RUSSIANS SLOW SOUTHERN DRIVE TO OIL REGIONS

By ROGER D. GREENE Associated Press War Editor Adolf Hitler's blood-for-oil drive into the Caucasus was slowed in two key sectors today, Russian troops held the red armies back off repeated mass tank assaults and mopped up fresh swarms of Nazi paratroopers and plane-transported troops behind the Soviet lines.

An entirely different version came from German field headquarters, which declared that Gen. Fedor von Bock's armies had captured three strategic towns and advanced to a depth of 160 miles on the road to the Caucasus oil treasures.

REPRESENTATIVES DISCUSS FUTURE

By E. C. DANIEL
LONDON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Representatives of major United Nations were reported assembling in Moscow today for a "save Russia and win the war" conference, the urgency of which was accentuated by the increasingly desperate plight of the southern Soviet armies.

The information came from sources whose identity could not be disclosed. The British maintaining silence on the movements of their own leaders except for their ambassador to Russia, Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, who has gone from Kuzbass to Moscow along with the United States ambassador, Lord William H. Standley.

As reports streamed into London from both east and west, it became known that the grand strategy talks of the utmost importance in the following week, Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard coupled these black faced bastards with the C. G. I.

Allied diplomats reported gathering in Russia.

"Germans spread up all field drive. In the same edition Cartoonist David Low pictured the hope and despair of the movement of a cartoon showing Premier Joseph Stalin, President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek side by side in a truck with four steering wheels.

The truck was labeled "Cooperation of strategy" and the caption said: "Now supposing we all try to go in the same direction."

For the past week the axis radio have been circulating "unconfirmed rumors" that Prime Minister Churchill was in Moscow along with William C. Bullitt, a special envoy of President Roosevelt.

REDS BEAT OFF GERMAN DRIVES

ture of Arnaviv, on the Baku rail line, 160 miles south of Moscow; the capture of the German tank and southwest of Moscow, and Tsimshavskaya, 130 miles southwest of Moscow.

Capture of Arnaviv would represent a 50-mile advance from Kropotkin, the southernmost point reached by the Germans previously in their drive down the Rostov-Baku railway.

By contrast with the Nazi claims, a bulletin from red army headquarters gave the picture of the situation as follows:

Kotelnikovsky sector, 50 miles north of Stalingrad—"Our Germans are sending in large numbers of tanks in attempts to smash our defenses. Our troops have repulsed these attacks."

Kharkov sector, 60 miles south of Rostov—"The Germans launched repeated attacks against our positions, but were repulsed with heavy losses."

Lucny Fronted Back
Kistlayev sector, 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad—"Our troops launched a number of counter-attacks and pressed the enemy back, destroying nine German tanks and killing about 800 enemy officers and men."

The lone setback conceded by the Russians was in the Belaya Glinia sector, where the Germans, who had red army troops withdrew at several points yesterday.

Front-line dispatches said that the main battles were raging far north of the sector reported by the Germans. High explosives and machine-guns of the invaders were paying a bloody toll in their latest exploitation of the front.

Nine of 10 big Junkers transporta which landed in one area, were reported set afire yesterday and the sky troops accounted for to the last man. Front-line dispatches said that the invaders were being exterminated or rounded up almost as fast as they landed.

While the German drive toward Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's defenses was hardening, the German attack on the Rostov-Baku railway, 230 miles south of Moscow, was reported a third of the distance to the great Baku oil fields in the far southeastern caucuses.

Artillery Duels
Artillery dueling continued in the Rostov sector of the Leningrad front where the Germans were reported dueling from a small independent place in a surprise Soviet attack.

In the western air war, a strong German force of bombers pounded the big Ruhr valley industrial center of Duisburg and had airbombs in the low countries, while German raiders, DNB said, attacked the English and Scottish university cities of Edinburgh and Glasgow.

An English coastal resort, crowded with vacationers, also was attacked by low-flying German planes which sprayed the streets with machinegun fire, wounding several people.

The RAF's foray against Duisburg, the site of many important war factories, was to bring straight night assault upon the Ruhr, and a London spokesman said it would have been reported "a whopper" in the days before Britain started her 1000-plane attacks to scourge the Ruhr city.

Blind Bombs Dropped
Allied heavy bombers attacked Duisburg docks at the night supply base of Tubruk yesterday but otherwise there was little air action over the Rostov-Baku railway front, British headquarters reported.

RAF operations over the enemy lines were on a reduced scale, a communiqué said, while ground forces engaged in patrol clashes and minor artillery exchanges.

German submarines, continuing their assault upon allied overseas lines of communication, were credited officially in Berlin with sinking 15 more merchant ships totaling 100,000 tons, a destroyer and a patrol vessel.

Urges Further Reduction
John D. Hooper, speaking for the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, urged that a further reduction of $100,000,000 in new expenditures be linked with passage of the bill.

Calling the 90 per cent corporation excess profits tax the bill "absolutely ridiculous" he said the members of the Brooklyn chamber believed some provision ought to be made to delay the payment of taxes on "book assets" until they would be expended if an actual gain of that amount was made.

He urged the committee to impose a wartime retail sales tax, estimating that a Detroit cent levy would raise $2,500,000,000.

Senator Vandenberg told the committee that the Detroit Edison Co. had informed him a shortage of office machines would make it physically impossible to comply with the withholding tax provisions of the bill.

The bill provides for collection at the source of a portion of the tax on wages, dividends and bond interest. The rate would be 3 per cent until 1944 and 10 per cent after Jan. 1, 1944. Credits would be given against income tax due for the year.

Velvety Texture? No! We're Making Bread, Not Drapes

Please, please! Don't ask us to bake BUTTER-KRUST Bread so it will have a so-called "velvety texture." We're definitely convinced—and the widespread preference for BUTTER-KRUST proves it—that a slice of high quality bread should not look and feel like a section of a Dutch bun, or a cake of white laundry soap. We insist that good bread should be sufficiently porous to permit of its being spread with butter. Any suggestions that could possibly make BUTTER-KRUST a better product are welcome. But "velvety texture"? Not! We're making bread, not drapes.

LEADERS WILL SEND PLEAS TO U. S., CHINA, RUSSIA

GANDHI EXPLAINS ACTION REASONS

By F. D. SHARMA

BOISE, Aug. 7 (AP)—Nationalist leaders decided today to send President Roosevelt, China and Russia copies of their resolution calling for a civil disobedience campaign, with a letter explaining the reasons for their action. It was announced today.

Well informed sources reported that the nationalists had decided to send the Indian problem "before it is too late" before they precipitate a civil disobedience campaign.

Maulana Azad, president of the working committee of the executive of the nationalist All-India congress, was directed to cable the resolution and accompanying letter to President Roosevelt, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of China and Tzsu Hsiang-shan, Russian ambassador at London.

Quarters close to the nationalists meeting with special agents of the FBI, who were sent to Twin Falls to investigate the nationalist civil disobedience campaign as the alternative to immediate independence.

Disobedience Resolution

Atad opened today a committee meeting with the nationalists and planned to follow him. Then it was proposed to take up the resolution calling for civil disobedience.

It was understood that two powerful Indian leaders were pleading with the nationalists not to join in by starting a mass disobedience campaign now but to postpone their independence fight until after the war.

C. R. Rajagopalachari, leader of the Madras area and former member of the working committee of executive of the All-India congress, now meeting here, has sent letters to Gandhi and Atad urging postponement of the campaign. It was understood.

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, Liberal leader, was reported to be planning a visit to Boise to plead personally with the committee not to start the disobedience campaign now.

May Be Appeased

There were instructions that the committee, despite its statements to the contrary, might be appeased by a new British appeal for war cooperation if it were coupled with the firm guarantee by the United Nations of post-war independence and the setting up of an all-party Indian government which would have a decisive voice in shaping Indian defense policy.

Gandhi at a press conference last night, as he prepared to take the active lead in a disobedience campaign, said that his prospective appeal to the victors, the marquis of Linlithgow, to give India its independence within a week, would not be an ultimatum.

He said it would be an "earnest plea to avoid conflict," and that if there was a favorable response, the nationalist might be satisfied. But he added, when he was asked if he had abandoned his proposal to negotiate with the sponsors of India, given its independence, he said:

"I can give no assurance that we will not deal with Japan."

STEPHAN AWAITS GALLOW'S DEATH

DETROIT, Aug. 7 (AP)—Max Stephan began today in closely guarded confinement the 82 days of life that remain before he must go to the gallows for treason to America in time of war.

Guards of the federal prison at Joliet, Ill., near Chicago, which was brought yesterday to hear his death sentence, resumed their 24-hour watch over the man for whom time is running out because a court of his adopted government found him guilty of treason.

"I'll bet all the tea in China I won't hang," Deputy John W. Ingram snarled yesterday.

Thus the 50-year-old German-born tavern keeper, a naturalized American, returned to the gallows which has been his since he broke into the United States in April for having aided a fleeing Nazi spy for whom the FBI is seeking a guilty of treason.

Judge Arthur J. Tuttle, in pronouncing the historic sentence, declared that Stephan's "entire interest" was to help the German cause when he provided food, drink, lodging and transportation for the Canadian concentration camp. He was recruited in Texas.

An appeal from the death sentence is permissible.

Stephan was the first treason conviction in a federal court since the "whisky rebellion" in 1874, when western Pennsylvania insurgents fought federally imposed liquor taxes.

At the present time there are 125 shelter children between the ages of six and 15 years receiving hot lunches daily. The nursery school is now filled to capacity.

There is that employe, paid out of government funds, who acts as though he were a hired hand, waiting to perform the job he is paid to do. There is a pickle puss in the defense road, in a little white apron that everybody would like to see ousted. Her petty criticisms and long face are enough to rob the work of all joy for any who pay attention to what she has to say.

BANNERS FLYING

BY MARY RAMOND

JAN RUNS AWAY
CHAPTER X
Days that followed were to be remembered as part of a life that had come to a halt. Bart's answer to her letter had come: "It's up to you." Jan had found by her face and sound Christine with her face drawn by weeping. "Hey! What's up? Almost burned? Cake tumbled?"
"Hart and I are breaking up," Christine said in a smothered voice. "You are crazy. You couldn't mean it," Jan said in a low, tense tone.
Christie lifted her tear-drenched eyes, meeting Jan's searching gaze. "It's fantastic, Jan. But it's true." "How awful. What did you tell Bart?"
"I told him I had found out there was someone else." "You're sure, Christine?" Jan's face was white.
"Yes, I'm sure." Christine was thinking of Sandra and of four cold, unemotional words.
"I suppose I ought to say I hope you'll be happy—Jan's voice choked.
"But I don't wish you happiness, Christine. I hope you'll be miserable."
The door had slammed behind her.
"How terrible of her to say that," Christine whispered, brokenly. She had known that Jan was fond of Bart, but to defend him with such fierce bitterness—she would never understand it. "She didn't even ask why," Christine thought.
She felt faint. Several times lately, this curious distance had come over her. Maybe she should see a doctor and get a tonic. Only yesterday one of her co-workers had said, "I'm afraid you are working too hard. We all want to, but there's a limit to strength. Won't you drop by your doctor?" Christine had laughed off the idea then, but now—
"I wish I will," Christine thought dully. "I'll see you tomorrow."
The physician watched Christine walk out of his office. He was frowning when his assistant entered the room.
"Recall her?"
"Yes, of course. She was one of the Colton twins."
"The right. Plenty of money her folks have. Everything will be smoothed out for her. And imagine this—she's afraid to have a baby! When I told her, you would have thought the world had come to an end. Tears rolling down her cheeks, hands trembling."
"Poor little thing," Miss Barlow's voice was soft with pity. "It's the war."
"Nonsense! There have been wars since the beginning of time. And women have gone right along raising families."
While this conversation was taking place, Christine was driving along the streets, going through the motions mechanically.
News that would have made her so happy only a short while before had plunged her into utter despair. She could never tell Bart that the real woman would want to hold a man who didn't love her. She must keep it from him, let him go to Sandra. She could not tell Jan, who had looked at her this afternoon with such bleak, bitter eyes. Nor her mother—who would be sure to twist this as a means of reconciliation.
She let herself into her apartment, where the telephone was jangling shrilly. Her mother's angry voice answered from the other end. "Christie, when have you been? I've called and called. I've been desperate! Jan's run away!"

"Jan," Christie cried. "Why should Jan run away?"
"How should I know? I never have understood Jan. And now she goes off and leaves this funny note about me. Your father's out of town—oh, Christie do something."
"I'm coming, Mother."
Helen father out of town. Tommy in camp—and Bart beyond her call. There was Stephen!
She went downstairs and knocked on the Marston's door. Stephen's mother, a bright-eyed little woman with crisp hair, welcomed her. "It's Christie, isn't it?"
"Yes," Christie smiled. "Stephen here, Mrs. Marston? I remembered this was his day off, and I wanted to see him."
"Don't you hear him singing in his bath? He always does that when he's happy. I wanted to thank you for what you did about his job. But he's giving it up, after all. He's going to enlist."
"He's?" Christie exclaimed.
"Yes. You see he wanted to long ago, but he couldn't because of me. I was pretty sure that was how it was, and so when I heard about a position open for a teacher of languages, I applied. And I got it!"
Christie met her beaming eyes. "I think you're both grand."
"We're just average Americans," Mrs. Marston said. "It's terrible about the explosion at the aircraft plant!"
"I didn't hear," Christie replied. "I was away from home all morning."
"It happened a short while ago. Lots of the workers were injured, they say. Here's Stephen. He must have heard your voice. Now, my dear, if you'll excuse me, I'll run back to my baking."
"Stephen," Christie began. "I came because you're the only one I could turn to. We're in trouble. Jan has run away."
"Run away? Why?"
"I'm not sure—"

Christie broke off, suddenly. In a flash of understanding, she was sure. Jan had run away because she believed Christine had meant Stephen when she told her there was "someone else." Jan always had fancied Stephen, incidentally connected with him. And Jan had rushed off before she could tell her about Sandra.

"STEPHEN," Christie asked, impulsively, "are you in love with anyone?"
"You don't know how much," Stephen answered softly. "I didn't know how much either until just now, though I began to suspect it that day in the park. I carried a torch for you for a long time—you were so gallant and kind. But all the time, Jan's funny little face with those woe-begone eyes kept bobbing up."
"And then that day in the park, I realized it was Jan. You had on her coat, and you looked so forlorn and unhappy. When you stumbled and I put my arms around you, I knew, Christie. I had almost got my head, because you looked like Jan."
"I'm glad," Christie smiled at him. "Because you see, Stephen, Jan loves you, too. She couldn't stand by because she thought you were still carrying that torch—"

"I'll find her," Stephen said confidently. "She won't have any doubts, when I do."
They drove to the Colton home and found Mrs. Colton in tears.
"Mrs. Colton held out Jan's pathetic little scroll."
"I seem to have been following a lot of wrong roads," Jan had written. "Now I'm starting on a new one. I have a job. It's in the welding department. What I do isn't much, but I feel I'm doing a little something for the country, and they say girls are good at this job."
"In the welding department?" Stephen's voice was hoarse.
"Christie's eyes flew to his, searching them for reassurance. "I'm off to find Jan," Stephen said, adding grimly, "I've got to."

SOME 1941 TAXES UP, OTHERS DOWN

BOISE, Aug. 7 (AP)—County, school districts and municipal governments levied higher taxes on Idaho property owners during 1941 than in the previous year, while state taxes assessed lower levels, Earl W. Murphy, secretary of the Idaho State Board of Finance, reported today.

In a survey on taxation trends compiled for E. S. Eby of Lewiston, state chamber president, Murphy pointed out a net increase in Idaho real estate taxes of two-tenths of one per cent over the 1940 figure. When compared with 1929 tax figures this was a decrease of 23.3 per cent, he said.

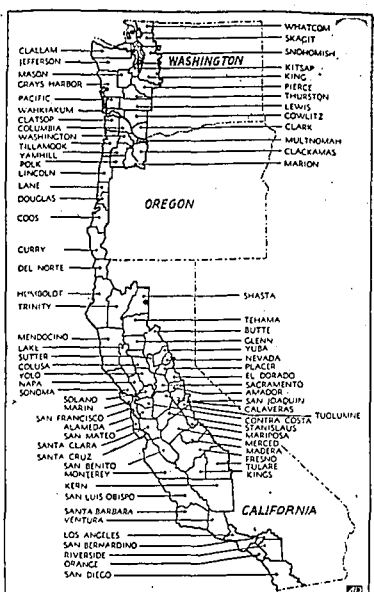

"Ad valorem taxes levied by state and local government in 1941 totaled $17,028,880 as compared with $17,223 in 1929. Assessed valuations in Idaho property have fallen sharply in the 12 year period, amounting to a total of $394,255,430. Total compared with $480,949,054 in 1929, a drop of 19 per cent.

"Thirty-three counties in the state showed increases over 1940 in property valuations while the following 10 showed decreases: Blaine, Bear Lake, Borealis, Elgin, Bonner, Boundary, Caribou, Clearwater, Coeur d'Alene, Ojewa and Valley. Largest decrease was in Caribou with a 24 per cent decline and largest increase was in Custer county with a 103 per cent boost.

"Of the total ad valorem tax levy in 1941 by all branches of state and local units, 44.24 per cent of the total was levied for school purposes. District school levies of $5,709,851 make up the largest single item of all state and local taxes in Idaho.

"Tax delinquencies have been reduced during the past year. A reduction in warrants and other non-payable reflects a better financial condition of Idaho counties. However, cash on hand and investments showed an increase of only $335,001 over 1940."

Coast Will Be Dimmed

CONFESSION ON BLAZE DOUBTED

CLEVELAND, Aug. 7 (AP)—Detective Frank W. Story returned from Pittsburgh today with a suspect in the $200,000 Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey fire, but expressed the opinion that the 16-year-old boy had nothing to do with the conflagration.

District Attorney Russell H. Adams at Pittsburgh reported Lemmas Ford admitted he and a companion started the Tuesday fire which brought death to 42 non-performing animals in the circus.

But Story said Ford was vague when questioned about the management tent and the animals in it, and was trapped into making a number of disconnected statements.

Circus officials, however, said their records showed Ford was discharged from "the greatest show on earth" shortly before the fire.

Adams said Ford related that he and a 29-year-old Pittsburgh companion named Jess, whose police are seeking, started the fire with lighted cigarettes "to get even with the circus."

PRISONERS URGED FOR IDAHO

ENGLEWOOD, Colo., Aug. 7 (AP)—Bess kept Englewood firemen at their station for two and a half hours yesterday until Honeywell came to the rescue.

The bees, thousands of them, established residence on the Denver suburb's firehouse doors. City Treasurer A. B. Honeywell, an amateur apiarist, finally corralled them in a portable hive, using a smoke pot, brush and mask.

There were no fires during the firemen's enforced captivity.

GROUP-RIDING IS URGED FOR IDAHO

BOISE, Aug. 7 (AP)—The Idaho traffic advisory committee today urged citizens of the state to increase group riding as a means of conserving tires and gasoline.

"Need for sharing use of automobiles was emphasized in a bulletin issued by the group.

"But if the plan is to succeed, other members of the family must not needlessly ride in a workman's car when he has left it home to save his tires by group riding," the bulletin said.

Share-the-ride exchanges will be established by war transportation committees throughout the state, the announcement said. The local exchanges will provide information to automobile owners such as salesman, shoppers, vacationists as to persons wishing rides or wanting to share rides and expenses.

SOLON'S ASK FOR RUBBER RESULTS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Farm state senators declared today they were for results, not methods, and waited for action from President Roosevelt's new rubber committee before deciding whether to try to override his veto of their agricultural rubber bill.

Senators Gillette, D. Ia., and Thomas, D. Okla., who were among the principal backers of the measure to set up a separate government agency to spur production of domestic farm products, agreed that the President's consultants might recommend action which would make legislation unnecessary.

"Matters in flux"

Nevertheless, Thomas summed up the rubber situation this way:

"Matters are still in flux, and nothing is being done to clarify the flux."

In announcing the appointment of Bernard M. Baruch, Dr. James B. Conant and Dr. Karl T. Compton to his new committee, Mr. Roosevelt said the three would immediately proceed to study the present supply, the estimated military and essential civilian needs and the various processes now being urged, and make appropriate recommendations.

Gillette said he was "tremendously pleased" with the President's choice, but added the country would have been a great deal better off if the committee had been named six weeks ago.

No Action Now

Thomas and Gillette said that a majority of the members of the agricultural committee, to which the veto was referred, were out of town and the action was expected before congress ended its semi-vacation in September.

Thomas said Thomas, "we might take up the veto, we might forget about it—we can't tell until the President's committee makes its report."

AILSHIE HITS AT VOTE LETHARGY

BOISE, Aug. 7 (AP)—Lack of interest in the Idaho primary election next Tuesday was decried by Robert Ailshie of Boise, candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general, in a press statement.

"This is understandable to a certain extent," he said, "because of the war, the labor shortage and the deep concern of the people over the future. It is, however, a most unfortunate situation."

He urged voters, regardless of party, to go to the polls Tuesday, reminding them it is the better way to protect freedom, liberty and democracy than by exercising our right to vote."

America is straining every nerve and sinew for Victory. The vast war on every continent and sea—the vast behind-the-lines job of preparation in this country—is being speeded by telephone. For time is of the essence. The war is on the wires.

When a call important to the war effort gets tied up in a telephone traffic jam, Victory is postponed.

We can't cure such tie-ups by new construction, for the materials most important for telephone equipment are critical war materials as well.

So may we ask your cooperation in the following:

- 1 Limit your long distance usage to necessary calls and be as brief as possible.
- 2 The careful use of local telephone facilities is almost as important as the judicious use of long distance service. Long telephone conversations not only tie up the two lines that are connected, but central office equipment that is common to many lines. Please use the service moderately. A long, unnecessary conversation may delay a call essential to the war effort.
