BATTLE PREDICTED IN SOUTHWESTERN REVENUE BILL

PLANS DIFFER ON CHANGES NEEDED Vaudevillian, 62, and Partner

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—Overwhelmingly approved by the house, the $271,000,000 bill went to the senate today amid signs that vigorous efforts would be made to correct substantial tax measures unprecedentedly high taxes on business.

Even before routine assignment of the bill to the finance committee for study, Chairman George D. Coker had reported his considered 'too steep' the combined normal and surtax levy of 45 per cent voted by the house on most corporation income.

While George said he believed the house has done a constructive job on the revenue, Senator Vandenberg, R. Mich., served notice that senate Republicans would make every effort to 'take the bill part from stem to girdle.'

'I think this bill attacks the healthy economy we must have in this country to finance the enormous expenditures we are making,' Vandenberg declared. He added that the senate finance committee ought to consider adding a clause to finance the enormous expenditures was coming within a few months anyhow.

George said he believed the individual income taxes 'pretty high,' but indicated he believed individuals should still have an income tax of $2,400,000,000 in corporation taxes, $2,712,000,000 in individual levies, and $1,731,000,000 in miscellaneous and excise levies.

RED TROOPS BACK

The German troops were being counseled against ill-founded hopes of quick victory in the Balkans. They (the Russians) are falling back deliberately with the obvious intention of making the Germans on the banks of the Don. Germany was told to expect that the Russian identified as a General-Dieter.

We must expect them in their own time to counter-attack with considerable force. It is to be the German view—and, indeed, that was a conclusion to be drawn from all available reports—that the Russian would make their main stand along the twisting big bend of the lower Don and along the entire line of the Voronezh river.

The battle of Voronezh was taking place at the end of the line. One Russian group which had driven German forces believing that the Germans would be plunged into the river without waiting for support, swim and waded to the water bank and there grappled with the foe.

Hold Main Crossing

The Russian drive held the principal crossings of the Don in that front, threatening to cut the retreat of the German forces east before Voronezh. Many positions on both banks had changed hands and it is believed the Russian prospective reinforcements on the west bank of the Don.

Rumanians were reported rushed to the front in the Balkans and German and Hungarian regiments south of the city in the "Y" formed by the Don and the Voronezh river.

The Russian reported the destruction of about 100 more tanks by the Russian air-infantry but the Germans still had hundreds of them.

Surprising at a time when it might be supposed that Russia's entire air force was devoted to the defense of the Russian air-infantry but the Germans still had hundreds of them.

STASSEN PLANS AID TO SOLDIERS

By JOHN KULEY
ST. PAUL, Minn., July 21 (UP)—The state of Minnesota is preparing to provide financial aid for its soldiers when they return from the war. State officials are considering the creation of a $100,000 soldier rehabilitation fund, which Gov. Harold E. Stassen said would "redistribute the state's resources to the benefit of its men who have served in the armed forces."

The program still is in a formative stage, and it requires legislative approval. The rehabilitation proposal was outlined by Stassen as part of a 10-point program designed to prepare the state for readjustments which will be necessary in the post-war period.

"Minnesota recognizes its debt to those of its men now serving in the far corners of the world," Stassen said.

Reserves to Finance

"It is the responsibility of the state to formulate a program which will aid returning soldiers to start again in civilian life with the minimum disruption."

Under terms of the governor's proposal the fund would be financed from the state's general revenue reserves and administered by a special commission authorized to make loans or outright grants in aid of individual cases.

"It is essential that the administration of the fund be flexible, and that the type and amount of aid to provide for the individual need," Stassen said.

"And it is especially important that the fund be immediately available upon the soldier's return in order that there be no extended period of destitution."

Fredrick Federal Help

Stassen predicted that "under form of federal grants, probably a bonus, eventually would be made to soldiers after the war, but he said there probably would be a time lag between the soldier's return and the time the federal grant would be made available."

The state fund, he said, would be a bridge between the time the soldier leaves the army and the time federal funds will be available.

Reserves of the state fund, he said, would be used to provide an educational training program for returning soldiers in the respective branches of the service which he adapted to civilian pursuits while the program would be made to grant special farm loans, special reemployment bureaus, and to provide transportation to employment areas.

Disbursement of funds, if the program is approved by the legislature," Stassen said, "would rest largely at the discretion of the administrative commission."

SHIP LOSSES IN ATLANTIC AT 411

By United Press
 The unofficial total of United Nations merchant vessels sunk in the western Atlantic by axis submarines and mines since the middle of January was 411 today, with five sinkings reported in the last 24 hours.

One, however, was not included in the total because it was a neutral Swedish ship, torpedoed, shelled and machine gunned, although it was displaying prominently its colors. None was injured, despite the fact that the submarine struck the hulls as well as the ship.

Three additional sinkings were reported by the navy yesterday. They included:

A medium-sized United States freighter in the south Atlantic on June 29. Four dead and 27 missing.

A small United States merchant vessel off the east coast about three weeks ago. Thirty-five dead.

A small United States merchant vessel some 450 miles off the Atlantic coast on July 13. Six men missing.

The Mexico City newspaper Novacada reported that five men were lost when the 220-ton Tachirac, a merchant vessel of Panamanian registry, was torpedoed between Colombia and New Orleans on July 12. Survivors landed on the Mexican Gulf coast in Huixtlan.

WPB ORDER SAYS DRIVE, SCRAP CAR

MILWAUKEE, July 21 (AP)—Merrill Stubbs, chief of the automobile salvage section of the WPB conservation division, said today that in war time a junky must either present such a car to be scrapped or have it scrapped. He announced also that the war department, in collaboration with other agencies concerned, has adopted a policy for relinquishing old cars which makes no contribution to the nation's transportation needs.

In a address prepared for a convention of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, Stubbs appealed to owners of old cars, an automobile which is not providing transportation to lose no time in turning it in for scrap reclamation channels.

"It's a war economy," he said, "and automobiles must be considered in one of two ways—as transportation or as scrap, to be sold at scrap prices."

Stubbs explained that under the regulation policy, where necessary an old car or truck which remains in a condition of disrepair for 60 days, so that it cannot practically be used for transportation, must be scrapped, except in instances in which good reasons are established for other action.

HIGH PAID NEEDED TO KEEP WINNERS

SALT LAKE CITY, July 21 (UP)—Metal mines of the west face a battle for survival because of the competition of war industries underwritten by the federal government. Governor Maw and operators in several districts believe.

Addressing a hearing called by the sub-committee of the special senate silver committee, which continued in session today, Maw said: "We have a situation where the man who has heretofore worked underground as a miner can now earn twice as much and more in a defense industry."

"Some unskilled laborers actually are receiving two to three times as much money for their work as what we would call a normal wage."

Must Boost Wages
 "The mining industry must increase wages to compete with defense industry or metal production will go down. And if mining wages are raised to meet competition many units of the industry will lose money and may go broke."

He cited as special problems the fact that government contracts—which have drawn an estimated 20,000 workers to Utah from other parts of the country—are paid for by the government on a cost-plus basis, permitting high wages and overtime pay for work above 40 hours weekly.

In contrast, the mining operators' jobs are paid on a fixed basis, limiting the return on their product and hence the funds available for wages.

Other witnesses, including George Lynn, operator of a copper and silver mine in Montrose county; Paul H. Hunt, mine manager of the Park Hill Consolidated Mines company, Park City, Utah, and Donald A. Callahan, president of the Calumet Consolidated Mines company of Wallace, Idaho, echoed the view.

Callahan said 10 to 20 per cent of the miners in the Coeur d'Alenes had left to take defense work.

Miners Leave
 Hunt said defense work had left his property with only 141 miners in June, in contrast with 201 in January, with an attendant reduction in efficiency of almost 50 per cent.

Maw declared that because of the shortage of labor in Utah's metal mines, production of ore vital to the war effort would be cut in half from the year from more than one ton per man-shift to 7 of a ton per man-shift. This is partly because of the added, by the necessary hiring of inexperienced miners to replace workers leaving for defense jobs.

Ten bodies have been recovered and five persons are missing.

At least 1,000 families were homeless, the Red Cross reported, in the county area through which flood waters poured over the week-end from a swath that extended from Olean, N. Y., southward to Ridgway, Penn.

U. S., BRITISH OFFICERS CONSIDER "LIMITED DIVERSION"

SMALL-SCALE 2ND FRONT MAY OPEN

By DREW MITCHELL
 LONDON, July 21 (AP)—United States and British staff officers are seeking some means of aiding Russia through a limited diversion on the continent, according to dispatches received here from London. The diversion, which would be limited in scope, is being considered at the present time, it was learned from a source in the British War Office. It is being considered in connection with the second front talks, which are being held in London, and which are expected to be completed by the end of the month. The diversion would be limited to a few divisions, and would be carried out in the Balkans or in the Mediterranean region. It is being considered as a means of relieving the pressure on the Russian front, and as a means of opening up a second front in the West. The diversion would be carried out in the form of a series of attacks, which would be carried out in a coordinated manner. ## MORE SUGAR FOR CONSUMERS SEEN

SALT LAKE CITY, July 21 (AP)—When the supply justifies it, prospects for a sugar surplus are likely to be increased, Douglas E. Scalley, vice-president and general manager of Utah-Idaho Sugar company, believes. Returned from a visit to Washington, where he conferred with federal officials on sugar rationing, Scalley said transportation was the big problem. Scalley conferred with Dr. Harold Rogers, chief of food rationing, and J. Howard Westing, chief of the sugar section, of the office of price administration. "We've been given definite assurance by these men that the government has no intention of using the best sugar surplus as a stockpile for future safeguards," he said. "On the contrary, the government has indicated that it expects to maintain the domestic beet sugar reach a surplus of 2,000,000 tons and not at the 5,000,000-gal reserve which had previously feared by the rationing program. "Just how this will be accomplished is still undetermined, though the government reports it is working on plans that will keep supply and demand in normal balance. If this can be done best growers and processors may not be unnecessarily hurt by the rationing program. "Scalley said G.P.A. officials indicated there was no specific limit on the amount of sugar any individual may be granted for home consumption. He said that he would be glad to sell his surplus to the government if he could get a better price for it."

MILK DELIVERIES CURTAILED HERE

Home milk deliveries in Twin Falls are now available from only three dairies. It was announced today by O. H. Coleman, commissioner of public safety. Coleman made the announcement after receipt of word to this effect from H. S. Post, district administrator of the public health unit. Post informed Coleman that aside from the three dairies now available for home delivery, there are two dairies which will be delivering milk to stores. Records of City Clerk H. E. Eddridge show that the two dairies delivering to stores exclusively are the Sweet Clover, operated by Stanley Green, and the Overland dairy, operated by O. M. Tucker. The three still available for home delivery are the Griffin dairy, operated by Mrs. E. A. Griffin; the Heinrich dairy, operated by C. A. Heinrich; and Young's dairy, operated by Alton Young. Not so long ago, records show, there was an even dozen dairies delivering milk to homes and stores. At that time, the Twin Falls dairy had 12 grade A producers, several of which were retail dairies. Today only three dairies deliver milk and many former retail dairies now sell all their milk to him. The shortage, difficulty in obtaining laboring and also difficulty in obtaining equipment have caused in some cases of the delivery curtailment within the city.

CONGRESS AWAITS NEW STABILIZER

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—Congress impatiently seeks a means to learn whether or when President Roosevelt might ask for supplementary control legislation based on wage stabilization, so that plans for a series of several weeks could either be renewed or abandoned. There were reports that the President would give his consent that a new Democratic chairman during the day and one of the leaders, who was asked not to be quoted by name, said he hoped in any event to be able to make a definite statement shortly. Should a presidential message on the subject be forthcoming shortly, a majority of congressmen would slip away for an indefinite period to attend to other matters. Hearings and the senate finance committee proceeded with study of the House-approved $8271,000,000 tax bill. Many expressed belief that the current bill, which is a wage control program would necessitate additional legislation such as main-lineing the current bill and some sort of "freezing" of farm prices.

NEURITIS PARALYSIS POSTURE

Neuritis is inflammation of a nerve or many nerves, and is due to pressure on the nerves by slightly misplaced bones or by contracted muscles. PARALYSIS is due to pressure on the Spinal Cord at the base of the Brain. As to Posture, the shape of most of you are bad, stand straight or lie down — is anything but normal. Most of you look and act like you are 90 or more years old, and probably most of you feel just that way. You are bent, crooked, FATIGUED, weary and feel years older than you are because of the pressure and distortion of your body. There is no necessity to continue that way, and a few treatments will make a wonderful difference with you. As FATIGUE and weariness accumulates you are nearing OLD AGE and inevitably DEATH. These DISTORTED, CROOKED, BENT OVER BODIES are not due to old age, but to NEURITIS. NEURITIS is caused by the pressure on the nerves, which cannot function in distorted bodies and over pressed upon nerves. I can and do correct these pressures and distortions and the results are relaxation, ease of mind and a comfortable body. My method relieves pain and suffering. The first treatment is the most important, and permanent method for restoration of the body functions and perfect health. ACCIDENTS cause some of the most severe distortions, especially accident to the head and neck. I remove pain and restore ease and comfort to a marked degree usually within the first treatment. The aged and the young in between enjoy their treatments and enjoy the good health which inevitably follows. WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION takes care of you and your doctor's fee bill when the workman is injured in the course of his or her employment. Next time you have a strain, fall or hurt your body while at work, call upon me to take care of you. You will be happily surprised how soon you will be well and back on regular work.

As far as attendance in the Pioneer league is concerned, you can let the dead past bury itself.

That was the opinion today as officials around the circuit scanned the first report on official admissions to Pioneer league ball parks for the first half of 1942—up to and including games of July 4.

SERIAL STORY MURDER IN FERRY COMMAND

COPYRIGHT, 1942,

G-MEN IN ACTION

CHAPTER IX

INSIDE the letter addressed to John Dezel, Clyde Dawson found a white slip of paper bearing a set of fingerprints. Accompanying it was a brief note:

"John," it stated, "these are Statter's prints. I believe you will find the thumb print corresponds with the print found on the filing cabinet. Paul."

Paul? That didn't take much figuring—it was Paul Dezel, the corpse-mutilator, her head buried in North Sydney. But how and when had Paul managed to post the letter with the fingerprints obviously taken from the hand? Dawson shook his head angrily. He was getting dead-end.

Harried, Dawson slipped backward again and opened the door. Four men were there, the leader of the group, a man of about 28. He looked at the battered, disheveled investigator.

"Glad to see you, Mr. Dawson," the latter identified himself. "Please have a man guard this fellow and the woman, sending them to the storeroom at the top of the second flight of stairs, and you accompany me—I'll give you a full explanation shortly."

The G-man followed him upstairs where Dawson led him directly to the door of the room containing charts and the apparatus. It was locked. Dawson probed for his keys in vain then applied his shoulder and rumbled the lock. . . . the third time the door gave way.

"Take a quick look around, please," he beckoned, "you have my word there's a gang here you'll be interested in. Right now I'm desperately anxious to get down with you to the War Supplies Department wherever that is—and make this fellow mister, as a girl who seems to be missing."

The War Supplies Department was a good four miles away.

The G-man's badge rushed him through an inquiry desk into the Personnel Office.

"We want to see Miss Carol Fiske—immediately," Dawson said.

The manager looked up at the staid man.

"Miss Fiske is not at work—the act is not to her lock manager stating that her mother had taken suddenly ill last evening and that she was taking a night train. Miss Fiske did not say where she was going."

to the happy little homestead and see what's cooking with our Helen. I'll phone our bureau from there to speed through a description of the girl on our teletype system and . . . have you by any chance seen a photo of her?"

"There's one hanging on her bedroom wall upstairs."

"You certainly did get around that house. I'll use the picture for a wirephoto release. Thus, I should have her picked up wherever she has gone . . ."

"Maybe she hasn't left town at all," mused Dawson.

The G-man's eyebrows lifted: "That's quite true. I'll also notify the Chicago police."

On their way back to the limestone house, Dawson completed the story, omitting nothing.

"Sounds like a Boris Karloff movie!" the G-man remarked, "but there is no doubt you've been dealing with a tough bunch of bables—at least, they WERE tough. This house looked like a casualty clearing station during a battle when we arrived. . . . you must feel that you've squandered a big favor with the Ferry Command."

Dawson's face was expressionless.

"Not yet . . . too many of my pals have been killed by these Hun vermin to date to leave me satisfied with the identification of myself. I'm sure, several other undercover workers in the guest bent on phoning in favor with the Ferry Command."

a dial—about expecting a head-achy weekend with four old college pals meeting in this morning and three other friends having shown up the night before and, from the looks of it, wouldn't be surprised if the parade continued during the next two days. It strikes me as curious that he should so suddenly be deluged by touring friends . . ."

Dawson drew the head agent aside.

"That's an easy one to figure out. If the sender is in northern Maine he is likely spotting Ferry Command planes en route to Newfoundland from Montreal . . . But why would they detour over Maine?"

"You entertain a popular delusion, my friend," Dawson replied. "There's no detour entailed. Take a look at that map up on the wall and you'll note a straight line from Montreal to eastern Newfoundland cuts across northern Maine. He's telling this branch that three planes flew over him last night, four more this morning and good flying conditions are indicated for two days. . . . thus it's wicked. Right?"

"Sounds logical," the G-man affirmed. "This is really developing into something. By slipping possum and leaving our man on the job around here we should eventually pick up leads to most of the organization."

Two other agents entered, half-dressed in a frightened and soured man of about 40 between them.

"Check out in Dawson. There was a Sammy supposed to pick up a packing case—with my body in it. And since the gang would hardly have entrusted such a cartage job to anybody but a trusted member of their organization, I'd suggest you put Sammy through the wringer—he'll squawk. His breed always does."

The chief agent signaled and the G-man took away the scowling Sammy.

(To Be Continued)

At the house Dawson maneuvered to see how the door had been transformed into a place of activity. The filing cabinet had disclosed technical data including correspondence of an incriminating type with a number of persons. Wireless experts were testing the receiving set and already recording incoming messages. Two had already been received—in English from "anonymous" senders. But the messages were obviously coded and decoders were breaking them down.

"Here's an interesting message we picked up, sir," one of the agents said. "Some amateur in northern Maine chatted at this wavelength—we didn't even move

ARMY LIFE FOR WAAGS UNDERWAY

By BETTY PROVO
PT. DEB MOINES, Ia., July 21 (UP) — The nation's first women soldiers slipped into army routine today to concentrate on the serious business of preparing to release regular army men for combat duty.

They discarded orchid corsages, farewell tokens from husbands and sweethearts, as they exchanged civilian clothes for the trim summer uniforms of the women's army auxiliary corps.

When a cannon's roar awakened the WAAGs at 5:45 a. m. today, they knew they were beginning their strenuous training program. After yesterday's informal introduction to army life, the women were told they could receive visitors only on urgent business and the press was barred from the post.

Many uniforms

Already uniforms were sprinkled liberally among the 440 officer candidates and 200 auxiliaries, the privates of the women's army, who composed the first contingent of trainees. By December, 7,000 will be in training here.

Those who had not yet been issued uniforms still wore slacks, shorts and other informal attire as they lined up at the fitting station and passed beneath the sign: "Through these doors passes the best-dressed woman's army in the world."

One hundred tailors were working feverishly, altering uniforms to all sizes and receding her personal and occupational history — information needed by the army in its search for talent.

41 Minutes to Fit

An average of 41 minutes was required to outfit each woman from her kept-style hat to her calzequin oxford.

From the fitting station, she passed to the classification center for interviews. There she was given a card reciting her personal and occupational history — information needed by the army in its search for talent.

Three rookie platoon were sent through their initial drill late today, principally for the benefit of news photographers. Some were in uniform, some in the worn and white fatigue suits and others were in civilian clothes.

Girl, 19, Employed as First Feminine Lifeguard at Pool

By O. A. KELKER
 The rush should be on out at the Harmon park pool.

Reason: Councilmen last night authorized Carl Ritchey, park commissioner, to hire Miss Mary Jean Shipman, 19, as one of the lifeguards. She is the first woman to hold such a job at the local pool.

Miss Shipman—pretty with dark brown hair and eyes—will be much more than just a picture at the pool. Actually, she knows her stuff. She holds a senior life saving certificate from the American Red Cross and has been paddling around in the water-off and on, of course—since she was eight years old.

U. of I. Student

She received her life saving certificate last summer. She is a graduate of the Twin Falls high school and has completed her freshman year at the University of Idaho, Moscow. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Shipman, Twin Falls.

2 DETAINED FOR BINDING CHILDREN

ATLANTA, Ga., July 21 (UP) — A father and mother charged with binding three of their children to gether with heavy log chains and leaving them to sit in a hot sun as punishment for taking some old coins were held under $5,000 bond each today.

The father, Archer R. Burney, who described himself as an odd-job man, admitted to DeKal county police that he had punished Archer, Jr., 7, Pierroy, 10, and Marjorie, 12, by locking the 15-pound log chain around their necks.

"I didn't like to keep on whipping them, so this is the method I used to punish them," Burney said.

Mrs. Burney denied that the children had been mistreated.

The father told the officers he was punishing the children because he suspected them of taking 20 or 25 cents in old coins from a pocket-book.

"None of them would admit taking the money, so I put them in there and told them to open up which one of it is before I got back," Burney said.

Girl, 25, Trapped Behind Waterfall Finally Escapes

NORTH CONWAY, N. H., July 21 (UP)—Miss Dorothy Sparks, 25, of Media, Penn., was recovering at a hospital here today after being trapped for three hours beneath a waterfall.

The attractive young woman was swimming yesterday when a sudden surge swept her over swift River falls and the backwash whirled her beneath the main of falling water.

There, standing in neck-deep water, Miss Sparks was trapped amid slippery rocks and logs. She was unable to reach her feet even with the aid of a pole. They did succeed in hooking a line to her bathing suit but the surge came off and she fell back into the pool.

On another attempt with the pole, Miss Sparks managed to hang on long enough to be pulled to some rocks where rescuers could reach her. She suffered lacerations, shock and exhaustion.

"near miss" sounds harmless enough, near misses as defined by bombardiers are bombs close enough to work serious damage on the target by pressure and fragmentation. In their turn the Japs were doing well against the bombers.

In the harbor last day three of the Japs' huge Kawasabi four-engine flying boats lay motionless on the surface of the water. Evidence of the Jap holds serious indications of moving in to May. One Catalina dropped low enough to strafe the cumbersome flying hayracks and left them burning.

One Catalina came away bearing more than 100 bullet holes and shrapnel cut. Another, attacked by six Japs, got away but was so badly shot up it sank while landing.

Kiska Harbor May Prove to Be Weary Tomb for Jap Invaders

By KEITH WHEELER
 (Copyright, 1942, Chicago Times, Inc.)

AT SEA WITH THE PACIFIC FLEET, July 20 (AP)—Kiska harbor may earn a place in history as the dreariest tomb ever to receive the corpse of an invader's hope to conquer the world.

It may be that Hostia's hopeful little men have chosen the foggy bay under the black peaks of Kiska's hills to launch their last serious attempt to invade and conquer the United States.

It may seem more likely they have chosen a place to die.

Midway was their first choice and the surface of water. Now despite relentless punishment by American bombers they are doggedly ascending Kiska. If they fall here they may not have strength to try again.

It may be the emperor's high-priced ships are going down at their moorings, victims of bombs falling day after day from the sky. Up in the air planes running a shuttle service of destruction along the Aleutian chain.

The big PDY Catalina flying boats first located the Japanese in Kiska harbor June 10. They had moved in during a stormy week and had captured or otherwise disposed of 10 Japanese weather observers stationed there.

The battle began June 11 when the first flights of two B-24 Liberator and army fortress and B-24 Liberators began freight bombing.

The weather at Kiska that day was better than usual—cloudy and overcast with one raw squall. The blanking out stretches of sea and land below. The aeromarine looked it over and clearly called it a high pressure area. "Ideal for torpedoes," was his opinion.

It was not until flights of two or three, the workhorse Catalinas did across the mile high peak of Kiska volcano and had a dozen Liberator in the harbor. That day one heavy cruiser, two light cruisers, a single destroyer and had a dozen transports lay anchored there.

Five Liberators launched their first concentrated attack. They came down to 1,800 feet where they could see the harbor. They dropped the umbrella of anti-aircraft and Liberator caught a chunk apparently in the bomb load. It was three destroyers and had a dozen transports lay anchored there.

The next he came apart in a searing blast that rocked the other destroyers and had a cloud of smoke and bits of debris tumbling earthward remained.
