Next Inductions Largest in Idaho Since Last April

BOISE, Dec. 23 (AP)—Selective service induction and pre-induction calls during the first month of 1945 will be the heaviest in Idaho since last April, Lieut.-Col. Norman B. Adkinson said today.

The January induction quota is 960 men, while the pre-induction quota is for 1,410 men. During the early months of 1944, however, calls exceeded 1,600 men before selective service concentrated its attention on those in the 18-26 age group. Qualified men below 26, regardless of occupation, and older men who were left in A-1 last spring because of the unessential nature of their jobs will fill January needs.

Local boards for the most part have not yet begun to reclassify men in the 26-29 group into 1-A, and the delay is sending additional workers into vital war plants, the state selective service executive officer said.

January and February military needs will strip Idaho of every eligible man under the age of 26, he said, and the February pre-induction quota will call many more for induction in March.

CIVIL WAR SPANS ALL OF GREECE

ATHENS, Dec. 23 (AP)—Fifteen thousand to 20,000 rebel warriors stormed the rightist guerrilla stronghold in northwestern Greece today, spreading civil war clear across the Balkans, as stiff fighting erupted north of the Athens port of Piraeus where British-Indian troops landed under the support of Royal Air Force rocket-firing bombers.

The British headquarters, which last night reported the rebel army to be a cease-firing ultimatum, declared that the rebels had been driven from the main rebel base at the rightist stronghold was an unprovoked attack in violation of an agreement signed in this city last month, according to the British press.

While Lieut.-Gen. Ronald Scobie, British commander and Major-General, British resident general in the middle east, conferred on the situation, Indian troops battled the rebels north of the main harbor basin of Piraeus, the British said.

Rebel bands were holed up in factory buildings and the British made advances by capturing the shell-and-bomb terminal and the Piraeus-Athens suburban line.

It was feared that the main rebel base, the Piraeus, would be the whole capital district was seriously damaged in the fighting in this city last month, according to the British press.

British troops on the western side of Piraeus harbor consolidated their bridgehead, established this morning, and the British said they were reported to have pulled out of the southern Athens suburb west of the main Athens-Piraeus road. Newly formed Greek national guard divisions in this city last month, according to the British press, resulted in a call-up now has reached nearly 9,000, now over control of the area.

Crop Insurance Act Signed by Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 (AP)—Legislation reviving federal crop insurance and farm loan programs was signed by President Roosevelt.

"It provides for insurance on wheat, cotton and rice, and other crops to be added on an experimental basis in subsequent years," the legislation provides for incentive payments to encourage production of these crops, to encourage a "boom" in the production of these crops.

"Under the new insurance program, the government will guarantee the value of crops, based on the average yield of the previous five years, and will pay the difference between the actual yield and the average yield, when the yield is less than the average yield."

Yankees Complete Destruction Of Japanese Trapped at Ormoc

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 (AP)—American Liberators at a surprise attack destroyed or damaged scores of grounded planes in the first daylight raid staged by the heavy bombers on Clark field, main airbase near Manila, and Yank doughboys have completed destruction of Japanese trapped in the Ormoc corridor on Leyte island.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique related another of the daily Japanese air raids on Mindoro and said it cost the enemy 20 aircraft shot down with two more probably destroyed. But the nipponese continued their refusal to offer ground opposition to the Yank invaders.

The majority of 100 enemy planes on Clark field were destroyed or damaged in the attack (Manila time), the communique said; eight of nine planes which attempted interception were shot down by the Liberators' fighter escort, and installations on a large area were left in flames.

On Leyte island the 77th division pressed toward the enemy's sole remaining principal escape port of Palompon, on the northwest coast, and the Americans counted 3,788 more Japanese dead in the process of wiping out the last enemy resistance in the Ormoc corridor.

MacArthur revealed for the first time that the U. S. 11th Airborne Division has been added in the Leyte campaign.

OUR GIANT DEBT VEXES WIZARDS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 (AP)—Fiscal experts took a look today at a prospective national debt of $400,000,000,000 and said its management will afford one of the most difficult problems of the government.

At stake in finding a sound method of handling it are the solvency of the government, stability of the national economy and the savings and investments of every American.

These experts aren't exactly worried yet, but they are working on a budget, which President Roosevelt will submit to Congress in a short time, which will hold the debt to $400,000,000,000 and said its management will afford one of the most difficult problems of the government.

They're Traveling Worse Than in '43

By The Associated Press

Christmas travel appeared to be taxing transportation facilities to the limit throughout the nation Saturday night.

The jam in New York threatened to break all records. In the nation's capital the situation was described as "twice as bad as last year."

All facilities were swamped at Chicago and Kansas City's union station reported "scarcely standing room."

Chilicians who ignored government plans to give up unnecessary trips added to the task of handling hundreds of thousands of servicemen home on holiday furlough. Transportation officials at New York said the ration of civilian travelers to servicemen was about 20-50.

Infant Tears Solve Housing Problem for Family at Yule

MEMPHIS, Dec. 23 (AP)—The tears of blood, 3-year-old Lyn McCarty solved a housing problem today and paved way for a father's Christmas reunion with his family.

The Commercial Appeal ran a two-column picture of Lyn this morning. The picture was of a crying baby because she wanted to be with her daddy Christmas.

Lyn was in Charlotte, N. C., her daddy, Aviation Radioman 3/6 Paul McCarty, was stationed at the naval air technical training center in Memphis.

Daddy couldn't find any room to his wife and little girl could not come for Christmas.

But the picture of the little girl crying many a day, and tonight McCarty is trying to decide which of the numerous offers to take her to his home in Memphis.

Crack Reich Troops Out of Fray in One Area, Badly Mauled

PARIS, Sunday, Dec. 24 (AP)—American relief columns, swinging up through Luxembourg and southwestern Belgium in their first effective counter-attack, have bitten into the southern flank of the German penetration which now has reached Libramont, only 23 miles northeast of historic Sedan.

Allied headquarters, lifting a 48-hour time lag on front news, gave this report of the situation:

Striking north of the city of Luxembourg and also north of Arlon, 13 miles northwest of Luxembourg, American troops have dented the German southern flank.

A front dispatch covering this action through Friday morning said the Luxembourg counter-attack was sprung north of Merach, eight miles above Luxembourg city. Although this dispatch was censored it contained these perhaps significant words:

"It is obvious that in the eight days since the Germans threw the dice in what probably is their last big gamble the Americans have had time to reform their forces."

Encouraging news came from the north: the where Associated Press correspondent Wes Galla said Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt's army was in a state of collapse.

of allied air power was thrown in today over the snow-covered western front in an attempt to check the German drive into Belgium and Luxembourg as more than 400 bombers and fighters, escorted by fighters, pounded the German lines.

In one of the fiercest air battles of the war, 178 German Messerschmitt and Focke-Wulf fighters were shot down by American fighters and bombers which equipped with much smaller losses. Three heavy bombers and 13 fighters were reported missing by the U. S. eighth air force based in Britain.

Three hundred planes of the U. S. eighth air force based in France shot down at least 23 of the German fighters which rose by the hundreds to protect the German supply lines. The ninth losses were not reported here.

The Luftwaffe fought furiously against the American airmen who had been waiting anxiously three days for clearing weather to lend a hand to the hard-pressed ground forces in the western front.

The Americans carried the brunt of the air attack, however, along the front between Coblenz and the Belgian border, while rocket-firing fighters-bombers lay out, and struck at the German spearheads.

Today's attacks were officially described in an eighth air force communique as follows:

It is too simple a solution to decide that the police are solely responsible for the present state of affairs, and that they alone are responsible for the violence in the streets. We should be more realistic. We should be more realistic than Metaxas himself. Metaxas himself crushed all the opposition. He crushed the left, King George gave him his blessing. He crushed the liberals, democrats, radicals, and the right. He crushed the army, and Greece was subjected to a dictatorship. He crushed the workers, working in underground cells, through the Metaxas and the late Hitler. He crushed the communists, to keep and train their organization. He crushed the anarchists, and the rest of the stuff. But it is questionable whether there was more than ten per cent of the Greek population who were against him. We know what we are talking about.

FORECASTS POINT TO WHITE YULE

A white Christmas. With a moderate snow falling over this area Saturday morning, with "slippy" temperatures allowing to remain on the ground and with more forecast (now and then) for today and Monday, the white Christmas seemed assured.

The possibility of continued snow, said to be one-half inch or so, which fell Saturday, was forecast in a weather bureau report which stated that there will be "clouds with occasional snow today and Monday."

Partially melting snow during a part of Saturday caused pedestrians no little trouble, both from the moisture and the "slippiness" of it. By evening Saturday, however, it was all ice.

Travelers were warned by State Patrolman W. L. Chumey to "take it easy" on the highways, which were coated with ice. Several accidents, however, occurred, but no fatalities were reported.

Some, for benefit of children, will hold off their decorations until Christmas morning, but the majority of the trees are now up and local merchants reported a brisk trade.

Likewise, it will be a gift Christmas, because of the weather. Merchants reported Saturday that they were sold out in many popular items.

Down town stores were crowded Saturday afternoon with minute shoppers, but the postoffice was closed for the day.

Christmas dinner will be the order of the day Sunday, with those who have not yet had their opening seasons around the Christmas tree as the highlight of this festive Yule.

Butch, 4, Knew Phone Number—Not His Name

"Butch," four-year-old boy, didn't know his last name, but he did know the telephone number of the place where his father worked and he got him back home Saturday.

He was the second child to be brought to the police station Saturday. The first was a girl, found in the east part of town, had been kidnapped from her home.

She couldn't tell Officer Gillette her name, but she led him to the home of her mother, who lives near the downtown section. At the gate she told him goodbye, but the chief persisted for her to get in the door with her, just to make sure that she was at the right house.

"Butch" turned out to be "Butch" North, home of Mrs. North. He had come up town with his grandfather and been left in a picture show while his grandfather did some shopping. "Butch" wandered off and when someone noticed him, saw that he was alone and lost, and he happened to be near the police station.

Police Officer Charles Vance called the number "Butch" gave him and sure enough he was his boy's father who came for him.

LOTS OF FUN AT CITY HALL PARTY

It was a gay Christmas party at the city hall Saturday afternoon with gifts and laughs for all. Promptly at 4 p. m. the staff gathered about the Christmas tree. A week ago they drew names for gifts and to cost more than 25 cents. Part of the bargain was that the gifts would have to be opened at the party and the comic nature of each then brought howls of delight.

Part of the party was a drawing of a prize. The prize was a new car. The drawing was held by the city clerk, who drew the name of the winner.

City Clerk Charles P. Lorenz is going to be busy over the holidays with a license puzzle.

Officer Vern Rollins received a package of candy, which he took to the city hall. The candy was from the city hall staff.

MARINE BATTLES OFFICERS, JAILED

Marine Warren E. Johnson, Sun Valley, was jailed here Saturday night on charges of being drunk and refusing arrest after he had assisted two Twin Falls officers for several minutes in front of the liquor store.

Assistant Chief Lee McCracken and Officer Charles Vance answered a call to the liquor store. They said that the marine had purchased a pint of whiskey in the store and got outside, only to return and claim that he had not been given through liquor. One of the store called headquarters.

The marine, the officers said, was drunk. They tried to get him in a patrol car, but he started swinging on both policemen. At one time all three were down in the street, rolling over the snow-covered pavement.

Finally a toe-hold by McCracken and a hammer blow by Vance quieted the serviceman and he was brought to jail. Military police said that he had been involved in a similar disturbance in the Sun Valley area a short time ago.

GAMBLE OF NAZIS SEEN AS DEFEAT

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Wire Analyst
Possibilities of the German counter-offensive and who has the advantage, overlook that the Secretary of War H. H. Arnold and Supreme Commander Eisenhower believe the Hitlerites may have given the allies the chance to administer a far-reaching defeat.

The way General Ike puts it in his order of the day yesterday to his troops is that "by rushing out from his first defense the enemy may give us the chance to turn his gamble into his worst defeat."

Dwight D. Eisenhower says that if the German drive fails, it definitely will shorten the war.

The general haunts his view, as he told a press conference on the German offensive in 1918 towards the end of the World War I. His recollections of three momentous days which all but won the conflict for the reich, are from first-hand experience, for he was in the thick of the drive.

Was There

"I was there when they drove almost to the Channel," says the general. "Again almost to Arras. Again when they drove to the Marne. I remember how we felt—as if they would never stop. And then I remember how, suddenly, that July, we hit the German salient and it shivered up like a balloon. And I remember how it seemed a very short time after, the surrender came."

Probably there are few World War veterans who haven't had the same thought in mind, not as wishful thinking but as a military possibility. Certainly there's a striking similarity between the Kaiser's never-to-be-forgotten attempt and the Hitlerite effort against the Allies. Let's take a quick look at the 1918 drive—not at all the phases but just the initial onslaught against the British front across the Somme. Find that first rush succeeded, the Kaiser would have had the war in a sack.

There's one striking difference between the 1918 offensive and the present. The Kaiser envisaged winning the war. The Hitlerites know they can't win but delay the allied assault and get a compromise peace. However, the emperor also had peace in mind, and his offensive was merely a campaign of peace propaganda.

The military experts of 1918 said that if the Kaiser failed in his offensive it would mean that he had lost the war. Well, he failed, and his failure involved such a huge loss of men and materiel that he never returned. What the Hitlerites achieve now remains to be demonstrated.

Wife Kills Mate, Puts Body in Car

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 23 (AP)—Detective Ralph Murphy, head of the Toledo Police Department, said today that a 33-year-old Detroit woman, who identified herself as a huge local confessed killing her husband and dismembering his body, found in an auto in a downtown area.

The woman identified herself, Murphy said, as Mrs. Nina Housen.

"The victim's body was found in the back seat of the car," Murphy said. "The machine was towed to the garage yesterday morning after breaking down."

The woman, Murphy said, accompanied the machine which towed the car to the garage and remained in the machine overnight and today. This afternoon she finally fell asleep.

A package in the rear seat, wrapped in canvas, had been described by the witness as a deer shot during a hunting trip.

After the woman fell asleep, the package was opened and the body was found.

Camera's Evidence of Another Nazi Death Camp

Soviets Say 700,000 Tortured And Slain at Nazi Lwow Camp

LONDON, Dec. 23 (AP)—The Moscow radio said today an extraordinary Soviet commission had established that nearly 700,000 persons, including an undetermined number of Americans and British from German prison camps, were tortured and slain in the Nazi extermination camp at Lwow.

The broadcast, recorded here by the Soviet monitor, said an additional 200,000 persons were killed in another Nazi camp at Janow, said that children were slaughtered in the target practice.

The broadcast did not make clear whether the British and Americans were prisoners of war or civilians and did not state their names.

Directed by Himmler

Relating various descriptions of the most horrible terror-tactics, the broadcast said the commission has established Hitler's direct participation in the Lwow atrocities. It said the gassing took place in the eastern part of what was pre-war Poland, several times. It was over by the Russians some time ago.

The broadcast said the commission's report was confirmed by numerous statements of Soviet citizens, as well as by French prisoners who were liberated by the advancing red army in Lwow.

"Children were selected and given to detachments of Hitler youth as targets for shooting practice," the commission said.

Many Frenchmen and Englishmen also were killed by slow degrees in a camp at Fava Kuszany, the report said. A Frenchman was quoted as saying that when he arrived at the camp in September, 1941, there was only one water tap for the use of 12,000 persons, and the prisoners were allowed to use it only a few hours a day.

Campes Buried

The commission's report said a typhoid epidemic was introduced in one camp by deliberately putting typhoid sufferers among healthy prisoners. It took 5000 lives, the commission said.

The report described special measures taken on Himmler's orders in June 1941, when thousands of corpses were exhumed and burned and the ashes sifted by special machines. By July, the report said, 110,000 kilograms of gold was recovered and sent back to Germany.

The commission said a special school had been established at Lwow to train cadres for extermination camps and burning them. Later the sites were camouflaged with trees and bushes.

USO Open Both Sunday, Monday

The USO will be open both Sunday and Monday from 10 a. m. on, and coffee and "snacks" will be available because most restaurants in Twin Falls will be closed on Sunday, and all but one or two on Christmas day.

In addition, USO committees are planning to serve turkey sandwiches as long as they last. Residents of Twin Falls and community, however, are urged to invite one or more servicemen to dinner on those days.

"It is not known how many men in uniform may visit the center on those days, and committee members suggest that persons extending invitations come to the USO and take the soldiers, sailors or marines home with them. However, they may telephone dinner invitations to 923 if they cannot come in person.

Elaborate plans have been made by the Beta Gamma club for an old-fashioned Christmas party on Christmas eve. Each fortunate serviceman will receive a telephone call home as the gift award of the evening.

By injecting a certain serum into eggs, chickens of various colors have been produced.

DRIVE URGED ON LABOR SCARCITY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 (AP)—A slugging drive to win war workers shortages in critical labor areas was urged on the war manpower commission today by James P. Byrnes.

The war mobilization director asked the commission to intensify efforts to establish employment ceilings in these areas so as to make it easier to recruit more workers for war plants.

Byrnes also announced that the war production board will issue a new regulation to authorize, after consulting the withdrawal of priority ratings and allocation rights from those less essential establishments and services which are unwilling to comply with WPMO employment ceilings and hiring regulations.

The vast majority of establishments and employers throughout the nation, Byrnes said, are co-operating whole-heartedly with the WPMO in accepting employment ceilings as essential to war production. I am sure that we can continue to establish these ceilings in most instances through negotiations with the establishments and services concerned and with their employees on a voluntary basis.

"However, I am unwilling to ask for the voluntary acceptance of ceilings by the many without being prepared to take positive measures to enforce ceilings on the very few who are unwilling to thus contribute to our war effort. I am sure that our war effort and our civilian war plans to be fully manned."

Carriers Receive Christmas Bonus

Ninety Times-News carriers, scattered over the Magic Valley, have received Christmas bonuses today, it was announced by Al Westergren, circulation manager, and D. Harvey Cook, assistant circulation manager.

Fifty Times-News carriers in 21 communities of the Magic Valley received bonus checks "for work well done on routes and for new orders."

Two suburban carriers also received turkeys as gifts from the paper. They were Richard Wilson, Meridian, and Arthur Anderson, Glenn Ferry.

The 40 city carriers likewise received their bonus checks at this time. However, turkeys went to designated city carriers on Thanksgiving.

Two Wives File Divorce Actions

Mrs. Edna Pearl Riggs, through her attorney, J. H. Sheffer, Buhl, filed for divorce from Owen D. Riggs on the grounds of cruelty. She also requests the custody of two minor children. The couple married March 17, 1928, at Twin Falls.

Under a court order of a property settlement, the defendant has agreed that the plaintiff is to have the real property, household goods and a car, held as community property.

Mrs. Edna Hazen Saturday filed suit for divorce from Forest Hazen, whom she married Oct. 13, 1926, at Buhl. She charged him with cruelty.

Mrs. Hazen requested the custody of two minor children; $3 a month for their support, and household and kitchen furniture. Rayburn and Buhlborn are her attorneys.

DUNDER, BLIXEN CAN STRUT STUFF

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 23 (AP)—A nationwide Christmas forecast by the Miami weather bureau said indications are that Santa Claus "will be able to use his sleigh and reindeer" in most parts of the United States.

"A white Christmas is in prospect the northern two-thirds of the United States, including Alaska, Virginia to the North Carolina mountains in Tennessee, extreme northern Arkansas, the Texas-Oklahoma panhandle section, and including all of the Rocky mountain region westward over the Sierra Nevada ranges," the forecast said.

"The southern states will be bare of snow, and also the Pacific coast states except for the higher mountain ranges."

Miami's meteorologists compiled the forecast from reports sent in by all the other weather bureau offices in working time with the bureau's custom of providing an advance picture of the kind of weather to be expected on special occasions.

Rain or snow is indicated from the Pacific northwest eastward through the Rocky mountain region," the forecast said.

Below normal temperatures will prevail over most of the country except southern Florida, but no extremely low temperatures are indicated for any sections."

DELAY SEEN IN RED PUSH EFFECT

By EDWARD H. HUGGS
WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 (AP)—It may be weeks or months before the promised Russian grand offensive produces any effect on the western front.

"Military men said today. In their opinion, the German high command has 'budgeted' its men and materials for each of its fronts—the western, eastern and Italian—and would not shift troops until a 'critical stage' has been reached."

Assuming that the projected Russian offensive on the eastern front succeeds in breaking through the "razor line," this "critical stage" might be reached when the Russian forces roll up to the border of Germany proper.

If the Soviet armies strike from the Vistula river in Poland, they would have to advance westward almost 200 miles before hitting the German border.

Even then, it was said, the German high command might hesitate to shift forces from the western front—assuming that the western front by that time is not even more menacing than the eastern front.

It was pointed out that although troops had crossed the German border at some points in the west, there is nothing to indicate that the German command has pulled any forces from the east, even for the big counter-offensive now under way.

Speculation on the area of the Soviet offensive centers largely on the Vistula front, where the Polish militia offer favorable ground for use of large masses of Russian armor.

As an alternative to a strike from the Vistula, some military observers push against East Prussia with the object of clearing the Baltic coast.

Such a move, it is pointed out, would mean a German defense in East Prussia, however, as the German command has pulled any forces from the east, even for the big counter-offensive now under way.

Filipinos Call 'Em 'Monkey Men'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 (AP)—The federal reserve board said there is still a danger of a disastrous farm land boom such as occurred during the first world war.

Land values rose steeply during both wars. The difference so far is that farm mortgage loans have not soared in this war as they did between 1914 and 1922.

But there are indications that the already decline in mortgage loans since 1922 has slowed almost to the stopping point. In fact, there has been little decline during 1944.

WOUNDED DESIRE CHRISTMAS MAIL

AN ARMY BASE HOSPITAL, Hawaii, Dec. 23 (AP)—What the wounded in ward 24 want most for Christmas is mail from home.

They have a Christmas tree in the long room for orthopedic cases. It's barren of gifts.

Many patients are from Leyte. Their mail, which must be forwarded from their former Philippine addresses, hasn't caught up with them.

They can't get over the idea they had been brought 3,000 miles by hospital planes, away from the heat and dampness and danger of the Philippines.

But they're glad they were moved so fast, even if it is the reason why they're men from General MacArthur's 7th, 7th and 9th Infantry divisions—will have to go without their mail and Christmas packages from home.

Second Lt. Anne Dougherty, army nurse from Watertown, Conn., assured the men they would all have a real Christmas dinner. The menu will include roast beef, olives, pickles, cranberry sauce, peas, turkey, dressing, whipped potatoes, fresh peas, corn, lettuce, tomato, salad, ice cream, fruit cake, rolls and coffee.

But the soldiers still asked: "What about the mail?"

The state museum, University of Alabama, contains in the geological section 20,000 specimens and samples of the ore and minerals of the state.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Watson had word from their daughter, Dorothy, that she was assigned to the hospital corps, and is now receiving a month's training at Bethesda, Md.

Mr. G. Sanford is spending the holiday season with his home. Mr. Sanford is employed in Oakland, Calif., as a watchman.

This Sailor Had Boat Shot Away From Under Him

By MARION HANBY
FAIRVIEW, Dec. 23—Corvair George L. Barak, veteran of four invasions, had a landing boat shot out from under him—but he was unharmed and picked up in perhaps five minutes.

Then he continued his duties for 15 hours.

That's one of the things friends learned when Corvair Barak came home on leave to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Barak.

While Landing Boat

He wears stars for the Africa, Sicily, Italy and Normandy invasions, and was with the first wave of the invasion, piloting landing boats with the first soldiers to land in France.

It tells of making their own harbor under great difficulties and the sinking of some ships to make a sea wall so the water would be safe for landing. He says the magnitude of this invasion cannot be imagined by civilians. Thirty-five ton General Sherman tanks floated to shore on their own power with pontoons and dropped the pontoons and went on ahead of some of the barges, which shows the speed at which they traveled.

The beaches were black with moving equipment and if the American people think "to quote Barak, 'the Germans hadn't fortified the beach, they can't think again, because resistance was stiff'."

Saw Hemingway

Among those in the first wave that he saw was the famous writer, Ernest Hemingway, with long hair, beard, unarmed and with pad and pencil, writing down impressions of the day.

He was stationed in England and had been in the hospital for a long time. He visited Paris and says it is still beautiful with the people in good health and fairly well dressed. When Barak's ship came into New York harbor and the men saw the statue of Liberty, he and his mates broke down and cried.

Grange Gleanings

By J. R. CRAWFORD

HOLLISTER

The lecturer of Hollister Grange, Betty Foster, had a pleasant surprise awaiting her at the last meeting.

As an alternative to a strike from the Vistula, some military observers push against East Prussia with the object of clearing the Baltic coast.

Such a move, it is pointed out, would mean a German defense in East Prussia, however, as the German command has pulled any forces from the east, even for the big counter-offensive now under way.

Speculation on the area of the Soviet offensive centers largely on the Vistula front, where the Polish militia offer favorable ground for use of large masses of Russian armor.

YANKEE PRIVATE CHINA OPA BOSS

By JOHN GROVER
CHENGU, Szechwan, China (Delayed) — He's the "OPA administrator of Chengu" the boss of the downtown ward of this 2200-year-old west China metropolis. And he's a Opa who couldn't order chop suey without pointing to a menu in his native Chicago 16 months ago.

On his job, he's a combination international banker, educator, authority, lawman, editor and information supervisor. That's the P. C. J. (China) Brockbridge, who used to manage a small Chicago loan office at 1 North LaSalle street.

"Brock" was assigned a desk in the Chengu military police office nine months ago. A detail of the army special service forces. He was supposed to help bewildered Opa find their way among the town's more than 500,000 equally puzzled Chinese.

It's Different Now
The Opa would be a source of mirth, sakes and jewels for the girl back home. Brock admits he didn't know his Opa from a hair of his head in China when he first came.

It's all different. Brock says the merriment "get up and get" that made Chengu the nation's "freight handler" has been transplanted to this town where pigs are still tilled to market in wheelbarrows.

An index was made of Chengu's shops, including an approximate list of prices. Brock's rate was posted to keep pay-day happy Opa from billying pay day right to 10 times the normal tariff. Then the vexing problem of money exchange in war-torn China was solved. Brock had to be liked.

Chinese merchants—and more are coming—like the feel of Opa's pocket and the exchange rates had the doughboys for food. When they were handed a bale of crisp, new banknotes totaling $400 Chinese for one U. S. bill, it seemed like financial manna.

It's Profitable
Brock and his Opa, he learned that some exchange rates were giving Americans only $240 Chinese for $1 U. S. while that day's gold rate was 250 to 1. At that rate, a money changer could net a profit of $75 U. S. without much trouble every day.

So Brock got the Opa on the exchange rate daily and announced it. Brock got the Opa on the exchange rate daily and announced it. Brock got the Opa on the exchange rate daily and announced it.

Then, Chinese steaks didn't like with American memory of T-bones. Brock got the Opa on the exchange rate daily and announced it. Brock got the Opa on the exchange rate daily and announced it.

The Merchants Checked
The frequent merchant who jacks up prices beyond reason is one of the worst. Brock got the Opa on the exchange rate daily and announced it. Brock got the Opa on the exchange rate daily and announced it.

To the Yanks, Brock's the final authority on what, what and when. Brock got the Opa on the exchange rate daily and announced it. Brock got the Opa on the exchange rate daily and announced it.

He's stout though, when asked "where could a guy get a date?" Brock got the Opa on the exchange rate daily and announced it. Brock got the Opa on the exchange rate daily and announced it.

But, otherwise, Brock has Chengu in hand.

ONE SHIPMENT

MEMPHIS, Dec. 23 (AP)—American airlines declined today it had handled its first big shipment of war-stale freight. The company said 1,120 pounds of bauxite was flown from the Porcel corporation in Little Rock, Ark., to Penn State college in State College, Penn., for testing.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 23 (AP)—

lively this wartime Christmas presents a scene blackly unfamiliar to old residents. Along the boulevard there is no sign of the over-stuffed plaster Santas, or brilliantly illuminated metallic trees that used to make the thoroughfare into Santa Claus lane yearly.

There are more of the wreaths, either suspended from overhanging buildings or carried by movie stars in them. No more does Santa Claus ride on his sleigh, mounted on a picturesque float surmounting an illuminated mountain village; no movie float stilling beside him as a series of symbolic snowflakes spray the spectators.

Come too in the parade, headed by cowboy stars and Indians, and Victor MacLaglen's light horse troop. Colorful bands that used to lead a military touch are now cheerleaders. If it weren't for a half-dozen window display here and there, and a few hawkers of mistletoe and holly cut from the nearby hills, the boulevard would present little hint of the season which is onto the year's high apogee for movie folk.

It was all pretty corny, and some folks used to say that there was too much of a commercial Hollywood aspect to this day of celebrating Christmas, but it was say, and the film folk enjoyed it, as did the swarms of tourists. The Hollywood Christmas spirit still multi-feats itself, this year through the organizations entertaining the deluge of service men on Christmas leave here in Hollywood.

Largest center for Hollywood talent is the canten, where Eddie Cantor, with a dozen others in turn will play Santa Claus in costume, and dapper presents wrapped with the canten special paper and card to the number of 10,000. Seven shows on Christmas eve and Christmas day will include almost every name in town.

The Hollywood pulch canten has its leeches doors bursting open as it prepares for 1,000 weekend guests. The managers will entertain 20 service men and women, with twin

Santas, Edward Arnold and Charles

Coburn.

FRANCE ALERT TO KEEP WAR AWAY

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE, Dec. 23 (AP)—In the tiny villages along the Franco-Belgian border, where the war came and went so quickly only four months ago, little knots of civilians gathered again at crossroads.

Three months ago they had tired of cheering. They returned to their daily chores, accustomed to the rumbling columns of allied trucks and troops, just moving up somewhere in the distance to where the Germans were far away.

Today they were cheering again and giving little waves and smiles of assurance as the trucks roared by, going now into combat to the war from costing back to them worst alone door steps and to these wooden-shed, beretted and worried civilians.

At almost regular intervals along these fog-shrouded roads, the scene was the same. Little groups of five or six men and women cheered and in tones as low as the roar of allied equipment would permit, discussed the course of a crazy war.

Occasionally they averted their gaze from the convoys to take another look at a seemingly tiny band of helmeted, black-clad men standing on a knoll with rifles at ready and huddled in overcoats against a cold wind. They had appeared suddenly from nowhere in a truck three nights ago to stand guard on this road which still is many miles behind the line.

There were not many of them but to the French they were a symbol of power that somehow was going to stem the advancing Germans.

A week ago the traffic of rolling trucks seemed also busy. There was nothing lazy about it now.

Thinking Of You This Christmas

January Deadline Aids Taxpayers

By A. BURTON HEATH
NRA Staff Correspondent

More understanding has arisen in connection with announcements that income tax payers may file their final 1944 returns, and clean up their obligations to the treasury Jan. 15 if they choose.

This option does not, however, mean that the customary March 15 filing date is anything new. There never has been any reason in past years why taxpayers could not file on or before Jan. 15, provided they could obtain the necessary forms. And there is no change in the law that prevents your waiting until March 15, if you want.

The real significance of the Jan. 15 date arises out of the final annual tax estimate under the pay-as-you-earn system. Here is how it works:

If you know, last April 15, that your 1944 income tax would be substantially greater than the tax your employer was withholding, you were required to file the Form 1040-ES, estimating your probable tax liability, and with it to pay one-quarter of the amount of your year-end tax not covered by withholdings.

Change Payments

If there was no change in your tax prospectus by June 15, and again by Sept. 15—that is, if your income was running about as you had anticipated—on each of those dates you would send in another quarter of the estimated tax not covered by withholding. If, however, by either date you discovered that your expectations had changed materially, you were supposed to file an amended Form 1040-ES and change your payments accordingly.

These responsibilities are past history. But there was a fourth deadline scheduled for Dec. 15. At

RUMI BALANCE

Did you pay all of the "unforgotten portion" of your 1943 income tax last March? Or did you leave half of it to be paid next March? If you did not pay all, you will receive a bill from the bureau of internal revenue soon. Such statements are supposed to be mailed before Feb. 15, and your payment is due not later than March 15.

If you used form 1040 last March, the amount shown on one bill should be that in item 21 on page 1. If you used the optional (short) form 1040A, the amount on the bill should be that shown in item 15.

The bureau of internal revenue has asked NEA service and the "Times-News" to urge you. And you get such a bill, not to pay it with your 1944 income tax, even though both are payable at the same time in the same office.

The Rumi balance and the 1944 tax should be paid separately, with separate cash, money order or check. If you pay them together, the Rumi balance will get mixed up with the slow processing of income tax returns, the bureau's records will get confused, and you may be put to a lot of unnecessary trouble before the matter is straightened out.

To save yourself a lot of work and difficulty, if you don't care about the internal revenue debt, be sure to pay the two separately, with separate checks or money orders.

At that time you were required to bring your estimate close enough to the facts so that with the Dec. 15 payments you would have paid not less than 80 per cent of your total 1944 tax.

That is where the new Jan. 15 date comes in. The treasury and congress realized that many taxpayers would have miscalculated between Dec. 15 and Jan. 1, which would slap penalties on men and women who had conscientiously and intelligently complied with every provision of the law.

So the Dec. 15 final estimate and payment were deferred until Jan. 15, at which time all 1944 income will have been received and all 1944 expenditures will have been made, and an accurate report will be possible.

So by Jan. 15 is your duty, subject to penalty, to see that a 1040-ES estimate has been filed that is not more than 20 per cent under the tax you owe on 1944 income—and that your withholdings plus what you have paid with estimates is enough to cover the estimated tax obligation in full.

Save Bookkeeping

Now, if you choose to file your actual tax return Jan. 15, instead of waiting until March 15, you may omit the final 1040-ES. In that way you can save a bookkeeping chore. You can make a final payment that is correct instead of having to write another check March 15. If you discover that you have overpaid, you can avoid having to wait another year or more for the treasury to refund your credit.

But there is one stumbling block. Employers are not required to provide Form 9-2 from the withholding receipt, until Jan. 31, and you cannot file your return until you have that receipt, even though you know what amounts will be on it.

The main of year-end bookkeeping and manpower shortage will prevent many employers from providing these receipts as early as Jan. 15.

If you use Form 9-2 form is too late for you to file Jan. 15, or if you prefer to wait until March 15, that is your business without penalty—provided, and don't forget this proviso—provided that if you do not file the final income return by Jan. 15, you must make certain that by that date you shall have filed a tax estimate (1040-ES) that is not more than 20 per cent under what your total tax will prove to be, and that you shall have paid the total shown by that estimate.

What Folks Feared Comes to Pass: Leon Henderson Back

By FRANK L. WELLS
WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 (AP)—Well... What some folks feared and others hoped for has come to pass.

Leon Henderson is back in the government.

This double-barreled firecracker who put over OPA and other things, returned after two years in private business to be General Eisenhower's economic administrator for the nation-occupied parts of Germany.

It's not very clear just what he's supposed to do, but Leon Henderson is a thing like that he lies in close.

He first showed up here in 1939, heading that Gen. Hugh Johnson's NRA he'd done some of his own thing. Johnson, rugged old warrior, took a liking to the youngish, cocksure, impetuous, hellion who could outshoot and outpace him. He handed Henderson the NRA consumer relations job when... to get even with him... poured on every tough nut he could find.

Glorified in Hard Work

Leon cracked away in high gear. He gloried in hard work. He showed one after another, cheap, black at all his own clear into his face, grimed through a fog of fierce fumes and tore out to town.

He belated "Ho!" at the White House as often as fair-haired boys murmured "Yes!" Heaved to orthodox economic principles learned at Swarthmore, Carnegie Tech and Paul Wharton school when it was popular to fan the air with fancy ideas to re-make America.

Mr. Roosevelt took him on when NRA failed... some say out of startled admiration or sheer curiosity. Leon was a young new dealer but he wanted to put "meat and potatoes" into "fat and gain."

Son of Minister

There were many who called him "communist" and others at his unconventional manner. Others, wise to his lingo, pointed out that his Scotch-Irish-Swedish ancestry came here more than 200 years ago when he fought for America in all her wars... that Leon was the son of a Minuteman, N. J. Methodist minister, a World War I army captain and a "regular" Democrat since he cast his first vote for Woodrow Wilson.

He was economist for Harry Hopkins' old WPA, secretary of the anti-monopoly committee, an SEC commissioner, member of the president's defense commission and first director of OPA's War Relocation Authority. When that was changed to plan OPA the senate unanimously confirmed his appointment as first price administrator.

There were a lot of catcalls and jeers and a lot of cheers.

Pellie Blackmail

Serious Tom Connolly, D. Tex., challenged.

"Isn't your OPA just a polite form of blackmail?"

Said Bernard M. Baruch:

"I think he is the best qualified man for this OPA job."

Baruch, famed industrial mobilizer of World War I, used to slap Leon in his economic teeth now and then. But they usually came to terms in Baruch's "America as office."

... a park bench in Lafayette park, opposite the White House. Both were great "idea" men.

Said Chairman Pelman, D. Tex.:

"I believe members of the house looking and curious... committee... x x x will tell you he (Henderson) is the smartest witness ever to appear before it. He is a man who knows more about things than any man I ever heard testify."

Costs Job Done

"No man charges that he is not qualified x x x that he is honest. Some of his ways are not liked x x x but he is a man who will get the job done."

Cautious congressmen asked Henderson everything from how high is up to did he believe in gravity.

Goes on Vacation

Leon bought a box of his extra willie cigars, a case of Ambrosia beer, dozens of holidays; put his banjo and wife and three children ages 7, 12, 14 in the family flivver and soared off to their summer home on Chesapeake bay. There he cranked up his ancient motor boat, threw out a fishing line, swam back and "ripped" the water with raucous yowling of church hymns while pondering the fate of forgotten bad boys.

Lately he's been radio broadcasting economic reasoning for the Brookings Institute and writing "ads" for a Virginia firm.

Mr. Henderson says:

"He amazes me. He had 14 odd jobs... including minding babies when I met him in college. Our first date? He took me to a dance on his bicycle!"

Hopefully Informal

Leon is hopelessly informal. He is big-bellied and boisterous. He may wear a gray suit, red shoes, green coat, a yellow necktie and a round hat. And him with thick hair as black as tar at 40. He stands only 5-feet, 8 but weighs 210 pounds.

The day crew pulled off a patient Horatio Alger act on congress...

Heeky suffering the slings and arrows. But he is strictly a bearcat. He backkicked two tax drivers in New York, a truck driver and a football stalwart got smart with him. He told a Louisville friend, fired in mountain dew, he would surely pop him if he didn't cut out that old "what a guy! What a guy!" Pat-on-the-back act.

Friends say:

"Waste think Hitler was a top cook? ... Wait 'til they get a load of Leon!"

VULETIDE STARS 'LITTER' THE SKY

By J. HUGH PRUETT
Astronomer, General Extension
Division, University of Oregon
With the Yuletide stars often come questions regarding the nature of the star of Bethlehem. Astronomical writers, while suggesting explanations, have to admit that all such are merely conjectures. Martin Lockwood of Boston planetary museum has said the star's real and great value would seem to lie in the fact that it has overshadowed to a large part of mankind for nearly 2,000 years the finest and most lofty of ideals.

The theories usually offered with regard to the star are without elaboration. Many believe that the Christmas star, mentioned only in the biblical form and in a single nature writer, was supernatural in nature with perhaps no material existence. Others who hold that God always works through natural means, think it may have been an brilliant planet, or the bright comet which the Chinese recorded as appearing at about that time.

Others suggest a flaming meteor,
or a spectacular nova, or new star,
such as even in our times astronomers have seen where no star was previously known. Or it may have been the gorgeous specter which close approach to each other of the brilliant planets Jupiter, Saturn, and Mars, which occurs once in 100 years. One such display appeared in 5 B.C.

But it isn't necessary to go back to ancient times for a Christmas star. The sky this Christmas season is full of glittering lights ready to give inspiration to everyone blessed with eyesight and the soul to look up.

In Early Evening
Our "greeting star" is especially spectacular. Scarcely has daylight begun to fade when high in the southwest a clear, gleaming dot of light appears, brightening rapidly until the twilight deepens. It soon glows as a radiant little lamp, far surpassing any star even in the heavens. By the time the sky is really dark, this planet Venus is so gorgeous that it must impress even seasoned observers as an object of marvellous brilliance and beauty.
Venus is our special Christmas star in 1944.

We have still another vivid Christmas symbol, the Northern Cross standing almost upright over the northwestern horizon between 6 and 10 o'clock at this season.

Bubble Bath Powder Sent to U. S. Sailors

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEAD-QUARTERS, PEARL HARBOR,
Dec. 23 (AP)—A lot of sailors out in the Pacific are getting bubble bath powder for Christmas although they haven't seen a bathtub in months.
This headquarters has ordered because so many of the packages broken in transit, containing no stuff.
Despite the paucity of bathtubs, the powder "offers many possibilities, according to the mail clerk (tailor) in advanced areas," said the headquarters release, but it didn't say what those possibilities were. Sailors aboard most warships and at shore installations usually have showers.

Two Tons of Hot Cargo Rushed by Air

Hard-slugging machines need flame throwers to root Japs out of pillboxes, caves, and hidden jungle nests. Here a marine has just sprayed the enemy with deadly fire.

Here is one of the crates of flame throwers flown to Palau. Sgt. Leland P. Blackwell, left, was a member of the transport. Maj. Theodore W. Sanford, right, piloted the transport.

By LEIT. MILBURN MCCARTY U. S. Marine Corps

SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC
THE bag indefinite transport plane spared its way through dark clouds, wind and rain, flying an uncharter-ed course over enemy territory to deliver flame throwers to the hard-pressed marines on Palau.

Seven hours ago it rose from a secret Pacific base into the tropic night and began the long flight over a water route that no American plane had traversed before. Ordinarily, in such weather, the flight would have been cancelled, but the battering of the wind, the grinding of the engines, and the creaking of the plane itself, an ancient DC-3
with more than 25,000 miles of flying on its log.

The pilot, Maj. Theodore W. Sanford, Jr., Kansas City, looked at his watch. It was a little before 7 in the morning—and the plane was due in at 7 that evening. Sgt.
Charles M. Wilson, New York, swayed over his instruments in the tiny navigator's compartment.
Rain beat around the plane and leaked in on the flame throwers.
There was nothing but noise—the battering of the wind, the grinding
of the engines, and the creaking of
the plane itself, an ancient DC-3
with more than 25,000 miles of flying on its log.

The co-pilot, Lieut. George W.
Rosa, Newburgh, N. Y., and the student navigator, Sgt. Raymond D.

Boyer, Seattle, peered through the clouds looking for land.

"Things aren't so good," Sgt. Leland P. Blackwell, Tonkwa, Okla., commented. "The navigator thinks we're south of Palau; the major thinks we're north."

Seven o'clock came and no Palau
... there? ... then I saw we were covering a wide area, searching for land, but all we saw was clouds and water. For miles at a time we ran into rain storms, and couldn't see anything at all.

The radio operator, S. Sgt. Lawrence A. Gregory, Great Point, Mich., tried fruitlessly to make contact with our field at Peleliu. But no luck. We did not know it at the time but the plane had passed its destination and was flying around between Palau and the Philippines.

At about 8:30 Sergeant Boyer announced there was only two hours of gas left. "If we don't see land pretty soon, we're going to lose the flame throwers overboard," he said.
"I'll give us another hour in the dark."

Finally, after almost two hours of searching, the crew spotted land.
The only problem then was to make sure it was Peleliu, and not one of the Palau islands still held by the Japs.

Major Sanford sat and received the proper signals and set the plane down gently on the Peleliu strip.
Just as another rain storm began.
Four thousand pounds of flame throwers were at their destination, after being flown some 10,000 miles.

'HICK' FOR SHORT SENT TO SENATE

By HOWARD C. BYER
DES MOINES, Dec. 23 (AP)—The name of Bourke Blackmore Hickenlooper, Iowa's aggressive 48-year-old governor, which once almost caused him to drop politics, will be added to the roll of the United States senate next January as proof that the easy names do not hold all the political drawing power.

Today the name—shortened to "Hick" by his friends—is known in every Iowa crossroads settlement, and is gaining more and more attention from national party leaders.
In 1928, however, it appeared to Hickenlooper, after four years in the legislature, that getting the name across to the voting public was a losing battle.

A political unknown, Harry B.
Thompson, won the Republican nomination as lieutenant-governor over Hickenlooper. Then Thompson withdrew, and Hickenlooper was nominated in convention to replace him. He subsequently was elected and easily won reelection.

By 1942, Hickenlooper had turned into an asset the four-gable longhouse springing from his Holland-Dutch ancestry. He made more jokes about it than anyone else and Iowans liked it. They elevated him to the governorship by a two-to-one margin over his Democratic opponent.

"The name doesn't worry me any more," Hickenlooper says as he prepares to take over the senate seat which he wrested from the Democratic veteran, Sen. Clay Clegg.

Neither do specific campaign promises worry the dispassionate elect. He explains that he had only one commitment—to take his 11-year-old son, David, pleasant hunting.

This Santa Claus All 'Good Names'

Santa Claus has always had a good name, but did you ever see a Santa comprised entirely of "good names?"
Mrs. Emma Clouchek, national Republican committeewoman from Idaho, has received a most unusual Christmas greeting, the entire Santa Claus design made entirely of names printed in green, black and red ink, some of them more deeply shaded to carry out the pattern.

Many celebrities
The huge greeting card, sent by San Pryor and family, bears all the names of the national Republican committee, in addition to such celebrities as Clark Gable, Luce, Robert Ripley, Comdr. and Mrs. Claire Tunney and others whom the Pryor family has known.

Mrs. Clouchek's name is found between the third and fourth finger on Santa's left hand. Mr. and Mrs.
Bruce Barton's names lend themselves well to beautiful part of Santa's mouth. Names swirl up like steam from a kettle on the hearth.

In the foreground are pho-graphed heads of the Pryor family, superimposed on cartoon drawings.

Pryor resigned as a member of the national Republican committee when he became an official with the Pan-American Airways.

"Peace on Earth to Men of Good Will" is the legend the greeting bears. It's the kind of thing to study on a rainy day. Mrs. Clouchek intends to have it framed as a memorabilia of the year when there was so little peace on earth.

The Memory of Friends...

Maybe the person who said "there is no sentiment in business" is right, but he would have a hard time convincing us that it is true—and we strongly suspect that he has a lot of company.

Our thoughts turn back over the years. Some recollections are vivid and some are misty. Out of it all comes a picture of many wonderful friends. Small wonder, then, that we cannot agree with anyone who says there is no sentiment in business.

Believe us, we are truly thankful, and in that spirit we extend to you the wish that this will be much the happiest Christmas of your life.

SANTA WAS FIRST PAINTED IN 1844

NEW YORK, Dec. 24 (AP)—Pictorially speaking, Santa Claus has been an American celebrity for 100 years. He was a revered Christmas figure before that, but no artist set out to paint him until 1844. Then he showed up as a tiny elf, a quiet, neat to a fireplace and smoking a wee Dutch pipe. Like everything else that is popular in this country, Santa has expanded. Nineteen years after that first sketch of him appeared, Thomas Nast, the cartoonist, who also supplied our conception of Uncle Sam, the Republican elephant, and the Democratic donkey, sketched his notion of Santa.

This Santa was a rollicking, chubby old boy, who strained the pipe smoking habit and was dressed in what looked like a night shirt with fur collar and cuffs. Since then he has grown a little taller and a little rounder, developed a fuller white beard and mustache, and above all acquired that terrific red suit bordered in white.

The story of how our Santa Claus evolved is interesting. According to legend, the children of Lapland and Siberia, raised on tales of the good and generous St. Nicholas, thought their benefactor as dressed in furs and traveling in a reindeer-drawn sleigh, just as they did themselves.

Wonderous stories of this great fourth century saint, who gave handsome presents to the poor, were repeated at the firesides of all Europeans from the time of his death in 342. The Dutch children observed the anniversary of his death Dec. 6 and received presents in their wooden shoes.

They thought of him as a stern old man with a long white beard, garbed in bishop's robes and carrying a stick to chastise bad children. They loved and feared him simultaneously.

"San Claus"

The little Dutchmen coming to this country with their parents to found New Amsterdam, brought Santa Claus or "San Claus," as they called him. In no time, the English children, children caught on to the idea of the Dutchman, moved his yearly visit from Dec. 6 to New Year's eve which was their season for gifts.

Two things happened: Germans coming to America brought along their Christmas customs, their Christmas trees and Christmas carols burned in honor of the Christ child, whom the German children called "Kris Kringle."

At about the same time that these festivities were making Christmas Day important, families beginning to spread across the country came to it as a day of reunion. Thus the English season of celebration, the Dutch figure of Santa Claus, and the German acquaintance became combined for the one holiday.

Female for truck shipments of potatoes in or out of the state may now be obtained at Gooding in addition to the WPA office at Twin Falls and Burley. George Edwards is the Gooding agent.

Bart Black, who is in charge of the office here, said that 160 cars of potatoes had been shipped from here this week and that additional shipments will be made as soon as railroad cars become available.

He said that he had been informed by railroad officials that the shortage of cars for transportation should ease after the holidays.

Black said that the telephone number of the WPA office here had been changed from 888 to 892.

Germans Combatting for Time to Stem Tide of War With Their New V-Bombs

Curt Riese, noted author and analyst of the assignment in his book, "The Nazi Game Underground," and "Tidal Zap!" Riese is recognized as an authority on German internal affairs. This exclusive story is his first dispatch since his arrival overseas.

By CURT RIESE
LONDON, Dec. 23 (By Radio)—Counsellors indications today that the assumption that the reich is preparing for a long, drawn-out war.

Intelligence bearing from the reich supporting such a belief is shared by some military experts here, but is reluctantly shared by the public.

Perhaps the most striking example of the Big Three may have something to do with the new German plan to fight on—a grimly exemplified in the current Nazi counter-offensive in the desperate hope that time and V-bombs will turn the tide of war in favor of Hitler.

Some time ago four British secret agents parachuted to Germany near the Baltic coast and posed as foreign workers. Found "politically reliable" by the Nazi authorities, they were assigned to different working camps, then finally to one V-plane.

Before the plane got away, they managed to reach the launch site to England. This one example of many shows that British intelligence knows everything there is to know about the V-dagger.

Constant bombings of launching platforms as well as railways leading to them hamper the German V-bomb effort.

An eye witness present random V-bombing without military value, but it illustrates the possibility of a militarily effective use of new type V-bombs on the front.

In some degree, V-1 already is used on the Belgian front, but according to German V-bomb experts, bringing new models, employed as anti-aircraft, creating a quasi-noise and between our lines and the Nazi front.

There is good reason for the belief that the Nazis are preparing a V-2 to be launched from mountain tops in Norway. Intelligence says they will prove hardly more accurate than their predecessors. But less accuracy is needed if they are directed against crowded front lines instead of the hinterland.

Whatever the military value, such plans indicate the decision of the Nazis to fight on, and probably will cause a long delay to the end of the war.

War of Attrition

There are other indications that the Nazis are preparing a war of attrition. The allies have discovered that the Germans have formed new war schools behind the Italian front, whose purpose is training spies in coaxing allied lines with refugees and returning such information.

Several were caught and executed. The assumption is permissible that similar activities are going on at the western front. Obviously such an arrangement would be successful if a releasing battle from now on.

Another indication that the Nazis have a more positive plan is German leadership. Von Rundstedt, greatest German strategist, hardly would have retained command if he believed the situation utterly hopeless. For the same reason, even more symptomatic is the report from Zurich that Hitler is again about to take over the high command.

Fight for Time

Hitler will do everything he can to disconnect himself and the party from final defeat. Therefore he would leave military leadership to others if he had been convinced that everything was lost.

Everything indicates that the German fight for time. In this connection it is interesting that they are preparing a new phase of air war, according to excellent information. The Nazis are supposed to be converting bombers into gas carriers filled with inflammable gas in order to start fires in enemy strategic objectives. Here again the effect would be delaying. It seems in the realm of possibilities that the Nazis might send such bombers with suicide crews to America.

Another delaying weapon will be the return of the U-boat. Germany has experimented for years to improve her U-boats. The experiments took place in the North Sea. The Germans failed in their most important objective of increasing underwater speed.

However, Germany still possesses around 400 U-boats ready for battle. The possesses excellent bases near Bergen, Norway, blasted out of the mountains, built protected by concrete, and far superior to other bases in France. Furthermore, the morale of most of the crews still is exceedingly high and the Germans treat and feed them supremely to retain it. Experience shows that while the U-boat is an immense nuisance and thus a delaying factor, it has no strategic value.

Would Split Allies

Summarizing, everything points to the Nazis to delay us. Their spy schools and the fact that U-boats are not yet employed indicate they believe that they have much time left.

Most experts believe that the main incentive for delaying tactics is the German hope that the allies may quarrel. If there is a new German plan which may change the face of the war, this alone is reason for a speedy meeting of the "Big Three."

RED-CROSS HELPS MAKE IT MERRIER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (AP)—The Red Cross again spread the Christmas spirit around a war-torn world. The great humanitarian organization brought an old-fashioned yule to servicemen and women both at home and overseas.

For months it had been planning and working so no one wearing an American uniform would be overlooked, even if he be in an Arctic outpost, an island jungle, a prison camp or on a ship at sea.

Even war-stricken children in allied countries will be remembered, some of them by United States servicemen themselves.

Today, a million and a quarter individual gift boxes will be distributed to service patients in overseas hospitals, aboard hospital ships, trains and planes and to small groups of men at remote stations. These boxes, packed by volunteers, contain candy, cigarettes, gum, inkblots and reading matter.

The Christmas spirit will be enhanced at holiday gatherings with colorful decorations provided in kits prepared and sent overseas by Red Cross and Junior Red Cross members.

Impoverished children of Great Britain, France, Italy and other war-torn countries will receive 600 gift boxes of candy and 150,000 gift boxes of games, school materials and sewing equipment from the Junior Red Cross. Servicemen are supplementing these gifts with toys made in Red Cross hobby shops abroad.

American ingenuity will be at work everywhere to create an authentic home Christmas atmosphere.

In a south Pacific hospital last year, patients pulled each other with marionettes made of cotton and given by Red Cross workers. Their Christmas tree was decorated with table-linens hails frosted by spoonfuls.

Santa Has Traded His Reindeer

In this day and age old Saint Nick has gone all out in his efforts to please his friends. In some distant parts of the globe he may even surpass his reindeer and sleigh with a jeep ... or a tank ... or a P-40 ... but knowing him like we do, we know that he will find a way to bring the true spirit of Christmas to all.

It is a comforting thought and a blessing to know that regardless of the unhappiness and disappointments which have been the experience of many the past few years, there remains the traditional feeling of good cheer at Christmas. Let each of us be conscious of the things that are expected of us this present season. Let each of us spread cheer and happiness and good fellowship over all those whom we come in contact to perpetuate the spirit of an American Christmas.

YANKEES GET PAY BUT JUST BARELY

By LEWIS HAWKINS WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN
LUXEMBOURG, Dec. 23 (AP)—Delivering the company payroll ordinarily is a routine job, but not when a surprise German counteroffensive is in.

Lt. Richard McConnell, Itasca, N. Y., headed for a village northeast of Luxembourg with about $1,600 in cash, not knowing that the Germans had launched a large-scale offensive and had overrun the town to which he was going.

He found the village streets deserted and there were holes from the buildings. He leaped from one side of the jeep and his driver jumped from the other.

So he surrenders
But every building he ran into he found Germans. So he surrendered with his bulging cash bag.

The German sergeant in charge of the detail which captured him was interested in the money, but when McConnell explained what it was for the German, evidently with a German's habitual respect for rank, handed the bag back.

Then the sergeant decided to march McConnell down the street to a German lieutenant, but he was so unfortunate that he ran into a small shell near his hotel which was the only stable building still held by the Americans.

Lt. Joe Miller, Wehavi, Conn., one of the officers in the hotel with about 25 men, described the scene from then on like this: "Right Keweenaw."

"We saw eight trucks coming down the street with Lt. McConnell in front. We knew if we fired happily they probably would shoot him. But the men inside the building began calling softly to each other. 'I'll take the next one closest to him.' I'll take the next one closest to him."

"Then the men opened up and on the first volley we killed six of the eight. McConnell and the two Germans hit the ditch and then ran into a small shell near our hotel. Unfortunately for the Germans they picked a time when we had some men and a tommygun. Our men killed one of them and wounded the other while the lieutenant made his way into our hotel with all the cash."

Heroes' 1944 Christmas Greetings

Hospitalized servicemen receive their baskets of Christmas cards from American Red Cross Gray Lady at an Army hospital "Somewhere in the U.S.A."

"I heard the bells on Christmas Day
Their old familiar carols play,
And wild and sweet, the words
Of 'Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men'."

In all the years since it was written, this familiar well-loved Christmas verse of Longfellow's has never been so appropriate as in 1944. For this year the tender sentiment appears on one of the Christmas cards being mailed home by those young Americans who have given so much in the struggle to make "Peace on Earth" a permanent reality and who are now in army and navy hospitals in the United States.

Fully understanding the emotional importance of Christmas to patients away from home and family, the American Red Cross, through its camp and hospital council service, has seen to it that hospitalized servicemen in hospitals from Maine to California receive a packet of Christmas cards to mail to their friends and loved ones. The cards themselves are the contribution of the greeting card industry, and their design and verses were especially prepared to recall the old-fashioned Christmas which all servicemen say they like best of all, and to reflect the goodwill which, after all, only another name for the courageous devotion these wounded veterans have displayed.

Americans Strangle Pet Dog To Keep Hiding Place Secret

By HAL BOYLE
WITH THE AMERICAN TROOPS IN BELGIUM, Dec. 23 (AP)—Eleven American soldiers had to strangle their pet dog to keep him from giving away their hiding place to the Germans.

Eight soldiers and three others, caught in a town when Germans armor swept through, hid for 10 hours in the cellar of a house occupied by enemy armored troops.

When a German officer in dress blouse and an army enlisted man walked into the cellar "Tufty," a pint-sized brown pup, kept quiet, and the cowering soldiers were not seen in the dark.

Shortly thereafter the pup began to bark playfully. Afraid to risk their lives by repeatedly trying to keep him quiet, one soldier reached out in the dark and quietly choked "Tufty."

The man were in the house and were just sitting down to breakfast when the armored forces broke into town. As machinegun fire began spraying the house they dived into the cellar.

Black uniforms of two of the heavier tanks broke in, searched hastily and then sat down and ate breakfast's breakfast.

During the day, as many as 18 Germans wandered about upstairs, ate American ration and smoked the sergeant's cigarette while below they were afraid to light up for fear of being caught.

Once one man raked the stairs and cellar door with a machine pistol. Another looked in the basement window and passing tanks peeped the building with scattered fire.

During the day three other Americans slipped into the cellar sanctuary. Splitting into two groups, the Yanks made a break for their own lines after dark as they left they

It is good to know that the star of Bethlehem shines brightly at Christmas on those whom we love even though they may be scattered to far corners of the world. A comforting thought is the knowledge that the significance of Christmas is universal and that folks everywhere will pause in reverence for an added moment of happiness.

We are certain that the Christmas spirit will predominate everywhere not only for this coming season but for the years to come. It will result in genuine contentment for all the peoples of the world at a time when such happiness is essential to maintain perpetual peace.

GOEBBELS HOLDS STOCK IN SUEZ

PARIS, Dec. 23 (AP)—Nazi Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels has been holding 100 shares of lucrative Suez canal stock, a French government decree disclosed today.

The decree acquired all dividends from Suez canal shares. The ministry will be held in escrow pending settlement of the shares' ownership, it was believed.

The ownership of the Suez canal has long been a financial mystery. For a half century the securities have been a little-known investment so remunerative that speculation in them was world-wide.

Of the effective 800,000 shares at last report, the British government was holding 582,000. The others were scattered all over the globe.

A report was current during the German occupation of France that the Nazis, by manipulating the securities of France, had garnered a working majority of the shares extant.

Sailor "Set Back," On Own Plea, to Be With His Twin

FARRAGUT, Dec. 23—Beldoni does a recruit at the U. S. naval training center here ask to be "set back" to another company for an extended period of recruit training.

But Dale Christopher, 18, of Heston, did twice.

His reason, however, was not so much for the acquisition of additional training, as to be with his twin brother, Dale, who has twice lost his company because of illness.

The twins were originally assigned to company 812, and should have finished training on Oct. 30, but when Dale was stricken with scarlet fever, Dale joined him in a new company, formed of convalescents.

A recent operation caused Gale a second setback, and again his brother volunteered to join him. With only a few days remaining of their training period with the last company, both Dale and Dale are keeping their fingers crossed in hope that they can soon end their recruit training and go home for Christmas together.

Dividend Given In Blood Plasma

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22 (AP)—The nation has declared a dividend in blood plasma collected for civilian use when the threat of enemy bombing weighed heavily on the United States.

President Roosevelt signed legislation authorizing the transfer to federal, state and local public health authorities and non-profit hospitals of 48,850 units of dried plasma and 28,200 units of frozen plasma.

The blood was collected by the American Red Cross and turned over to the public health service for the treatment of casualties resulting from enemy action within the United States, Alaska and Puerto Rico. It will deteriorate if not used.

Under the new law, the surgeon general can release any amount of the plasma he deems proper, if the agency which gets it will pay the transfer costs.

This Girl Finds Nelson Eddy Great Guy, a Bit Egotistical

By JEAN DINKELACKER
 "Well, gals, with the manpower shortage being what it is, have you ever tried to snare an elusive male with 'kindness and understanding,' instead of boogie-woogie eye-rolling and $20 an ounce perfume?"
 Could be that it might work. In fact, none other than Nelson Eddy, of opera, screen and radio fame, recommends those qualities, which he declares are the ones he values most in women.
 And the one to whom he declared it is D. D. (Dorothy Dean) Huddeleston, former employee of the local radio station, and now a student at the University of Southern California.
 D. D. interviewed Nelson the other day for The Trojan, U.S.C. publication, and went into a three-page letter describing the experience to her mother, Mrs. C. D. Henderson, Twin Falls.

She Meets Eddy

Nel Still of Stilled
 "It's funny . . . has a terrific sense of humor . . . and is far from the stiff, stilted Eddy you would expect," was her reaction to the celebrity.

"We talked in his dressing room where he grabbed a pillow, sprawled out facing me, with his head propped against the wall. His hair is practically gray . . . just a few touches of reddish blond. He was wearing a powder blue shirt, a maroon figured tie, with a cute sports jacket and gray slacks," she described his appearance.

The singer does not plan a concert tour this year, but he may go on tours for the men in the service, he told D. D. He said that last Christmas he had flown to South America and Africa, stayed out 51 days entertaining the boys.

Van Buren Descendant
 Eddy, a direct descendant of President Martin Van Buren, has worked his way to stardom on the concert stage, the screen and the radio. His theatrical career started in 1923 with his appearance in "The Marriage Tax," a society show.

Within a few months he was singing leading roles in the Savoy Opera company. He then sang for the Philadelphia Operatic society and later the Philadelphia Civic opera. Motion picture recognition came suddenly. He has co-starred with Jeanette MacDonald in several productions, including "Naughty Marietta," his favorite.

Eighth Grade Only
 When D.D. asked him about his educational background, he laughed, said "I graduated from the eighth grade . . . period."

He then told her that he had to go to work when he was 14 and that all his learning he had amassed from books.

"I speak five languages fluently, sing in eight, know dozens of operatic roles, but I had to learn it through my own efforts. I didn't have college, but I advise all you kids to stick with it. Don't learn the hard way . . . the way I did," D. D. quoted Eddy as saying.

He added, "I get thousands of letters saying, 'Mr. Eddy, you didn't have a higher education, so why should I?' And my advice is still . . . stay with it."

D. D. admitted that Eddy "knows how to impress feminine reporters," and ended the account on this note of praise. "He's a great man . . . brilliant mind . . . more than a little egotistical . . ."

And isn't any good man, who's worth house room, "more than a little egotistical?"

Christmas Greetings

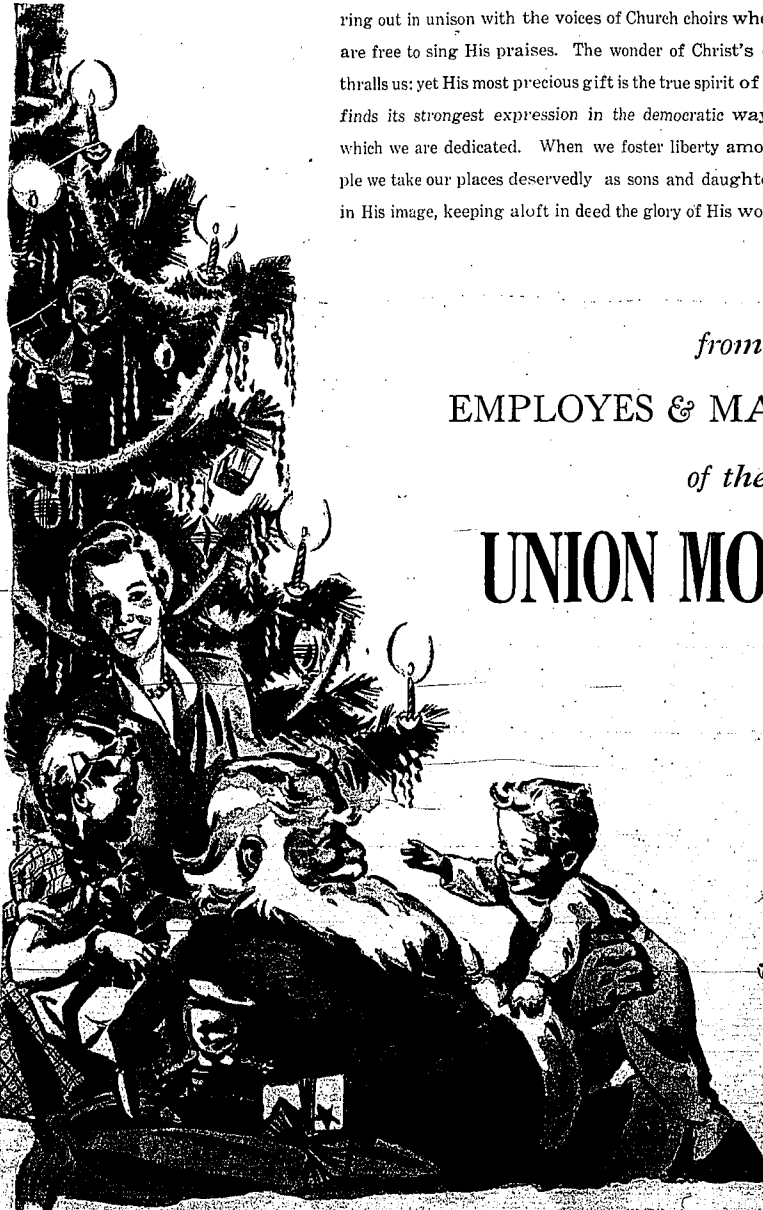

CHRISTMAS, the glorious season, has shed its radiance over the world since the Star of Bethlehem illuminated the skies as a beacon, calling to mankind to witness the blessed Babe. And in God's own Heaven herald angel's voices sweetly ring out in unison with the voices of Church choirs whenever they are free to sing His praises. The wonder of Christ's coming enralls us; yet His most precious gift is the true spirit of Love which finds its strongest expression in the democratic way of life to which we are dedicated. When we foster liberty among all people we take our places deservedly as sons and daughters created in His image, keeping aloft in deed the glory of His word.
