ARMY TAKES OVER WARD STORES ON ROOSEVELT ORDER

CHICAGO, Dec. 28 (AP)—Seventy-five hours after the seizure his decision to fight the government's order.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28 (AP)—Saying "we are today at a crucial point in the war," President Roosevelt today directed his army to seize Montgomery Ward properties in seven cities.

The government "cannot and will not tolerate any interference with war production in this critical hour," Mr. Roosevelt declared in a statement saying he had issued orders for the army to take over the company's properties in these cities:

Detroit, Chicago, Jamaica, N. Y., St. Paul, Denver, Portland, Ore., and San Rafael, Calif.

The presidential order said the army reported to take the store's disturbances involving nearly 12,000 workers have existed in the plants in the seven cities.

Can't Be Conquered "Strikes in wartime cannot be conducted as in peacetime," the president said, "whether by agreement with workers against their employers, or by employees against their government. All our energies are engrossed in fighting a war on the military battlefield. We have no time to spare for a war on the industrial battlefield. It is up to us to uphold and strengthen our machinery for setting disputes without interruptions."

Do this in a total war, if we permit defiance to go unchallenged."

Reserves Disregard The president said Montgomery Ward, under leadership of board chairman Maxwell Avery, "has waged a bitter fight against the army since the day of its employees throughout the war in defiance of the government's efforts to maintain (Continued on Page 3, Column 2)

NAZIS REEL BACK INTO BUDAPEST

MOSCOW, Dec. 28 (AP)—A doomed Nazi garrison reeled backward in the unbroken-filled streets of Budapest today, but clinging with suicidal persistence to positions in the eastern part of the city.

The German and Hungarian defenders were reported to have already been ordered to evacuate two remaining airports for evacuation of troops as Soviet forces poured into the city.

The red air force holding mastery in the skies German transport is able to operate only in the morning and to make only one flight and the casualties were reported great.

Russian troops pushed across the eastern arm of the Danube north of Budapest, and cut troops and driving part of them into the mountainous area in the great Danube bend. The remainder were pressed back into Buda, where Soviet units engaged in house to house fighting.

41 MORE NIPPON CRAFT SUNK BY YANKEE FORCES

By United Press American air and naval forces sank or damaged 41 more Japanese vessels, including 15 warships, in widespread attacks throughout the Pacific and the Japanese reported a new Superfortress attack on their homeland today in the wake of a heavy B-29 assault on the Japanese aircraft factory in Tokyo.

A Japanese bomber broadcast said a formation of Superfortresses from the Marianas dropped "some extraordinary bombs" in Ibaraki prefecture on the island of Honshu, just north of Tokyo, today.

The toll of Japan's winter seapower was taken by U. S. bombers submarines and surface craft in attacks ranging from the southwest Pacific theater to the Volcano Islands, 760 miles south of Tokyo.

An abortive bombardment of American positions on Mindoro in the Philippines cost the Japanese three destroyers sunk and a battleship and a cruiser damaged. New enemy warships were reported to disrupt the American timetable in the Pacific westward progress as the Japanese repeatedly have pointed to the Philippines as the crucial battle zone.

High-flying Japanese twin-engine bombers struck new retailing stores at 700 feet above sea level on Salinas, Christmas night, at one of four planes.

The B-29, carried out 11 hours after U. S. rail surface and army air strikes blasted Jay defenses of Jima, succeeded in destroying one Japanese plane and damaging several others.

Fantastic claim of shooting down 80 per cent of the Superfortresses contrasted with Gen. Henry H. Arnold's official statement, saying one B-29 lost in the raid.

PARIS, Dec. 28 (AP)—Field Marshal von Rundstedt's whole southern flank for 35 miles back to the German border is sagging under a doughboy and armored attack menacing the Belgian buffer.

American tanks and infantry, resuming their advance into the under-belly of the enemy salient, have crossed the Sure river at four places by Wednesday dawn.

Allied forces north and south of the salient are within 20 miles of a junction that would cut off the enemy head which has been thrust to within a few miles of the Meuse.

It is too early to foresee the outcome; for the Americans in their counter-attack now undergo a fierce struggle with formidable obstacles. But there are clear indications the bold Nazi bid for a great December victory has butted into serious trouble.

German pockets are surrounded in the western head of the enemy offensive and on the southern flank and are under tempests of shellfire. Southward of Echternach the Germans are retreating northwest of that southern hinge of the salient, are repairing an escape bridge under American fire, and are being pulled back into Germany across the Sure.

Three of the American crossings of the Sure, which Berlin broadcasts as the victory of the third army under command of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, are near Bonn, two and one-half miles northwest of Echternach. The fourth is at a point...

The survivor was marked for death with his companions after their German captors had questioned them perfunctorily. A hall of bullets crumpled them to the ground.

Choosing back area of pain, the doughboy waited until the Germans had reached their gray tank and left. Then he dragged his punctured and battered body back to friendly territory.

BACK TO REALITY

It is unfortunate that lives and territory and time must be lost to convince the allied nations that the war isn't over. But it is German counter-attack has been effected by concentrating our attention on the task at hand, then the price may be no heavier than that incident to victory.

The enemy offensive may prove to be the last strong thrust. The Nazis can deliver, but certainly there was nothing half way about it. It showed us pointedly how short our war effort has been. Bombs have dropped on our factories, but German industry has been bombed with mounting strength and frequency. Our people are safe, and, especially, our children.

Most of our business is making its biggest profit in years in spite of steep taxes. In Germany, the government-controlled industry has been driven underground or dispersed to home workshops. Millions of weary, deplorable German civilians are producing German guns and munitions.

Allied planes have strafed Nazi troops and command posts. Nazi industry without opposition. Such first quality German troops as remain in the west are backed by a force of almost untrained youngsters and are being trained in the service of a man-power barrel.

And yet these German troops, supported by V-bombs and the remnants of the Luftwaffe, are attacking our lines. The American lines back over territory that we had won yard by yard and street by street. In the bitter weeks just past.

Our troops have had a variety of several essential items: ammunition, trucks and cars. These shortages have been blamed on war workers who leave essential jobs to seek secure peacetime employment. But that is only part of the picture.

Over-optimism did not originate on the production line. It drifted down from above from some military leaders, from the political campaign, through the press, and through the public mind.

Perhaps the current German move will mean a little more to us. It may help to convince Mr. Churchill and Mr. Stalin that their politely suspicious start toward carving up Europe into spheres of influence help them to remember that the defeat of Germany's armies, still alive and still dangerous, remains our prime task.

What world we needs today is a halt and a breathing spell, on the chance that better faith and better reason may prevail. If the re-emphasized necessity of Germany's defeat provides that breathing spell, then the American people must be able to have done the allies a service.

KITCHEN SUPPLY LINE

It's a part of trouble to fight a war. But Japs and Germans must be shot, and to do that job our fighting men are going to need more and more supplies. A lot of supply lines begin right at home in the kitchen. And most of the things that housewives have been salvaging are needed now as much as ever, some of them more so.

Sometimes it is difficult to remember that most war-requires waste from every American kitchen will get more supplies to the fronts faster, save lives, and end the war a little sooner. But it's true. So keep 'em rolling.

JUST CHILDISH

Smoking, says the head psychiatrist at New York's Bellevue hospital, is the same as thumb-sucking, and a baby's pacifier will accomplish the same purpose as a cigaret. We hesitate to predict what effect this shocking revelation will have on American life. But it seems likely that cigarette shortage eases up, the juvenile smoker will feel free to come out from behind the barn and join the rest of the family in their infantile enjoyment of the weed.

JAP STRATEGY

The enemy was forced to make the "Munich" kind of a mistake in the same sense as our victorious forces on Leyte and Luzon. The enemy was just squeezed out of the Philippines. The enemy was just squeezed out of the Philippines. The enemy was just squeezed out of the Philippines.

BLESSING IN DISGUISE

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLING GIG

ATTACK—Undue optimism in the highest places here and in London may be partially responsible for the limited success of the German offensive in Belgium and Luxembourg. Nobody in Washington has any doubt of the eventual outcome of our mounting reverse has cast a pall over the capital.

The contagion of confidence germinated by the D-day landing, the St. Lo breakthrough, the British naval assault across France, extended even to President Roosevelt, Winston Churchill, and General George Catlett Marshall, American leaders considered the situation. It is known that FDR and the British prime minister fully expected the German offensive to be the last military feat, if not crucial in the field altogether.

Throughout the Pentagon building, which houses our top officers in this country, the generally accepted date for the end of the war was set at Dec. 1. A more conservative British intelligence spokesman close here, in the wintling date.

General Marshall is the only one of the key group who dared to venture fairly close to the truth. He made his prediction shortly after his arrival at the battlefields in France. Writing in the New York Times, the Army-Navy Journal, which appeared on Dec. 7, 1944, he wrote: "The German offensive in the West was in fact a tactical success. It was quite possible that the war would be over by now."

The Way Our People Lived

By W. E. Woodward Copyright © E. P. Dutton & Co. Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

A PURITAN VILLAGE IN 1880

On a bright, sunny morning in April of the year 1880 a young man walked patiently on a bench in the Walling garden for the constable to come out of the house and clear the young man, whose name was Oliver Hillman, wanted to see Captain Walling on a very personal matter, and he much preferred to be witness to his conversation. Young Mr. Hillman was plainly nervous; he kept twisting about on the bench and now and then he would rise and take a short walk around the garden.

Constable Lawson returned with the captain a long time. Because he had a batch of news he had some problems.

"I fear, sir, that you may have to deal soon with a terrible situation and his wife."

"That so? Why? Quarrelling again?"

"They are, Captain. Quarrelling like cat and dog. Everybody is talking about it. It's the same story all over. Matress Brethton says Jerry works and she has to do everything. She declares that she works her hands to the hilt, making butter and cheese, brewing the beer, cooking, washing and taking care of the children while he won't turn his head to a thing."

"Pretty nearly, I think sir. I've been talking to Jerry about his laziness?"

"Have you spoken to Jerry about his laziness?"

"Yes, sir. I have not. I thought that might better come from you."

"Why don't they hire a maid to help out?"

"She says he won't let her. Wants the money to buy rum and gamble away on stove-board."

"They have a man for the farm, I believe."

"That so?"

"It is, sir. A man named Brown. He goes out to do the work on the place. Jerry Shudson, when he's in the tavern and in his cup, boasts that he's retired."

"He does, eh? Well, I'll retire him in a way he will not resist. Give him a summons to appear before me in court next Monday. I'll write the summons. I'll have the constable bring a sheet of paper—'untill he has signed the summons every day and all day I'll send him to a place where he'll be busy."

The constable had hardly left the house when Oliver Hillman, who had been absent-mindedly picking a flower to pieces, got up from his bench in the garden. As he entered the common room Captain Walling smiled and extended his hand.

"Oliver, you've become a stranger," he said with a laugh. "I've tried to have kept you busy."

"Aye, Captain, it did in fact," the young man said. "What with the studies and duties a man has little time for much else."

"You are the graduate student, I think. Is that so?"

"It is, sir. I graduated last year, and since then I've been helping out with the teaching. But that is over now and I'm back home again."

"Are you going to help your father to his mill?"

"That is our intention, sir. I know that the paper-making business and I shall go there more deeply into it." This was said stiffly as the young man sat upright in his chair. There was then a pause for a moment.

"When the silence had become rather thick Captain Walling said: "Is there something that you wish to speak in me about?"

"There is, sir," said young Hillman. "Your daughter Harriet. May I call on her and be her—I mean be her friend with her? She is bothered with blushing and hesitation. Captain Walling was pleased, but he looked at her with no other thought. Young Hillman would be an excellent suitor for his daughter, on the whole, despite the mill. After some reflection he said, "Have you spoken to Harriet?"

"I have, sir," the young man replied. "Yesterday, at Matress Paunkrue's. She said she had no objection, and then said I must ask you to do it."

"Very well, Oliver, I consent, and I speak too for her mother."

"Thank you, sir."

Oliver Hillman had known Harriet all his life. As children they had played together. But she was soon to be his wife. Not only Puritan etiquette but also Puritan law required that he seek the consent of Harriet's parents before he became her beau.

Young women in the Puritan colonies did not accept the attentions of a number of beaux, but this custom was kept in a state of non-liability. They went to parties, to dinners and to other social occasions, and met the young men of the neighborhood. For steady company, however, the suitor must first obtain the consent of the girl's parents. Otherwise he was likely to be brought up before a magistrate for "infringing the young woman's affection."

Walling rose and shook hands with Oliver, "Come in any evening, my lad, whenever you please," he said gravely. "We shall always be glad to see you."

Hagerman L.D.S. Stages Program

"Oliver, you've become a stranger," he said with a laugh. "I've tried to have kept you busy."

"Aye, Captain, it did in fact," the young man said. "What with the studies and duties a man has little time for much else."

"You are the graduate student, I think. Is that so?"

"It is, sir. I graduated last year, and since then I've been helping out with the teaching. But that is over now and I'm back home again."

Pvt. Wooten Wins Wings and Boots

FOR THE FIRST TIME, a private citizen has been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor. The medal was presented to Pvt. Wooten by the President of the United States. Wooten was a member of the 101st Airborne Division during World War II.

JAYGEES AWARDS BANQUET JAN. 17

Twin Falls Jaycees will stage their annual banquet on Jan. 17, it was announced at the Wednesday night special dinner meeting of the organization at the Park hotel.

Mayor Earl J. Claff, Twin Falls City, who is also president of JKS, has accepted an invitation to deliver the keynote address at the banquet.

Letter of the First Baptist church here has been asked to prepare the banquet and a committee not connected with the Jaycees is now working selecting citizens who have contributed outstanding service to the community to receive the annual awards.

530,531 Bonds Sold

Joe Donahue, member of the war service committee, reported that the Jaycees' headquarters sold $202,375 worth of bonds during the sixth war loan drive.

William Crigger and members declined to accept the recognition of Mrs. E. W. Claff, mayor, for his outstanding work and urged that she take a leave of absence to remain in an honorary capacity.

The membership also voted to give a dinner for Mrs. McRoberts, 1414 Bondola, at a time and place to be announced in the near future for their outstanding work.

535.65 Realized from Toys

William Crigger reported that $535.65 had been realized from the sale of donated toys, most of which were repaired by city firemen. Proceeds from the sale went into the fund for providing entertainment of the Jaycees-sponsored LSG boat.

In connection with the annual Christmas party, W. H. H. H. read a letter from Lietta V. M. McRoberts, a community worker, in which he expressed appreciation for the sponsorship by the Twin Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce and outlined the needs of the crew of 14 boys in the Junior Chamber, including punching bags, softball equipment and photograph records were among their other needs.

May Ask Donation

The Jaycees are going to make an effort to buy equipment of the type new, but if they are unable to do so, donations of second-hand goods will be asked.

Names of all crew members were forwarded to Twin Falls Jaycees and their friends could write to the men whose ship they are sponsoring. The list of names pointed out that D. J. Anderson, Twin Falls, is a member of the crew and that he had attained rank of chief commensal steward.

Charles Sieber, president of the Idaho Junior Chamber of Commerce, outlined the plan for a survey of jobs with a future in Twin Falls so that returning servicemen can obtain the best opportunities they can find in the city. He said the survey will be made not alone to determine how many jobs would be available in the city and county after the war is over, but to describe just what advancement those jobs would offer.

Make Membership Increase

Sieber also called for an increase in the number of membership meetings here and the group presented voting in favor of holding two such meetings on regular days each month. However, they set Jan. 10 for their next meeting and planned to contact about 200 members by mail. Ideas of the two meetings per month plan before a final decision is made.

President Verle Moore, who presided, extended an invitation to all members to attend the board of director meetings that are held each Thursday at the Park hotel.

Charles Typing Revivals

J. J. Mullen brought up the question of typing revivals here, so that when residents are in the cities having blood donation stations they may contribute the life fluid of the war effort. He said that he had received a number of calls recently from new residents of the city wishing to know how they might donate blood there, so no the blood donation station here, the Jaycees two years ago sponsored a June-whereby interested donors could have their blood typed, be given a card listing it and thereby save time re-

First January Pay to Show Change in Withholding Taxes

By S. BURTON HEATH
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—Your first pay check next month will be different from the last one in December. In a few instances it may be slightly larger.

Workers it will be smaller. The difference will represent a change in the withholding rates.

The new withholding rate is intended to cover A. Charles Bush the entire income tax on wages and salaries up to $5,000 a year. It can hardly be exact, but it does come fairly close in general on a typical wage earner. The withholding after Jan. 1 will take into account the tax shown by the tables for those wage scales.

For example, a single man with no dependents, earning $35 a week, will have withheld only $2.00 on his 1944 wages if he files the withholding receipt and lets the government know of his new status. His employer will have withheld only $2.00 on his 1944 wages, or $20.00 on March 15.

Under the new rates this man's employer will hold back $3.10 a week instead of the old $4.00. At year's end, he will have paid $26.20 against a tax of $50, and can claim a refund of $23.80.

Or consider a married man with no dependents, earning $40 a week and a wife of $25 a week. This year his employer withheld $6.00 a week, or $24.00 a year. Under the new rates, his employer will hold back $7.40 a week. At the end of the year, instead of $48.00, he will have paid $35.56. Next year the deduction the worker can claim is a refund of $12.44.

The worker whose withholding is going to be lower is the one with a large dependent family. For illustration, let's take a married man with three children, or other dependents in addition to his wife. He earns $15 a week. His income tax taken from his wages is $1.20 a week, or $4.80 a year. He probably will be the same for 1945. This year his employer has been withholding $1.20 a week, or $4.80 a year. Under the new rates, he will have withheld $1.10 a week, or $4.40 a year. At the end of the year, instead of $4.80, he will have paid $4.40. Next year the deduction he can claim is a refund of $4.40.

20 TRAINING FOR FARMS' CENSUS

Twenty trainees, who will act as enumerators in the agricultural census to start in the Twin Falls area Jan. 8, are in attendance for the final day at city hall where they received instructions from T. J. Coyne, district supervisor.

"We expect to have 14 enumerators in the 36 in Twin Falls county and five in Jerome county," Lloyd said.

Idaho has been divided into four districts, of which the Twin Falls area is No. 2. The 11 counties in the district include: Ada, Elmore, Gooding, Blaine, Bannock, Blaine, Gooding, Lincoln, Jerome, Twin Falls, Cassia and Minidoka.

County Agent Albert Myrland addressed the census enumerators' school at concluding sessions today.

"It's a case of dull figures helping dull work," Lloyd said. "From what we are able to discover, we will know our country's real reserve and true potentialities."

Irene Roberson, Jerome, assistant supervisor, also in attendance at the school, stressed the need of farmers in this area "having the facts."

"This will save everyone a great deal of time," he said. "And the chances are if the farmer will take the time to prepare the data before the census taker arrives, the information will be a great deal more accurate."
