Steel Deficiency Solution Wanted For Cargo Craft

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (P)—Senate advocates of a cargo-carrier expansion program to combat the submarine menace searched today for a solution of the steel program...

Truman also accused the bureau of ships of "biased and prejudiced treatment of the Liberty ships. The commission gave a shortage of steel as the reason.

What the committee sought to learn was whether the wartime commission had to cancel the Higgins contract for assembly line production of the Liberty ships.

Nelson announced yesterday that the WPB's committee on cargo planes had recommended that arrangements be made immediately to at least double the present cargo program.

At Baltimore, E. A. Loe, Jr., said last night that "considerable number of cargo planes were produced in recent months but the building of additional planes was held up by a bottleneck in production of aluminum and alloy steel shortages.

It includes — for the first time in United States history — a contingent of Canadian troops serving as part of the fast-moving, hard-hitting elements that will be necessary to meet any possible invasion.

Holland Won't Quit, Dutch Queen States In Congress Speech

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (P)—The queen, who is the first woman to visit the United States, told congress today that "no surrender" remained the motto of her people...

"I imagine what it means for a liberty-loving country to be in bondage, for a proud country to be subject to harsh alien rule.

"What would be the American answer if an invader were to cover his wholesale systematic pillage with the firing squad, the concentration camp and the abolition of the rights of man?"

"I doubt not that your answer would be: Resistance, resistance until the end, resistance in every possible shape or form.

"I do not see how you can be any other than a great country, and I am sure that you will be a great country in the future.

Germany's mechanized armies, fast closing an octopus-like strangulation on the upper Caucasus, reported the fall of Tikhoretsk on the Caucasian railway 50 miles south of Rostov today and developed a new pincer thrust to the great Volga river steel center of Stalingrad.

Dispatches from Moscow said the red armies, taking up new positions along a strong line east of the Don river, were driving back powerful German attacks 55 miles southeast of Stalingrad.

A second big-scale battle was in progress in the Caucasus, where the Russians said the upper class of German planes aimed at Stalingrad was stopped dead.

Reich Railway A bulletin from German field headquarters said a leading racing southward from Voronezhsk, had reached the main trans-Caucasian line linking the Black and Caspian seas.

This apparently meant that the invasion of the Caucasus, in the vicinity of Voronezhsk, would represent an advance of about 225 miles into the Caucasus mountains.

As the crisis in Russia mounted, European capitals rang with news of the German offensive in the Caucasus.

Every day brings news of the time when the German planes, British and U. S. B-29, are to be sent to Europe to be put into effect, the Moscow radio said.

In London Premier Peter S. Gerbrandy of the Netherlands government, declared that the tide of war was turning.

PELLEY GUILTY OF CRIMINATION, SEEK NEW TRIAL

The Pelley defense, Inc., publisher of the "Gallician," Pelley's magazine, also was found guilty of conspiring to obstruct the draft.

Federal District Judge Robert C. Batzli, who announced he would sentence the defendants at 10 a. m. Aug. 12, gave defense attorneys three days to present motions, Pelley's attorneys asked for a new trial.

The jurors received the case at 10 a. m. and after a short recess returned with verdicts and rebuked by both the defense and the prosecution.

Pelley reportedly stated at the attorney and later when the jury reported its verdict, he appeared pale and nervously offered to pay the sentence, but Pelley was remanded to the custody of the U. S. marshal.

Second-Highest Ram Price in History

Listed as the second-highest price ever paid for a ram in the history of U. S. sales, Ladd and Brockie, Buffalo, N. Y., paid $175 for a yearling ram owned by Robert B. Blaskoff, Filer, at the annual Filer event.

Attracting an estimated 500 persons, the sale resulted in high prices for the ram through an unofficial figures show that average price paid was $108 a head for all classes and $120 for animals in the Suffolk stud division.

A Col. E. O. Waller, Filer, announcer who has handled the event for many years, said that the sale resulted in what is believed to be the highest average price per head ever paid in any ram sale held in America.

The busy day for the shepherds came to an end at the Park hotel in Twin Falls last night at a banquet attended by 300 persons. Toastmaster at the banquet was H. B. Soulen, Filer, state president of the Idaho Wool Growers' association.

U. S. FLIER MA' TAKE ACTIVE ROLE IN RUSSIAN DEFENSE

GEN. BRADLEY IN MOSCOW SESSION

By FRED H. SCHIFF WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (UP)—The presence of Maj.-Gen. Bradley in Moscow as President Roosevelt's representative indicates that American fliers soon may take an active role in the Russian war effort, informed sources said.

Bradley is known as one of the most experienced aviators, experts say. He has experienced with a Wright biplane as far back as 1912.

From then until he became commanding general of the 1st air force at Mitchell field, N. Y., last March, he spent most of his time with the air corps. He was relieved from that command last month to take his present assignment.

Equally Matched Another point which tends to lend credence to American aid is the fact that the Russian and German air forces seem to be equally matched. Neither country has a decided lead in personnel and maintain air superiority in any sector for a considerable length of time.

Consequently, if the Russian air forces were to be reinforced with a powerful contingent of American planes and pilots, it might well mean that the balance of air power could be swung in their favor.

Once air control had been achieved, the combined Russian and American air forces might then take the pressure in the Caucasus.

Job of Fighter Planes To gain air superiority is the job of fighter planes and pilots while Russia has not, as far as has been revealed, asked for pilots. It has continuously called for more pursuit ships.

It follows that if the United States is to supply a great many more fighter planes than it is now doing, it also must supply more of the men to maintain and fly them.

Maj.-Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, one of America's leading air commanders, has been moved from India to Egypt. There ostensibly to take over command of the American flyers fighting in the north African campaign. Brereton and his men are readily available for duty on the Russian front.

U. S. TURNS OVER CRAFT TO DUTCH

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (UP)—President Roosevelt turned a swift and generous check over to Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands today with a prediction that once more the Dutch people would "win and maintain" their independence.

In a ceremony at the Washington navy yard, the planes and ships were handed down from the gift of the little craft while the national flag was placed on the deck of one of the Netherlands navy ships.

Bunting was removed from the name plates and the Dutch name—The Queen Wilhelmina—was revealed. The monarch of the Netherlands commissioned the vessel in a brief address, declaring it would operate "in close collaboration with the United States navy against our common enemies."

The American chief executive transferred the ship to the Netherlands queen, under provisions of the lend-lease act, as a tangible expression of his admiration for all that The Netherlands has done and is doing.

Jap Workers at Camp Halt Fire, Save Building

The 33 Japanese volunteer labor workers now housed at the farm camp south of the city today were credited by Roy C. Jones, the manager, with saving the utility building after fire broke out in a coal shed in the large structure early Wednesday morning.

Lans said that the fire was caused by a defective combustion burner which is used to fire the boiler furnishing hot water for the laundry and the showers.

A Japanese notified the flames about 9 a. m. and spread the alarm. All Japs appeared to be immediately and after stopping the flames which were already to the top of the structure, they continued to work until after dawn and removed all the coal by means of a wheelbarrow.

"If the fire had gone 10 minutes more," Lans said today, "it couldn't have been stopped and the whole structure would have gone up. It was just right to carry the fire to the nearby recreation center and there is no doubt this would have been the case had the damage to the utility building been estimated at $200."

INDIANS WILL ASK GANDHI TO LEAD PASSIVE RESISTANCE

ENGLISH RULERS WILL GET 'CHOICE'

By PRESTON GROVER

BOMBAY, Aug. 6 (AP)—The issue of Indian independence approached a new crisis today as the All-India congress committee assembled for a meeting tomorrow prepared to put teeth in its demands by asking Mohandas K. Gandhi to lead the masses in a non-violent struggle for freedom. Actually, the proposal ready to be put before the committee today is to this choice for Britain—make India free now and win her 300,000,000 people as fighting allies or withhold independence until in fact "a mass struggle on non-violent lines on the part of the Indian states."

The working committee sent its proposal to the main body with an expression of hopelessness in appealing to Britain and the United Nations and all sources here agreed that the program virtually was certain to be ratified.

Reluctant stand (Britain's stand was reiterated last night in London by Sir Stafford Cripps, who headed an unsuccessful mission to India last spring) was declared in a newspaper statement, intended to "preserve law and order" in India after the war, then give the Indian people an opportunity to attain self-government.

(Britain, he said, was determined as the Indians themselves to accept the vast sub-continent self-governing but asked them to be patient "not because we want to delay but because the hard facts make a complete change impossible at the moment.")

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, former president of the congress party, took the stump himself last night to expound "quite frankly" the resolution and to denounce again the British government's disclosure of material seized in a police raid on congress headquarters at Allahabad.

Support for All-India (An audience of 200 seated on a grass park in the cotton mill section of Bombay applauded when he said he wanted the people's support for the United Nations. He stressed again, however, that "the British should be asked to withdraw." He added this did not mean that allied armies should leave India.)

The new draft of the working committee proposed to the United Nations to limit India's call so that she can secure success to the United Nations by throwing all her great resources into the struggle for freedom.

In preparation for the 10,000 ticket-holders expected at tomorrow's meeting, a huge canvas enclosure already has been erected. There is a platform, complete with speakers, and others will address the audience.

The convention also will discuss what like a Orange picnic scene in America. Soda water, popcorn, nut and other refreshments are being hawked to curious visitors.

As Navy Recruiting Cruiser Stopped Here

The navy took the spotlight in Twin Falls yesterday as the recruiting "cruiser" drew plenty of attention downtown and at the city band concert. The cruiser, which is placed in charge of each state for one month, came into Idaho from Oregon. It was at Burley today and will be in Rupert, Friday. Above, left to right, Chief Ensign Mate C. E. Martin; Chief Petty Officer C. A. Edmonson, head navy recruiter in Twin Falls; Chief Machinist Mate J. P. ARNOLD TO FIGHT UNION, PETRILLO

CHICAGO, Aug. 6 (AP)—Thurman Arnold, assistant U. S. attorney general in charge of the anti-trust division, will come here to prosecute the government injunction suits against James C. Petrillo and his American Federation of Labor. Daniel Britt, special assistant to the attorney general, announced today. Britt obtained from Federal Judge Michael Igoe an extension until Sept. 16 of the order for defendants in the suit to show cause why a temporary injunction should not issue. Britt explained the extension would permit Arnold to handle the case. The Justice department seeks to restrain Petrillo, the AFM and its executive board members from preventing AFM members from manufacturing phonograph records and transcriptions for commercial use.

DOUBLE

COLUMBUS, Neb., Aug. 6 (AP)—Sam Kavich, scrap dealer, had to pay twice for this junk. About 22 years ago the Columbus Light, Heat and Power company sold two old engines to Kavich, who stripped them of removable parts and buried the remaining heavy pieces which he couldn't handle. Scrap hunters, however, recently dug up the heavy pieces and sold them to Kavich again.

STATE LEADERS WATCHING INDIA

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—The state department watched closely today the ominous turn of events in India, where a campaign of mass civil disobedience threatens unless nationalistic demands for immediate independence are granted. Officials avoided comment, either on the all-India congress working committee's resolution plunging India's whole-hearted cooperation with the United Nations if independence is granted, or on the British government's charge that most members of the committee as well as Mahatma K. Gandhi himself were appeasers to Japan. Some Washington observers speculated on the possibility that Secretary of State Hull or President Roosevelt might address an eleven-hour appeal to Gandhi and his colleagues not to venture on any course likely to "render more attention to the possibility that the United States will be only a bystander to the preservation of human freedom."

HELPERS

SEATTLE, Aug. 6 (AP)—Ward van Voris, 11, and his brother Milo, 9, learned Uncle Sam needed money to beat the tax. They sold Pat, their Shetland pony for 2 1/2 years, for $110 and bought war bonds. The world's annual paper production is about 8,000,000 tons in normal times.

CONFUSION SEEN U. S. WAR THREAT

(From Page One) "Probably because they are closer to the scene of governmental activity, the people of the east are becoming suspicious and resentful. They have been fooled so many times on so-called shortage scares that they are now inclined to believe none of such warnings, even if they are shortages actually exist."

"After going from one office to another, trying to determine what commodities the country needs to equip its armed forces, one gets the impression that it's a game of hide-and-seek. It seems like the departments are more concerned with politics and jealousies between various bureaus than in our primary objective of winning the war. Lack of cooperation among the various war time agencies is apparent everywhere you go."

Loobies Slow Program "With time the executive and every hour of production seriously needed to prepare ourselves for the slow-down which we must surely face, the whole program is slowed down by many jobless fighting for their own selfish purposes. Bureaucrats likewise, continue their petty quibbling instead of getting down to the hard realities of war and the combined result is a deplorable state of confusion. "Unless the American people make up their minds to put an end to this orgy of political horseplay, extravagance, selfishness and inefficiency there is grave danger that our democracy will be undermined within, to say nothing of winning the war."

High Reaction in East Although you hear criticism of government among people in the intermountain west, Self-sold high praise for the company has been given by Gen. John Thomas and Gen. Henry C. Dewart, to Washington. The company has now secured a small contract as a "starter."

"Without their help it is doubtful if we would ever have received within, to say nothing of winning the war."

New Pattern Seen For Distribution Of Idaho's Spuds

BOISE, Aug. 6 (AP)—Changes in location of Idaho advertising commission jobbing distribution centers are under consideration by the commission. Secretary L. E. Sargent reported. He said that in the past "many small and medium sized communities throughout the country have depended entirely upon trucks for their supplies."

"Carlot shipments to jobbing centers were broken up into many smaller lots and trucked within a radius of several hundred miles. Tire and truck rationing has changed all this and we are watching developments carefully so that the Idaho potato and onion market will not suffer."

GRAZERS STUDY FORAGE PROBLEM

BOISE, Aug. 6 (AP)—The problem of providing forage on spring and fall ranges for increased livestock production was discussed at a two-day meeting of regional and district federal grazing service officials, led by P. Newman, acting regional grazer, reported. "The service's program, he said, "involves the maximum production of forage on areas which are now accessible to grazing and the reconstruction of small range improvements which will not require the use of outside materials but will open up new areas which have not been utilized in the past because of the lack of water."

Forestry 4-H Unit On Mountain Tour

BOISE, Aug. 6 (AP)—The Greenwood Forest 4-H club will take a tour into the Soldier mountains with the county extension agent to collect specimens of the native trees and to learn to identify these trees and their use. Ten girls made the tour, including the club leader, Miss Nadine Seal. Mrs. Ed Seal attended the tour and furnished part of the transportation. The girls camped over night at Big Smoky creek.

GERMANS CLAIM MORE ADVANCES

BERLIN, Aug. 6.—(German broadcast recorded by UP in New York)—German and other axis troops have stormed and captured Tikhoretsk, junction of the Moscow-Caucasus and Shalinsk-Caucasus railroads, a high command communique said today.

It was asserted that the railroad northwest of the town had been reached on a wide front, and that mechanized formations continued an advance to the south.

Candidate Assails Union Racketeers

BOISE, Aug. 6.—The activities of "union racketeers" in "boosting union wages beyond reason" were assailed by Idaho state Senator John C. Sabin, of Hagerman, candidate for the Republican U. S. senatorial nomination, in an interview here.

"I believe in labor unions and their legitimate activities," he said, "but these racketeers are boosting the wages of the workers to make possible high union fees and dues. The activities of this pressure group are hindering the war effort."

SAFeway Homemakers' Guide

NUMBER 55 ★ How to have more fun during vacation ★ A list of fine foods, low-priced every day ★ What one girl learned about easy shopping

How to keep cooking from spoiling your vacation		★ BEVERAGES ★		★ SALAD DRESSINGS ★		★ CANNED VEGETABLES ★
Like most of us, you are probably staying close to home for your vacation this year—which means that household duties may go on as usual, vacation or no vacation. But with a little planning, you'll be amazed at how much more time there is for leisure. And you'll find vacations at home can really be lots of fun. Below, the Safeway Homemakers' Bureau has suggested several time-saving ideas. See if you don't think they're good ones. Plan menus ahead of time. Allow plenty of variety, including a few foods you don't often buy; but choose things that cook quickly, or may be partially prepared in advance. Don't undertake elaborate, time-consuming cookery—unless that's your idea of fun! Plan shopping lists with menus. Streamline your shopping trips to a minimum. There's no point in spending your vacation traveling back and forth to the store. Buy the major part of your groceries early in the week. Then, in between times, you'll only need to buy the most perishable foods. Be leisurely. Shop early in the day when stores are less crowded—you are less rushed—and the selection is better. Be forehanded. Plan foods that can be prepared in advance. Most loaves, casseroles, molded salads, puddings and cookies are good examples. Be cool. Do your heavy cooking in the cool of the morning, or even the night before if possible. Be smart. Purposely plan meat leftovers every so often for easy second-day cooking. Roasts, fried chicken, baked ham, for instance. And here's a menu that shows you what we mean by advance preparation and tasty eating.		Airway Coffee Lb. 20c	Tea balls 4 oz. 37c	Miracle Whip Qt. 39c	Beans Britegate No. 2 can 14c	Unsweetened Grapefruit Juice 48 oz. can 22c	Duchess Salad Dressing Qt. 35c	Peas Gardenmade No. 2 can 11c

JAPANESE CLAIM 3 NEW ISLANDS

TOKYO, Aug. 4 (Japanese Broadcast Recorded by UP in New York)—An imperial headquarters communique said today that Japanese forces had occupied the Ika, Tanbura and Aro groups of islands and that they had brought their forces within 225 miles of Australia and 100 miles of northwestern New Guinea.

The communique said that the islands, which lie across the Torres sea from northern Australia, were occupied July 20.

Well informed sources commented on the communique that the operations almost put the finishing touches on Japanese control of the strategic points in and around the Netherlands East Indies area that the islands now occupied by naval forces, which had served as the last Allied bases in the area, had become completely extremely dangerous bases for Japanese operations.

This, informants said, Australia had been placed under Japanese naval domination and Japanese attacks had been directed against western Australia, and Townsville in eastern Australia, while submarine and aircraft bases were being built at Broken Bay and Newcastle.

"With supplies from England and the United States completely cut off, Australia has indeed become the orphan of the Pacific," it was said.

Giraffe Casualty in Fire

One of the 30 animal victims of a Cleveland Hurling Brothers circus fire last night was a giraffe. Five thousand persons watched the flaming catastrophe in helpless fascination as the valuable collection of wild and trained beasts burned.

Synthetic Rubber Plans Hit By Charges of "Conspiracy"

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—Charges of a "conspiracy" to control synthetic rubber production today occupied the attention of the senate patents committee, exploring the operations of international cartels which affect the nation's war effort.

The committee, suspending its public inquiry for a day, studied the assertion of C. R. Starnes, independent oil operator of Oklawaha, Fla., that representatives of the major oil companies, working "in close government and military aid" to the development of the synthetic rubber program.

Starnes declared yesterday that the "conspiracy" was being promoted by "certain international cartels and patent pools," and added that "strategists have included evidence intended to stop the production of any synthetic rubber member of their own patent pools."

"At present Idaho has few, but industries outside of mining and agriculture, but we think it can have more in the future," he declared. Polger met with members of the district office to discuss coordination of state and national operations.

BRITISH EMPIRE NOT BREAKING UP

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Special Writer
The world-making crisis developing over the Indian nationalist demand for absolute freedom from Britain gives added impetus to the following letter which I have received from Memphis, Tenn., regarding the stability of the British empire.

"Why do our military experts continue to write as though England will win the war beyond my understanding. England's true objective is to save the British empire as a whole. Unless England is successful in this purpose she cannot win the war.

"The long defeat of the British in the far east, climaxed by the fall of Singapore, will doubtless prove to be one of the most decisive campaigns in military history. Unquestionably it marks the beginning of the end of the British empire."

It is the British empire breaking up? As a matter of fact, the empire has been "breaking up" ever since the days of the British, for a couple of generations or more.

The British imperial conference of 1923 and the London conference of 1926 defined the relations of Great Britain and the dominions (Canada, the Commonwealth, New Zealand and the Union of South Africa) in this manner:

"An autonomous community within the British empire, equal in status to any other part of the empire in any respect of their domestic or external affairs, though united by a common allegiance to the crown, and associated as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations."

Or, in other words:

"That declaration means that the mother country agreed that these four great dominions were absolutely free and that they were equal in all respects with her. They are their own bosses, and there is no link whatever to prevent them from walking out of the British Commonwealth of Nations any time they see fit.

Besides these wholly independent states there are a number of other units: the population of the empire is estimated to be more than 400,000,000 and it covers approximately 14,000,000 square miles. Some of the colonies have legislatures and are administered by their own government; others which are inhabited by primitive peoples are administered by the crown.

The bond which holds together the already wholly independent parts of the British empire is slender but it is strong. It is the bond of blood, and the community of race and creed, and it is strong because it is the bond of the mother country to the support of the mother country in this new world war. What the future will bring forth we cannot foresee, but it may just as well be a strengthening as a weakening of the bond.

Chain Store Story Told to Rotarians

JEROME, Aug. 6.—An interesting revenue of the founding of the J. C. Penney company stores was told at the Rotary club luncheon meeting by William Grant, Jerome store manager.

Mr. Grant began by telling of the inception of the huge enterprise which was begun in Kemmerer, Wis., when Mr. Penney opened the first store in April, 1902. He and Mrs. Penney operated the small store which later grew until there were three stores three years after, in 1905. The Penney company now has stores in all 48 states of the union. Mr. Grant said, besides its two store warehouses in St. Louis and in New York.

Mr. Penney remained president of the concern which still bears his name until 1917, when E. C. Stern succeeded Mr. Penney at the helm of the company. Mr. Stern started his career with Mr. Penney in Kemmerer, in 1907.

The board of directors of the Penney firm comprise men who have served the company at least 25 years, Mr. Grant declared.

attention from some of the "Eden" projects with which our land is honeycombed at this time. The farmers have no money to pay for news stories by the big news agencies, and these stories go unheeded.

The Grangers should make every effort to attend Grange meetings and keep up interest in the organization, add new members and take an active part in the affairs of our nation, according to Mr. Taylor. (And you folks that are often wondering why the Grange doesn't do something about this or that, just ask yourselves why you do not help the Grange do something. Join the Grange and put your shoulder to the wheel instead of riding free. And please don't drag your feet.)

All Grange matters in the county attended the meeting and all P. O. messengers but two were present. State Secretary Hayward outlined the step that the local Grangers would have to take to complete the organization locally for the state session. Charles Taylor emphasized the need to take to complete the organization locally for the state session. Charles Taylor emphasized the need to take to complete the organization locally for the state session.

The meeting was in charge of Pomona Master Eric Jones, and talks were made by State Secretary Taylor, Committee Chairman Charles Taylor of Huxley, State Secretary Ferris of Jerome, and State Secretary Herman Burr Higgins, of the Upper Snake river valley. Mr. Taylor answered a question from a meeting in regard to a rumor that a State Grange station would not be held there until the summer. His explanation was ordered to be suspended for this year. Mr. Taylor stated that in his opinion the farmer has greater need to be organized and alert than at any period in the history of America.

Organized efforts are being put into the hands of the farmer, and the patriotism of the American farmer and to cast him the blame for the many ills which are afflicting him. An unbiased examination of the prices received by the farmer now and the country a year ago will prove to anyone that there is no foundation for such an accusation. The writer has made such a comparison on various occasions, but he who runs may read.

In the face of almost insurmountable obstacles, the American farmer has held his own during the war. This fall, that we and our allies may eat. Let our accusers meet our records and we will have many stories. The consensus of opinion among farm groups is that this campaign is for the purpose of withdrawing

SENATOR THOMAS WIN PREDICTED

BOISE, Aug. 6.—State Sen. W. Scott Hall of Malad, veteran Idaho legislator and Republican leader, said in an interview here he believes "there is no question about the re-nomination of Sen. John Thomas" in next Tuesday's Idaho Republican primary.

Senator Thomas is opposed for the nomination by Erastus Horne of Caldwell and State Sen. John C. Barnson of Hagerman.

"In the campaign against Senator Thomas," Hall asserted, "the word 'isolationist' is being used as a 'dirty' word. Senator Thomas is not an isolationist in the sense in which these attempts would make him appear."

"It is a lot to look back; it's quite another thing to look ahead. The isolationist policy was not involved in the war. He got everything he asked on the promise that the measures were designed to keep us out of the war. He failed.

"The group of so-called isolationists maintained a course they proposed would keep us out of war. Nobody wanted war and nobody will ever know what would have been the result had the views of the non-interventionist group prevailed."

4-H Stock Judge Tour Successful

JEROME, Aug. 6.—The four-H club livestock judging tour recently held in Jerome county was very successful, both from a standpoint of attendance and training gained by the boys and girls.

Forty members attended the tour conducted in the west end of the county, and fifteen in the east end. In the county, Dr. E. Warren, club agent, attended the tour, and gave instruction in judging various classes of livestock. Beef cattle were judged at the Virgil Lackey farm and at Tom Callahan's. Sheep and goats were judged at the C. Roy Havard farm, southeast of Jerome.

Investigating officer was a member of the Idaho state police of this area.

TURKEY HATCH IN AREA BELOW PAR

WENDELL, Aug. 6.—With fewer turkeys than the usual season, including the Wendell territory, than a year ago, prospects for a reverse price situation in the coming season this fall are good, said E. G. Commons, whose turkey hatchery and processing plant have made Wendell the poultry capital of Idaho.

With one shipment Tuesday and the final delivery next Saturday, the hatching season here will come to a close. Commons said. Tuesday the consignment went to Burley, nearest point to which shipment was made during the season, and Saturday will go to Idaho Falls.

Out of state consignments have been to Oregon, Utah and Wyoming.

Commons said the turkey crop this fall will be smaller than usual because of the cold, late spring out down the fertility of the eggs, and consequently size of the hatch. A larger turkey crop was asked by Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard, who urged poultrymen to produce 10 per cent more birds.

Whether the preceding plant here will be raised or not, Commons said, heated to proceed. Normally, with a small local crop operations would not be profitable. Commons said. On the other hand, heavy production in the upper Snake river area likely will offset the heavy loss here.

Result in birds here shipped to Wendell for processing.

"That the Wendell plant has proceeded as many as 60,000 birds, or 40 carloads, in a single season, Commons said, and employed up to 125 persons.

SERIAL STORY

BANNERS FLYING

BY MARY RAYMOND

CHRISTIE LOSES SOMETHING

CHAPTER IX

THREE things—Tommy's letters to the family, Sandra's letters, and the loss of Stephen's were the sparks that touched off the marital explosion.

Tommy's bitterness and his petty jealousy of Bart, smoldering always near the surface, were all too apparent in those brief notes home. He didn't see much of Sandra, he wrote. Girls always went for insignias and stripes, and it didn't matter whether they were worn by single or married men.

Girls were funny that way, Sandra had her criticisms, but she gave Bart credit for landing it. Mrs. Colton said irritably: "I think Tommy has a right to be angry. Why should Bart waste any time with this girl? Bart has a wife, and if it is a reflection on you, Christie, it is all this."

"All this?" Christie's tone was lachrymose. "I'm not sure what you mean. You know how Tommy is—he makes the biggest mountain out of the smallest hill. I happen to believe Bart loves me. Just because he is polite to Sandra, Tommy sees green."

"I suppose I'm not very modern," Mrs. Colton retorted. "But I don't believe in married men flirting around."

Christie bit back excited words. She was furious with her mother-in-law with Bart because she felt humiliated.

"I simply won't let anybody else trouble between us," she told herself. But her heart was heavy as she thought of Sandra, who was in a position to see Bart often, and who had no scruples about trespassing.

Christie planned more deeply in her work. The Red Cross, home defense, victory garden meetings, Jan told her she was running a race with her—she was sure she would be the skinny girl in the circus.

"And your eyes—they're not clearly filled with happiness, my dear sister," Jan said. "Wouldn't it be funny if you and I set down and had a truth game. It might help, but we can't. We're not made that way."

"The first World War, they always said 'est la guerre,'" Christie said slowly. "I guess it's all the war it is upsetting a lot of appetites."

"You and Bart certainly picked the wrong time to be married. All you really knew about him was that he was good-looking and could dance."

"Bitchulous!" Christie spoke impatiently. "I had been dating Bart three years."

"Oh, dating? The time you really find out about a man is when the kitchen stove smokes and the kitchen sink is stopped and very much like a little girl. Those little minor things, my dear."

"Oh, hush," Christie said. Maybe Bart was disappointed in her. Maybe marriage had proved dull and different from what he had expected. Maybe he would have been happier with some girl who was fun instead of a sober somebody who was taking the war seriously.

She was sitting in a little parlor across from the apartment the next Friday afternoon. Stephen found her there huddled under Jan's plain coat—looking dejected and very much like a little girl.

"I'm a pretty good detective," Stephen said, smiling. "It didn't take me a minute to know why

I got my job back. There I was—jobless, one day and the next day called back by Mrs. Wainwright. I told me someone in whom he had great confidence had confidence in me. This somebody that he was was too big and fine to listen to a lot of youthful and intolerant chatter. Funny that he, Christie, if I hadn't been so worried about Mother, I'd have wanted to stay first."

"Stephen!" "Yep. There's something I want to do. I appreciate what you did, anyway. I think you are absolutely the most wonderful girl in the world."

His words were soothing to the open wound that was Christie's hurt pride. Stephen was a dear. He thought everything she did was right—wonderful, Bart didn't. "There's a little blue goose on my shoulder," Christie said. "I can't seem to shake him off."

"That's bad," Stephen studied her sober face thoughtfully. "Too much work and too little sleep. And for Jill as well as Jack. Come on, I'll race you to that old hand pavilion. There's something better for shaking off a blue goose than a good gallop."

"All right," Christie got to her feet, laughing. Stephen quickened his pace and they were suddenly running close together. In the gathering dusk she failed to see the hole that seemed to open up suddenly in her path. She stumbled and would have fallen, but Stephen caught her, holding her close for a moment.

Christie could hear the pounding of his heart. She drew away, speaking breathlessly. "Thank, Stephen. I might have had a will."

"I couldn't bear for you to be hurt," he said in a low tone. Christie avoided his gaze, and they walked on stowily. She was troubled. She must be more casual in the future. Stephen had sounded—oh, well, romantic was the word.

TOMMY came home the following week-end. He looked around Christie's small living room with critical eyes. "How does Bart like it?"

"He's the first World War, they always said 'est la guerre,'" Christie said slowly. "I guess it's all the war it is upsetting a lot of appetites."

"You and Bart certainly picked the wrong time to be married. All you really knew about him was that he was good-looking and could dance."

"Bitchulous!" Christie spoke impatiently. "I had been dating Bart three years."

"Oh, dating? The time you really find out about a man is when the kitchen stove smokes and the kitchen sink is stopped and very much like a little girl. Those little minor things, my dear."

"Oh, hush," Christie said. Maybe Bart was disappointed in her. Maybe marriage had proved dull and different from what he had expected. Maybe he would have been happier with some girl who was fun instead of a sober somebody who was taking the war seriously.

She was sitting in a little parlor across from the apartment the next Friday afternoon. Stephen found her there huddled under Jan's plain coat—looking dejected and very much like a little girl.

"I'm a pretty good detective," Stephen said, smiling. "It didn't take me a minute to know why

"Oh, fine," Christie answered, without animation. "Don't get me wrong, not bad—but it suits you too, I guess it does. I thought I was coming in with Bart last Friday, but I didn't stand in with the Powers—that is, so I didn't get leave."

"But Bart didn't come home last week-end," Tommy looked astonished. Then he laughed. "Don't hand me that count! It was Friday, the 5th. Remember now, Bart and Sandra were driving off and I reminded them what day it was. Bart said it was lucky for him no matter what numerals were latched on the day, and Sandra said she took her luck where she found it. Remember now? Did you have any bad luck?"

"Yes, I remember," Christie said in a low tone. "Yes, I had some bad luck."

"What, for instance?" "I lost something," Christie's voice choked. "She was fighting to be calm, to hold her head high until Tommy was gone. No use to let him know that he had pulled her world down for her in the last few moments."

"You are looking pretty low, Christie. Bart is, too. When I told him so, he threatened to pitch me out. He's a sorehead lately if you saw one. Have you had a row?"

"No," Christie whispered, weeping don't talk, Tommy. I can't bear any more."

She closed the door after him. She walked out, emptying the wash tray, moving an ornament on the mantel, stirring the fire. He had come home that day, but he had not come near her. He had been with Sandra. She could see them together. Sandra looking up at Bart, her dark hair like a cloud about her small face, her red poppy mouth lifted, her big dark eyes laughing at Bart.

"I didn't take her long," Christie thought, wildly. "I'll write him," she decided desperately. "I'll tell him I've found out who someone else. He'll know what I mean. I'll offer him my freedom, and I'll say I want mine."
