to his story, put him in irons and then conduct their own investigation. Being in irons wouldn't gain him anything.

Not could he ride to New York with a dead man as Webber's mate. The steward would report it and he'd be in irons anyway. Talcott slipped from his stateroom. The corridor was deserted and he paused a moment before Webber's door. No sound. The bold-head hadn't come back. No one trying to break in. He already knew what he wanted to know about him anyway.

On deck he walked rapidly, eyeing with apparent casualness the recipients of chairs. Martin Swenson and the ship's doctor he saw and nodded to them. Further along Professor Constantine was still curled up in sleep, this time with a biggest tucked around him. In the lounge he saw Halsey sitting June Paterson over empty, ice-melted glasses. She saw him and

MIDWAY VICTORY SEEN IMPORTANT

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Wide World War Analysis

The Midway victory over the Japs off our base at Midway—an affair that is minute in size but of momentous importance—must have far-reaching and perhaps decisive effects on the battle of the Pacific, which the men of Midway fought six months ago and now are striving difficult to finish when we are on the alert.

Indeed, on the face of returns thus far, so heavy is the punishment administered to the enemy off Midway that one has the rather justifiable urge to wave the flag a bit. However, naval operations also are proceeding off Dutch Harbor, and we shall do well to restrain our enthusiasm until we have the whole story.

If you please will refer to your maps we shall try to reconstruct the position.

To Restore Prestige

The Japanese, combining necessity with strategic speculation, plotted to restore their prestige, shattered by their defeat in the Coral sea and our unprecedented bombing raid over Tokyo and other cities of Nippon. They picked Midway and Dutch Harbor as the subjects of their attention.

In making this selection, the Japs figured that they could at least repeat the disaster reputation by a hit-and-run bombing of these two bases, and if things went well they might develop the attacks into major operations. The point is that both islands are of vast strategic value.

The midair victory was the outpost of Hawaii and Pearl Harbor, and since the latter is the key to the Pacific, the little island here is a mighty important part of the defenses of North America. If the Japs could capture it they would have cured a base from which they could raid Pearl Harbor. What is more important, they would have base from which they could launch a major offensive, with our west coast and the Panama canal as ultimatum objectives.

Sentinel off Lifeline

But that isn't all. You will note that Midway is a sentinel over our life-line to Australia, and possession of the island would facilitate Japanese efforts to cut our shipping routes and thus cripple this continental base which is a rapidly growing menace to consolidation of the midwest's conquest.

Dutch Harbor, set down amidst the fogs and violent storms of the far north, bears the northwest route to Alaska. In other words it is the guardian of the northwest approach to this continent.

This in attacking Midway and Dutch Harbor the Japanese were aiming blows at vital spots. The enemy naively hoped that he could spring a surprise and not only carry off the face-saving raids but capture at least Midway. The great strength massed for the operation against the atoll is clear indication of the Japanese ambitions.

But fate played a trick of its own. The American high command, being blessed with acumen and knowledge of Jap psychology, knew for a certainty that a face-saving operation would be undertaken. Thus we were ready for the attack, and the descendants of the algonquins walked into a trap at Midway.
