

DEBT RETIRING BONDFIRE URGED

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Sept. 23 (AP)—Prof. Frank C. Dickinson, a state rule wizard who once figured out that there were $2,000,000,000,000,000 (quadrillions) possible dollars on a billiard table, today proposed a plan to retire the war-pedaled national debt with a $200,000,000,000 victory "coupon".

Specifically, the 43-year-old University of Illinois economist, creator of the widely-used Dickinson rating system for football teams, said that his plan was for everyone to burn his war bonds and he proposed next July 4 as the day for the world's most expensive fire.

"However, it's not as simple as all that," Dickinson explained. His plan, he said, calls for every family in the United States to contribute an equal share of war bonds five times the total income tax, to reduce the national debt to its present level.

"Getting the nation out of the red ink should be the first objective," Dickinson said. "I don't want to see the returning G. I. Joe," he said. "The war-erased debt is not fair to the returning soldier. The great debt means that many of the young generation can only look forward to rocking, carning and paying taxes."

Divide Debt
The Dickinson debt rating system divides the national debt into two parts, one half allocated to each family on the basis of the income-earning rate. Dickinson, a 1914 graduate of the University of Illinois, is a member, and the other half on the basis of family income tax payment.

According to the life expectancy given by the act, a person in the more he will have to pay. The amount of bonds in the hands of individuals is only about one-third enough to meet the debt, so Dickinson proposed that families make up their quota by purchasing bonds from other holders, such as insurance companies and banks.

Buy More Bonds
In other words, he explained, more bonds to you, and more bonds to burn. Dickinson seemed not a bit disturbed by the fact that Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau called his plan a "crack pot" scheme. "I've been called many things before," he said.

...this is that even with overtime, the present average industrial labor take-home pay of $45 a week is just about what it takes to get by on in these days of higher prices, and that any reduction of this take-home pay will mean that industrial workers will be forced to sell their war bonds, reduce their standard of living, or go into debt. As a means of keeping up the national income, maintaining the present consumer buying and spending power, developing postwar industries and stimulating business, it is seriously argued that those higher wage rates are an economic necessity to prevent postwar depression.

It will take more political courage than there probably is in the whole world to stick by the little steel formula and try to live up to the principles of the wage stabilization program. But how any yielding of the line on wages can mean anything else than higher prices and a generous measure of postwar inflation is something you'll have to get from the great rationalizer himself.

AUTO GAS QUERY SPICES IEA MEET

That little gasboon of just where people get gasoline to do the various things they do—like a ride to the office, a little shopping, or a somewhat uppy head before the teachers assemble in the hall—has been the subject of a meeting of the Idaho Education Association convention yesterday.

It all came about when athletics contests were mentioned. From the floor came the query: "Where do the students get the gas to attend these athletic contests far outside their own community?"

Thick and Fast
Thick and fast came answers. One that the students have the "A" coupons over long periods of time, another that one superintendent furnishes the car and the parents of the children furnish the coupons, another that the parents of the children furnish both the car and gas—but no mention of where the parents get the gas.

But R. H. Snyder, who is president of Albion Normal, and who was panel leader, stepped in at the right moment and suggested that "perhaps we had better pass on the next subject," and pass to the next subject the panel members did.

Longer High School
That perhaps there should be 13th and 14th grades in high school to train the students fully for the life they must live, because about 80 per cent of the high school students don't go on to college anyway. The students should learn "why we work" instead of so much "how to work."

Some of the quality of American life is taken away if "things are made too secure" and nobody has to worry about anything. American students are given the incentive for inventing things, and for exploration into new fields.

That the balance between skill and the philosophy of their life, and the place life has in it, is more than ever stressed in teaching.

YOUTH TRACTOR PLUNGE IN CANAL

GOODING, Sept. 23.—Donald Sutton, 12, narrowly escaped serious injury and drowning this afternoon when the tractor he was driving across a drainage canal, fell into the canal, two miles east of here.

The tractor was used to pull an auto owned by Melvin Lindley, a driver in a field. The Sutton youth offered to drive the tractor back to the Lindley home where it belonged in the yard.

As the youth reached the center of the bridge, he turned around to see if Lindley was following him. He saw the tractor, slipped from the bridge into the water.

"I couldn't swim before," Sutton youth said, "but I found out how to swim today."

The tractor was later removed from the river bed by the use of a wrecker from Gooding.

Paper Drive Enters Final Day

With 42,000 Pounds Gathered

PAPER GOES TO WAR

Lost day of the Junior Chamber of Commerce waste paper drive was to set underway at 9 a. m. today when trucks from the Joyday and the high school found Boy Scouts and the east quadrant and the market, sets in add to the 21 tons collected in the first two days.

A Major Central freight car on a Union Pacific siding was two-thirds full last night when weary collectors and truck crew threw on the last bundle from the north quadrant and the "President's" streets. During the first day, Friday, the workers collected in the south and west quadrants and South Park.

Other towns like Tuxedo, Fairfield and Shoshone, was 30 tons last night. It is estimated that today, "clean-up day," will see the car filled and possibly another one required.

Cooperating organizations in the drive include the Camp Fire Girls who stack and sort the bundles at the freight platform. The Boy Scouts pick up the bundles from the house-holders and load them on the trucks, which are driven by Jaycees and volunteer high school boys.

More volunteers are urgently needed for today's collection. Elia Freire, Jaycee drive chairman, announced last night. Jaycees who wish to take part can report to the parking behind the radio building at 9 a. m. or join the drive in the eastern quadrant later in the day, he said.

Can Call
J. Hill, who has handled all of the publicity in connection with the campaign, announced that persons whose homes have been raised by the drive are being contacted by him at 521-W any time today. He, in turn, will contact the truckers so that special pickups can be made.

We are anxious to serve anyone who has sufficient paper," Hill remarked. "If a railroad car is packed up, all we need is a reminder to that effect."

JEALOUSY CALLED SLAYING MOTIVE

SALINAS, Calif., Sept. 23 (AP)—Mrs. Frances Andrews shot and killed 10-year-old, farmboy, Jay Lovett because of jealousy—a motive "no crystal clear that there will be no doubt," District Attorney said.

Threaty Brian charged before the murder trial of the 30-year-old Carmel society matron, went into a week-end recess.

Brian made his opening statement to a jury of four men and eight women after its selection late yesterday, and presented one technical witness, Monterey County Superior Judge P. J. Bergman, then reformed court until Monday.

Mrs. Andrews has insisted that the boy, whose body was found on a country roadside near her Carmel valley ranch the night of July 13 with her gun beside him, committed suicide because he was despondent.

The district attorney said he would call approximately 40 witnesses and that he would require a week or eight days to outline his case, which may send Mrs. Andrews to her death in the state's gas chamber.

Brian is expected to present testimony that the boy's mother, that the youth because she was jealous of his friendship with petted, red-haired Mrs. Nancy Linder, wife of a San Francisco physician.

Public Report on Dec. 7 Raid Urged

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Senator Homer Ferguson, R-Mich., expressed the view today that findings of the special army and navy boards investigating the Pearl Harbor disaster should be made public as soon as their reports are completed and said "I understand that they are finished."

I am hopeful that we might have a complete report on the investigations within two weeks," Ferguson said.

The Michigan Republican pointed out that the navy board was appointed July 17 and the army named its investigators three days later, and that both boards had taken sworn statements of army and navy personnel in the intervening two months. The investigators returned recently from Pearl Harbor.

Active '41 Grad Now at Exciting Job in Alaska

It's a far cry from Tru-C Quill and Scroll, Thebanian and Girls' league days in Twin Falls high school to exciting post with the department of public welfare, where Miss Margaret Daniels, in Alaska, but that's what happened to Miss June Daniels, 1941 high school graduate.

Granddaughter of Mrs. Emma Jester, Miss Daniels left Twin Falls soon after her graduation for Seattle, Wash., where she attended the University of Washington prior to accepting her present post in Alaska.

What has happened since then would "fill a book," but let's let the adventurous Miss Daniels, who was a member of the Quill staff at Twin Falls high school, tell you some of her experiences here.

Land of Opportunity
"Alaska is surely the land of opportunity for those who have initiative. Those who believe that Alaska is a land of undeveloped ice and snow are partially wrong, for there are scenery modern little towns here, particularly along the southern coast," she writes from Anchorage.

The interior is another story. "Anchorage is the nearest to the Arctic circle, and we have coast-to-coast, telephone systems, fire, electric and a flourishing business section. Living expenses, according to recent statistics, are 10 percent higher than in Washington, D. C."

"Our winter is long and dark and cold with the temperature often going fifty or more below zero. The Northern lights are fantastic and beautiful, and our summers are wonderful—excepting the scourge of mosquitoes and gnats, which have been known to actually kill a man in the woods and swamps. On June 24, we all arrive in the north."

TAX POLICY HITS BASIC ECONOMICS

Editorial note: Here is the last of the articles by Harold L. Turner, a member of the committee for economic development on a postwar tax program for the United States.

By BEARDLEY RUM.
Written for the United Press
Powers and wages are the common interest in tax policy as taxpayers. But they have an even greater interest in tax policy as they are levied and in terms of how and where the taxes are collected.

In dealing its "high employment" tax plan, recently announced, the committee for economic development has sought to discover how our postwar needs of 10 to 18 million jobs can be met without the restrictions on such factors as jobs, wages, and prices which are levied and in terms of how and where the taxes are collected.

Corporate Levy
First of them is the proposal that taxes on corporate income be levied on such. At present this tax is levied on the net income of the corporation and is again levied when it is paid out as dividends. Under the new plan, the double tax the corporation must do one of four things: (1) charge a price for its products; (2) pay less interest on its loans; (3) pay less interest on its bonds; or (4) pay less interest on its stock.

Buying Power
On the other hand, lower wages and higher prices will mean a purchasing power for industrial products and for farm products. The importance of this to farmers is graphically illustrated by the fact that the total income of the nation is approximately $100 billion. The total farm income and total industrial income are about $10 billion each. The total income of the nation is approximately $100 billion.

Warning Given
But the C. E. D. also warns that there can be achieved a high level of income we must create a productive well-paid jobs which will produce it. A fair wage system can help us get to the high level of employment we all want for America.

Buddy Tells How Marine Hero Capt. Turner Gave His Life

The death of a marine hero, Capt. B. C. Turner, Murtaugh—Capt. "Buddy" Turner, was vividly described in a letter received by the hero's mother, Mrs. D. H. Turner, from Murtaugh.

The letter, from First Lieut. J. H. Turner, a buddy of Capt. Turner, described how he was killed. The captain was decorated and given a "post" promotion to major.

Wife Buddies
"No one misses him, as we all called him around here, anyone that I do not know," said Mrs. Turner. "The captain was a real hero. I had known him for about one and a half years and we were sharing the same room on the way to Europe. He was a real hero."

Mother's Joy
"I hate to write you a letter like this, but I think you will be relieved if you know how it happened. I am sure you will be in the dark the rest of your life."

With this sentence, the lieutenant wrote that he was sure his hero son gave his life for his country.

RETAILER EARNS NEW PROMINENCE

Nationwide prominence in retail food circles came this month to Harry E. Vogel, Twin Falls.

The idea of a grocery president received national publicity—and so did Vogel. The article on frozen food lockers in "Meat Merchandising," the business magazine, was the first of every copy drawing attention to Vogel's suggestions to retailers.

Convent Talk
The article consisted of the talk Vogel gave to members of the National Association of Grocers at their recent Chicago convention. It points out specifically how waste in the grocery market may be converted into a profitable frozen food locker business.

Back in 1940, he was thinking of the possibilities of the frozen food locker business. In the back of his mind was a grocery store in Salt Lake City August 19 and 20.
