

U.S. TO CONTROL WAGES ON FARM

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP) — War Food Administrator Marvin Jones today announced plans for extending government control over farm wage rates "wherever necessary" to check inflationary pressures.

Wage rates have increased during the past year due to the labor shortage which tends to force wages upward, Mr. Jones said. He needs to apply a check to prevent production costs from getting out of hand.

Acting at the direction of Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson, Jones issued regulations to govern procedure "for establishing wages and salaries of agricultural workers."

State agricultural wage boards will be appointed where necessary to hold public hearings and assist in the establishing of specific wage ceilings and in determining penalties for violations by employers, employers or employees, the announcement said.

Control in Charge

The boards will be named by Jones to function in states where the wage control is necessary. They will function under supervision of the U.S. office of labor.

The boards will function for agricultural workers in a manner similar to war labor board control over industrial wages. They are intended to prevent rises in farm production costs out of line with the stabilization program.

Under the new plan, salaries of agricultural workers earning more than $2,400 a year will be ruled that they cannot receive increases without prior approval of Jones.

Vinson also directed that no reduction be made in wages or salaries for any particular work below the highest paid for that work in 1943.

The new plan will take effect January 1 and September 1, 1944.

$2,400 Wage Limit

Jones has been given authority over farm wages up to $2,400 a year. In cases where that amount comes under jurisdiction of the committee of internal security.

The state wage boards will have authority to fix wage ceilings for any employer in a state where a board is not set up, any farm employer may not raise wages rates up to $2,400 a year without government permission.

Any employer in a state where a board is established may increase wages up to the ceiling without authorization from the board. Appeals from board decisions may be made directly to Jones.

Air Dogfights Rage as Allies Land Back of German Lines

By ROBERT VERNILLO

ABOARD A BOMBER ABOVE THE ALLIED LANDING FORCES IN ITALY, J. P. M. Jan. 22 (AP) — We are flying inland and do not know the enemy's position. Above and below in the sky ahead of us our fighters are fighting with the enemy.

Vernillo's dispatch was the first indication that the German air force had started to offer serious opposition to the landing forces. Earlier, allied planes were swooping over the beachhead.

Our gunners are calling to fighters at all odds and standing behind the co-pilot. In this plane I can see what appears to be air battles on both sides of us.

Three or four miles inland, five planes roared down and passed under our nose. Three of them were shot down. The fourth was seen to fall again before it was on its way.

Eight Messerschmitts dove below us and our gunners frantically began calling their positions.

Part of the left sprang Rome, with the fastest pursuit aircraft pouring in the haze to the north. Our engines as we start our bomb run.

We open the bomb bay and then the pilot, Lieut. Harold Beebe, Spartenburg, S. C., yells: "Hand me the helmet."

I turn to get the helmet from the floor of the navigator's compartment and I turn back the plane and black puffs appear ahead and on both sides of us.

Beebe turns back quickly to the controls. Then we pass through the fire and the helmets are forgotten. As we turn off the bomb run our bombardier, Lieut. Donald McCormick, Brookfield, Ill., yells over the interphone:

"We got 'em."

A minute later McCormick crawls past me and yells close to the tail of the plane.

Tail Gunner Hit

Lieut. Robert Olson, Waterloo, Ia., beckons to me and yells close to my ear:

"Our tail gunner was hit."

I take off my bulky parachute and crawl back over the bomb bay and find the tail of the tail gunner.

Across the shoulders of McCormick and I turn back the plane and the tail gunner's position. The fuselage and glass windows of the tail are splattered with blood and it is spread thickly across the deck.

McCormick points to the first aloft at my feet and yells:

"Any more morphine in there?"

I search the box and hand up a tube. Lottio takes it from McCormick and jabs it into the gunner's leg where he previously has cut away a long strip of his heavy, "Bandages," McCormick demands. I hand him a roll.

Gunner Dead

He and Lottio work for several minutes, then McCormick turns and says:

SUN ECLIPSE TO MISS THIS AREA

By J. HUGH PRITT

Astronomer, General Extension, University of Oregon

Slighted indeed this year are those in our part of the world who expect such spectacular sky shows as eclipses of the sun and moon. We are told that some years as many as seven of these celestial phenomena may be viewed the world over, but this year only two, both of the sun, are on the schedule for each hemisphere, and neither can be seen from our section of North America.

The total solar eclipse of Jan. 25, 1944, is of interest to all American nature students even though the best chance of viewing it would require a trip to a narrow zone across the equatorial reaches of South America. For long distances north and south of this zone, even to the continent part of the United States, it will be seen as a partial eclipse.

Travel Far to Observe Eclipse

So important are total eclipses of the sun that in natural times each expedition travels thousands of miles and at great expense to observe and photograph the phenomenon. The only way likely to be done on the continent part of the United States is to see it as a partial eclipse.

Scientists permanently stationed near the zone of the eclipse.

The path of totality, less than 200 miles wide, starts far out in the Pacific ocean west of Peru, crosses the coast of Africa at its western extremity, and finally ends in the Sahara desert.

Full View See Eclipse

Perhaps the majority of us will never witness the grandeur of a total solar eclipse, for such is rare at any one place. As the sun's brightness almost covered the sky and landscape take on unusual colors. The temperature falls and dew may form. The clouds should be visible along every white surface. Their darkness suddenly falls and the brighter stars and planets flash out. The most charming sight of all is the faint, grayish shadow on the edge of the eclipsed sun. The greatest possible duration of the total phase is 7 1/2 minutes.

'BLACK' MARKET ON RADIO FOUGHT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP) — A determined effort by government agencies today appeared to have made serious inroads into a black market in prisoner-of-war information — a black market whose "traders" often dispensed enemy propaganda to combat the war effort.

The situation arose, a spokesman explained, because the enemy adopted a technique of siphoning names of American prisoners in their propaganda broadcasts in order to attract listeners hoping to hear something about a loved one.

To aid the difficulty, a "trader" using up whereby traders would have been in the enemy broadcasts, then write to relatives of men whose names they heard, offering to sell them the information received — often erroneously or garbled — for money.

They were to be the same thing as for money, but just trying to be helpful with the same effect. Promoters may be interested by the enemy's endeavor to further his propaganda efforts, and the radio structure is intended to win prestige and listeners for the enemy broadcast.

Well-informed military radio operators after did the same thing for money, but just trying to be helpful with the same effect. ## Double Honor for Air Cadet Stettler

It was honor to top his aviation cadet class in one category — but when you're the leader in two branches it's definitely out of the ordinary.

AUTHOR SUED BY SALT LAKE MEN

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 22 (AP) — While bodyguards stood watch last night, John Earl Carlson, author of "Under Cover," recently completed his scheduled lecture at the University of Utah. He had been notified a few minutes before that he was being sued by three Salt Lake citizens who claimed they were maligned in Carlson's purported expose.

Carlson at first would say nothing more than, "I have no comment; anything has happened, it's just that some men are looking for censure." He had been notified the incident had already cost him several thousand dollars, "apparently referring to lawyer's fees."

A summons demanded Carlson be available within 20 days to answer a libel complaint which was to be filed within the next few days in district court. The libel was filed by three Salt Lake men, the same Carlson and seven allies.

The papers were signed by Attorney J. H. McKnight, at counsel for himself, Jeremiah Stokes and Ernest Hollings. Each complaint asked $100,000 damages.

Two sheriff's deputies served the summons on Carlson at his hotel room just before the lecture.

McKnight's attorney, Knox Patterson, refused to reveal the specific nature of the complaints to be filed. However, Hollings and the book author have Carlson's quotation, over Hollings name, that "Japan and Germany would join in a fight to preserve the constitution." Hollings claimed he had told Carlson only that "the Germans and the Japanese would help preserve the constitution."

Community Award Given Four; Sieber Wins U. S. Jaycee Medal

By PAT PALMER

Tribute was paid to four civic leaders for outstanding community service during the past year at the fourth annual community awards banquet held at the Legion Memorial hall Friday evening. Those who received honor scrolls this year were Kenneth Shook, Mrs. J. P. Thomas, C. R. Nelson and Mrs. Ralph W. Carpenter. The U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce distinguished service man was presented to Charles Z. Sieber as the "outstanding young man."

Winners of the awards were chosen by a general committee from nominations submitted by various civic organizations in the community. The "outstanding young man" was elected by the Twin Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce and received approval of the national Jaycee organization.

The annual service awards banquet is sponsored by the Twin Falls Jaycees, the idea originating by a past Junior Chamber president, Robert H. Warner. Scrolls were given honorees in lieu of the gold keys which were presented the first two years of the project. When keys are again available, this year's winners and those of a year ago will receive them to supplement their honor scrolls.

Varied Activity
Shook, the first to be presented with a scroll, was cited for outstanding work on the war bond drive. Community Chest and public drives in connection with civilian service and regional activities. He is treasurer of the Twin Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Chamber of Commerce, is on the post-war planning board of both groups, and acted as chairman of various wartime service committees.

Mrs. Thomas was credited with "perseverance and untiring interest" as leader in production of surgical dressings, and other work connected with the Twin Falls Red Cross chapter. "It has been no small task to supervise, train workers and be responsible for the reception of the raw materials and the shipping of the finished products," her citation read.

War Loan Leader
The third civic leader to be presented with a scroll was C. R. Nelson, who was chairman of the seed and third war bond drive and did an outstanding job in "putting it over." Nelson is vice-president of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the C. O. C. and city planning committees.

Mrs. R. W. Carpenter, the fourth civic honoree, was cited for outstanding work done in "local Red Cross activities. During 1943 she was recording secretary for the chapter and acted on the executive committee in an advisory capacity on home service. This past year she was sewing chairman in the production department, and when the camp and hospital unit was formed, she accepted that additional chairmanship task.

Mayor Bert A. Sweet presented the awards.

As the years "outstanding young man," Charles Sieber was praised for his work in leadership of the Jaycees, his activities in a citywide vocational program and in the "civic affairs for servicemen" project. He was also called the "moving spirit" behind the first Magic Valley home show. His medal was presented by

Oregon-Wanted Man Found Under Stack of Bedclothing

The suspicions of a couple of officers regarding disarranged bedclothes landed James A. Keller, 26, in the county jail Friday, where he was being held for Pendleton, Ore., officers, who are to call for him this week-end.

Keller's arrest was requested by Pendleton officers, who said he was wanted there for obtaining money under false pretense. Deputy Sheriff John E. Leiser and City Policeman Fred Zimmerman went to the Keller home to look for the man.

The officers were told by Mrs. Keller that her husband was "up and looking for work." However, the bed in the one-room apartment attracted their attention, and Keller proved to be hiding under a disarrayed stack of bedclothes.

ALBION CLOSING PLEA CRITICIZED

VICTOR, Jan. 22 (AP)—State Sen. Francis C. Gillette, R., Twin Falls, today criticized the closing of the Albion school for a year as a "plea for a miracle."

There was only one place to have taken care of that situation, and that was in the finance committee of the state board of education for the year 1943-44, which was a year of both emergency and of the state's financial crisis. The school was closed for a year, and the state would have been forced to make any appropriation.

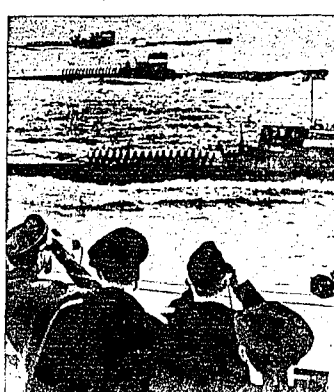

There were some members on that committee who felt that way; unfortunately they were in the minority.

Turning to civilian defense and the state guard, Gillette said that the OGD should have had no appropriation and the state guard should have been disbanded.

Referring to a resolution by the state association of county assessors in convention in Boise last week, he said:

"It also is where the assessors are fighting the change in the amendment which would give us a tax commission, perhaps they feel that they carried out and get their own business-like basis with respect to the tax structure John G. Public will have no further use for the assessor."

NEW DEHYDRATING PLAN DEVELOPED

MOSCOW, Jan. 22 (AP)—A new dehydrating process for potatoes which will increase the output 20 to 50 per cent has been developed at the University of Idaho college of agriculture.

Under current process, potatoes are peeled or skinned off before dehydrating, resulting in a loss of sometimes 50 per cent of the potato and creating a serious waste disposal problem.

Robert Herford, agricultural engineer, and Olof E. Stenberg, agricultural chemist, at baking the potatoes in one of the units essential of the new process. Baking reduces the loss and makes it possible to convert the skins into a form useful for stock feed.

Approximately one-third of the nation's dehydrated potatoes—now important in food-stuffs and shipments to troops overseas—are produced in Idaho. The 1943 output was 60 times as large as in 1941.

Music Starved GI's Like the Classics; Officers Take Jazz

By HAL BOYER

AN AMERICAN NAVY BOMBER BASE IN ITALY, Jan. 15 (AP)—A concert planned to entertain the GI's at this base in Italy was postponed because of the lack of music.

The officers seem to go in more for "heavy" music," said Lieut. Robert Wallenborn, of the 13th air force, who used to accompany flight crews and other metropolitan opera stars.

Wallenborn, whose parents live in Chicago, has 37. He enlisted 14 months ago and gave a concert last fall over the AEP station at Casablanca.

Enthusiasm now appeared more interested in that type of music than the officers," he said. "At least that was my experience. Perhaps I will have to take up boogie woogie yet."

Wallenborn was greatly encouraged by the high attendance of men in the ranks at symphony concerts given three times a week by an Italian orchestra in Rome.

"The audiences have been almost no per cent GI," he said. "This is the first time that any of these men have had in their life to attend a real symphony concert. The fact they like it is a sign there is a new interest in good music back home."

Maj. Max Boyer, former Washington, D. C., newspaperman prevented an unusual combination of events from his mother-in-law, Mrs. Will F. Plummer, Springfield, Mass.

Wallenborn said, however, that in one hand was a deck of playing

MILLER DEFAULTS IN UNIONS' CASE

BOISE, Jan. 22 (AP)—Secretary of State George H. Curtis today made a formal appearance in third district court to keep alive a suit designed to test validity of a 1943 law forcing labor unions to file financial statements with the secretary of state and prohibiting picketing of farms and other agricultural premises.

At the same time, Atty. Gen. Bert H. Miller entered his default on grounds that previously he had held in several opinions the law was unconstitutional. As a defendant he was to have upheld its validity.

In order that the entire case not go by default to the American Federation of Labor and affiliated unions, who brought the suit and asked full court determination of issues, Curtis was obligated to constitute a defendant. He was not represented by counsel today.

It was understood that his counsel may be secured by the Idaho State Grange which sponsored the anti-union bill at the last legislature.

Other defendants are Oliver Koelsch, Ada county prosecutor, and Sheriff Don Headrick, in behalf of all prosecutors and sheriffs, whom the labor union seeks to restrain from enforcing the law.

A demurrer in the action was argued today by George Demart, Waterbury, attorney for the unions, and Oliver Koelsch.

LABOR VS. FARMER

Editor, Times-News:

In reading Mr. Crawford's farm Grange picture in Times-News, we have wondered who appointed him and why. His views on politics, labor, union, labor and politics are not the leading view of our Grange leaders, farmers, nor farm publications, yet unrepresented farmers might easily suppose they were.

Union labor is fighting the repeal of farm subsidies because they want high wages and high food. At the same time they want no sales tax or any other tax that would have them paying for those subsidies. Certainly, the subsidy doesn't help the farmer pay the tax back in increased taxes. And according to recent figures the man receiving the big income is clearly in the confusion point. And there you have it.

What happened to our national economy during the new deal reign, that the laborer can no longer pay the farmer what it is worth to produce the food?

The subsidies hardly hold water when every day figures show increased bank savings, big Christmas shopping, not enough money, and night clubs going strong. It is time we start acknowledging that labor dictators with money bags bulging from fees and commissions from laborers, backed by armed police, favors from the new deal in return for votes, are just a greedy and corrupt as ever corporations were in their big day. Wise-cracks and sharp points at critics of such corruption aren't hurting Westbrook Pegler or H. V. Kaltenborn, proving anything or solving any problems. When these men or any one else ever names, facts and figures, places they still stand unless disproven.

The new deal was supposed to be the farmer's friend. But it took another war to put the farmer back to the running. Then the government decided the farmer was bringing no solution, though labor and farmers had won strike after strike without being called inflationists. The government's attitude toward farmers may expect at the war's close if still in power. In the meantime, there will likely be a farm subsidy.

Norway, in its native goodness, virtually nourished invasion as it fed the half-starved German children. German children who grew to manhood after the first world conflict to return as invaders... "Speaking the language with all its charm" as Auslander puts it in his "Open Letter to the Unconquerable Norwegians," one of a series which has appeared in The Saturday Evening Post. But Norway even in the face of this infamous invasion, has preserved its principles of freedom. Norway's men have fled the invaded shores... not in flight... but to reach other shores from which they may fight back for their mother country. They fled in fishing smacks, on skis, on skates... in any manner to reach freedom-loving countries where they might find other forces banded against the oppression of Nazism and their Quilings. These men will return, for in their hearts and the hearts of their countrymen burns the fierce fire of freedom. The Norwegians love freedom—they fight for it!
