GERMANS BATTER AT RE DEFENSES ON TWO FRONT

MOSCOW, Sunday, June 21 (AP)—The Germans continued last night to batter Sevastopol with some 150-200 mortar shells and 100 machine gun tanks and at the same time registered a new advance in a revival of light tank attacks from the Black Sea. The Russians announced early today, "Our heroic defenders are repelling the enemy attacks day and night, the midnight Soviet counter-attacks of the battle for Sevastopol, which has reached a peak of violence with the Germans making a mighty effort to break into the narrow bay."

Launch One Drive In a one-line reference to the new light on the Kharkov front, the Soviet announcement said, "In one sector our troops fought advancing."

Launching a secondary drive of their own, red army tanks and infantry forces killed German armor and captured a number of weapons and equipment, including six tanks, on the Bryansk front south of Moscow. This drive started after a Russian tank corps cleared a gap in a German line, opening the way for the remaining Soviet attackers.

Increased Gravity Soviet dispatches said the Germans made eight successive assaults on the south side 18 miles to the east of Sevastopol. They were repelled by seven infantry divisions and many heavy tanks.

Both sides were reported to be in a single trench at Sevastopol and on the other front, was conducted by the 14th Army, which included armed and trained after almost a year of war in which millions

Britain Pledges to Open Second Front in Western Europe

By RICHARD MONTAGU Associated Press War Editor

Britain pledged a second front in western Europe yesterday and staked out a 36-square mile jumping off point at the Dutch coast even as the British army repelled a German advance to within 30 miles of Egypt.

The pledge came from Sir Stafford Cripps, parliamentary deputy for Winston Churchill while the prime minister and President Roosevelt—in the United States—were devising means to hit the axis and hit it hard in Europe, Africa and Asia.

It came against a background of bloody two-front wars. Europe where the soviet stalwarts of Sevastopol claimed again to have hunkered out German assaults with casualties which had mounted to a staggering 40,000. There were 100,000 German soldiers who had the Smolensk front into flaming action some 200 or 30 miles west of Moscow.

RAF raids against the Japanese supply lines in the Pacific, the RAF returned to the United States with a "strong force" of 250-300 bombers which raided the port of Emden and the northwest German coast.

That German nerves were frayed was attested by a wholesale purge started by the Russians last week in the Austrian province of the lower Danube against all persons thought to be pro-Germans. The purge included the execution of 100 persons.

The original swing of the axis left the sting of United Nations might when British submarines sank three Japanese supply ships in the straits of Malacca near Singapore, and allied bombers planned three bombs on a Japanese transport ship.

RUBBER! RUBBER! RUBBER!

By the time you read this editorial it will be a safe bet that the people in the 10 counties of south central Idaho will have rounded up more than 250 tons of scrap rubber in response to President Roosevelt's recent appeal.

And that will be only the amount of rubber actually reported. Tons and tons more will have been piled up in readiness for delivery to the gasoline service stations in Magic Valley.

Scrap has never in the history of this section of the state been so scarce as a wholehearted demonstration of public cooperation. Boys with pony-carts, kiddies on bicycles, housewives in their attics and basements, farmers driving along the highways—all are looking for scrap rubber in a conscientious attempt to solve the most serious problem in our war effort.

Of course, providing sufficient rubber for our war needs, is the principal objective, and if the scrap campaign accomplishes that purpose and nothing else, it will be a major achievement by the American people.

Not only that, it may be a determining factor in all the confusion that has surrounded our rubber shortage and the need for rationing gasoline—rationing to conserve the rubber we have.

Going even further than that, the President has indicated that if sufficient scrap rubber is gathered up in the United States, it may not only answer our military needs, but might permit a more re-capped tires available for civilian use.

In any event, there is only one way to find out just where we stand, and that is to round up every available pound of scrap rubber by June 30th, the deadline President Roosevelt set so long ago for the purpose of the campaign. People who know the score, and the government will be in position to establish a definite policy that should end much of the present confusion.

Estimates as to the quantity of recoverable scrap rubber from a conserved and belted-usable half million tons to the apparently fantastic guess of 10 million tons—600 pounds to a person.

But if whatever exists is to be utilized now, what we need most, we must make the scrap rubber a complete cooperation, from the biggest business to the smallest householder, can this be done.

Round it up, folks. Worn out nippies, jacks, automobile tires, hot water bags, rubber boots, and all the other things that are bound to your nearest service station as quickly as possible.

NEWSPAPERS ARE HUMAN

Although they prompt many a wise-crack by newspaper readers, typographical errors are not the fault of a newspaper's life and result in more mistakes than any casual reader might expect.

The hundreds of thousands of individual letters that are composed into thousands of words appearing in a newspaper daily offer just as many possibilities of error, and to the editors, proof-readers and compositors, it's a tremendous responsibility.

The other day one of the 'Times-News' most capable reporters covered an assignment which he would hope to have appeared error-free. It never he was conscientious in writing a story.

The young woman proof-reader, equally as capable, was just as sincere in her hopes that this story be typographically perfect.

It is certain to a commander in the navy that the air force of the battle on Midway Island, a former resident of Kimberly where at the time he had been known by the nickname of "Baldy."

In the very first line of the story as it appeared in print, despite all the painstaking efforts that went into its preparation—"Baldy" appeared as "Badly."

The average reader who detected the error will never understand the proof-reader's headache, the reporter's attempt to console her, although he himself was sick at heart, and their hidden feelings. It is a fact that their combined efforts for that day had been utterly ruined.

Believe this writer. To them, that little typographical error was anything but funny.

TRUDITIONS OF POLITICIANS

A mechanical handshaker, light enough to go parcel post, is the immediate sale in Idaho this year. Office seekers and practical politicians are yearning about how to reach the voters. Look for a complete book of political tricks and tips to be published. Cannot speeches can be sent to political rallies, if anyone has enough to get to one, but the old-fashioned handshaker is still the best. It is a fact that the candidates will be afraid to send in a letter to their private business. They have a half-day off every time they visit a beauty parlor. Under a wisely paternalistic government, prepared to set up a system of public health, it is estimated that absent time can be cut to not more than one hour per girl per half-day.

HAIR-NO FOR VICTORY
No matter how good a soldier you are, we are constantly being supplied by some new development. Take what has happened over in Australia. The Australian government has a rationing system. The White House is striving to allow public access to the military, and to the general public. Several other manufacturers have had similar "thank you" wires, but they were smart enough to stick them in their pockets. On the general's behalf, it can be noted that his impulsive zig-zag record with the new Roosevelt-Patterson program of enlisting industrial workers is remarkable progress in rearming the United States.

DOUGLAS LAUDS PRESS-FREEDOM

OZAHART, Ore., June 20 (AP)—The American people are not, said the befuddled subjects of Hitler who must be told each January that their government will cooperate this year, U. S. Supreme court Justice William O. Douglas told Oregon newspaper publishers tonight.

On the other hand, he continued, the genius of the American people lies in their keen perception of the difference between a willful talk and fact, and in their refusal to be seduced by propaganda.

"The same quality that make the American people immune to the blandishments of enemy propaganda also make them scornful of the over-zealous among us whose effort thinking would have the effect of distracting us from the war we are fighting to fight."

"Some well-intentioned publications are describing an unreal war in which it would appear that we have little left to do except prepare to receive the imminent surrender of the enemy," he told the annual convention of Oregon's Newspaper Publishers association.

"The average American wants the truth and wants to know from the press. What the people emphatically do not want from the press is propaganda."

"The youngest member of the nation's highest tribunal said the war was a people's war and required a free, a vigilant and a well-informed press. Now that the nation is emboldened, let us hope that the entire press will report the sober and grim facts of what we must fight—and how we must fight."

Fight Over

"And until our martyrs are avenged, our allies supported, and our army returned to peaceful employment, there is no room for him that the fight is about over."

He declared a rumor that "some mysterious power in Washington will clamp down on the press unless it transforms itself into a carbon copy edition of the enemy press."

"The American press knows, he went on, that within the broad field left open to it by the military censorship it is absolutely free to perform its constitutional function."

Douglas said the war-time job of the press as I see it is not only to report victories, but to analyze them with an eye to battles still in the future. To report defeats and analyze them, courageously and constructively."

Along with these is the story of the four seaplane scout pilots who also landed on Roscel, remained a month, and with the assistance of a loyal Australian air force patrol crew, who found them, finally returned to their own country. The craft had sustained. At the end of that time the American fleet passed over the island. The pilots were all flown out and were taken aboard their own cruises.

WRESTLING CHAMPIONS COULDS TOP 1-0 CLEVELAND OVER IDAHO FALLS

Cowboy Ace Bests Ferrara in Great Pitchers' Battle

Tony Ferrara, big Idaho Falls right-hander, dug his own grave with his foot, factiously speaking, last night and as a result the Twin Falls Cowboys walked off with a 1-0 victory and an even break in the first two games of their three-contest series with the Russets.

For four innings Ferrara had everything his own way. He had whiffed six Wranglers and had allowed nary a hit. Only two of the local players had reached first base on a wild throw of the mound by Bill Dunn, the Russets' shortstop, and Pitcher Tony Jell took a wild throw of his own in his big right foot had been coming down with his pitches and winding a hole in front of the pitching mound.

That set the stage for the lone run of the game. With Fred Larson on a pop-up to the first baseman, Harold Martin, the Cowboys' new third baseman, pulled a line drive to third and short and after Burton had a strike, went for a third run. Jell took a wild throw of his own and puffed Shamus off the bag and Silverthorn reached first. Jell took a wild throw of his own and puffed Shamus off the bag and Silverthorn reached first. Russets threatened in the first frame when Silverthorn doubled to left with two down. But Ferrara's quick reaction to the throw from the third out. Then in the fourth frame with one down, the Russets threatened on the record of three errors by Jack Lohrke at shortstop, a base on balls and Adams' hit off the mound. Ferrara's Dow's finger flip. However, Jell fanned Ryan and caused Dunn to pop up second.

Whiffs Three in Row Adams opened the seventh for the Twins by doubling to left and whiffed the next three batters. Hogan, Turnesa Pace Hale America

CHICAGO, June 20 (AP)—Tiny Ben Hogan, Hershey, Penn., in a dogged challenge, came from behind today to take Turnesa for the 63-hole lead in the American national open golf tournament at Ridgemoor country club with a total of 203.

The Texas-born Hogan, leading money winner among the professionals for the past three years, led Turnesa, the White Plains, N. Y., pro, by a single shot going to the 18th, where he was unlucky enough to drive his iron tee shot into a trap at the left of the green.

Hogan started today's 18-hole third round with a three-stroke lead, in his 131 total, but the heavy condition of the fairways, and cozy breeze slowed him down to a 38-72, even par. Hogan was not bothered by the weather, however, and made a 33-69-69.

Hogan appeared certain that Turnesa and Texie Bru would battle it out in the final 18 holes tomorrow. They may face serious opposition in the money race, however, who scored a 35-34-69 for 136; Lawson Little, Monterey, Calif., with a 36-31-71 for 206; Byron Nelson, Toledo, O., with a 37-35-69 for 201; and Jim Frazier, Elmhurst, Ill., who shot a 35-33-68 for a 201 total.

SPORTING BLOOD

BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

FRAZIER'S ACCUSATION

CHAPTER VII

HUNTER DENT lifted an oath. Now he knew why he had never cared for Strickland Ballard's brother-in-law. Hunter wanted to hurt something through the window and bash his face in.

"It explains why I have a bunch of 'em on my man," Neal Frazier went on. "We've been moving on the theory that Junior must be protected at any cost. If he lives, we must have him from—well, you know what I mean. If he dies, we have to keep his memory clean. What are we saying? Simply this, that Junior Ballard killed this bank messenger, robbed him, managed to get away, though he was shot by the police."

"That that is about it," Worwick would have heard Junior's car. The car would be here. The trucks Sheriff Anderson saw this afternoon would have been Junior's, when instead we know Dent assured the officer they were from his car; that he alone had a key to the private gate. Anderson was troubled about the clean tread in Dent's tire, until I explained that Dent took very good care of his automobile and it would require but a few minutes to wash it.

"Hunter Dent evidently was not here last night, or early this morning, for when Junior reached home he would most certainly have gone to the office where Dent sleeps. If he were in trouble I am certain he would. Instead he came to his room. He told me that Dent himself said no one came to see him during the night."

"Well," he concluded, "I grant you this hypothesis is not foolproof. But it is the most plausible thing I am able to work out. I have been having valuable time trying to shield Junior, when Dent is likely to slip from between our fingers any moment."

"One of the Gibberts spoke up. "You think, then, Frazier, Dent was the man who killed the messenger?"

"I do. In the end I think that will prove to be the case."

"The messenger was the one who would have had a confederate."

"That is true. In case the account given by the killer girl is correct. She said there were two. Duh, then, you have to allow for the kind of person she is—obviously not too intelligent; she was afraid, confused, and suffered a mental aberration. Until the police find who her boy friend was and get his account of the stick-up, you have to make allowances."

"But what about the money?" Hankins Temple asked. He was greatly worried.

"Frazier, my last cent that Dent has that money in his possession this moment!"

"A murmur went up. Hunter Dent took into the deeper gloom as he heard hurrying steps along the concrete walk from the highway. He knew he had a sneaky heel-click. There was a young man with her. They came momentarily into a patch of light from the window. The two stopped. As Hunter had surmised, Red's companion was young Tisdale. Tisdale was harried, and Red was angry.

"Frazier, an instant it seemed they might go at it tooth and nail. Red controlled herself. "They're waiting for us. Let's not fight here. You are tired of fighting."

"They went into the house."

RED and Oliver Tisdale's joining the group changed the discussion. Some one came to the window. Hunter slipped away. He wanted to hear the rest of the business, but the risk appeared too great. He was worried. Had he, he wondered, gone too far in directing Junior Ballard? Had he, in fact, built up a powerful case against him?

Moodily, he moved through the night, came to the parked truck. He got in, and ran with pale parking lights as he was within cover of the woods. He reached the spot where Junior's car had left the road and gave into a tree.

With the torch from the tool chest of the truck Hunter went over the interior of Junior's car. There was a bullet hole through the back. It was easy to trace the course of the bullet to the place on the seat where Junior had been sitting.

Made by a heavy caliber revolver, too, Hunter mused. It seemed obvious the shot was from one of the policemen's guns.

Junior Ballard had been mixed in that side-up. There was no way out of it. Hunter had tried to believe it was just a car, alone on a waver. It could have been. But the more he pondered the thing the more he had to admit that fundamentally Ballard's boy, spoiled and pampered, allowed to run wild, weak and mischievous criminal, if only Hunter could account for the missing money. There he was, stumped. Maybe he couldn't see straight when he looked in the safe. Maybe he just dreamed the bag and its contents had disappeared.

He got into the truck and drove the car to the barn. He parked it in, and hoped until he could find a better hiding place the big barn would keep the secret. He had a feeling every step he made done that much further on a fool's journey. Why should he be shielding Hunter? It was because he loved the boy. Why did he, somehow, have a contrary affection for the kid it got back to Red. She, too, was one he was trying to do something for. That did not make particular sense, for she and Tisdale were going to be married. Two might fight, but the Ballard-Tisdale money had to be kept intact.

WITH these muddled thoughts for companion, Hunter Dent put the truck in the garage next to the barn, and worked through the heavy darkness toward the house. Save for a low light in the night, in Worwick's office, the mansion was deserted. As Hunter entered the yard, however, he became aware of voices. They were not loud, but they were charged with anger. Now he could make out in the dense gloom the sky overhead was clouded, and rain was in the air—two cars. They were parked up the driveway, some distance from the wide door of the garage. At the foot of the stairway to the office Hunter stopped and listened.

"I'm telling you for the last time, Red," Tisdale's voice warned. "Frankly, I think you're in love with Dent and won't admit it to yourself, or you are simply stringing me along."

"All shut up, Oliver!" Red Ballard said wearily. "I have never seen such a bitter, jealous person as you in all my life."

Hunter went up the stairs. He opened the door. To his surprise it was not locked, though he was sure he had locked it when he left the last time. Without switching on the light he used the flashlight he had and went to the safe. He had to make a sure about that $17,000. The whole thing made him feel queer. He had to make two trials before he worked the combination. He threw open the door. The place was just as empty now as it had been when he missed the bag.

When it seemed to him flowers came from everywhere. Voices, flying bits, rather, a bit on the back of his head that him out. Just before he lost consciousness he caught Frazier's voice. "We'll hand him over to the sheriff."

The others seemed to Hunter to be the Gibberts, perhaps Hankins Temple. He didn't know and it didn't matter, for he went out then.
