SKILLED WORKER RETURN SEEKS AS HELP TO FARMS

Approaching parity between net incomes of farm workers and those employed in war industries is expected to help ease the shortage of skilled handworkers of farm machinery this year, it was said here today by R. T. Magley, Portland, Ore., chief of operations for the seven-state division of WPA.

Farm wages were much slower to rise than industrial wages, said Magley, in an interview following the opening season of a three-day conference of WPA camp personnel of Idaho and Utah in the Idaho Power company auditorium. For that reason many farm workers flocked to the industrial centers, which contributed to the farm labor shortage.

However, many of them are now coming back into farming. Farm wages have risen since they went to work in the shipyards, for one reason. Along with those with families take into consideration that they can get milk and garden vegetables easily and cheaply. This makes the net income differential between farming and industrial work smaller than might be thought.

Magley mentioned the return of war workers to the farm in connection with the observation that the only likely shortage in farm labor this year will be in the category of skilled machinery operators. "Mexicans are not used to machinery," he said, "and those we recruit in Mexico simply cannot do that kind of work."

The WPA executive said it would be this phase of farming that would suffer from the stepped draft of farm workers, under 26 years of age, and that returning war workers would be one alternative for this shortage.

Tells of Operation Magley was the principal speaker on the opening program of the conference, explaining the operation of the WPA organization, which about 50 labor camp employees, including 10 from Utah and several from Missouri, Oregon, and others, were from camps throughout the Snake river valley.

NEW DISPUTE ON SUBSIDY FLARES

WASHINGTON, April 27 (UP)—The running dispute between congress and the administration over food subsidies was again flared today when Senator R. R. O. proposed that such subsidies be directed after Jan. 1, 1945, to sums directly appropriated by the house committee.

Tell chairman of the Republican senate steering committee, said in the course of a senate banking committee hearing that he might offer such an amendment to the bill which would extend the price control act another year.

Director Fred M. Vinson had testified that such payments are made out of the treasury at the rate of about $1,000,000,000 a year. That said the money was controlled by the committee, and that in the reconstruction and reconstruction of the corporation, he believed that in the original price control law congress never intended such sums would be paid out for subsidies.

As a matter of principle and legislation, he said, such huge amounts ought to be spent except by direct appropriation. "That's all," he said.

Vinson predicted that federal food prices would rise to the level continued for "at least one year after the end of hostilities, most probably 1945." He said he did not think price control over would be a permanent part of the nation's economy.

30 Sheep Stolen Off Flier Ranch

Rustling of 30 blackface ewes and 15 lambs was reported to the sheriff's office Thursday night by the owner, Gilbert DeLoach, northwest of Ellettsville.

DeLoach claimed the sheep were taken from his pasture Monday night.

Red Tape Cut to Aid Blind

LONDON, April 27 (UP)—British government officials and American army officers issued all red tape today to speed a blind American private and his English bride to the United States before the baby on travel from England became effective tonight.

Pvt. Otto Huttunen, 28, Warren, O., and 25-year-old Ruby May are on their way home by ship, either over-landed or the speedy trip neither of them a creep.

Huttunen was blinded in north Africa by an explosion of an anti-personnel mine, and the bride was a hospital in England for treatment.

While in the hospital he fell in love with his nurse, whom he had never seen, and she with him.

At a time he looked it to be impossible to arrange transportation for the civilian wife, the British government announced its intention to make a special exception for the couple.

Lt. Edward Gilman, Brooklyn, N. Y., who was handling the arrangements, immediately got busy, and yesterday Huttunen put aboard an army transport plane with his bride as his official attendant.

Jap Idea of How to Scare U. S. Troops

Beware, young man. The lady will live you. If you don't watch out, you'll never see those green hills at home. As once he clutches lightning on you, and she's got a fairly good grip right now. There is only one way out.

Yanks Seize New Enemy Base at Hollandia, 2,500 Planes Strike at Europe

LONDON, April 27 (AP)—Some 2,500 allied heavy bombers hit Hitler's Germany in three great waves today. Heavy RAF blasts at Germany were followed by two powerful American blows on German anti-invasion targets in France.

Flying Fortresses and Liberators struck in the two-day light assaults in separate forces of up to 750 bombers each.

The 13th straight day of operations by heavy bombers in history's greatest aerial offensive began with well over 1,000 British bombers raining perhaps 4,000 tons of explosives on Essen, Schweinfurt and railway yards near Paris.

The American doubleheader attack, which probably set a single-day record for heavy bomber sorties by the eighth airforce, first sent high explosives crashing into Germany's industrial heartland.

Ward Head Forcibly Ejected From Office in U. S. Seizure

CHICAGO, April 27 (UP)—Two soldiers of the army detail which seized the Montgomery Ward and company Chicago plant forcibly ejected Sewell L. Avery, 69, company chairman, from his own office today when he refused to yield to authority of President Roosevelt.

The troops carried Avery bodily out of the administration building.

After General Francis Biddle and ejection of the uncompromising foe of the government procedure, Avery refused after a later dispute was ordered after Avery refused to cooperate with the government officials who have taken charge.

Baseball Today New-Type Ocean Cargo Ship Will Be Named for Minidoka

By United Press AMERICAN LEAGUE Boston at Washington, postponed.

Created by the state legislature in 1913, the county borders on the Snake river and has a population of 10,000. The county last year produced agricultural crops valued at $2,000,000.

The county's 64,000 acres of farmland were reclaimed from arid waste land by construction of the Minidoka reclamation project in 1904.

The county itself was named after the Minidoka Indian reservation, established in 1884 and was christened with the Indian word meaning "the place of the Minidoka people."

Minidoka county officials so far have made no plans to accept designation to attend the launching of the S. S. Minidoka, but Mr. Sears has been believed a suggestion would be arranged when further details are known.

Accident Victim

LIEUT. ROBERT FULTON

ET. R. E. FULTON KILLED OVERSEAS

EDEN, April 27—Lieut. Robert E. Fulton, victim of an overseas automobile accident, was killed instantly when a reconnaissance car in which he was riding plunged over a 20-foot embankment.

The accident occurred in New California on March 1, according to word received from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fulton, formerly of Eden, now living in California.

Lieutenant Fulton had been in the service for approximately two years. He is a graduate of Eden high school and later attended Gooding College.

Before entering the service, he taught for several years in Gooding schools.

Mrs. Edmonds Will Attend USO Meet

Mrs. C. W. Edmonds, vice-chairman of the USO council of Idaho, who has been active in USO volunteer work at the Corner of Air Force, will represent the state at the national USO council conference to be held in New York April 28 and 29, according to word received by Twin Falls USO leaders from J. L. Everett, Idaho state USO chairman.

Mrs. Edmonds was invited to attend the New York USO meeting at the instance of Chester L. Burdard, national president of the United Service Organizations.

The meeting in New York will afford the state chairman the first opportunity to meet the board of directors of the national USO. Executives of certain USO departments will report briefly to the forty-first annual convention of the USO.

Mrs. Edmonds will also have a personal acquaintance with the national president of the USO, who is a member of the national staff of the USO.

The Idaho vice-chairman probably has a wider acquaintance with the service of her men through correspondence than any other woman in the state. She acquired this acquaintance while serving at the desk at the Corner of Air Force club.

There the met servicemen inquired about their mothers and got money orders. Immediately she sent a card to the mothers of the boys, telling them she met their sons and they appeared to be well and happy.

The value of this service is attested by the many letters Mrs. Edmonds receives from the mothers.

Hagerman Boys Are Honored at Farewell

HAGERMAN, April 27—A farewell party was given at the Ernest Stevens home in honor of Ashley Eberts and Billy Hamilton, who left Wednesday to enter the armed forces. Fifty friends and relatives were present.

An impromptu program of reading, music and songs was enjoyed. George Jenkins gave an original reading in tribute to the boys who are in the service of our country.

Propaganda

All an average American has to do is scan these Jap propaganda drawings to realize how stupid are the sons of heaven's "supremacy" who hope to lure American troops into deserting.

These are actual Jap propaganda leaflets dropped by air into American lines in the south Pacific, and they are among the few known to have reached the United States. They were sent to Twin Falls by William H. Pilsom, pharmacist's mate first class on an LST ship, to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Pilsom.

At the top are the two ideas of a Jap propaganda leaflet: offering "Yankee safe conduct for surrender." One side shows a drawing of the soldier reunited with his "wife and kid." The other side explains procedure of surrender.

The large propaganda illustration forward attempts to promote disunity among Americans and Australians, using the same old line that the Nazis tried with Britain and France: the Americans will fight the last Australian.

The cartoon of President Roosevelt is one of several seeking to discredit America's commander-in-chief.

Folsom sent two other posters, often less expert than these. He also forwarded pictures of south Pacific natives, including one of a group scene showing a pure white skinned infant. None of the photos, however, was suitable for clear reproduction. (Staff engravings)

DETAIL FOR TODAY

Shortstop

A SHORTSTOP is a soldier who paraded in interesting food on its way to some other section of the table. Many SHORTSTOPS emerge from the service with knife and fork wounds in their forearms, for soldiers have lusty appetites at mess and are not to be trifled with. If Pvt. Douke poses the spoils along to Pvt. Blow, and then Pvt. Douke, seated on the two, poses out a large portion for himself while the spoils are in front of him, he is a SHORTSTOP. The incident may pass without a few scathing remarks—but at the end of the meal Pvt. Douke is likely to be the only one left with a full plate. And the entire contents of the plate end in his G. I. canteen.

KEEP BASES, KING ADVISES NATION

By RANDOLPH K. ELLEN
WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP).—Adm. Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet, today told the Atlantic base, based from Great Britain under the historic "debt-for-assets" plan, that it is of strategic importance to the United States for a long time to come.

This view, expressed in his war progress report to Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, appears to indicate that he favors retention of those bases when the war is over.

The deal was made in 1940 when the battle of Britain was in its initial stages and the civilian population was having a serious effect on Britain's Atlantic supply line.

Transferred Destroyers
Under its terms, the United States transferred 50 over-age destroyers to the British in exchange for 50-year lease on base sites in Australia, Jamaica and St. Lucia, in the British West Indies. British Canada in South America, Great Britain in the Bahamas, and Trinidad.

In addition, the U. S. was granted "freely and without consideration," similar rights with respect to the leasing of bases in New Zealand and Bermuda.

"This acquisition of bases," King's report said, "operated to advance our sea frontier several hundred miles in the direction of our present enemies in the Atlantic and as the bases were leased for a term of 99 years, we could profit by their strategic importance to the United States not only immediately, but long after the crisis responsible for the exchange."

King further implied that the United States should maintain defensive establishments at these or other outlying bases owned by or to be acquired by this country.

Discussing this country's failure to fortify Guam properly, King said:

"We appear to have had an object lesson to the effect that if we are to have outlying possessions we must be prepared to defend them. Apparently that mind of recent criticism that full use is not being made of the leased bases, King reported:

"All of the bases acquired from Great Britain have been in constant use, and are of great value."

GEORGE HAYS, FORMER PRO GRID STAR, TO COACH PIRATES

Eden Grizzlies Batter Two Bruin Hurlers For 16 Hits to Triumph in Seventh, 10-9

EDEN, April 27.—The hits in the Eden Grizzlies' bats that refused to come out at Hunt Tuesday, did that very thing in profusion yesterday as they defeated the Twin Falls Bruins, 10-9.

The Grizzlies battered two of Coach J. Stuart "Buck" Halliday's pitchers, Bushforth and Ryan, for 16 hits with every player except catcher center fielder, getting at least one safety. Viewed, the Eden catcher, got three, while two each was rung up by Schuerman, Hall, Black, Stephens, Sifers and Davis. Martin Baitz went the route on the hill for the Grizzlies, although yielding 12 hits. However, he whiffed eight batters to nine for the Twin Falls pair.

15 Bruins are action.

Coach Halliday employed 15 players in an effort to gain the Bruins' third victory of the season. The record of the Bruins now stands at two victories and two defeats.

Tigers to Hunt

HUNT, April 27.—The Jensen Tigers will meet the Volunteers in both baseball and track here Friday afternoon.

The triumph was the third against two defeats for Coach Charles Hawley's side.

Twin Falls was the first to score, the Bruins making up a pair of runs in the first frame. Coach Dring's hard drive with Supt on base went through both the Eden shortstop and center-fielder to allow him to complete the circuit. The Bruins' got another in the third inning by Supt and Wales, a double steal and an infield out.

7-Run inning.

However, in the Grizzlies' half of the frame they scored seven times on hits by Davis, Schuerman, Vinyard, wall to balls and Black, singles by Stephens and Sifers, a triple by Sifers and Davis' infield out. They added another in the fourth on Schuerman's single, his stolen base and Black's single.

Two more Bruins runs also exposed the plate in the fourth on singles by Supt and Black, a stolen base and an infield out.

Bruins Close In.

Succinate singles by Wagner, Hunter and an error on bases grounded produced two more for the Bruins in the sixth and brought them to within one run of the lead. However, in the last inning Black, Black and Stephens singled, a run when Schuerman singled.

The labeled score:

In the event Bukwak walked, Leiser angled and Hunter got a one-base blow to yield two runs that tied the score for the Bruins.
The game was tied in the 15th run of the seventh. Scifers walked, stole second and came home with the winning run when Schuerman singled.

The story: Lieut. Link Bell, Army Air Corps cadet, is interned in Nij Prison, Yokohama. His plane was brought down while bombing Tokyo. The reason, he is taken from his cave and the office of Captain Azaraki, commandant of the prison. He is disgraced at the detailed information Azaraki serves to press about him.

PILOT OFFICER BALDWIN

"Surprised you, did I?" The Jap beamed. "You practically took my hair off!" Link admitted. "As a matter of fact, I do not recall that anybody in the U. S. Air Corps knew I belonged to the 1st Class."

Azaraki considered a wrist watch. "Link, I am pushed for time," he said. "What do you say or talk about it later. Some other time you can go back to the cell now."

"That's all Link," said Azaraki. "It'll be all right for this."

"That's it," Azaraki said and picked up another document. "Sorry if we are too nervous."

Azaraki waved at two soldiers, said in Japanese, "Tokuji Iritani, and Bell to the cell. And bring me..." he examined the document he had picked up. "Pilot Officer Baldwin, the Australian."

In English, he told Link. "By all means, let's go have a talk some time. I mean that. I've always been interested in captivity."

Then Azaraki jumped up. "Say, I have it," he called. "What about tonight? They don't have dinner with me?"

"You kidding?" Link asked.

"Of course not," said Azaraki. "We could go out to my home, I believe you would enjoy that. What about it?"

Link was puzzled, and when he had been in a Jap for a time, he was to be alarmed by the whole thing, asked, "Do I have any choice?"

"Don't be so suspicious," Azaraki said. "Say we make it about six o'clock. That's fine. I'll be seeing you, then, six tonight."

"I don't suppose," said Link, "that I'll be here then."

The prisoners had a word game going in the cell. Pilot Officer Baldwin was playing with them. They were having a row over whether a word was to the dictionary.

"You're all wrong," Link said. "For all you know, they might have taken me off to buyout me in the posterior, they was like to do."

Baldwin looked at Link in surprise. "You seem to have survived," he said. "What did they do to you, anyway?"

"I got invited out to dinner," Link said.

"Your jobbing!"

"Maybe you'll get an inspiration, too," Link said. "The bull of the woods told them to fetch you up next."

Baldwin didn't think it was funny. When he realized Azaraki had actually sent for him, he noted a connection.

But Baldwin walked out of the cell without the Jap willing having to lay hands on him. In the hall, however, he refused to start climbing stairs with his bad foot.

Surprisingly, the soldiers came in, and they all went up to the elevator. Once they were out of sight and hearing of the cell, Baldwin's attitude toward the soldiers changed. He observed one of them out of his eye.

Azaraki noticed Baldwin's attitude toward the soldiers when the men entered.

"Leave us alone," Azaraki told the soldiers in Japanese. When the soldiers had trudged out and closed the door, Azaraki told Baldwin, "You are a little nervous. I understand men, aren't you? They think you are only an informer."

Baldwin shrugged. "They hate all white men, don't they? They tried to make me walk up those stairs with this foot." He went around Azaraki's desk, pulled open drawers and searched. "Where do you keep those American cigarettes?" he demanded.

Azaraki gave him a cigarette, then went over and opened the door to make sure none of his soldiers had their ears to the keyhole. He came back and said, "I invited Lincoln Bell out for dinner."

Baldwin stared at the smoke from the cigarette.

"That's fine," said Link. "Now Link is as suspicious as a rooster with a rubber wad."

"Think how he's going to feel before we're done with him," Azaraki said cheerfully.

"I guess there's no use of making him in," Baldwin admitted. "He's an astrophysicist, all right. I had him dress me foot again this afternoon, and now I'm sure of it. The way he worked on the muscles to get the sensation of his knee what he was doing."

"You should have seen his face," Azaraki said. "When I asked him how he'd like to be sitting on the perch of the 1st Class."

Baldwin took his cigarette off his lip and stared at the other.

"You're pretty calm, aren't you?" he said.

"Oh, my intelligence ascribed information on Link," said Azaraki.

"I guessed as much that about you afraid of seeing a little too interested?"

The remark jolted Baldwin. He did not want to show Baldwin that he was unafraid, but he could not help planning about the officer, looking at the pictures, the moustache, spots where a microphone could be reached.

Suppose there was a microphone hidden somewhere? He didn't think there was, but it could be. He wished now that he had been more honest in the past. To him, he had better if he had not bought the time line in the Nagasaki quarter a few months ago. He could not have come within many thousand yards of seeing the neck of the place on his rapist's salary.

Azaraki felt the need of a drink. (To be continued)

"Your jobbing!"

"Maybe you'll get an inspiration, too," Link said. "The bull of the woods told them to fetch you up next."

Baldwin didn't think it was funny. When he realized Azaraki had actually sent for him, he noted a connection.

But Baldwin walked out of the cell without the Jap willing having to lay hands on him. In the hall, however, he refused to start climbing stairs with his bad foot.

Surprisingly, the soldiers came in, and they all went up to the elevator. Once they were out of sight and hearing of the cell, Baldwin's attitude toward the soldiers changed. He observed one of them out of his eye.
