Another CIO official estimated the strikers' solid number between 40,000 and 50,000 men and women drivers and the remainder were truck hands.

Bader said he had been in close touch with Washington regarding the strike and advised government action. He said he did not know whether there are any plans for government intervention.

ON THE SPORT FRONT

The Braves' debate this fall will be an odd-one-out choice for the Big Seven and Magic Valley football communities. It is a great question about even greater than last year's. That was whether to have a league or not. This year it is whether to have a league or not. LONG LETTERMAN BACK BUT PIRATES' NEW COACH PROMISES SCRAPPY TEAM

RUPERT, Aug. 8.—The fact that he'll have a lone letterman back around which to fashion this fall's Rupert Pirates football eleven isn't getting George Hayes, the Pirates' new mentor, down. In fact, he's served notice on what the Big Seven conference and Magic Valley teams can expect from Rupert and its "They'll know that they have been in a battle."

And if Hayes' past performance as a coach in North Dakota, Minnesota and Michigan is any criterion, he's not just willing to keep up the courage of a mentor that has a single letterman returning. Nor Hayes' eleven, having been Hayes' stock in trade, according to reports received here.

The lone letterman returning for football at Rupert is Nels Peterson, who played fullback on Coach Ruppel's 1933 team. Last season, he played place of a batter.

Third Time and Charming

NOTE: (WITH ANY SHOT, LOS ANGELES SPEED GIRL LITERALLY RUNS LEGS OFF OPPONENTS)

A Lot of Beef

Coach John Smith will have a lot of beef at the Big Seven football conference. The Big Seven conference meets this fall and it would be fatuous, either, to expect Smith to be in the mood for a picnic.

For instance, he'll be Elmer, his all-conference star, and tackle. He weighs only 200. Then there's Jimmy Gossard, another experienced member of the Big Seven's 1933 team.

Of course, you can't have all 200 pounds in a back when the Big Seven conference meets this fall. In fact, he never even told the Big Seven conference that he was in the Big Seven conference.

Three Prospects Lost

When season ended last spring, several promising prospects for the Big Seven conference were lost. Three of them were lost. Three of them were lost.

For instance, he'll be Elmer, his all-conference star, and tackle. He weighs only 200. Then there's Jimmy Gossard, another experienced member of the Big Seven's 1933 team.

16,135 Boxing Fans See Baksi Outpoint Savold Second Time

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Joe Baksi, 22-year-old ex-coal miner of Kalamazoo, Penn., was awarded a 10-round decision over Leo Savold, Paterson, N. J., last night to register his second triumph over Savold in three engagements.

The verdict of the heavy-weight bout by the two judges and referee Walter Brightmore, was split, however, with one judge voting for a draw, while the other judge and referee cast their ballots in favor of Baksi on a 51 to 43 and 51 to 46 basis.

Walker Back In Bat Lead

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(AP)—The Dixie Walker clubbing and chowder society had another inning as the Brooklyn outfielder regained the National league hitting lead with a one-point margin over Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals. With 61 games to play, Walker's average stood at .358.

Walker's batting average in the National league was .358, compared to Musial's .357. Walker's batting average in the National league was .358, compared to Musial's .357.

Many Inquiries About Big Contest Received

Among the most interested fans who will squeeze into the Jaycees park grandstand on the night of Aug. 16 to see the House of Davidites and the Harlem Globe Trotters play will be the board of directors of the Cowboy club of the Pioneer league. Heading the group will be Frank Magel, president of the club.

The Cowboy directors won't be there only for pleasure. They'll be there to determine whether the Trotters' first place in the Magic Valley is still at a high pitch. At that determination, they must have the decision that is almost certain to be made next spring—whether or not Twin Falls is ready to go along with the other clubs in the circuit in the proposed revival of play in the Pioneer league.

Browns' Test On Road Trip

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 8.—(AP)—With the close of the season's best paying crowd still ringing in their ears, the pennant hungry St. Louis Browns, leading the American league by 6½ games, left town last night on a possible make-or-break road trip.

With the Browns' first place margin and an eight-game winning streak, Manager Luke Sewell left the Browns' best hope for every club in the circuit.

East Victor In Kid Game

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(AP)—A flock of sub-drift age kids took over the polo grounds Monday and didn't suffer too badly by comparison with the big leaguers who usually perform there, as a picked team of eastern players trounced a squad from the west, 6 to 0, in the all-American boys basketball game.

The contest, sponsored by Equine magazine, didn't produce anything like major-league baseball, but it was the best-kept thing for the numerous kids in the crowd of 12,500, who mobbed the players like a mad mob of crazed crowd when the game ended.

He said he already had written of his findings in a recent issue of the Research Quarterly, of the American Association of Physical Educators.

Machine Records Athletic Aptitude

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 8.—(AP)—An electrical machine for measuring a potential athlete's aptitude as a sprinter and a runner or as a swimmer was being used in the laboratory of the University of Minnesota by Dr. L. P. Keller, acting director of athletics.

Disclosing that the machine was devised and used for a series of tests on both high school and university athletes as well as on non-athletes, Dr. Keller said today that it might be used in determining the sports field an athlete should enter. He said he already had written of his findings in a recent issue of the Research Quarterly, of the American Association of Physical Educators.

The Life of EISENHOWER
First Biography of America's Great General
Copyright, 1944, Ann Woodard Miller
Illustrated by N. C. Hunter, Inc.

It was mid-January, 1940, when General Eisenhower suddenly appeared in Kansas. He had left North Africa and come to Washington. No one was given of his coming. After a few days in the capital, consulting with the General staff, he took an inconspicuous car with a driver and went to West Point to see his son and only child, John, cadet in the Academy.

Driving into the grounds, he parked the car under an overpass and slipped into the commandant's office. A call was sent to him to come immediately to the office. Young Eisenhower was in overalls and his hands were greasy from the machine shop. He came in and was met by the commandant. The older man was to be his father, and he did not know it.

His surprise can be imagined when he saw his father who he thought was in North Africa, standing there. After a visit to the General's office, a few days later he appeared in Kansas, greeting his "father" home. President Milton S. Eisenhower of Kansas, State College at Manhattan, forty miles east of Atchison.

He arrived at West Point on a plane at dusk and went to his quarters. With only a driver he went to Manhattan, where his mother and an older brother, A. S. Eisenhower, president of the Commercial Trust Company, Kansas City, met him. The dinner was embellished by favorite foods, including the "apple pie" Pennsylvania "pud" brought from home by his mother. An evening of visiting followed. In the conversation the matter of a soldier's responsibility under attack or resistance came up and the General told of his experience in North Africa never before related.

He had gone further to the front than was wise and was in danger of being surrounded by the Axis troops. In a jeep loaded with extra gasoline and an elderly soldier standing on the corner over the driver. Driving for hours and hours, making a wide detour to get back to the camp, they took turns at the wheel. The orderly was at the wheel when the General went to sleep and probably the driver did also suddenly they found the jeep off the road and parked in a ditch. Both the General and the driver were hurt. After a long search the machine had stopped and they could proceed.

"What did you do to the orderly for going to sleep?" he was asked. "Dot Poor chap, when we returned I sent him to the hospital to sleep to his heart's content."

That was the human side of Ike Eisenhower.

After a few happy hours with his mother and brothers in Kansas, the General slipped away. Because of threatening bad weather, he left in the early morning and took his plane back to Washington. No one in central Kansas except the family knew of his visit.

The news came in a day or two that he was in London or had jumped the Atlantic in an airplane to take up his duties as Supreme Commander of the Allied Army.

General Eisenhower's devotion to his home folks and his neighbors back in Kansas, while engaged in the world's greatest war, is a true insight into the treasure of his own greatness. With battles raging around him he never forgets the old home town of Atchison.

While at his headquarters in London, when meeting under the stupendous burden of the Second Front, a twenty-three-year-old private walked into headquarters and asked, "M. P.," "I'd like to see the General, if he's not too busy."

ATTACK COMPLETE SURPRISE TO Foe

WITH THE BRITISH AND CANADIANS ADVANCING THROUGH CAEN, Aug. 8 (AP)—The big bombs were fired again in the dark and streams of colored tracer shells erupted across no-man's land. Then the British and Canadians rolled out their secret weapon—glut, armor-plated tanks—jam-packed with assault infantry. The big breakthrough was on.

From highway marked off on either side by streaks of brilliant tracer, the armored forces surged through the enemy lines, unleashing their cargoes of tough fighting men deep inside the German positions to rip and disorganize the foe.

Complete Surprise
Engineers had been busy for days preparing the lanes and they came as a complete surprise to the Germans. A surprise also was the method of getting them by—traversing as pathfinders guide the big tanks in the air.

The tanks followed the first wave of tanks. They surged up to the half-detent directly from the machine gun ships where they had been fitted with special armor, planned to take on their loads of infantrymen, and were called on across the heavily-pocked pathway carved by the bombers which had just dropped 6,000 tons in the heaviest tactical bombing of the war.

Heavy Camouflage
They came up to the front under heavy camouflage and the enemy could not have known about them until his machine gun and anti-aircraft shells were blasting harmless on the plated monsters.

Officers said the command air and artillery "expedition" units was increased upon the Germans beyond the One before midnight was the heaviest since the landings. Just before the battle a large supply of surgical cotton wool was flown from England and hoisted to the troops so they could stuff their ears and avoid being deafened by their own battle.

Dead Japs Litter Ship, Vet Writes

"The fighting here still continues. It isn't so bad now as when we first arrived—then we could count the dead bodies of Japs everywhere about the ship."

"Sounds gruesome, doesn't it? But you get hardened to it. I had hoped we would be stayed here, to this time. Now, I don't know when."

"That was the day received by J. A. and Dr. Anita Lee Harbert Monday from their son, F. H. Harbert, junior's mail several days ago, who has been in the south Pacific most of the time since last Christmas. It is believed he is either at Guam or Saipan."

The youth, in various naval hospitals for eight months following the battle of Guadalcanal, returned to active duty about Christmas and since then has been back to the states once—last April when his ship put into Puget Sound so he could undergo an emergency appendectomy.

Ex-Army Medical Man DAV Speaker

Dr. Charles Francis Smith, D. V. M., member of the medical corps and intelligence department during World War I, spoke to the members of the Stradley chapter of the D. A. V. at the Monday evening session at the Alton Hotel-Lexington hall.

New methods of handling medical cases coming out of the present war were described by the guest.

Robert E. Kendall, commander, DAV, presided at the meeting. A picnic was scheduled for Aug. 20 at the Baymont ranch at Blue Lakes.
