Giant RAF Raids Again Rock North Italian Arsenals

By E. B. SULLIVAN

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP)—A full-scale raid on the RAF's best effort so far in its growing offensive against Italy, spread across the length of the over the northern coastal city Friday night that the raiders had difficulty finding clear spaces for targets, the British disclosed today.

This assault was comparable in size to an "average" raid on Germany, usually carried out by between 200 and 300 planes, well informed sources believed.

After giving Turin, the home of Italy's Fiat, Caproni bomber and other works, only two nights of respite from their devastating two-ton bombs, a heavy RAF force returned in good weather and in the company of the punishment bomb on the city, one bomber group alone dropped 54 two-ton bombs in 100,000 pounds of incendiaries in just less than an hour. This was an average of one two-ton incendiary and one 30-pound incendiary a second.

Made Extra Runs The captain of one four-engine Halifax which struck Turin about midnight in Turin, reported that he made four "dummy runs" before his bomber could pick out a clear area to which to aim.

Three of the bombers were missing, a communication said.

RAF fighters were held all the way from the French coast deep into southern France, the air ministry said, but in spite of weather made-to-order for interception — thick clouds above the bombers and a clear moon above the targets, the RAF's night fighters were held off by the RAF's night fighters.

The exact results of the assault could not be told, said a communication, because the RAF's night fighters "obliterated the lights" over the city.

Doughboys Get Warm Welcome in Algiers

From all appearances, American soldiers made friends quickly after moving into North Africa. In this photo, radioed from London to New York, a wildly cheering crowd greets American troops. MAN NEAR DEATH IN GUN ACCIDENT

His right arm mangled beyond hope of saving by the blast from a 12-gauge shotgun accidentally discharged in a home in Twin Falls county general hospital that night with this condition reported dangerous from shock and loss of blood.

Ellis' physician said the charge of lead shot entered the right arm a few inches below the shoulder socket, striking the artery. It shattered the large bone in the upper arm, and the artery was cut. At that point, and passed on upwards into the shoulder, where it lodged. The doctor said amputation of the arm near the shoulder would be certain, if Ellis survives the shock of the injury and the weakening from loss of blood.

The pilot man was accompanied by his son, Harold Ellis, 11, when he went to run a string of mousetraps on the Spinks river near John Bradley's ranch north of Twin Falls yesterday afternoon, according to Mrs. Ellis, the injured man's wife. He went alone in a boat to inspect traps on the banks of an island in the river at this point. There were three hunters in the boat, Mrs. Ellis said. The father was afraid the boy might be injured.

When he returned to the boat, he found his son had been shot. The father was afraid the boy might be injured. When he returned to the boat, he found his son had been shot.

Finance Problem Holds Spotlight At Teacher Meet

Financial problems made more acute by war conditions obscured a large share of the attention of approximately 180 teachers who were here yesterday to attend the fourth district assembly of the Idaho Education association.

In addition, the teachers heard how Idaho schools in general are cooperating in the effort to conserve energy.

One of the most pressing problems brought out by the speakers is the demand of teacher ranks by the state for instruction. School districts also are hit by the war, it was said, and taxes probably will have to be raised to meet the need.

J. C. Eddy, assistant superintendent of public instruction, offered the best hope of solving the financial problem of schools when he told of a bill now in the senate which would mean $2,150,000 a year for Idaho schools from federal funds. This bill is endorsed by the state department of public instruction, the Idaho Education association, Eddy said.

The assistant superintendent also commended the teachers on the Idaho schools which have helped with the manpower shortage during the harvest season, and declared that the history course in Idaho is getting away nicely over the state. This is a program designed for substituting the voluntary services of pupils in the war effort.

John J. Hillman, Boise, executive director of the Idaho Education association, is the only thing that will stimulate the natural growth of teacher ranks, "Eighty percent of the teachers," he said, "have not been trained in the field of education because they can't find the money to go to college."

N. A. Pomeroy, superintendent of schools at Hama and president of the association, Mrs. Cora Hollingsworth, assistant director of the Junior Red Cross office at Sandpoint, explained to the teachers how pupils can aid the war effort by participating in Red Cross programs.

Jack Snodgrass, Jerome, was in charge of the day's program. He is the only thing that will stimulate the natural growth of teacher ranks.

Allees Closing in From Three Sides For African Fight

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—President Roosevelt today placed the United Nations. He announced that the United Nations would be formed to fight the Axis powers.

Two axes armies, hastily reinforced with every man and machine Adolf Hitler has been able to fly or float through the allied Mediterranean blockade, were braced in prepared positions in Tunisia and Libya tonight awaiting assaults from powerful, superbly equipped British and American forces moving up the coast.

In the two major battles that promised to break out next, simultaneously, the allies meant to smother the last vestige of axis military power and influence in North Africa and convert the coastal sands into an African Dunkerque.

Dispatchers from allied headquarters told how French troops were hurrying themselves from German-occupied Tunisia after allied troops had matched contact of an important cross-road area near Sousse.

From distant Casablanca on the Moroccan coast, American and British mechanized troops were streaming eastward to aid the attack on the Tunisian front. In the Tunisian front, American and British mechanized troops were streaming eastward to aid the attack on the Tunisian front.

Reports from allied headquarters said that the German and Italian troops on the southern Tunisian coast, thus cutting off the Tunisian front, were being driven back to Tripoli.

The German and Italian forces facing the British first army in Tunisia were dug in on a semi-circular line about 40 miles outside the Tunisian coast. The German and Italian forces facing the British first army in Tunisia were dug in on a semi-circular line about 40 miles outside the Tunisian coast.

Despite intense allied attacks on the advancing allied forest today and British battles reported in the Tunisian front, the British and American forces were making gains in the Tunisian front.

The shattered Afrika Corps, as well as the Tunisian force, were being driven back to Tripoli. The British and American forces were making gains in the Tunisian front.

Berlin characterized Rommel's retreat as a "strategic withdrawal" and said that the German and Italian forces were being driven back to Tripoli.

The pursuing British already were in Tripoli. The British and American forces were making gains in the Tunisian front.

FIFTY GRILLED IN MASS POISONING

By ARTHUR BREMER
 GALEM, Ore., Nov. 21 (AP)—Police Waning of the state police to concentrated today a group of 50 broken-minded workers in his effort to solve the mysterious "mass murder" of 47 state mental patients who died in a room of a hotel of scrambled eggs and meat powder.

"Learning the truth from this group" he said, "is to pick up a piece of quackiver with your fingers."

The workers, all "retards" at the hospital, helped in or had access to the kitchen during the time the fatal meal was being prepared. A. B. McMillin, the chef, and his assistant, Mary O'Leary, who were paid members of the hospital staff.

Langst encountered extreme difficulty in his examination. The workers, most of whom were of the lowest mental grade, gave unreliable answers and Langst found himself trying to sift truth from a mass of irrationalities. He was aided in his questioning by Dr. John S. Evans, hospital superintendent, and a nurse in abnormal psychology. All stories had to be cross-checked for verification.

One, Charles A. Sprague, who has characterized the tragedy as a "mass murder," said Langst's "helpless mind" "is really a purpose" the investigation. Dist. Atty. Hayden postponed the inquest to give state police more latitude. One or two more may die.

WATER PROJECT ORDER MODIFIED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—Secretary of Interior Harold I. Ickes today announced changes in the war production board's order of Oct. 29 halting construction of all but five of the bureau of reclamation's power, irrigation and municipal water projects in the West.

Of 41 projects halted by the previous W.P.B. order, the changes permit construction to continue on 10 under preference rating previously issued. Specified construction may proceed on nine projects, which was directed to cease on 11 and action was deferred on eight pending receipt of additional information.

The projects that may continue to completion include:

- Grand Coulee dam, Wash., including equipment for steel, dredging and spillway gates.
- Owyhee project, Ore., designed to protect production on irrigated land.

The projects subject to limitation are:

- Andrews branch dam, Dole, Idaho, authorized to proceed with construction, but not to proceed with work already performed.
- Grand Coulee dam, Wash., including construction of irrigation piping of railroad fill, including some roads, and installation of six satisfactory facilities, balance to work to cease immediately.

Action on the several projects has been delayed pending the committee's findings to be announced within a few days. These include: Minidoka irrigation project, Ida., in "Japanese" relocation.

Nation's Dairy Men Drawing Toughest Assignment of War

CHICAGO, Nov. 21 (AP)—The American dairy farmer has drawn the toughest assignment of war on the home front.

The government has asked him to produce more milk, butter, cheese and other products from the dairy herd to meet the ever rising demand of the nation's fighting men, its workers and its allies.

"The dairy farmer has produced" he said, "so far, but the dislocation of total war has mounted until they now are a threat to continued record yields. Dairy farms already are falling short of goals in some respects."

Agriculture department officials recognized the situation yesterday by recommending government control of distribution of dairy products to meet a threatened shortage. A department spokesman said rationing of butter and cheese might be necessary in some areas.

Members of the CHICAGO mercantile exchange last week predicted that dairy butter would rise 1 cent, and said rationing of other dairy products would be instituted soon.

A United Press survey of 30 states showed the following handicaps facing the dairy farmer:

1. Many trained workers capable of handling valuable milking machinery have been taken by industry and the armed forces. Despite record wages for remaining workers, they are being recruited by other industries.
2. Government has fixed price ceilings on dairy products that the farmer thinks too low to cover his rising costs and allow a profit.
3. Shifting government demands confuse the dairyman, forcing him to change production plans on short notice to provide more milk and less butter or more butter and less cheese.

Federal, state and private farm agencies have been urged to do their best job in face of these obstacles. They recommended freeing of remaining workers on the farms and a boost in price ceilings to prevent dairy workers from leaving as poor dairy cattle for beef.

Here are representative dairy situations in various sections, as disclosed by the United Press survey:

California—Dairy men said that in the Los Angeles area, third largest milked in the nation, 50 per cent more milk is being produced than a year ago. Mounting costs and loss of labor are blamed.

Frank J. E. McLaughlin, commissioner of agriculture, said the "abundance" of milk, due to a result of the farm labor shortage, is undoubtedly more serious than the shortage of labor.

There is imperative necessity for a

BEEF SHORTAGES SEEN FOR IDAHO

BOISE, Ida., Nov. 21 (AP)—An acute shortage of beef in Idaho within 90 days was predicted today by Idaho office of pure animal husbandry Director C. G. Anderson.

Anderson said the shortage resulted from increased cattle shipments from the state and almost total elimination of feeding programs because of the labor shortage and uncertainty of feed supplies.

He urged Idaho consumers to ration themselves voluntarily and to eliminate all waste of meat in the kitchen.

He added that the outlook was good for lamb and mutton and "fairly good" for pork.

Anderson said he secured his information from meat packers and pointed out that the Associated Slaughter Stock company which fed 12,000 cattle and 40,000 sheep last year on their beef by-product, this year is feeding only 2,000 cattle and no sheep.

Most of the cattle sold this year will go to market from the meadows and range sections, first being placed in lots for fattening.

Women at War

BUY WAR BONDS

A SALUTE to TWIN FALLS WOMEN

This week, Nov. 22 to 28—is national "Women at War Week," and this week the sponsors of this weekly page of advertising in behalf of Twin Falls' war efforts take time to salute the women of Twin Falls. While we have a minimum of "defense" or war projects in which our women take their place, we know that in every home in Twin Falls our women serve an even greater purpose in the cause of victory. For here, whether a woman be a housewife, farmwife, office worker or clerk, each one of them plays a definite role in our plan for victory.

And almost without exception our women contribute daily to the cause of U. S. WAR BONDS and STAMPS—a sure, patriotic step toward everlasting freedom. To the women of Twin Falls—a wholehearted salute from the sponsors of this page.

You, too, can "fight" by buying your full share of axis-defeating U. S. WAR STAMPS and BONDS

Over our entire nation, women are at war. They're at war just as surely as if they were manning guns in our first lines of offense, for without their efforts those first lines would crumple despite the heroism of our men in uniform. Our womanhood today is a machine-producing factor which will turn the tide against the axis gang. Our women today are watchdogs of economy in their homes, ready to turn every extra penny into the important purchase of War Bonds and Stamps—and our women are stalwarts who guide the destinies of precious homes through evil hours. Producing, saving or loving . . . American women are a bulwark to guard the ramparts of freedom.

And these women of America who are at war urge every one of us to buy Bonds and Stamps—and the women of America urge you to make this the greatest bond and stamp buying week since Pearl Harbor.

Many of the women of America at war, are mothers who have given sons or husbands to the cause of freedom. They urge you to help by buying War Bonds and Stamps.

Heed their rallying call—women at war sacrifice much—let us all answer with an echoing cry to "BUY BONDS" which will pierce the darkness of axis smugness. Take the cue from the women at war. Buy bonds, today, tomorrow and every day to smash the axis of Germany, Italy and Japan.

IN TWIN FALLS

Right here at home, women gave the lie to the old saying that they can't work together when members of the 20th Century Club, the Girls Reserves and the Jaycee Bondodiers joined in a city wide sale of stamps and bonds.

Saturday found them employing tag-day tactics to push stamp sale figures to $185. Let's keep up the good work and volunteer our purchases during this week to make Women at War week the greatest sale week for Bonds and Stamps since Dec. 7, 1941.

Women work, fight for democracy! Let's do our part by purchasing
U. S. WAR STAMPS and BONDS

TWIN FALLS WOMEN may not be taking their places at war machines—but in their important capacity of homemakers, they play just as important a role. Budget-managers, pin-money-merchants, smart shop keepers, clerks or office workers . . . their dollars' help keep our war machine rolling. Do yours?

This is third in a year round series of ads to appear each week. They are sponsored by the above signed merchants who realize that our war efforts need their support. If you would like to add your name or your firm's name, call 20 and a representative of the Times-News will explain how you, too, can participate inexpensively in this patriotic plan.

Public Invited To Battalion's Dance Nov. 24
Judging from the advance ticket sale, the civilians attending the Thanksgiving banquet subscription dance Tuesday night, Nov. 24, will probably outnumber the members of the Idaho volunteer fire department who were invited last night by Lieut. Col. L. W. Polhem.

The public is invited to attend the event, and all who have not purchased tickets as yet, may do so by contacting any member of the Twin Falls county battalion, L. V. R.

Public Invited
The dance will be informal for the public, but members of the volunteer reserves will attend in uniform. Location of the dance is the American Legion Memorial hall, and Will Wright's orchestra will play the dance music.

Proceeds of the dance will go to the battalion fund, to be drawn on equally by all companies of the county, to defray heating, lighting and rental as well as other expenses. The bandstands, several attractive young women of Twin Falls who have done much to stimulate bond and stamp buying in this community, will be special guests of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at the event.

Tuberculosis Seals Bring Early Sales

Although the 36th annual nationwide Christmas seal sale in which the Twin Falls County Anti-Tuberculosis association will take part, does not officially open until Monday, Nov. 23, returns have already been received from the letters sent out last week, according to Mrs. R. Spafford, chairman of the mail sale in Twin Falls county.

Requests for seals
Many persons whose names have not appeared on the mailing list last year—some of them new converts to Twin Falls—have requested that the seals be mailed to them. Mrs. Spafford said today.

According to Mrs. Spafford in preparing the letters and seals for mailing were Mrs. Harry Hill, Mrs. Fredrick Sawyer, Mrs. R. H. Tyler, Mrs. E. C. Schenberger, Mrs. J. H. Swan, Mrs. H. E. Deas and Miss Cora Jensen.

Letters totaled 1,500, according to Mrs. J. T. Peltan, Jr., publicity chairman for the campaign, who pointed out that the Christmas seal sale is the sole support of the association.

With tuberculosis already increasing in number of over-crowded industrial areas in the United States, the nationwide goal this year's sale has been set at $8,000,000.

More Funds Needed
"This amount, the largest the associations have ever asked for is necessary to carry on the expanded work planned throughout the country in an intensive effort to prevent a wide-spread and material warlike the tuberculosis," according to Mrs. Devo, who is county chairman.

Women, Do You Want To Keep Fit, Reduce?

Do you business girls and women want to learn how to keep physically fit for the duration—and after?
And would you like to lose a few extra pounds while you're doing it? Would you like to find out how to overcome your fear of high places? Should an emergency arise, would you like to know how to rescue a child from an upstairs room?

If the answer is "yes," then follow the example of the Twin Falls high school girls and the women faculty members of the Twin Falls school system, who are learning these things under the direction of Miss Madeline Garvin, physical education instructor.

The course, patterned after one given at the University of Tennessee, which was started as a program for school girls, but because of the need for well-conditioned people in wartime, all women faculty members were invited to take advantage of the instruction.

High school girls began their instruction last week; teachers will begin their following the Thanksgiving vacation.

If sufficient interest is created among business and professional women and girls—and a suitable place can be found in which to take the instruction—Miss Garvin will devote one night a week to such classes, she said last night.

She suggested that some business women's organization sponsor the preliminary organization of such classes. Persons interested may telephonically at 565-10 after school hours.

OHIO STATE DOMINANT IN MICHIGAN TO GAIN CONFERENCE TITLE

Buckeyes Win By 21-7 Score Over Wolverines

By JOHN COLBY
COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 21 (AP)—Ohio State, a brilliant precision football machine, overpowered its bitterest rival, Michigan, 21 to 7, with an undisputed Western conference championship today.

The victory was sweet to Ohio in more ways than one. It was the first time the Bucks have beaten Michigan since 1937 and it was the first win over a Michigan team coached by the wily Fritz Crisler.

Passes were quick and accurate. The Buckeyes came on in waves and Michigan also set up its only score on pass.

Little Lew Horvath, 16 pounds of dynamite, hurled a 20-yard pass to speedy Paul Bartholomew. Then the two backfielders passed to each other. Horvath passed from the 13 to Bartholomew over the goal line. When the three touchdowns came on pass and Michigan also set up its only score on pass.

After an attempted Ohio field goal that was blocked, Michigan advanced to the 22 where Bob Knicker and Ohio recovered. Bartholomew passed to Horvath on the next play. The first touchdown for Ohio came on the five and scrimmage pass play.

Michigan got back to the Ohio 24 with three minutes to play, but Bartholomew intercepted a Kuzma pass to end the threat.

Auburn Upsets Georgia in No. 1 Surprise

By ROMNEY WHEELER
COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 21 (AP)—You may have thought that Auburn tonight for a midweek surprise was.

Georgia led today in a brilliant and under-rated Auburn, 27-12, and the crash of America's No. 1 football team from the top of the college football ladder.

While 20,000 hysterical fans looked on in a nearby stadium, Auburn for Auburn—the Tigers of mid-Jack Meagher snatched a narrow Rose Bowl invitation and Georgia's ship pocket and kicked it all around Memorial stadium in a decisive 50-minute rout.

Georgia scores first. Auburn won the toss, and scored the first two touchdowns in the first minutes of the opening kickoff. Then Auburn took the initiative and hammered Georgia until the boys from Athens believed "uncle." Six minutes and 13 plays were all it took for Auburn to lead 14-0.

At the three-minute mark, Auburn broke through the Georgia line and scored on a 14-yard pass to end the game.

Jerome Grid Club Upsets Burley In Final Tilt, 7-0

JEROME, Nov. 21.—The Burley Bobcats came to Jerome yesterday for the final game of the season unbeaten, unscathed and overwhelming favorites to capture the undisputed championship of the Big Seven conference.

Jerome led 12 first downs to 10 for their rival. The Tigers tried 12, but lost the ball on each drive. Burley intercepted, while Burley tried 15, most of them in the waning moments of the game; completed four and had one intercepted.

MANPOWER ISSUE NO. 10 AT CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (UP)—What President Woodrow will do to increase the national manpower program was the question of the hour in Washington today, but reporters were faced with a dearth of reliable sources.

1. That Mr. Roosevelt, following the pattern established when he abolished the advisory committee on manpower, would replace the war manpower commission with a new agency.

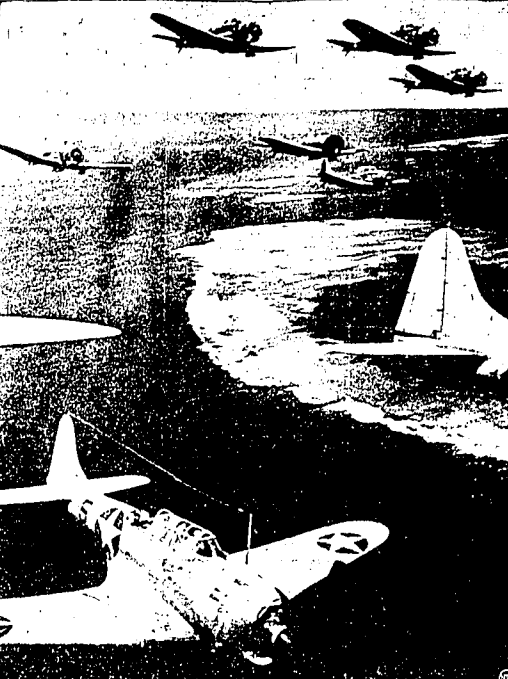

2. That he would vest in the manpower commission the authority to direct the selective service system within the limits of the manpower bill.

3. That he would reorganize the manpower commission, incorporating the selective service system within it.

4. That he would turn over the manpower program to the war department.

Speculations over each of these alternatives was accompanied by an even more tantalizing question: Who will direct the program? There was good reason to believe the President himself has not made up his mind.

SERIAL STORY THE EDGE OF DARKNESS

BY WILLIAM WOODS

THE STORY: All Norway is preparing for revolt against Nazi rule. Gunnar Rogger, leaving the office of Dr. Stenard, is angry over facing a row of German troops who enforce an order forbidding the flying boat to leave. Gunnar returns near by whispering to the men that he has good news.

PLAN OF ACTION CHAPTER IV

Like a warm, inner-color animal, Solveig was waiting him. "Come," she said. "This hearing about the truck will be all right."

"Lars, do you have outboard motors?" "The old man asked excitedly. "Of course. Three of them. I want you to put them in a garage. If anyone... and if anyone comes in asking about them, tell him they're sold. Understand?"

"Of course. What else? I can take care of more than motor." "For the first time Gunnar smiled. "There's a time for that," he said. "All three heard the little bell tinkle at the front door of the old man's retreat. The door opened and went out past the curtain."

"What do you want?" Solveig asked her husband anxiously. "He put a hand on her arm. They listened. It was Kasper Torgersen asking the old man for cotton thread. They heard his gruff voice. While Maltra was excitedly looking through the window, they heard him inquire how the bilgermen took the confiscated. "After all," Torgersen was saying, "I own a third of those boats. If I don't complain, surely they have no right."

"Gunnar beckoned to Solveig and they went out. "Good morning, Herr Torgersen." "You see a leader of the men," Torgersen said now solemnly. "They will not forget your work last winter with the fleet." He made a bow and then added, "We will hold you responsible for keeping order."

"I mean that first and foremost I am a Norwegian. You know that well enough. The interests of the men are my interests. But I feel... that is, I am sure... we can cooperate in the great work of the hour. I do not act badly. That favorable business in Stockholm yesterday... "Where did you hear about that, Herr Torgersen?" "The smile left his face. "Why... it's all over town. I want to assure you, of course, that any action you may feel obliged to take will have my support... as a Norwegian, you understand... my full support, even if I disagree. But... "Gunnar drew close, peering toward the front door first as if he wanted to make sure they could not be overheard. "Suppose I were to tell you that there is a plan on foot to overthrow the guard, cut loose the boats, and set sail for England?"

Torgersen flinched, looked at the storekeeper, whose mouth dropped open in horror, and then back at Gunnar. "Are you mad?" he snapped. "That would be theft." And then he added, you wouldn't get 50 miles. But... but, of course, you are joking." "Yes," said Solveig. "We are joking." She and Gunnar went out. "Our men have been fighting in Stockholm," Gunnar said to her. "The docks," she burst out, and a delighted smile spread over her broad face. "I saw Dr. Stenard less than an hour ago. He spent half the night with Knut Osterheim's cabin, who escaped."

"What does it mean? What about the boat?" "It brought news that guns are to be landed all along the coast." They stopped talking for several minutes because the old schoolmaster, Status Andersen, was coming toward them. He stopped along slowly with a cane, keeping his wrinkled white head up to get the sun in his face. "Good morning, Master Andersen."

"Good morning, Fra Broeze." The aged gentleman bowed slowly in his invariably courteous way, and went on.

Gunnar said in a lower voice. "I don't know how to tell you, but the doctor had said that old Andersen was the only one among them who really knew how to fight the Germans without guns."

Solveig looked after him. She heard her husband say, "Ja, we don't have to wait any longer. The fight is coming here too, and we can begin to make ready for it."

She started rolling down her sleeves. "Are you crazy?" she asked, grown more serious. Her voice was no more than a whisper. "We have no guns, yet, and already you talk of fighting. Maybe you can say that to Maltra or to those down on the dock, but not to me." She was buttoning her cuffs. "Not to me," she repeated a little more loudly.

Gunnar's face grew dark. "Every man who works in this town," he said fiercely, "will be with us. I don't count on you, yet, and already you talk of fighting. Maybe you can say that to Maltra or to those down on the dock, but not to me." She was buttoning her cuffs. "Not to me," she repeated a little more loudly.

"Give me the names." He looked carefully about. Then, taking her arm, he started to lead them off to her. She prevented after him to get them sure in his mind. They pressed close to each other, walking side by side.

"The boat is coming. The stern tilted high, like a giant, gazed down at the little shell of land where the town lay. In fertile peace, between them and the sea. The boats, with slender masts, sat in the placid water of the harbor. The pious wharves and higher over the town and silent square."

IRATE WESTERN SOLONS BLAST AT JEFFERS IN GAS BATTLE

GROUP DEMANDS DELAY IN RATION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—Irrate western congressmen fighting a last-ditch battle to delay nationwide gasoline rationing demanded today that House Speaker Charles McNary, R., Oregon, call for a conference with William M. Jeffers, he charged that the speaker was "unfairly" charging that the people who stand against the rationing are financing opposition to the program.

Rep. Nathan W. Summers, D., Tex., chairman of a steering committee directing the postponement of a bill which would give the "unfavorable" position to the rationing, said: "I am convinced," Summers said, "such a statement is utterly unwarranted."

The unidentified Texan asked McNary not to quote him further because "it might be taken as an endorsement of the speaker's position."

Rep. J. D. Eastman, D., Okla., who said as chairman of the committee of 108 western congressmen who opposed the postponement drive, paraded "Jeffers' statement" as being "unfairly" opposed to postponement.

Summers unilaterally opposed to Washington bureaucrats making unreasonable restrictions on the rationing, the speaker said. "I am sure," Summers said, "that rationing was necessary to conserve rubber."

"If some of these bureaucrats would refer priorities to expedite construction of synthetic rubber plants, we would have plenty of rubber," he said. "Director legislation could bring this about."

Rep. Clifford Hope, R., Kan., said he was "not surprised" at the statement. He insisted "a better rationing saving job" could be done by "rationing gasoline according to the condition of the tires of each individual motorist."

Hope said he felt "Jeffers and all the bureaucrats" should be called upon to prove the necessity of rationing before putting it into effect.

"I object to their telling the American people that they haven't done enough to conserve their rubber," he added.

Although committee members refused to discuss their plan of action, there was growing indication that the effort to postpone rationing would be made, probably by the middle of next week, it appeared that the only procedure which could postpone the deadline.

The committee planned to wait the outcome of hearings before the house interstate and foreign commerce committee, studying wartime production and consumption of rubber, Chairman Clarence F. Leno, D., Calif., said his group would consider the possibility of postponing the rationing program at hearings Monday and Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Sens. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., and Joseph C. O'Mahoney, D., Wyo., introduced a resolution to have the senate interstate commerce committee investigate the order of the office of certain transportation regulating operators of trucks and buses to continue to continue operations.

Both senators protested that curtailment of motor operations in their states would bring about great hardship because of the security of railroad routes.

Men Played Cards With Bombs In Pockets Before Zero Hour

BY LEO S. DUBNER
HADDEN HOSPITAL, Okla., started Nov. 18 (AP)—The story of the former United States coast guard cutter which I rode to sea in an hour in days ago will rank with the war's most dramatic when it can be told in full.

Though it was not intended to be a man-of-war, and it rolled so badly that even its captain was seasick, it crossed the Atlantic and was delivered, by another odd cutter, to reach the boom at Okla. harbor.

The ship's engine stopped for fuel in the Atlantic and then again at Gibraltar, where it was again and had to be pulled free in a pitch dark night.

On the morning of Nov. 8, when all the American soldiers were rounded up and told that the zero hour was 3 a.m., and when the ammunition had been piled on the deck, the cutter was started.

The commander of the task force called the chief engineer.

"Thousands of lives depend on what you say next," the commander told the engineer. "If you say the engine will get us to our destination we will say that and if you say the engine will get us there and they don't, I'll see that you are court-martialed."

The chief engineer never batted an eye.

"Sir, I will make my professional honor that they will get us through," he said.

So we went.

The assembly of American and British naval officers and British commando officers drank and played dice and cards together in the ward room, the commando with stacks of dynamite sticking out of their pockets. Bombs were stuck on bayonets to the bulkheads and it was frequently necessary to remove a dynamite stick before sitting in a chair.

ANIMAL TRAINER LOSES IN COURT

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21 (AP)—If Kerr's neighbors looked forward happily today to casual walks from the street, the fire of adversative meetings with intractable animals.

Kerr, who supplies animals to Hollywood studios, must make them further out in the country under a ruling of Judge Frank H. Carroll.

In testimony punctuated by coyote howls, the matter of a crow, the cry of a cougar and the eerie howl of a timber wolf—all expert imitations—the neighbors told what it meant to live close to Kerr.

"I went into the ladies' powder room as an auto court," Mrs. J. E. Morton said, "and there was a bear in it."

"I ran out screaming. I was so panic stricken that I ran into the men's restroom by mistake."

Mrs. Elizabeth Jones said she snarled into her kitchen one evening for a drink of water. As she reached for the faucet she saw a bear standing on his haunches and peering in the window over the sink, looking in.

More screaming. Likewise screaming, she ran into the bathroom and slumped to the window.

"There's a bear looking in the window," he said.

"You're crazy," he said.

Kerr limited the sound of his animals to allow the truth to be so unpleasant.

But Mrs. Ethel G. Jeffers disagreed and described the call of a bird which "had a stick like a woman being assaulted."

Kerr maintained none of his animals, including a pig and a cougar, was dangerous.

"Mr. Kerr is wise in the way of animals," Carroll said. "But I'm afraid he doesn't quite understand people."

WAR WORKERS' ACCIDENTS HIGH

CHICAGO, Nov. 21 (AP)—The national safety council today compared total casualties of 3,844,500 among war workers since Pearl Harbor to 48,963 casualties in the armed forces as grim evidence that accidents drive the nation of manpower needed for victory.

"Those who die in battle die for a cause," said Red H. Deschamps, executive vice-president of the council. "Those struck down by accidents die in vain."

The council said casualties to American workers since Pearl Harbor up to Nov. 13 have been 44,500 dead and 3,800,000 wounded. Government figures for casualties in the armed forces during the same period were 5,694 dead, 3,435 wounded and 39,877 missing or prisoners.

The council said "Casualties on the homefront, through accidents, are preventable and hinder the efforts of our fighting men by sabotaging the production of weapons and material of war."

It is the duty of every patriotic American to conserve manpower for victory. We must stop accidents."
