Nazi Raider Who Makes WACS Tear Hose Public Enemy No. 1

By RUTH COWAN
LONDON, Jan. 27 (AP)—A group of WACS, together with their commanding officer, Lieut. Vera von Stien, Los Angeles, former Hollywood script writer, were all dressed up one night recently.

Their uniforms were carefully pressed. They had applied a lot of "lip and polish" to their shoes, as the British say, for they were setting out to a party in a town near their medium bomber base.

They were walking down a country road to catch an enemy truck when a "crash alarm," meaning that enemy aircraft are near a military installation, was sounded. Accounts to alert, the girls continued on their way, but suddenly alarms began to fall in a nearby field.

"Into that ditch by the road," commanded Lieut. von Stien.

The raider passed on, and out they climbed.

regular army and had previously been retired but was called again to duty in World War II. He has just returned from Michael house, where he had spent 10 days.

The mud had been deep. There were several females with "I've got a run in my stocking!" And nothing can make them madder at Jerry than that.

Back to the barracks trooped the muddy WACS.

"Sure we went on to the party," said Lieut. von Stien. "You didn't think we would let Hitler keep us from that, did you?"

Rumor has it that when Orson, Dwight Eisenhower, Hitler's brother, put his allied headquarters for the invasion set up, a number of WACS will get some excellent jobs.

It was General Eisenhower, when allied commander in northern Africa, who was willing to take a chance on women soldiers working out okay in a war zone. He asked that a detachment be sent over, and with some trembling the U. S. war department sent out that small pioneer group just a year ago in January.

Now there are more WACS in north Africa and WACS in Italy, and the WACS in Britain are numbered in four figures.

POWER OF FBI'S GAG FACES TEST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—The President's right to prevent government officials from taking any action which might be challenged by a house committee, is being indicated today following the second refusal by J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI to testify in an investigation of the federal communications commission.

Hoover declined to answer questions which the law committee was prepared to propound to him, saying that the President had issued a directive which forbade him from discussing matters affecting national security.

Gez Into Huddle
The committee went into a huddle to discuss the future course. There were indications the house might be asked to rule Hoover in contempt of the committee.

Attorney General Biddle, supporting Hoover, declined to make public the President's directive, asserting that "communications between the President and the attorney general are confidential and privileged and are not subject to inquiry by a committee of one of the houses of congress."

Security Involved
He added, however, that the directive stated that because the transactions involved relate to the internal security of the country, it would not be in the public interest, or any officer of the department, to furnish them or to discuss any correspondence concerning them.

Hoover declined under similar circumstances last week to answer many questions concerning financial efforts to obtain from the FBI fingerprints of maritime radio operators.

LOW PAY TERMED HARMFUL TO WAR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—A 32-year-old engineer pictured himself as a congressional committee Wednesday as one of the thousands of "white collar" technicians struggling to do good jobs in war production under the handicap of inadequate salaries.

J. Curtis Hoyt, who said he was a mechanical engineer for a large manufacturing company at Upper Darby, Penn., told a senate labor subcommittee headed by Senator Pepper, D., Pa.

"Unless some method is found to halt the rising cost of living or provide a substantial increase in income, many white collar workers, besides resigning on previous commitments, are going to find themselves faced with declining health."

Although his income had increased every year to a present 40-hour a week rate of $2,817 annually and he has added to this by working overtime, by signing and by serving with Pennsylvania militia, Hoyt declared he now has to carry his lunch to work.

He added that he has had to give up subscriptions to technical societies and magazines and as a consequence of failure to keep up with "developments" "I become less valuable to the profession as I grow older."

ENDORSES J. R. CRAWFORD'S COLUMN

Editor, Times-News:
I think Mr. Crawford is a well-informed and fair-minded columnist. I do not agree with him on everything but admire him for presenting things as he sees them and I thought that was what a good and honest columnist was supposed to do.

Here is a quotation I thought worthwhile: "One of the dangerous and yet inevitable consequences of our industrial civilization is the existence of economic pressure groups. It is the work of the politicians to compromise these economic pressures. The stability of our social order depends upon this compromise."

"To do this requires understanding especially as regards labor. There are many millions of Americans who have but little knowledge of the labor movement. All they hear or read about is strikes, threats and violence. They never see a picture of John L. Lewis that does not depict him as looking like a threat to the peace. They do not know the pressures behind the labor movement and the ideals that animate it."

The farmers in this area are now facing lower priced eggs and higher priced feed. If the price of eggs can be lowered why can't the price of feed be lowered?

ARGENTINA TAKES ANTI-AXIS STEPS

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 27 (AP)—

Argentina cancelled all ship departures from Buenos Aires today in a swift follow-up to its severance of relations with Germany and Japan.

The suspension of ship departures, along with a companion order from the merchant marine for all Argentine ships abroad to remain in foreign ports pending further instructions, was believed designed to lessen the possibility of retaliatory sinkings by axis submarines.

Three ships had been scheduled to sail from Buenos Aires today.

Telephones Cut Off
Radio telephone communication between Argentina and Berlin and Tokyo also was suspended.

Speedy and drastic measures designed to smash completely deep-rooted German and Japanese espionage activities in Argentina were expected to follow soon.

Norman Armour, U. S. ambassador, and Sir David Kelly, British ambassador, were scheduled to see Foreign Minister Alberto Gilibert today for the first time since the break with the axis was announced yesterday.

It was believed likely that Gilibert would seek to arrange for the importation of raw products and machinery from the United States and Britain to replenish Argentina's shrinking stocks.

Measures Contemplated
Among the anti-axis measures which Argentina was believed con-

"Where will I find the fat donors' bank?"

templating were: Close supervision of all axis nationals; dissolution of German clubs, which have served as fronts for espionage; possible closure of the German transoceanic news agency and rigid control and possible expropriation of German business and industrial firms.

More severance of relations, however, pointed out, will not necessarily smash the extensive axis spy network operating here so long as Argentina remains a haven for axis-controlled business firms, social organizations and newspapers serving an estimated 350,000 Germans and their children.

Scores of axis centers were reported to have hidden interests here, and some quarters said German interests alone may equal or exceed America's Argentine interests.

HOUSE NAMES 18 TO STUDY PEACE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—The house created today an 18-member post-war economic policy and planning committee as a step toward a "stable economy and a just peace" with emphasis on private enterprise for economic development.

Representative Colmer, tall, red-haired Mississippi Democrat, was named by Speaker Baughman, D., Tex., to head the group.

Colmer told the house that paramount aim of the committee for the post-war era would be a cessation of "warlike regimentation of the people" and a guarantee for the continuation of free enterprise.

Representative Fish, New York, was named as the ranking Republican member.

The committee, some members said, would undertake much of the work on behalf of the house that was done by the national resources and planning board, abolished by congress last year.

Colmer said the committee would study and make recommendations on such post-war factors as equitable termination of war contracts; disposition of surplus war commodities and government-owned plants; new markets, both foreign and domestic; demobilization and effect on unemployment; and post war public works.

Proverb to Be Basis of Speech Here

There is an ancient Hindu proverb which says "only friends warn; enemies strike." Dr. Kirtanlal Shridharani, author and lecturer on India, uses the theme of this proverb in his latest book, "Warning to the West," and will develop it in detail when he speaks before the Twin Falls Town Hall association, 8 p. m. Friday, Jan. 28, at the high school auditorium. He will be introduced by R. S. Tolpelt.

All eyes are now turned toward India as the inevitable background of Asia, and Americans find it difficult to understand the failure of both the British and American missions which went to India to gain that country's war support.

Dr. Shridharani explains that it is not merely for the west nor friendship for Japan which prompted the action of the all-India congress, but rather a desire for freedom above all else.

India, he says, will never aid Japan, for she looks forward to the day when she can join the great brotherhood of democratic nations throughout the world.
