TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

YORK—Coolidge's recent report on policy throws a new light on the recent withdrawal of the United States from the League of Nations.

In his 1944 campaign, the President promised that America would withdraw from the League if it was to be a trap for the United States. He said and qualified that statement by declaring that the League was a trap for the United States and that the United States would not be a part of it.

Now we are at it again. The League is a trap for the United States and the United States will not be a part of it. The League is a trap for the United States and the United States will not be a part of it.

The League is a trap for the United States and the United States will not be a part of it. The League is a trap for the United States and the United States will not be a part of it.

WHIP—Millions of gallons of gasoline and fuel can be saved annually if the government would attack the problem of gasoline and fuel. The far-reaching plan for saving gasoline and fuel has been announced.

The plan is to save gasoline and fuel by the use of the following information secured from an important source:

1. To save gasoline and fuel, it is necessary to save gasoline and fuel.

2. To save gasoline and fuel, it is necessary to save gasoline and fuel.

WON'T IT BE WONDERFUL!

A surprising array of new, post-war industries may be a-born in the war plants now devoted to turning out tons of poison gas, incendiary bombs and the non-toxic smokes which will play an increasingly important part in this global struggle.

Take the gas masks. At least 10 million of them will have to be made for the armed services, to say nothing of the millions made for civilians. The important part of the gas mask is the filter that absorbs the poison gas and the important element of the filter is activated carbon.

In the last war, the filtering element had to be high grade charcoal which was difficult to produce in sufficient quantities. Now every activated carbon from almost any source will do the job.

When the war is over the plants making this activated carbon may be kept right on going, say the chemists, in a new peacetime industry. The thought is to provide every cough with a gas mask to protect her from the fumes of her own sawdust, kidney stew or fried onions, but it's along that line.

Since this easily-manufactured activated carbon will absorb any chemicals, it is entirely possible to make a handy little kitchen dings that will stifle kitchen odors, make a musty cellar smell as sweet as a Sawtooth mountain top, or even be able to kill those fatal post-party nightclub fumes oozing in the powder-scented perfume, a couple of great cigar smoke, cigar butts and spilled alcohol.

Yea and moreover, the chemists say this activated carbon stuff will even take the odor out of a gymnasium locker room, than which there is nothing so repulsive.

The new smoke-producing units designed to throw smoke screens over war plants or whole cities to camouflage them against enemy bombers may also find a practical application in peacetime as fire protectors for every building, vegetable garden, apple tree and the like. With the new smoke-producing units, the old method of rousing every man, woman and child in the countryside to keep the smoke pots burning all night will be a thing of the past. To heat a freeze may be as easy as simple as using a cleaner lighter.

A large part of the poison gas manufactured is chlorine or chlorine compounds. Productive capacity for chlorine manufacture has been stepped up tremendously, and new processes have been developed for its more economical manufacture. Manufacturing chemists are looking ahead to a big boom in the chlorine bleaching business, and terms like Twin Falls will have all the chlorine they want to soap up their drinkings water.

Do you want to be grand?

NOTHING TO BE INVESTIGATED?

We heartily agree with the logic of the question which Governor Boteltson asked the members of the board of prison commissioners:

"Are we going to do anything to investigate the scandalous situation that permitted the escape of Duncan M. Johnston from the state prison?"

The answers of the other two members in forcing the question to be tabled without coming to a vote is characteristic of the way state prison affairs in Idaho have been handled for some time.

It is believed there is nothing that needs investigation at the prison," said State Secretary George H. Curtis in taking issue with the governor. "Johnston is back in prison and Ward Clark has assured us that he will not escape again."

The statement comes from the state prison and the leniency that has been shown inmates convicted of serious crimes, Johnston included, are reasons enough why conditions at the penitentiary should be thoroughly investigated.

It has been well demonstrated that assurances are not enough to protect society from criminals who are supposed to be kept where they belong.

DON'T FORGET THE HOME FOLK

A Fighting French officer reminds us not to forget the 30,000,000 anti-Nazi French men and women in France. The 30,000 active De Gaulle's now fighting against Hitler outside France are more sensational, but their families are less than a third of the stay-at-home who even passively are resisting.

Few of us can imagine the courage required in occupied France for the slightest protest of opposition to the German beast for hungry men and women. To die for the Germans is to die for the German; for the dalcymen who killed German into walking miles to his place day after day, for butler that he never would have for them; for diners who walk out of restaurants at the earliest legal moment with their families.

The spirit of France still lives, as Hitler yet will learn to his cost.

A LONG SCHOOL DAY NEEDED

In places where there is a crowded school population, or where work has swollen the population to unwholesome proportions, the schools should be open, playgrounds wide open, shops going full blast and every child working at capacity, all day and at least until ten o'clock at night.

Nothing needs to be told that fathers have less time than ever to give their children, but mothers are working to exhaustion trying to keep things halfway normal. The children are restless, excited and ill-tempered. They are not happy and are placed in worse conditions than ever. They are not happy and are placed in worse conditions than ever.

By J. R. CRAWFORD

There is such a wide divergence of opinion in regard to the method to be used to hold down the cost of living that almost any way would be responsible to many people. But the term, "high cost of living," is one relative at this time. As a matter of fact, it is much easier to live now than it was in 1913-14 or 1920-21. The average family of five can live on $100 a month, which is a very good thing. It is not so long ago that a family of five could not live on $100 a month. It was not so long ago that a family of five could not live on $100 a month. It was not so long ago that a family of five could not live on $100 a month.

The life in a farm where war workers are and where three shifts a day are worked, has an element of excitement and interest in itself. But what does it mean to a farmer who works 70 or 80 hours a week and what every honest farmer must admit, is that there is no more time to relax at farm labor. It is a skilled mechanic who a bit it to one side. Or a seer box is in place or a gun. It could hardly hurt much of the tractor turned slightly to one side. The farmer must be clogged for a short time without it becoming a matter of life or death. But when the farmer is not so fortunate during the depression, nor are they with many goods being demanded by governmental aid or scarcity.

Hence it is not readily to be seen that with the highest average farm wages in the history of America, and only 30 or 40 per cent increase in necessary living expenses, the average American is in much more favorable position to obtain the necessities of life. That is, if they are obtained. If we were all willing to pay only what we can pay, we would get our income either in bonds or debt payments, the government

SERIAL STORY

I AM A MURDERER

BY MORRIS MARKEY

COPYRIGHT, 1948. NEA SERVICE, INC.

The Story: This is the story of the "perfect crime"—the murder of Col. Wesley Hope Merritt...

"Thank you. It was, I suppose, a mistake to bring you after all. Now for the second thing. I have some property to be divided. Can you tell me anything of the position there? Do you know the attitude of British investors toward their Swedish holdings?"

"The two hundred thousand exclusively in Swedish papers, and perhaps it will be needed if I pass his opinions on to you."

"I am sure no expert in such affairs," he said. "But it is better to have a chat with Sir Peter Toole just before I left London. Are you acquainted with him?"

"No. The two hundred thousand exclusively in Swedish papers, and perhaps it will be needed if I pass his opinions on to you."

"I heard the late news before leaving the city," he said. "It was a bit disappointing. So if I appear to be a little off the mark..."

"This served, as might be expected, to cool spirits generally. In deference to their mood, it hardly seemed appropriate to pursue the unhappy subject. And, likewise in deference, it seemed rather impudent to stir up such matters after the new play, Fred West's administration of a certain Argentine pony, of the latest tackroom tattle from Broken Hill."

"When the desert, however, Vaughan Dunbar's mood lightened perceptibly. Making a gesture as if to say, 'Come now, it is absurd to worry over events half a world away,' he told an amusing anecdote about Hermann Ostergren."

"I hope you will not mind," he said in his delectable, even tones, "that I never want to know anything more about them."

Fred West lit another cigarette and lunged into a chair and fumbled for a minute with a notion that was in his head. But the best opening he could contrive was, "That guy gives me a pain."

"Fred West made his reluctant way back to the library. Vaughan Dunbar's low voice still went on and the Colonel looked at him quietly. He felt a little uneasy about this time."

"I don't know, Sir," he said. "I'm guessing on down to mail this stuff now."

"Thank God," said Fred West. "For what?"

"I'm guessing on down to mail this stuff now."

"I'm guessing on down to mail this stuff now."

"I'm guessing on down to mail this stuff now."

"I'm guessing on down to mail this stuff now."

EVACUEE CAMPS PRODUCING FOODS

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 16.—Relocation centers, handling more than 20,000 persons of Japanese ancestry, moved further toward a self-sustaining basis today.

Official reports disclosed here, cattle and poultry farms already were in operation on a scale of 10 large projects. Similar developments were planned for others, and that vegetables and fruits produced around 1,000 carloads at two projects alone last season.

Hops and poultry being raised at the Tule Lake, Calif. center, which has about 15,000 evacuees. The central Utah project at Topas has established a hog and beef farm, and is planning to introduce poultry. The Gila river center, Arizona, is raising hogs, and will put in dairy and poultry later. Both hogs and poultry are being raised for the centers at Manzanar, Calif., and Lamar, Colo.

The 100,000 evacuees, removed from the western military zone as a war-time safety measure, are housed at centers in California (2), Arizona (2), Idaho (1), Utah (1), Wyoming (1), Colorado (1), and Arkansas (1).

The disclosure the evacuees were producing a considerable share of their own food, is a gratifying development, following a check of entire unconfined reports choice hams, bacon and other items which were tracked to some of the western centers.

Unofficial but reliable sources said today to great amounts of such means, considering the number of people involved, has been turned to the centers, that stewards of western projects had been called in weekly to keep out a program conforming both with prospective rationing and shortages, and that food conditions definitely was not in vogue.

How Centers Operate

The WRA itself didn't want to enter the controversy. Informed sources said this was how western centers—operated on a business basis to the evacuees—were handling their essential products:

Milk—Served only to hospital cases, nursing mothers, children and special diet cases in all communities where a shortage might be caused by their use.

Sugar—No more than eight ounces a week allowed for each person, including that used in making soft drinks and beverages. Individual ration books drawn prior to the evacuation have been surrendered.

Coffee—Consumption approximately 75 per cent of the amount allowed for civilians used in the center. The Japanese drink more tea than the average.

Meat—No more than three-fourths of a pound a week for children from 1 to 6; 1 1/2 pounds for those from 6 to 12; and 2 1/2 pounds for adults—including men and fat.

300 Cans of Vegetables

The Tule Lake and Gila river projects last season each produced approximately 500 cans of vegetables valued at $300,000.

Food—Meats for the centers are kept at or under a prescribed 4 cents a day for each evacuee, records indicate.

Quarterly—All food is purchased at larger centers through the army commissary.

Woman Bike Tourist Goes Hungry to Feed Her Cats

By MERVIN SHOENMAKER

"How often is the basic characteristic that elicits the surface in the stream of humanity that flows along the nation's highways.

In a season's run of tourists out pretty much to a pattern, the ones who are unnecessarily hard on the proprietors will be those with petty, selfish complaints, those who are unnecessarily hard on the proprietors, or those who tried to get away without paying their bills. They're the ones.

A woman cross-country bicyclist, who was willing to go hungry that day, was the exception that proved the rule at the Wagon Wheel tourist camp Thursday evening. Her age was variously estimated from 35 to 45 years. She was traveling and had a rather-beautiful bicycle could be understood from the distance she had ridden. She had pedaled her way overland bicycle from Santa Madre, Calif., to Denver, and then back as far as Tully Falls on her way to the coast.

But there was nothing much out of the ordinary in the woman's appearance. It was her bicycle that would have attracted attention anywhere. It had two luggage carriers, a rear fender and a front fender, and made look about it. She walked her wheel onto the lawn of the tourist camp on Thursday night and stepped into the office door. It was opened by Mrs. Dan Powell, wife of the proprietor.

"You have some pretty kittens there," the woman said, pointing. Dale Campbell himself couldn't have done it better.

"We think they're nice," said Mrs. Powell, smiling, immediately to the other proprietor.

"The Park Squires

"A movement on the horse caught her eye.

"What's in your park?" she asked, incredulously. "The squires."

The woman drew back a sort of sleeve that was part of the wrapping back of the bicycle seat, and Mrs. Powell saw eyes peering from a muffled mass of white and yellow fur.

"A mother cat and two kittens," said the owner, simply. "I'm not sure they're yours, though because they're not so clean. We have to sleep in some awful places."

"That's the reason for my original reason for stopping."

"Do you have some milk I could do for a can?" she asked.

"I'm sorry," said Mrs. Powell, "but every can is weighed, and they're weighed by the month, so I don't have much milk to sell."

She eyed the travel-stained and dusty woman, who had her bicycle where others have for pets washed and oiled.

"Do you have any money?" she asked.

Cats Came First

"Well, I think I have three cats. The visitor hadn't asked for money. She showed her embarrassment at the question. "Yes," she said, "I had a dime and I bought an on of hardies for the cats—that let me three cents."

"Wait a minute," commanded Mrs. Powell. "I'll get you some cream for the cats. The cyclist's eyes moistened as she thanked Mrs. Powell, who hurried away and soon returned with a can of milk, which she examined a can of milk, a can of soup, a package of cookies, and other small articles of food.

The woman said she had a tin of apples. She left a tin of apples. Powell handed her an apple. The woman said she had a tin of apples. Powell handed her an apple. The woman said she had a tin of apples. Powell handed her an apple.

ASSISTANCE COST FOR BUDGET CUT

BOISE, Jan. 16.—Governor Ballou said today that the budget figures for the department of public assistance have been arrived at following conferences in his office today with H. C. Baldrige, commissioner of public assistance, and other department officials.

The new figures, he said, have scaled down the previous request made of the legislature from $2,250,322.60 for present classifications of expenditures of the department for the 24-month period beginning June 30 to $7,615,000.

These figures, he explained, include only the costs of old-age pensions, aid to the blind, aid to dependent children, direct relief and supplemental assistance and administrative costs, almost all of which he requested by the department.

They vary from the $10,351,435.61 total for the department reported to a Republican caucus in his office last Monday on two counts, he said, specifically, they include figures for 24 months only, instead of 20, and they do not include costs of medical care and burial expenses called for in the previous announcement under terms of the senior citizens grants act.

The governor said he called attention to the difference, not because he makes any recommendations, but to explain a point he thinks needs clearing up.

"The impression went out that the $10,351,435.61 total, which I said would require a five per cent sales tax to finance, covered costs of old-age assistance alone, whereas in reality it covered the entire amount to be distributed by the department of public assistance during the past biennium."

"That figure includes only $2,250,322.60 for old age assistance, aid to the blind, aid to dependent children, direct relief and administration, as compared to $4,572,229.59 from all sources for the same expenditures during the past biennium."

STOCKMEN CLAIM U. S. 'HAMPERING'

DENVER, Jan. 16.—American farmers are getting back to producing enough meat to satisfy their needs, but the notoriety is seriously hampering their efforts through various state and federal agencies as monopsony and machinery chicanery, speakers had declared today at a national meeting of cattlemen.

Officials of the American National Live-stock association, in conversation here, sharply criticized activities of federal bureaucrats in Washington.

Speaking to delegat-stockmen from major cattle-producing states, Executive Secretary E. Mallin of Denver, told the association.

Lack in Coordination

"There has been lack of coordination between selective service headquarters and local draft boards which must be corrected if the new requisition of the need for agricultural labor is to be effective."

"Local boards have claimed their instructions and demands made upon them for quotas left them powerless to comply even key warrants."

Conscription of farm workers and migration of men to war jobs, Mallin said, have resulted in thousands of acres of farm lands which should be producing food for victory.

Directing with most organized agriculture, Bode warned that parity should not be raised because, he said, it would result in thousands of farm laborers and poverty to stock raisers.

Warning Sounded On Scarlet Fever

A warning to parents to be on watch for scarlet fever symptoms was issued last night by Dr. O. T. Parkinson, director of the district health unit.

Pointing out that there are now seven cases which have been reported, and possibly others, the doctor advised that parents keep their children home from school when they show symptoms of disease. High temperature and a sore throat, he said, should be indicated by which other children are exposed to what it may denote.

If symptoms such as these do not clear up soon, it was said, the family doctor should be called.

Cassia Hog Pool Every Two Weeks

BUNLEY, Jan. 16.—W. W. Palmer, county agent, announced today that the Cassia County Hog Marketing association would ship hogs every two weeks, instead of every week.

The county agent said that the regular shipping date, next Thursday, would be shipped with the hog marketing association starting on Thursday, Jan. 23.

The hog marketing program will continue until the end of the hog season, he said, but will be ready for marketing.

"I could hardly sleep that night worrying about her," said Mrs. Powell. "I was so sorry that I had no place for her to sleep. I hope she gets along all right."

Queries at tourist camps did not show where the woman, whose name was not learned, spent the night. But she made one very good impression before she left town, when she attracted the attention of Mrs. Mache J. Brown in front of the postoffice.

To War Industry

The local live. Brown has far she had traveled on her bicycle and showed pride in the fact that it was all on one set of tires. She had thought about buying for a while, but had virtually decided against it, and was considering looking for a war industry job on the way.

"Do you belong to any church?" she was asked.

"I worship and serve God directly," she answered. "I am confused in so many different denominations."

She gave the water a friendly smile as she handed him the handlebars, and pedaled her bicycle along the sidewalk toward west five points.

There were questions unanswered. Hundreds of Twin Falls cyclists will realize the job it would be to pedal this continental divide. She said she had the reason for her trip. Only this—knowing that through the Twin Falls, she had a tourist different from the usual one—a woman alone who apparently had herself in safe care of, but with a heart so big that she thought first of the pets who depended on her.
