

JAPAN PREPARES CASH SHAKEDOWN

By The Associated Press
Japan plans to "collect" a loan of $35,000,000 yen (approximately $25,450,000) from the "southern regions" to help pay for the war. The new agency said Monday it would be a "voluntary" loan.

The "southern regions" usually mean the Japanese occupied portions of the Philippines, Burma, Thailand, Indo-China, Malaya and the Dutch East Indies.

In Japan, the yen is held to be the basic unit of account under current international rates of exchange to about 84 1/2 cents.

The proposed "loan" would add to the 1944-45 fiscal year approved by Emperor Hirohito yesterday.

The new military budget, "Domestic" was $2,000,000,000 yen more than for the previous year and 20,000,000,000 more than the estimated national income. It is separate from the "general account" budget of $2,522,000,000 yen approved by the emperor.

Work (with unions) or fight. It was to be expected that the "anti-closed shop" clause would be removed from the limited national service bill for men between the ages of 18 and 35.

As the measure now reads, registrants who would be forced to take essential employment under the provisions, would be given a "reasonable choice of employers for whom to work."

The original amendment would have permitted a man assigned to an essential job to work on a closed shop without joining a union. But war or no war, manpower shortage or no manpower shortage, the labor leader would stand for nothing like that.

Result, Out went the "anti-closed shop" clause from the national service bill. Now it remains to be seen what will be done with this restrictive bill which is brought before the house. No doubt there will be a heated fight, but will the membership be able to hold up under the pressure of labor's muscle.

"A reasonable choice of employers." What a mockery to even mention such a thing in a country which is supposed to be free! What a mockery to even mention such a thing in a country which is supposed to be free!

Just what might happen to any registrant who would refuse to join a union under these circumstances is a matter of speculation. The bill provides, however, that his failure to take up essential work after being ordered to do so, would subject him to immediate imprisonment or a maximum punishment of five years in prison and a fine of $10,000.

Surprise! Surprise! Ben James M. Mead, Democrat of New York and chairman of the special war investigating committee, has found it his "painful duty" to report that the nation is in a "plum condition in our war industries."

Why, it's almost incredible. "So many men are assigned to some jobs that they cannot even all squeeze into the place. Most of them just stand around outside!"

WHY, we demand, HAVEN'T WE BEEN TOLD ALL THESE THINGS BEFORE?!! Or have we been told about them two or three hundred times?

WHEN it comes to kidding themselves, congress and the American people are tops. And Old Man Politics just goes on having himself a big belly laugh.

WHENEVER anyone connected with the news is subjected to criticism during the next few years you can expect that a stock statement will be issued from Washington along these lines: "The present outcry against... comes from the same minority and special interest groups who so soundly defeated in the recent election."

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

CHARLES Churchill's staunch defense of Roosevelt's foreign policy, in his recent column, demonstrates again that these two world statesmen are staging one of the most spectacular bromides in the diplomatic history. Their close friendship and intimate-defensive strategy... as an assurance unto Anglo-American solidarity will be maintained for the duration and in the future.

That casual description played the White House when, after the war, compared that document to the one which Roosevelt disclosed in the magazine. Mr. Roosevelt disclosed in the magazine that it really consisted of only a few scribbled notes handed the editor of the magazine for the August issue of the magazine.

Churchill's related reference to the charter membership as a closely knit group, has been elaborated by transatlantic telegraph. Although Mr. Churchill's original statement extended, both in the past and in the future, to the great powers in their treatment of liberated nations, Churchill was not to be misled by the people's pronouncement which would be followed in pasteurized form of the people.

Whether accidental or intentional, the three world leaders closed ranks on the military and diplomatic fronts, and Mr. Roosevelt was left with his four inaugural address. Incidentally, this is the first time since the beginning of the war that the White House from a publicistic and vice versa.

VIEW OF OTHERS

"NOBODY'S KIDDING." There were two stories on the first page of the Tribune yesterday, on different but significantly related subjects. One told how the American Federation of Labor, in a letter to the British representative, an spokesman, has urged the British representative to urge for prompt enactment of a national war production act.

"Nobody's kidding" those who ponder the meaning of the word "kidding" in the casual reply to come, when they read the report that the British representative has urged the British representative to urge for prompt enactment of a national war production act.

Here's Story of Navy Flier's Dramatic Wilderness Escape

By O. A. BELKER Even all out of a plane in a fog so thick that you couldn't tell what your chute was drifting...

"The plane was loaded with bombs and we were flying under very low conditions so we kept going. When we reached the coast we found that the straits of the clouds were right down to the water."

"At about this time I noticed that all pressure in the cockpit was lost. I then thought that the ceiling continued to lower so he decided to climb above the clouds. He climbed about 100 feet, but never once did the plane come into the clear."

"By now it was obvious we were going to have to jump. So we were going to have to jump. So we were going to have to jump. So we were going to have to jump."

"The lieutenant then tells of the sensations he had during his jump. The joy of the chute's opening blanketed him momentarily. When he was in the air he was swinging fearfully. This stopped by pulling at random on the shroud lines at random because in the fog he couldn't be sure just which way he was swinging."

"The lieutenant then tells that at midnight the found himself on a small glacier deep in a ravine. It was as good a place as any to sleep and he lay down."

"I was the only one of the crew who was not frozen," he wrote. "Long underwear, khaki trousers, heavy socks, flannel, summer diving suit, slick sweater and feather jacket, and that night was bitter cold."

"Solo" Capes Suggested

NEW YORK.—Because capes are versatile and suave, and make better show windows than coats for bright logos beneath, you can expect to see a lot of these dramatic toppers as spring approaches.

Preview of early spring collections show many "solo" styles of bright wools lined with color shockers of plaids and stripes. These bid fair for favor as wraps to be used interchangeably with daytime and evening dresses and suits. As toppers, they owe their style popularity to the fact that women like to toss their wraps casually over their shoulders, like an Edwardian dandy in his open cape.

Smartest new capes come integrated with one thought to make one perfect ensemble—as for example the Zoe DeSalle-designed model shown styled with a matching skirt and a sweater of brown and green striped. Another style which can take on other companions, such as the one at the right. Here you have the green cape slipping out just as gaily with a screen printed cellulose dress and tuban of a green fern motif flared against a white background which is as heartening a herald of spring as the first crocus.
