

CONVICTS SOUGHT IN SOUTH IDAHO

BOISE, Dec. 21 (AP)—Two of four escapees from the Ogden city jail were captured in Boise Sunday. The other two are still at large.

Police Chief George Hinking said Robert Harris, 21, alias Robert Sella, and John C. Werner, 25, alias John Guaddard were captured on a Boise street in a car reported stolen earlier from Mountain Home.

Hinking said said the other two escapees, Roy Werner, 21, and Delbert C. Clark, 19, are believed to be in the vicinity of Twin Falls.

The four reportedly escaped from the Ogden city jail Friday night.

after shaking the jailer, Haskins said they were being held for identification in a series of holdups and car thefts in Utah.

Haskins warned all other south Idaho officers to "take no chances with the two men still at large, adding:

"We know they are armed and we are asking all officers to be on guard."

HITLER CONFERS WITH CIANO AND LAVAL ON WAR AIMS

LEADERS DISCUSS FUTURE OF AXIS

By WILLIAM B. DICKINSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Dec. 21 (AP)—Adolf Hitler, beset by allied offensives, the deterioration of Italy and discussion in France, has held conferences with Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, and Pierre Laval of France, axis broadcast announced today.

The Hitler-Laval conference reviewed rumors in Stockholm that Vichy might reach a peace agreement with Germany and declare war on the allies, and radio Paris, German controlled, quoted the Paris collaborationist leader Marcel Deat as saying that France's main task was not to build a new army.

Ciano, substituting for his father-in-law Benito Mussolini, arrived at Hitler's headquarters Friday morning, Laval, fighting for his political life as dictator at Vichy, was permitted into the conference later Saturday and left the same day.

Discuss War Aims
An axis communique announced that Ciano and Hitler discussed the common pursuit of war aims by Italy and Germany.

If Laval was permitted to see Hitler alone at all it was only for a few minutes, and he was sent away immediately after a general talk in which Ciano, Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, and Field Marshal Hermann Goering, German aid force chief and economic dictator, took part.

Various axis communiques and semi-official pronouncements, which emphasized the firm determination of the axis powers to engage all forces in order to attain final victory, indicated that Hitler and Ciano talked over the entire situation with special attention to military problems including the defense of the Mediterranean, and Hitler, Ciano and Laval discussed future Vichy relations with Italy as well as Germany.

Snub Possibility
The fact that Benito Mussolini, as executive head of the Italian government, did not attend the conference might be taken to mean either that reports of his ill health were correct or that Hitler had snubbed him as he snubbed Laval.

Ciano took Marshal Ugo Cavallero, chief of the Italian general staff, with him to Hitler's headquarters, arriving Friday. First Ciano talked to Ribbentrop and Cavallero talked to Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command. Then these conferences joined Hitler, and talks which continued Saturday.

Arrives Saturday
Laval arrived late Saturday, accompanied by Charles Reibel, chief of the Vichy foreign office, and by Jean Dabouis, French ambassador to Berlin, and Jean Dabouis, French ambassador to Berlin, and Jean Dabouis, French ambassador to Berlin.

Laval first saw Ribbentrop, they went together to see Hitler and, then, to see Ciano.

Smoke seeps from the Sallinger department store in the downtown hub section of Boston, Mass., from flames that swept the interior and did damage estimated at close to $1,000,000.

"Ribbentrop played copper hilt to Laval—presumably with Hitler and Ciano aimed together," Laval started back," Berlin said.

INDICTMENT HITS COPPER COMPANY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—Attorney General Biddle announced today a federal grand jury at Port Angeles, Ind., had indicted the Anacostia Wire and Cable company, Marion, Ind., and five of its officers for conspiracy to defraud the United States, and to prevent "false claims in the production and sale of wire and cable used by the armed forces for combat communication purposes."

This is one of the most reprehensible cases of defrauding the government and endangering the lives of American soldiers and sailors ever to come to the attention of the department of justice," Biddle declared.

"I can conceive of nothing more vicious or treacherous, than deliberately supplying our war effort with defective war material; and I am informed that only the alertness of government inspectors and the promptness with which the war fraud unit and the FBI investigated complaints in this case has prevented enormous quantities of defective wire and cable from being transported to our troops overseas."

The justice department charged the defendants "secretly installed, behind sliding panels under test tables, mechanisms that enabled the passing of inferior or defective materials."

In addition to the company, the Carpenter, superintendent of the Marion plant; Chas. B. Blythe, chief company inspector at Marion; and Frank Kunkle, assistant chief company inspector at Marion.

Tom C. Clark, chief of the justice department's war fraud unit, told newspapermen that Anacostia had complained that practically 30 percent of the wire manufactured by this company and shipped to Russia was defective.

U. S. FLIERS GET HITS IN FRANCE

By JAMES McGINLEY
AMERICAN BOMBER BASE, SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Dec. 21 (AP)—Happy-go-lucky American youngsters were credited today with the hits which left hundreds of enemy fighters in flames, and perhaps the most important German air field in France, a tower of flame.

Their Fortress plane, called "Dry Martini," came back from the raid with a falling motor, artfully concealed by the pilot, Capt. Allen Martin, 22, San Francisco, Calif., to keep German fighters from swarming. There wasn't a scratch on the plane.

The "Dry Martini," manned by a crew which has worked together since June, roared over the heavily target at 20,000 feet and lit it. B. A. Grier, St. Johns, Ariz., the bombardier, went to work. His first four bombs were a little wide, but the next three were on the target.

Soldiers in hand, the boys told, at the Officers' club at this bomber station how they fought off. Flocke Wulf and dodged what they called "larry pants" anti-aircraft fire.

The raid was one of the most successful shows the American air force has staged so far, Lieut. Neil Krohn, Fairmont, W. Va., who was in one of the Fortresses in the second wave over Ronilly field, and German fighters planes did "some of the damndest flying" he ever saw.

coming up under the Fortresses and then "just fading away."

Bandage-Making Unit Needs More Volunteer Aides

By MRS. S. H. GRAVES

We shall tell you frankly that we need all more helpers for the making of surgical dressings to meet the tremendous demands of this war.

We have no desire to be dramatic, but as a practical contribution, all you select one morning afternoon or evening for this work? Even in the busy holiday weeks, we will dedicate at least three hours to the Unknown Soldier?

Hours Listed
For the making of surgical dressings of women meet in the Venetian room of the Elks building every Monday from 1 to 5 p. m. and from 7 to 10 p. m. every Tuesday from 1 to 5 p. m. and from 7 to 10 p. m.; every Wednesday from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. and from 1 to 5 p. m. m.

Due to labor shortage, the responsibility for the making of surgical dressings rests on the shoulders of the girls of the country, under the supervision of the Red Cross. We appreciate the help of the "bandage" girls given us by some of the high school girls. We hope that more girls will come to the unit.

Did you read the words of Ann Bernhardt, nurse, who saw Italian and Corrells "bandage" and gaiters were so scarce that we washed out the old ones and used them again?

From Twin Falls Man
We want to tell you that Grove Wiley wrote in a recent letter to his mother here in Twin Falls he is a member of the hospital corps of the navy on an island in the south Pacific.

We quote from his letter: "I suppose that sometimes you wonder, 'Why do you boys go to war?' Well, just what good the few you are able to make out. They will do more than you realize and some of the best efforts you can put forth. 'Some day I can be more explicit.'"

Just what he meant that the young Twin Falls bomber pilot who goes into action to risk his life on a six times makes a good-looking job. It's reported able to take rough handling than most men.

Novel Hill
By MARGUERITE YOUNG
(NEA Service Staff Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—Clothes hanger into grocery store... ground glass into fireplace grate... paper into looking glasses... things etc. was coming home to Mrs. America.

The glass grate, just set out in department stores here, is hailed by shoppers who've vainly tracked second-hand shops for reasonably priced grates... the same ones for a long time, that last year were practically given away. Silica, annealed glass, makes a good-looking job. It's reported able to take rough handling than most men.

Doornat and groceries... are the big hits among many novel numbers in a collection of objects useful in wartime. In this year's edition of the Museum of Modern Art's annual display of choice objects of the 1940's Christmas gifts. Every thing shown was selected by strict standards of usefulness and practicality of design and workmanship in relation to war production. Hence, the substitutes for metal soon were visible in the display.

"People who make these things expect to have them called 'substitutes' and their objections make a lot of sense," remarks Alice M. Carson, who presides over the exhibition. "In nearly every case, the new object is really a replacement, and cheaper than the original. Many do the job as well or even better, offering new convenience or better appearance."

Surprisingly, the combs on the doormat do not crumble when stepped on, nor do they soak up moist dirt. Southern hillland people make the mats, which can sub for pre-war mat of metal or hemp. The grocery carrier is a regular old-fashioned woven-woven clothes basket—on wheels and with a handle shaped and measured for easy maneuvering. This manufactured item, made of cardboard, is an arch formed by the past matrons carrying two-colored carnatons, Miss Carson said.

Miss Mary Grace, Mrs. Mary Ellen Davis, Mrs. Theo Brown, Mrs. William Lellum, Mrs. A. A. L. Shearer and Mrs. Bessie Hudson were refreshments.

More Coming
Few people realize, Miss Carson points out, what throngs the material shortage is about to make on home.

"Magic" Glass, Paper and Plastics Replace Things You Can't Get Now

Pictured above are a few of the replacements that Yankee Ingenuity has found for wartime shortages in the household. A tick is a corn husk doormat, common in early colonial days, now revived to replace metal and imported fiber mats. The lovable Inouette "tote her own" purchases in the new carrier shown in the same photo. As little as one cup of coffee may be made efficiently in the new coffee maker at upper right—a wartime vintage ordinary coffee pots do not have. At lower right is a new baking dish—made out of paper, of all things.

field articles. Due right now are kitchen changes which "treatly amount to something." For instance, only eight kinds of kitchen utensils can be produced under new regulations. Miss Carson selected the exhibit pieces on the basis of those regulations rather than on the basis of what pre-regulation articles may be found in stock.

"The museum consulted a war production board substitutions expert. He visited the line inspection plant and said present temporary availability of chromium, copper, nickel, tin, aluminum and lucite objects 'denotes the purchaser into a false sense of security and results in unfortunate practices on war agencies for direction of materials vital to the armaments of our armed forces.'"

Due springing essential youth miss a wire-mesh window screens. But they're making new ones of non-metallic materials.

Instead of rubber slip stoppers, the museum shows a neat, white plastic plug. Also a plastic plasterer's knife which turns out to be a nice, flexible replacement for the usual of the steel dish-scraper.

Also a new top for glass jars, made of compressed paper, which screws on smoothly and tightly. And a pretty blue powder compact with a mirror and a good catch, just manufactured and not available in retail stores, the compact looks and works like lacquered metal.

Paper substitutes for metal, cooking articles are interesting. There are enclosures for baking both rich and goopy sauce-covered food. These are sold by dime stores. They're to be used once—not washed or reused. Expensive for long-run home use, of course, but fine for church social or other special occasion for which metal utensils would be used.

Or toaster! Pottery and glassware, such as pottery skillets, glass double boiler, a glass bell for the sink of coffee, and the museum says, but they are cheap and are shown to discourage the wasteful American practice of abandoning a good design simply to satisfy the craving to invent something new even if inferior.

Wood replaces metal in trousseau trunks that look all right for skirts four-inches of three will hang.

LEADERS PINDER HELP FOR ITALY

BERN, Switzerland, Dec. 20.—Diplomatic quarters said today they believed Adolf Hitler's intention to help Italy was a bluff. The Italian foreign minister, Count Ciano, and his staff were said to be discussing how much help Germany could give Italy in the Mediterranean.

The heavy requirements of the Russian front and the fact that Italian troops on the eastern front are in the center of the present army offensive and can hardly be withdrawn were believed to have been the major problems of the conference.

Official German and Italian comment on the meeting emphasized that no spectacular results were to be expected and foreign observers were expected to remain in the background. The tenor of this comment was contrasted with that immediately following the axis meeting last April when great summer offensive plans were laid.

The Swiss newspaper Neue Zürcher Zeitung said it was "in no way accidental" that reports of troop transport to the Spanish border were being circulated just at this time, in an entirely different direction.

The paper referred to recent criticism in Hitler's Volkischer Beobachter against French and British small states which would watch their backs.

The Lusitania Tribune noted that during this effort to retrieve ground in north Africa might involve France and affect Spain, and mentioned that yesterday Gen. Franco's foreign minister, Gen. Francisco Franco, had said that the two empires of the world were not in a position of indifference.

Dependency May Be Waived As Desertion in Army Draft

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (UP)—The fact that the army and navy, as no provision of the law enables to gradual abandonment of dependency as grounds for desertion from service in the armed forces.

The facts are that the army and navy, as no provision of the law enables to gradual abandonment of dependency as grounds for desertion from service in the armed forces.

A system of payments to dependents of men in the military establishment already is in operation and would amount much of the shock of the induction of men who now are deferred because they support others.

President Roosevelt's executive order of Dec. 8 authorizing War Relocation Authority to pay $100 a month to support induction of men over 37 is partly responsible for a situation which probably will require the induction of many men.

MEATLESS DAYS NEW IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—New York's meatless Tuesday, inaugurated recently, is catching on, the whole country observing a "meatless Tuesday" during the first World War.

Meatless days at national level are Washington state that chefs in hotels and dining cars, and housewives from coast to coast began featuring special vegetable dishes and meat substitutes in place of pork, beef and mutton.

Employees in eating places were special potatoes and sleeve emblems reminding customers of meatless days. Thursday and to encourage the doctrine of the "drain plate"—it was pointed out, everything.

Then, as now, New York reported its inhabitants took meatless days with a smaller good authorities in Kansas City restaurants had trouble with patrons who ordered beef and lamb for breakfast and steak for dinner.

600 Soup Cakes Ate Less Pennsylvania, much of that beef could be served only at noon. Pork was not eaten on Saturday in Pennsylvania.

Washington started raising prices to alleviate the meat shortage. Grocers advanced prices on meat substitutes. Suppliers were baffled on all railroads. Among the first to limit the consumption of meat were 600 merchant vessel crews, to prove even physical laborers could do without meat.

During World War I meatless days were put in effect because of war and our armed forces were taking an ever larger percentage of our supply. In addition, there was so much conservation in transportation that meatless days were a method to cut down freight.

In World War II the meatless days were a method to conserve food. In March, 1918, the meatless days were discontinued because of food administration records.

In March, 1918, the meatless days were discontinued because of food administration records. In March, 1918, the meatless days were discontinued because of food administration records.

Meatless days contributed to the growth of the school lunch program. The school lunch program was started in 1917 and had only a light meal for children at noon. Schools were aware of this fact, and in Massachusetts and New York the school lunch program was instituted in some districts.

Tuesday, was chosen as meatless day because Tuesday is a midweek day, half-week from Friday, which is fish day among many Americans.

official who calculated on that basis told the United Press that after class 1-A men are exhausted it probably would be necessary to go far down the list of classifying until practically every man of military age and fit for duty in under arms, regardless of dependency.

PRICE OF WHEAT REGISTERS DROP

CHICAGO, Dec. 21 (UP)—Wheat prices registered more than a cent a bushel today from the highest quotations since 1937 as profit taking and the slow advance in the dollar added 5 to 12 cents to values late in the month.

SERIAL STORY

FRANTIC FESTIVAL

BY EDMUND FANCOTT

Chapter I

Myra Mack stood at the office window looking down into St. James street. A remarkable scene was unfolding by the lights of the afternoon that evening.

A flash of color by her side broke her reverie.

"Boy, howl! A white Christmas after all!"

Myra looked at the young face of the girl who had spoken.

"Well, she grunted. 'Look like a black one for me.'"

She was thinking that for the first time in years there would be no one at home except herself and her parents, and the youngest boy of the family at the air force training pool in Toronto.

The other girl looked at her and saw an evasive look at first, then a secretary's gleam for competence and definitely not for appearance.

Myra's next thought was nothing to make any man look twice.

The other girl was under 20. Her complexion was a healthy pink, but her nose was a little too long and her mouth too wide for conventional beauty.

"What are you doing for Christmas vacation?" asked Myra.

The girl usually vacationed in the dull business week before the New Year.

Fay Rathbone shrugged her shoulders and said: "I'm not doing anything. No money to pay fares home."

"You live in the Maritimes?"

"Where have you been all this time?"

One of the other girls was calling. "Telephone for you Myra."

Myra took the receiver that lay expectant upon her desk. Then her face broke into a smile.

"Where have you been all this time?"

She heard him laugh. "Come up and see me in the studio."

Myra was suspicious. Ferdy was the most harmless looking person in the world but she never knew quite sure what was happening behind his humorous eyes.

His voice went on. "I want you to come up to my place for Christmas vacation in the most-ideal Laurentian style, among the Christmas Yule logs and all that sort of thing."

"There's no catch in it?" asked Myra, doubtfully.

"None whatsoever."

"Many other people?"

"Just a few."

"Social?" This question was prompted by her knowledge that Ferdy knew and was talking to everybody of any social consequence in the city.

"Yes, no," he replied. "Just the usual."

Myra frowned. The situation was dangerous. Ferdy had a reputation. Lorton had gathered very little fame but quite a lot of whims in his 30 odd years. He had a convincing cottage on a hilltop in the Laurentians, surrounded by nature in the raw and his favorite house parties were made up by choosing the oddest mixture of people, throwing them together and enjoying the results.

"Oh, by the way," the voice went on. "I'm a little short on girls. If you have any ideas you might bring someone along. She'd better have a sense of humor. Then the receiver clicked at the other end."

Fay Rathbone picked her desk. "And here?"

"Not too bad. Meet me at 5 and 211 Main street," said Myra. Then she was bitter with doubt. Was it fair to a young girl like Fay Rathbone to fling her into the untidy, crowded company of one of Ferdy's house parties? But half an hour later the two girls climbed the stairs of an unpretentious house on Union Avenue to Ferdy's studio.

Myra rapped the door and a voice hailed the two girls to come in. At the same time it told them to about the door quickly. Myra had long learned never to be sur-
