

Reds Battle Free on Volga River Banks

By HENRY GASSIDY

MOSCOW, Oct. 15 (AP)—The defenders of Stalingrad reported new positions under cover of early morning darkness today and with their backs to the broad Volga were reported making a new and stubborn stand against a desperate German effort to hack a path to the river and victory.

Two infantry divisions packed by 100 tanks and supported by 600 planes formed the spearhead with which the Germans hoped at last to split Stalingrad's defenses. The attackers already had penetrated dangerously into the Russian defenses on a one-mile-wide sector of the northern suburbs in this reveal of the offensive after days of stalemate and the army newspaper, Red Star, said that "the vile enemy aims to capture the city at any cost."

But the battle of Stalingrad, like the long struggle for Sevastopol in the Crimea, had already disrupted the Germans' offensive schedule.

Major Possession of a factory settlement was the immediate issue. Dispatches said the main thrust of the German offensive was to capture the city of Stalingrad, a one-mile-wide sector of the northern suburbs in this reveal of the offensive after days of stalemate and the army newspaper, Red Star, said that "the vile enemy aims to capture the city at any cost."

Hundreds were slain and more than three dozen of their tanks were knocked out of action in the repulse of seven attacks yesterday, the red army's high command declared. Stukas, level bombers and fighters backed up the German ground attack.

Sixteen German planes were brought down by Soviet fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns," it was announced. The information bureau said attacking Russian fighters forced their positions in local fighting against six tanking forces both north and south of the Volga river.

A red army detachment advanced toward the northwest of the city and occupied more advantageous lines, the communiqué said, adding: "The German offensive, which was based on a surprise attack, but was repulsed."

Artillery, batteries and patrols were active in local fighting. (Continued on Page 2, Column 2)

GAS RATION WILL FILL ALL NEEDS
WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP)—When national gasoline rationing goes into effect Nov. 23, people of the west will find that special attention has been given to accommodate the needs.

Henderson testified during hearings on the second supplemental appropriation bill scheduled for consideration by the senate Monday. Studies in the west had been made to explain to the rationing authorities the rationing system used in the west, which was elastic enough to accommodate the needs.

When McCarran expressed hope that states like Nevada, with sparse population and great mileage would be given "careful consideration," Henderson replied:

CONGRESS HOPES TO FINISH DRAFT BILL NEXT WEEK

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP)—The senate military committee recommended the drafting of a 19 and 25-year-old-draftsman bill after the house arranged for final action tomorrow on similar legislation.

By JAMES H. SHEPHERD
WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP)—For the first time since Pearl Harbor the average American today had a relatively clear picture of his draft prospects until the end of 1942. Testimony by high army officials before congressional committees on the bill to lower the draft age to 18 made this possible.

Congress is driving to place that bill on President Roosevelt's desk by the end of next week. The House military affairs committee unanimously approved the bill yesterday. The senate committee passed its hearings but questioned Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, in secret session this morning to ask him about plans for maintaining a civilian labor force necessary to meet war production schedules.

Sen. Robert Thomas D. Utah, ranking member of the military committee, said the bill probably would not reach the senate floor until next Thursday because the $100,000,000 naval appropriation bill receives priority Monday.

Under house rules a day's delay is necessary while a special rule for consideration of the bill is obtained. But the house has agreed to approve the measure finally tomorrow.

The bill to draft 18 and 19-year-olds moved quickly toward the White House, the selective service situation until the end of 1943 ahead of about this:

Youths of 18 and 19
Those who are attending high school are not attending college and are not already drafted to enlist in the army or navy or marine corps. (Continued on Page 2, Column 2)

WAVELL STUDIES DRIVE ON BURMA

NEW DELHI, India, Oct. 15 (AP)—Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander-in-chief of the Indian army, returned today from a reconnaissance of the northeast frontier under circumstances that suggest he is planning a bold move to take Burma.

A brief formal communiqué said: "His excellency the commander-in-chief of the Indian army, General Wavell, returned to New Delhi after a four-day inspection of forward positions on the northeast frontier." It added that Wavell was accompanied by a large staff.

A spokesman amplified this. "General Wavell's activities," he said, "have been of a nature to indicate that Wavell was suggesting that an attack upon Burma from the northeast is being considered." The information dovetailed with President Roosevelt's hint in his special message to Congress that he wanted to begin fighting in Burma.

It is one of the few land fronts where the allies can hit the axis directly and at the same time from the most accessible supply route to China.

Each truck operator must file a certificate of convenience for the office of defense transportation for every vehicle in his control. Other provisions of the bill include gasoline, tires or parts after Nov. 15.

The reason here yesterday was the bill to lower the draft age to 18. The senate committee passed its hearings but questioned Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, in secret session this morning to ask him about plans for maintaining a civilian labor force necessary to meet war production schedules.

Artillery on Island Shells Big Airfield

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP)—A large enemy force has landed on Guadalcanal with artillery, which is now shelling our positions, the navy announced today.

A communiqué also revealed that more Japanese ships were being poured into the Solomon Islands area. For the first time, U. S. mortar torpedoes were revealed to be in action and already they have scored one probable torpedo hit on a cruiser.

The communiqué gave no further details on the land attack now being made on our positions on Guadalcanal beyond saying:

"A large number of enemy troops with equipment have been landed on Guadalcanal and our positions are now being shelled by enemy artillery on the island."

Besides the various naval units already in the area, the navy said a large group of enemy ships was seen in the Buin-Pait area near Shortland Island, approximately 200 miles northwest of Guadalcanal.

JAP KISKA BASE SET ON FIRE BY ARMY BOMBERS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP)—An air attack on the Japanese camp at Kiska in the Aleutian Islands started three large fires and destroyed three enemy airplanes on the water, the navy reported today.

The raid was carried out Wednesday by Army bomber planes, accompanied by Navy fighters. The bombers dropped incendiary bombs on the enemy camp, the fighters strafed and destroyed the Japanese airplanes.

No enemy air opposition was encountered, but one of the army fighters was shot down.

Take Another Look
The Alaska defense command disclosed earlier that American troops had taken over another island in the Aleutian group, the island of Agassie, in a "routine operation."

One of the enemy's most important fighters, however, the Kiska bomber, was shot down by our fighters. The bomber was seen to be on fire as it fell.

Reports of the progress of the battle on Kiska are being received from the island. Local commanders probably are too busy to write detailed reports.

ALL-OUT PROGRAM FOR FOOD SOUGHT

DENVER, Oct. 18.—President Roosevelt and the members of his cabinet urged reclamation leaders to conserve, protect and fully utilize the land and water resources of the west which must produce vast quantities of food and power to help win the war.

Telegrams from the President, Secretary of Interior Ickes and Secretary of Agriculture Wickard were sent yesterday at the national reclamation association's convention.

CHEST CAN MEET BUDGET FOR 1943

Assurance that the Community Chest budget for 1943 will be met, and that the eight participating agencies will be able to function for another year, was given by O. P. Duval, drive chairman, in his report today to F. C. Shereff, president.

The drive today stood at approximately $100,000, and it was understood that only minor contributions were yet to come in.

"At this time it does not look likely that we will be short of the goal of $100,000," Duval's report said, "but the amount now secured will meet the budget and the participating agencies will be able to function another year. As I pointed out early in the drive, war chests have and will come first, and this, together with the closing of many of the war industries, the crippling of many others, the drop in the number of employees and their constant shifting, the mounting of living expenses and increased taxes are some of the contributing causes that must be overcome in putting over the drive this year."

Prima and individuals who did not contribute to the Chest were solicited to help the individual participating agencies during the next year, Duval said. Agencies will have access to the names of these firms and individuals.

In the drill last night the company made preparations for the federal inspection Tuesday night to be held either at Twin Falls high school gymnasium or the Legion hall. Another drill will be held Monday night at the Legion hall.

Squad of the company were assigned to various phases of military drill for the inspection, including first aid, guard work, extended order, civil disturbances, machine gun and hand grenade.

Engineers Start Airport Checkup

The Twin Falls air field, site of a projected $761,000 federally built airport, was visited by a party of engineers from Boise, it was said, but no details were available this afternoon.

Their names were not known by city officials.

Mayor Joe Koehler said at noon that the engineers were here but that he had not yet seen them.

The city today still awaited developments on the question of whether the airport would be built by the army and GAA together, or by the GAA alone. The city will furnish the land—about 600 acres more than it already owns—if the work is exclusively a GAA project.

"Oh, you started me, Norman. No, not today. I'm going to the hospital to see about Nancy Hale and Scooter."

"Love me any, yet?" he murmured, that intimately, close, straight into her violet eyes. Norman Dana, up to his old tricks again.

She didn't answer lest her anger show, but she grabbed her like and rode it violently the half mile to the hospital. Presently, she was sitting at Nancy Hale's side.

"You must not really have the young widow sad, after their greetings. 'You, the coach's daughter, losing so many fine boys. They've all been here with gifts. So sweet to me.'"

Blythe laughed. "I'm not the boss, Pop. But I love it all."

"Is it gay and—chummy? With a lot of laughter? A lot of fun? Tell me, Miss Miller!"

She said it so eagerly that Blythe was surprised. Eagerly, almost humbly, Blythe thought she understood.

"Please just call me Blythe, or Bly," she said, kindly. "Yes, it's lots of fun. Football season is anywhere. The flying field here has players from several of the biggest schools. State U. The Athletics. Rice. Tulane. Oh, a lot of them. Pop is so proud that the only game we've lost so far."

Blythe touched her hand. "Haven't you—had any fun, Nancy? You and little Scooter?"

"Are you still grieving?"

"No. The sting of this is gone. My husband is a memory now, chastened. But still it hurts. Scooter and I—Dy, we don't have any people. No place to go. No—nobody. Not even any money! Don't you understand?"

All at once she was, in tears and Blythe's heart went out to her. They talked a great while, more, woman fashion. The sun was low when Blythe took little Scooter from the nursery ward and rode him to her home in the bicycle basket. The tiny fellow

LOVELY, INTRUDER

CHAPTER III

PREMONITIONS to Miss Blythe Miller add herself, are all there, one just ignores them. "It's merely that I'm getting touchy on the subject of Duane Hogan," she spoke silently, even with a wry note of humor in the feel of it.

"His handsome, he's desirable, he's grand," another part of her warmed.

She gave sober thought to that, then mentally fought it away. Of course Nancy Hale liked Duane. It was only natural. Mrs. Hale was a well-to-do, smart, somewhat obviously, come to think of it, said Blythe to herself, Nancy's liking Duane so much and so instantly really just verifies my own high opinion of him. And anyway (Blythe laughed out loud) it isn't worth making any difference, because Duane is so girl-boy he'll never know she exists.

That comforting thought ended the odd little girl's style conversation; moreover, loud masculine voices broke into her reverie. The students were pouring into the gymnasium to dress for practice again. Here in her father's office she could hear most of what they said (and sometimes it wasn't meant for young ladies). She swung back to her typewriter, doing Pop's letters for him.

A football coach has a lot of correspondence, records and things, plus a lot of company and a lot of telephone calls. Even now Pop was snowed under at least the desk was. But recreational help was harder and harder to find these days and Blythe's own hunt-and-peck typing, and which in after a long day at school, made barely a dent in the work at hand.

In a quarter hour, though, she had to flee. The male animal came soon over the place in various visible forms. There would be the Monday post-mortem, here in Pop's office, about Saturday's 15-0 defeat. There would be a skull session about next Saturday's game. Much loud talk. Much slopping of books. Much crowding of steam and energy in the human engines who were odd smelly uniforms, shoulder pads and cleated shoes.

"Certainly this isn't the best place for a lady," Pop himself had told her. "Sweetie, you blow out the desk, you see. But recreational help was harder and harder to find these days and Blythe's own hunt-and-peck typing, and which in after a long day at school, made barely a dent in the work at hand."

She uttered a moment near the doorway frankly hoping for a glimpse and a smile from big Duane Hogan. Then she looked out and saw him boot a practice pass high and far. The beauty of it thrilled her.

"Going out to watch practice?" a voice asked at her elbow then.

"When Dad wants me out for this bad report card, I'm gonna remind him he's been wrong about every bit of war strategy he's snipped out!"

BRITISH DROPPED HUGE "BLOCK-BUSTERS" ON NAZI INDUSTRIES

COLOGNE BOMBED FOR 110TH TIME

LONDON, Oct. 16 (AP)—British's biggest bomb fell in crushing weight on Cologne last night from a raiding force of hundreds of great four-motored bombers.

The primary Rheinland-Germany "bombing" was the primary target of the assault, probably one of the largest against the Nazi homeland in its history.

Cologne apparently was the focus of the attack which, the German radio said, hit widely scattered targets.

The British reported tonight 18 fires in the night attack and the German-occupied British losses at 22.

Use "Block Busters"

"Block Busters"—the RAF's devastating two-ton bombs—were dropped on carefully selected targets in the whole area and some of the biggest were saved for Cologne. The RAF attacked for the 110th time and the first since a great area of 1,130 plants on the night of May 20.

The crews of four Canadian squadrons in the attack said that great fires were visible long distances from Cologne and that the glow from the burning city could be seen on the horizon flight with 20 miles of the Netherlands coast.

Defense Light

Defense fire was brightly light and a few searchlights were in action when the first arrivals reached their target. Late night raiders were seen to drop bombs and heavy ground fire and night fighter planes.

The RAF's attack tonight marked the seventh night operation against targets in Germany this month.

Great Britain had a quiet night except for a southeast coast town which was visited by two German raiders. Machine-guns and anti-aircraft guns caused some damage. British reports said, but there were no casualties.

Names in the News

By United Press

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific fleet commander in chief, made his inspection of the marine headquarters in Hawaii.

Irish-American newspaper, the United Press correspondent Francis McCarty revealed today. "The admiral made the trip to inspect the bombardier's seat of a battle plane—and was kept back from the cockpit by a German pilot. Nimitz said he was 'pleased to find the splendid spirit of cooperation that exists' between the various American forces."

A divorce suit filed by Martha Kemp Matrone against Victor Matrone, former film star now in the coast guard, has been dismissed at her request "for the duration, anyway."

The office of defense transportation has named special agent to Frederick B. Smith, famous iron lung patient, to travel from Chicago to Miami in a chartered railroad car, despite the ban on special charter trips.

Jean Benoit, film director and son of the French painter, has been awarded a divorce from Catherine Heusinger, French actress from whom he separated in 1931. He said his wife was extremely jealous and his treatment was corroborated by Mme. Gabrielle Stade, immortalized in numerous canvases of the elder Jean Benoit.

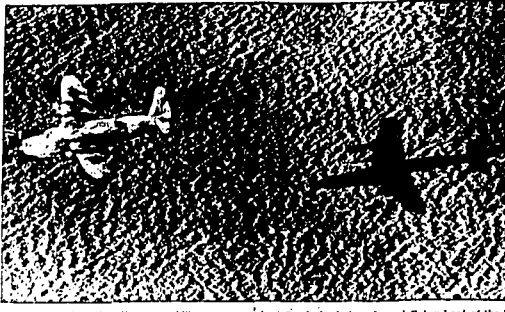

Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the war manpower commission told the American Hospital association war conference at St. Louis that recruiting of physicians for the armed forces is ahead of schedule and the needs of 1942 already are 90 per cent filled.

Leo Carillo's "daughter," 24-year-old Marie Antonette Kachonka, whom the actor brought up from infancy after the death of her parents in 1915, has asked for court permission to change her legal name to Carillo.

Dorothy Stawicki, just returned to Hollywood from a tour of army camps, said "jitterbugs will win the war."

The actress explained that the boys who used to spend weeks conditioning jumpships to do their "jitterbugging" in style are now the backbone of Uncle Sam's mechanized forces.

Vigorous Upton Close Bangs At Cherished Misconceptions

By NERVIN SHOEMAKER

Upton Close jerked a starry-eyed America down out of its pink cloud in a lecture at the high school auditorium last night, and pointed the way to a hard struggle for a doubtful goal in a kind of world which he hesitated to predict.

Close spoke to approximately 400 persons who attended the second of the Town Hall meetings.

For more than an hour he thumped the heads of the great, scattered broken bits of cherished misconceptions all over the auditorium floor, and showed time and again where the historians had been proved right and the politicians wrong.

"Readings" was the theme of Close's talk, and he said it was a quality of mind and character which were utterly lacking at the beginning of the war, and for a good many years before the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

"We had escapism in politics," he declared. "We were told that you could spend your day out of debt, that the more debt we had the richer we were, and that we could devalue our money without inflation. That was part of the bulging that made us unable to face the realities of war."

"We had escapism in foreign affairs," he declared. "We had the interventionist and the isolationist, and neither had their feet on the ground. Both were led by men who got on horses and galloped off in all directions at once."

Close demanded first that Americans revise their geographical concepts.

Fantastic Americans

"The average American's concept of world geography is about as fantastic as that of map-makers before the days of Columbus," he asserted. "We have failed to realize that we are a Pacific ocean nation. Too many people consider us a de luxe annex to the European hour, and full to see us as the vanguard nation fronting a rising Asia."

The speaker said the Chinese now say "let there be no more empires, and that should be an American ideal, that."

"While rule in Asia is over and done with," he said, "White rule will never go back to the sea. The new world is a new world. Make no mistake about that. It did not mention the Philippines in describing how the white race had 'lost face' by being driven out of the Japanese. The speaker said the new Asia would be dominated either by the Chinese or the Japs, depending on who wins the war."

Referring to the British-India problem, Close indicated his belief that the United States should be more of a positive factor in effecting a solution.

If the United States is going to talk the Atlantic charter and do nothing to avoid being pointed to as the biggest hypocrite in the world, he shouted, "that helps further the Japanese 'Asia for the Asians' propaganda."

Going into grand strategy of the United Nations, Close criticized government leaders because there has been no unified command created and commended Wendell Willkie's recent declaration of the same need. "We need a unified command,"

GOOD CITIES TO BE GHOST TOWNS

By United Press

Upton mining communities of the western states faced the prospect of becoming "ghost" towns today as hard rock and placer miners ceased digging for gold, the war's most useful metal, by order of the government.

Silent, grim-faced miners walked from the mile-deep Rose and Yates shafts at the Homestake mine, the world's largest gold mine, at Lead, S. D., last night. They had hoped for an order, countermanding the war manpower commission directive to close down all mines that use more than 100 men, the order of the war, closing down an entire industry to conserve labor.

The night shift crews broke out of the last new ore for the duration of the war. The mine veins beneath the little town which never had known depression because fabulous homestake had yielded more than $100,000,000 annually for many years.

Then the miners returned to their homes to worry about new jobs. Nearby Montana copper mines or elsewhere. The hard rock crews of S. D., Texas, Utah and others had no jobs today because the first operation of gold mining—breaking ore into small pieces—had stopped and only the "clean-down" and maintenance men took the ore down this morning. The jobs of the latter were good for 90 days or less, at the end of which only less-skilled crews will remain in the districts which began in 1918.

The same scenes occurred at Copper Creek, Fairplay, Ariz., and Victor, Colo., and in some gold camps and towns of northern California and Colorado.

The miners of Nevada, an estimated 20,000 miners, according to department of commerce figures, were released for work in copper, chrome and other non-ferrous metals mines where serious labor shortages have developed. Not all of these men will seek work in other communities, but the WPA hopes that at least 4,000 will do so.

TREASURY CHIEF IN BRITISH ISLES

LONDON, Oct. 16 (AP)—Henry Morgenthau, Jr., United States secretary of the treasury, was disclosed today to have arrived by plane in Britain yesterday, the first United States cabinet member to come here since the start of the war.

Morgenthau's arrival was unheralded and the purpose of his trip was unknown.

On his arrival, Morgenthau went to a London hotel and conferred with Ambassador John G. Winant. One possible point expected from conferences with British officials would be reciprocal trade agreements. The reverse part of the lend-lease plan, under which Britain is giving the United States war supplies in exchange for millions of dollars in bookkeeping exchange.

The visit also was in line with the evident Washington policy of giving high American officials firsthand familiarity with the allied war effort.

Navy Needs Chaplains

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP)—The American navy needs 400 more chaplains, the Rev. Henry K. Sherill, bishop of Massachusetts and chairman of the Episcopal church's war relief committee, said today.

"Council of the Church today,"

PLANES KEY TO PACIFIC VICTORY

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 16 (AP)—Air power is playing a leading role in the war in the Pacific—a statement amply supported by the recent action in the Coral Sea battle, at Midway and in the Solomon.

These directing American military operations agree that sky forces have been Japan's key to success, and that her chief failures have been recorded when she encountered superior American air power.

These leaders however, emphasize that air power is not the whole story—that aviation must have the support of other branches of the military to prove effective. The air arm, for instance, is only as strong as its supply service.

Clear Illustration

The current operations in the Solomon archipelago have taken the form of a clear illustration of the policy in question. American army and navy air forces there are receiving the acutest cooperation of all the services.

The fighting ships and transports of the navy, the marine, the army and the navy have taken the lead in construction and repair.

In these operations the most difficult problem is not the policy, a problem that will be met again and again in the scattered islands of the Pacific.

Need Land Forces

Holding what we already have and requiring the trained land forces for the thin jungles of the Solomon archipelago, the navy and army forces may mark for months, and mopping up is a slow process short distances between the islands. The most possible annex landings at night, such as the Japanese have carried out time and again on Guadalcanal.

Japan, having developed the mandated islands just south of the Solomons during the last 20 years, had the advantage in the battle of supply lines, for the Japanese had also bases from which to operate close at hand.

Rhode Island Scraps Lead in Scrap Collection Competition

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP)—The state of Rhode Island, which was turning in 28,000 tons of old metal for an average of 72.9 pounds per person, today took the lead in the newspaper scrap metal collection drive.

On top for a week, was close behind with 72.2 pounds on the basis of an estimated 28,000-ton collection. Nevada held third with 70.2 pounds per person on 2,870 tons.

Among cities, Lynchburg, Va., created its lead by burning its scrap for an average of 84.2 pounds for every resident.
