

B-29 PROVED BY DANGEROUS TESTS

DAYTON, O., June 22 (AP)—Back of the B-29 super bomber success are some 150 home front heroes—army men and civilians—who proved that human beings are a super machine to match a plane previous age never dreamed of.

They asked their lives in an adventure which nobody could guarantee safe, and which some feared would be fatal.

The thing feared was the effect of sudden release of pressure from the pressurized cabin of the super bomber if it was punctured by enemy fire.

This pressurized cabin is engineered to keep pressure inside at approximately normal while the plane goes up to very high altitudes above the clouds. It allows a man to fly higher than ever before.

Proved Theory
A former college professor, Maj. Henry M. Sweeney, native of South-land, Ia., was the first to prove he could take "explosive decompression" tests.

At Wright field Sweeney entered a round opening in a cabin which was sealed with a vacuum pump. The cabin was made a low pressure chamber. Pressure in the cabin was kept approximately normal, but pressure in the chamber around it was decreased to that of the stratosphere.

It was a tense time. People outside worried.
A crew driver broke the wrapping power seal. Air rushed out. The major's cheeks puffed out and his lips pouted as the air gushed from his nose and mouth and his chest sank when the air was sucked from him.

Was No Trouble
Observers watched for trouble. There wasn't any.
Meanwhile other pressurized cabin pioneers had taken tests. They tried pressurized B-29 cabins on the ground and in the air. Flight surgeons joined the list of men piloting evidence of B-29 safety. First explosive decompression accident occurred when a waist gun blower blew out at an altitude of 30,000 feet. There was no death and no disaster.

The home front heroes of the B-29 proved that rapidest decompression will not injure a man nor affect his ability to carry out combat duties.

They put the super bomber into action just as much as the crew members put it into production with scientific skill and courage.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL CHIRPING

INQUIRY—Administration files have finally abandoned the investigation of the rural electrification administration, although hearings have already been held. It is believed that this great new deal boon for the farmers was lost through personal enmities. But the inquiry was going on with personal enmities. But the inquiry was going on with personal enmities. But the inquiry was going on with personal enmities.

The second inquiry was George D. Allen of Vermont. He held from one of the two states that stuck by Alfred Landon, but the trouble-making Yankee is now dead on rural electricity. He apparently feared that his constituents might regard his participation as a failure to follow.

Edison D. Ford, a Republican, was the President, but he has attended only a few meetings. Theodore D. Hull of Missouri showed up and then denounced the inquiry as a "Republican fishing expedition."

Senator Guy M. Gillette was enthusiastic and energetic at first but he heard another group looking into the electrification of the country. He was not much time for REA's affairs. However, he faces a task and, despite his having been a "purge" as years ago, the White House has covered and supported him in recent months.

Cardinals Now Lead N. L. by 8½ Games

CHICAGO, June 22 (AP)—The high-flying St. Louis Cardinals continued their year-old subjugation of the Chicago Cubs by sweeping through both ends of a double-header, 6 to 4 and 7 to 2, before 16,825 fans. This gave them 11 out of 11 over the color-washers this season, and 19 out of 21 over them in a street.

Triple Threat

Ken O'Leary, who caught both games for the Cards while Walter Cooper turned an injured leg, inspired in the second game as did Lou Brock for the Cubs.

The Cubs' triple threat, the polio-stricken Hildt to put out another ball game in the first inning, and the second place Pittsburgh Pirates, who had lost 10 games, and pulled the eighth place Cubs' game.

The Cubs closed within a run in the first inning, but then they checked back with a run in the first inning, followed by the first strikeout in the first inning, and then they pulled off a four straight strikes, to make it 5-4 with the Cubs in the lead.

The Cards jumped into a 2-0 lead on a triple by Johnny Huggins, Al Smith and Walter Kitzmeyer in the first inning of the afternoon. The Cubs tied the lead in the second inning, but the Cardinals' home run and a run picked up on Huggins' single and two passes in the third.

The Cards broke away in the fifth with three runs, but the Cubs were linked with an outfield fly and O'Dea followed with his homer.

Brooklyn may not be going anywhere, but Dodgers lead National league in hitting and fielding. Walter Walker, 1st; Fred Tenney, 2nd; Alvin Dark, 3rd; and Augie Galan, 4th, are in senior circuit's list.

25 GOLFERS NAMED FOR SUN VALLEY MEET

ON THE SPORT FRONT

Some time ago a Magic Valley golfer asked Joe O'Leary, St. Louis Cardinals manager, what he thought of the fact that he was now in baseball. The manager put him out with: "I'll have to have a little time to think about that one," and then later, without much delay, the query to him was answered.

But this is a strange word—a word that no one else would use. But this is a strange word—a word that no one else would use. But this is a strange word—a word that no one else would use.
