crew as his non-battle job—when his ship went into action time and again in the New Guinea area. New Britain areas Petty Officer second class O. Marshall Johnson served as gun crewmen through a kinds of hot campaigning.

He's home at Elmer now on leave after 10 months combat duty in the southwest Pacific with the navy amphibious force. Those 10 months he played a variety of floating roles.

At one of those two places his ship was attacked by 11 Jap torpedo planes and nine divebombers simultaneously. Petty Officer Johnna knows for certain that his gun crew bagged one of those Jap torpedoes.

As for his non-battle job of bandaging, he said only with a grin, "That keeps a man humming."

Petty Officer Johnson said he received his Times-News and his File Citizen-Record regularly. He added:

"We'd read our papers out there, and we'd see where the bandages had to be urged time and again to help make Red Cross bandages. They seemed strange to us . . . very strange. Nobody out there, you know, has to be urged."

The sailor is son of Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Johnson, Filer, and grandson of C. E. Rutter, also of Filer. He home on delayed orders.

FLEERS TELL OF RAID ON BERLIN

(Editor's note: Upwards of 10,000 American airmen participated in yesterday's history-making raid on Berlin. Nearly 100 were killed or captured in one of the fiercest air battles of the war. Two of those who came back tell their own stories of that battle in the clouds. Second Lieut. John Longenecker, 25, Kansas City, Mo., is a Fortress navigator. First Lieut. Robert E. Moser, 23, Sandpoint, Ida., is the pilot of a Mustang fighter.)

BY SECOND LIEUT.

JACK LONGENECKER
March 7 (AP)—Told in United Press U. S. BOMBER STATION, ENO, March 7 (AP)—There were 100 men in my barracks yesterday morning. Only eight of us went to bed last night.

Some of those who didn't come back crashed in flaming planes in the streets of Berlin.

The German fighters came in waves of six or eight, with wings lit up with blinding gun-lights. They were up there in the air, some of them, and they were down there, some of them, and they were all over the place.

The first group knocked down two Fortresses. One exploded.

Then six more fighters came the same way, and every one of them was downed. They were all over the place.

There would be a big flash of flame and a plane would disappear into the night.

On the 7th of March, formation, but time and time again I saw the German fighters go through narrow lanes between our bombers. Out in front of us there was a tremendous dogfight with hundreds of fighters swirling around. The sky seemed full of burning planes and explosions of smoke.

Our Mustangs and Lightnings were doing a hell of a job. My brother Joe was in the latter group, and my hat is off to him.

Formation closed up.

Fighters would come in and make great holes in our formation, but other Fortresses would come in to fill up the gaps. I was sweating so much I had to turn off my headset.

I was scared stiff, and I guess I must have been a little bit of a coward.

It was a tremendous sight, and when they passed five Fortresses were gone. Then other bombers came into them, and a lot of German fighters suddenly disappeared.

BY FIRST LIEUT.

ROBERT MOSER
As Told to United Press U. S. BOMBER STATION, ENO, March 7 (AP)—We met our bombers just southwest of Berlin and had our first encounter. It developed into a running dogfight all the way into the city.

The bombers were in flank when we saw Messerschmitt 109s coming in from the sun. We turned to meet them, and they started climbing.

Then we saw a Second Lieut. Glenn H. Pites, 20, Boise, Idaho, and I and met them head-on 20,000 feet above the edge of Berlin.

They dived after us, and we went after them.

Our planes dived to 10,000 feet going 600 miles an hour in the dive. There was a lot of red buildings, little lakes and streets going all directions.

I came to my senses, realized our position, and got out of there.

Pites told me later he saw bombers dropping bombs on sections of Berlin. He saw big fires and smoke. I was too busy to look.

Jerome Honors Two Community Workers

This was the scene when a community honored two of its most selfless citizens at the annual Jerome community awards banquet Tuesday night. Miss Edith Nancules, Jerome high school instructor, the woman on the right, is shown receiving an inscribed gold locket from Mrs. William A. Peters, winner of last year's award. Walter Hedrick, the other winner, is shown at the left. At the left is Oris Griffith, who presented an inscribed gold chain and collar pin to Mr. Hedrick. 20 IN SECT HELD ON U.S. CHARGES

BALT. LAMAR CITY, March 7 (AP)—Federal agents today arrested 20 leaders of a Utah religious sect known as the Fundamentalist Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, charging them with mail fraud, obscenity, conspiracy, and violation of the Lindbergh kidnapping law as a result of advertisement of the practice of polygamy by the group.

Those arrested in the biggest mass campaign against polygamy in Utah since it was outlawed by the organized Mormon church more than 50 years ago were named in 10 indictments returned by a federal grand jury that had been meeting since last week.

Federal authorities hoped through the arrests to completely wipe out polygamy in Utah. Most of those arrested were members of the "fundamentalist" sect, which has a membership of about 2,000. Leaders of the sect, which is completely outlawed in Utah, are known as "patriarchs." The church, have advocated practice of polygamy in church meetings and in their small magazines, called "Truth."

Funeral Held for Dietrich Solder

SHOSHONE, March 7 (AP)—Funeral services for P. C. Solder, 30, Shoshone, Idaho, who died Feb. 28 in Santa Barbara, Calif., following three weeks' illness, were held at 2 p. m. Monday in the Shoshone Masonic hall with the D. D. S. church in charge.

Prayer was offered by Elder Sam Williams and the eulogy was read by Elder David C. Nelson.

Speakers were Elder D. K. Hinder, Jerome, and President W. L. Adams, Carey, Bannock county, was by Hiram Christensen, Wendell.

A quartet was offered by Mrs. and Mr. Howard Titman, Leon Knowles and Gertrude Nelson, Vocal solos were sung by Elder Huff and S. L. Nannville.

Interment was in the Shoshone cemetery, where Solder was buried. The burial was the direction of the Burdett funeral home.

Military police from Hunt acted as firing squad.

Mother Strangles Baby for Crying

BALTIMORE, March 7 (AP)—Because his crying annoyed his mother, a 6-week-old baby had been strangled to death today, Mrs. Mabel Takata, 23, the alleged slayer, was being held by police.

The child was found in the middle of a bedroom floor yesterday morning. Takata lay sleeping on a nearby cot. Police said she admitted strangling the boy.

Police found the mother and child had been asleep in the bedroom. The child's screams awakened the mother, Officer said Mrs. Takata took him from his crib, placed him in the middle of the floor and choked him into silence, then climbed back into her bed.

BEER SALES IN BURLEY RESUME

BURLEY, March 7 (AP)—Burley's four hall sales will begin selling beer on Friday, ending a dry spell which began Jan. 1.

At the Monday night meeting of the city council the third and final reading of ordinance 387 was heard and unanimously adopted.

After legal publication on Thursday the city clerk has been authorized to issue licenses. The on city call and the Rose Cigar store for selling both draft and bottled beer will be the first to receive licenses.

The new ordinance provides that after a license is issued the first time a sale cannot be issued for 60 days. In case of a second violation a 180-day wait is necessary.

In case of conviction the license is lost forever.

Four licenses issued Jan. 1, because the Rose Cigar store and Sprague's Sport Shop were convicted of gambling during 1943 and a report was received from the sheriff's office that the Cigar and Cigarette's Place had allowed gambling. Mayor C. F. McDonald said that evidence was still being gathered which might make it necessary for the city to revoke or let lapse beer licenses, but he was doubtful of this.

He warned pool hall operators to observe the ordinance strictly after that.

Also introduced at Monday night's city council session was an ordinance to revise present ordinance No. 237, which prohibits drunkenness on city streets, alleys and in public places, providing fines and jail sentences.

Also discussed was the proposed use of city money from contingent funds to general, fire and garbage funds in cases of necessity.

Other matters under discussion were eliminating radio interference, selling certain city equipment and Burley airport problems.

Record U.S. Navy Has 900 Vessels

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Knox said today that the American fleet—the largest in world history—now consists of more than 900 warships.

"This fleet includes all small craft," the navy chief added at a news conference. Knox also disclosed that the carrier group of the Essex type will include more than 11 ships originally scheduled for that class. He gave no details.

Turning to the subject of German U-boats, Knox quoted an announcement in London that less than one percent of the German submarine fleet was lost in the last half of 1943. He warned, however, that "the war isn't over. The Germans have a large number of submarines in reserve and at any time may decide on a fresh foray."

Hitler Enters American Navy

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP)—A nephew of Adolf Hitler entered the active service of the United States navy Monday.

William Patrick Hitler, son of Alois Hitler, the father-in-law of Joseph Goebbels, was in a group of selectees certified from Buna yard, Queens, to the navy. He was sent to a navy recruiting station here to be assigned to a training camp.

DETAIL FOR TODAY Spook

A spook is a warty non-com who makes up on many privates and present them into service on some undesirable detail. Unlike most non-coms, who can be posted, a SPOOK dodges around corners, slides stealthily through barracks and walks on his toes. When his hand drops upon a G. I.'s shoulder it's a terrifying experience for the G. I., especially when he has gone to great lengths to find a spot to rest where he believes he'll be safe. Some G. I.'s have thought of setting bear traps to snare the SPOOK, but there are priorities to contend with. Many believe that the SPOOK gets that way from feeling gassed movies.

WIRE TESTIMONY HIT N SLAYING

PITTSFIELD, Mass., March 7 (AP)—The brightness of an exposed lamp cord wire—the supposed instrument of death in the electrocution of a manly defendant—six months-old Lawrence Norton — did not necessarily indicate the length of time it was exposed. A General Electric company wire expert testified today in the murder trial of John P. Norton, Jr., 41-year-old corporation lawyer.

On the witness stand for the greater part of the eighth day of trial of the attorney who is charged with the slaying of a woman, Norton testified that he had seen the wire through the chink of the chair. "I STOPPED DOSING MY CONSTIPATION A YEAR AGO!"

KELOGG'S ALL-BRAN User
If you are still dosing your constipation, don't fail to read this unsolicited letter.

"If you could avoid with common constipation for years, I'd make a million dollars. I tried KEOLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. It's a bran cereal, without sugar or laxative. I've not taken one since. I don't feel any more constipated. I can't wait to tell you about it."

Sounds like magic, doesn't it? If you have constipation, KEOLOGG'S ALL-BRAN can really "get at" a common cause of constipation — lack of dietary "cellulose" elements—because it is one of Nature's most powerful sources of these elements! They help the friendly colonic flora fluff up and prepare the colon for easy elimination. KEOLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative! It doesn't "sweep you out!" It's a gentle-cleansing, "regulating" food.

If you have constipation of this kind, eat KEOLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, or several other KEOLOGG'S cereals regularly. Drink plenty of water. See if you can't find relief. Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Upstairs Jane was persuaded to go back to bed. But she had received the story of Randall's fight, and she was feeling well and out-of-doors of all places, with extreme skepticism. Peg Graham was too exhausted to deal competently with that problem, so she left it off until morning, and went down to join Kitty, who found her standing quite still, in the middle of the room.

"I thought I heard Mac," said Peg at random, upon which Kitty's strained expression.

"He was here, but he's gone for good, I imagine."

Peg started to say something, changed her mind, and said instead, "Sit down, Kitty, you look dead. I suppose you ought to go to bed too."

"Let's wait until Ben comes back," said Kitty in a flat voice. She sat down as though she didn't know she'd been standing until Peg mentioned it. "Peg, do you think Ben will know about Randall?"

"I think so," said Peg, who didn't know she'd been standing until Peg mentioned it. "Peg, do you think Ben will know about Randall?"

"Kitty dear, stop torturing your mind," said Randall. "The doctor said you were all right. Doctor Fisher said only a few minutes more would have."

Ben came in, looking tired. He said that the doctor said he'd be pretty sick for a few days. Kitty asked fearfully if Mac had said anything more.

"Now listen, Kitty," said Ben, "hurry on to yourself. Mac can't do you any harm. I'll see to it that she doesn't."

"How can you?" said Kitty indignantly. "I thought of something, after Mac left. They aren't people for trying to commit suicide. Yes, they do! What will Mac do now? Shall I say terrible things to him, but what she'll do to me, she'll make everybody pay."

Ben moved uneasily in his chair. "Stop jabbering about arrests," he said uncomfortably. "I don't if they really arrest a chap like Randall anyway."

"You don't know," said Kitty. She looked off into space. Ben meant well, but he didn't know. Collins would know about arrests, and in a crisis Collins was a rock. It seemed to Kitty that she couldn't possibly do what she knew she had to do. And yet with her new clear vision, the vision that made her see other people as strangely larger and more distinct than herself, she saw that she had to do her best for Peg and Ben.

"Ben," she said pleadingly. "Collins would know what to do!"

"We're doing all right," said Ben, affronted at being thought less adequate than Collins.

"I don't feel right about anything," contradicted Kitty, "and neither do you. You aren't any more than I am! It's things aren't going to get even more complicated. Please, Ben, won't you at least call Collins and tell him about it? Just to see what he says."

Peg opened her mouth to say something, thought twice, and closed it.

"Listen, Kitty," said Ben after a pause. "I'm not being pickled, and I know you're upset, and I don't blame you. But I'm not going to call Collins. If anybody calls for help, you'll have to be the one to do it. If you feel you're in a spot and that he's the one to help you out of it, then I think you ought to go ahead and call him. But I won't, and that's final."

"If you don't quit that string-pulling habit, Joe, you'll be sorry some day!"

BRITISH WARNED OF U-BOAT DRIVE

LONDON, March 7 (AP)—A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, warned common today that Germany is preparing a new U-boat campaign to cripple allied sea communications and promised that Great Britain will contribute to the far eastern war to the maximum of its power.

He said allied shipping losses in 1943 were below most optimistic hopes at the beginning of the year, but estimated that the Germans still have as many submarines as at the start of last year.

Sunk at Andia
Alexander disclosed that the 3,700-ton British cruiser Penelope—whose loss was announced today—had been sunk, like the cruiser Egan, the destroyer James and the freighter and five major naval vessels, in the Atlantic and Pacific waters wherever further action is to be expected, he said.

When he heard Japan for the first time, our maritime forces will, more obviously than for general reasons, be the victims of the whole strategy," Alexander said.

His remarks followed by one day a charge published by the London Daily Mail that a group of opposing British financiers, businessmen and members of parliament had begun to work for a compromise peace with Japan.

"There is not the slightest evidence that the enemy has in any way abandoned his intention to cripple our sea communications if he possibly can," he said in introducing new estimates.

U-Boats Improved
"On the contrary, the Germans still are making every endeavor to improve the performance and equipment of their U-boats. They have provided them with greatly increased firepower, have installed a new acoustic torpedo into service, and we must expect further developments still."

"In 1941 one ship was lost of 100, in 1942 one of every 344, in 1943 one of every 344. The losses in these convoys during the second half of last year were less than one of every 1,000."

Alexander said that a little more than one-half of the "working estimate" of ships the allies expected to lose in 1943 actually was lost and that "the average for the last eight months also is below the level of 1942."

The Public Forum

THE ROOSEVELT POLICIES
Editor, Times-News:
There is an awful upsurge in the land about our foreign policy—what I think is more correctly called Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policy. Soldiers, columnists, politicians, laborers—just nearly everybody is up in arms against the foreign policy. They ask, "What is the foreign policy?"

Mr. Roosevelt has, also, a domestic policy. I presume many of these same people want to know what is his domestic policy. His domestic policy is "The redistribution of wealth." Everything else, domestically, is subordinate to that one idea. Anybody who does not like that policy should have begun working against it back in '32, certainly in '35, as I did.

Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policy can be stated just as simply as his domestic policy. And everything foreign is subordinated to that one idea. Anybody who does not like his foreign policy should have begun working against it in 1937, as I did. Evidently, as soon as Mr. Roosevelt knew the results of the 1936 election, he resolved that minute what his foreign policy would be.

OWI SAYS LABOR QUITTING COAST

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—A new and serious war problem, the office of war information reported today, is that many workers who formerly rallied to crowded industrial areas are now simply "going home."

This is particularly true of the west coast, OWI said, adding that in the San Francisco area the migration has reached alarming proportions.

Although the OWI did not say so, the inclination of workers to go home is being cited by the armed forces as an argument for a national service act. It also has stirred considerable concern in labor circles here.

As for the west coast—where the labor shortage was somewhat eased after last summer's acute shortage—manpower officials have predicted that when the war shifts more to the west coast, that area will experience another manpower crisis worse than the first.

As the labor department has announced, December was the first month since the United States entered the war that industry suffered a net loss in its working force. OWI calculated that of every 1,000 workers employed, 54 quit, were drafted or were discharged individually in December, and only 51 were hired. This net loss of three workers in 1,000 was increased to 12 per thousand by the added fact that group layoffs in December were the highest recorded since July, 1942. Nine workers were laid off for every thousand on the pay roll.

Technical Cpl. Charles E. Heath has been transferred from Camp Chaffee, Ark., to Camp Campbell, Ky.

Technical Cpl. Laverne Rhinehart, who is somewhere in the southwest Pacific, has notified his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Rhinehart, that he will return to the United States in the spring. He has been in active service for two years.

Cpl. George Bennett has been in New Guinea since January. Avn. Cadet Jack Newell has been transferred from Bismarck, N. I., to the Margarette university at Millwaukee, Wis., to receive further training.

Pfc. Vernon Sheppard is again hospitalized at Stanton, Va., for treatment of an injured arm which he received in battle in north Africa. Cpl. Emory J. Bennett is in England.

Leut. Frank Ganton, who has been in training at Fort Belvoir, Mo., has completed his traditional training and is now in the 1st Infantry Division.

Truman Newby, carpenter's mate second class, has been transferred from Clifton, N. J., to Fort Huachuca, Calif.

Cpl. Clifton Cramer is on duty somewhere in the Pacific.

Miss Lela Arnold left recently for her home in Wichita, Kan., after acting as bookkeeper for the C. C. Anderson store here since last fall. She had been living with her sister, Mrs. Maurice Buck. Miss Kathleen Peterson succeeds Miss Arnold as bookkeeper here.

Floyd Prater, Pasadena Valley, will hold a public sale at his farm, Friday, March 10.

Mrs. Ruth Landley has purchased the beauty shop formerly belonging to Mrs. Dorothy Wilcox. Mrs. Wilcox has owned and operated the shop at the rear of the Montague barber shop for the past two years.
