VAST RECREATION PROGRAM URGED

Making the most of facilities on hand and incorporating civic organizations to work behind youth center officials were two means which Ferdinand Bahr, field representative of the federal agency in Salt Lake City pointed out for the extension of the Twin Falls youth program. Bahr spoke before members and guests of the youth coordinating council following a banquet at the Rogerston hotel Thursday evening.

He stated that he was greatly pleased with the Twin Falls program as far as it had gone, but emphasized that elaborate plans should be made to procure an overall recreational program for both youths and adults in Twin Falls.

At an earlier meeting Thursday the director conferred with student officers of the center during which they expressed the desire for improvement as seen by Bahr. Suggestions were brought out for the appointment of a recreation committee to arrange special programs at least once each week. It was also reported that the library should be improved to furnish more leisure reading.

Those attending the dinner meeting included Chas Crabtree, Jr., Patterson, Margaret McClain, Mrs. Winifred Smith, Mrs. J. W. Phillips Skordahl, all of the coordinating council and O. H. Coleman representative of city council, and Mrs. F. B. Patterson, juvenile officer, as guests.

Table decorations consisting of green and white candles and green and white carnations were arranged by students.

The recreational planning committee including Madeline Garvin, chg. of the Girls Club of the city, Mrs. Phillips Skordahl, all of the coordinating council and O. H. Coleman representative of city council, and Mrs. F. B. Patterson, juvenile officer, as guests.

WENDELL LIONS SHOW SATURDAY

WENDELL, March 9—A night of hilarity is in prospect when business and professional men and farmers of the Lions club "do down their hair" for presentation of their minstrel show, "Levee Wagon Night" at 8:15 p. m. Saturday at the high school auditorium.

With Homer Moon setting the pace as Mr. Interceptor, the show will include such feature numbers as a dance of spry M. L. (Dimples) McBride, Maurice (Guddies) Jamison and Ray (Dolly) Williams; vocal solo, "Ain't She Sweet," by Dick (Mudches) Storeron with background effects by Thomas (Clio) Gates; vocal solo and dance, "Mamma's Little Baby," by Miss Wynneford Bacon; soft shoe dance by Chaney (Loppan) Willard, and many others.

The high school band, directed by Keith Brimhall, will play before the curtain rises and between acts. Mr. Brimhall also has charge of music for the performance. Mrs. Donna Mae Bacon, the dance, and Mrs. Carol Sagers is dramatics director.

Others appearing in the cast will be Jerry Williams, Bill Austin, John Gates, Jerry Benfrow, Jr., Paul Morrow, Melvin Gates, William Doering, C. W. Weinberg, Ross Borden, and C. S. Schmell.

When night falls, the fragrance of most growing flowers increases immeasurably.

Burley Father, 25, Injured in France

BURLEY, March 9—Pvt. Lowell Palmer, 23, was seriously wounded in action in France Feb. 6, according to a wire from the war department to his wife, Mrs. Lola Warden Palmer, they have two children.

Private Palmer has been in the army since June 30, 1944, and took his basic training at Camp Hood, Tex. He was home on furlough in November, 1944, and went overseas in December.

Palmer Stewart survived typhoid in Springdale, March 9—On a carrier transporting squadrons to Luzon and Leyte during recent weeks. S. J. Clyde Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Stewart, also experienced hardships of the recent heavy typhoon in the Pacific, his ship being damaged. He also witnessed the sinking of two ships in the terrific storm.

Seaman Stewart came from San Diego by plane recently to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Stewart. He received his basic training at Farragut naval training center for 13 months ago, and was a gunner on the aircraft carrier during the landing months in the Pacific area. He will return to San Diego at the completion of his leave.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart have three other sons and two sons-in-law in the service, including P. J. Pharis Stewart, in the Admiralty Islands; Pfc. Morris Stewart, now in the Philippines; EM 3/Gilbert Stewart, South America; Pvt. Rex Hooten, France; and MORM 1/c Floyd Guinn, serving in New Guinea.

Put a "jonah" on Jerry Colonna!

He's quick and agile, this funny man, Colonel Jerry's out to beat you in M. J. B.'s Coffee Quiz game—but maybe you can put a "jonah" on his game. Here's all you do: Read through the quiz questions and pick a "right" answer for each. Then check your selections against the correct answers below—compare your score with Colonna's!

- The first license to sell coffee in the American Colonias was issued to...
 William Penn  Dorothy Jones
 Ben Franklin
- Coffee was carried as an original "K natlon," in concentrated form, by...
 Napoleon's troops  Cleopatra's slaves
 African warriors
- The firm now known as M.J.B. Co. (packers of M.J.B. Coffee) started in business in the year...
 1881  1902  1779
- In which of these countries do 65 coffee trees grow for each inhabitant?
 South Africa  Chile  San Salvador

(Jerry Colonna answered 2 out of 4 questions correctly in the above Coffee Quiz. Correct answers: Ben Franklin; Napoleon's troops; 1902; Chile; San Salvador.)

The right answer in choosing coffee is always M.J.B. It's got the flavor—full, rich and mellow. And M.J.B. is vacuum-packed (with the highest vacuum of any coffee) to assure peak freshness! All M.J.B.'s wonderful flavor and aroma is locked in for your enjoyment. We guarantee there is no fake coffee. Try M. J. B. ### SHOSHONE PLANS LABOR CAMP

SHOSHONE, March 9.—The Lincoln county fair committee has moved, with the help of some farmers, to the new site for the camp. Plans for the camp have been definitely decided on, but it looks as if a farm labor camp will be a reality in Shoshone, according to County Agent Milton B. Weston.

Other county farm news reported by the county agent includes the following: The Lincoln County Marketing association sold 154 hogs to Swift and company of Portland, receiving a total of 38,280 pounds for $31,383. There were 144 topsets, 31,000 pounds; 114 sows, 3,850 pounds; and 114 sets of stag weighing 400 pounds at $14. Next top hog will be March 15.

State veterinarians are working in the Bluff area this week testing for Bang's disease and tuberculosis in sheep and cattle. Farmers in that area who haven't signed up and want their animals tested should contact the veterinarians while he is in that area as it is hard for them to go back after they leave and start working in another district.

Wine Scholarship Word has just been received from the University of Idaho that Miss Helen Thompson has won the Carl Raymond Gray Union Pacific scholarship because of her outstanding record in college. In order to receive this scholarship she will have to attend the university of agriculture or home economics.

W. N. Thomas won a $25 war bond in a contest sponsored by the International Harvester company. He was the first member for four years and during that time has been a very active member of the state fair. He has a grade animal and at the present time has a number of calves. During the summer he will lead a 4-H club in Detroit.

Dr. Eke and Mr. Landersholm were held at the Wood River center Orange last under the direction of the extension service. He is the head of the agricultural economics department at Shoshone, and Dr. Edwin Landersholm, bureau of agricultural economics for the northwest states, W. N. Thomas state water faculty specialist for the farm security administration, with headquarters at Boise. He is also an associate professor of the farm security administration at Shoshone, and A. E. Duke, district county agent from Pocatello, were in attendance.

Dr. Eke and Mr. Landersholm have been in the county for a week conducting soil conservation surveys. The soil conservation service, farm security administration, and the U. S. office trying to get all information possible in the survey are making a record of the soil conditions in the North Shoshone tract. As soon as the survey is completed, the results will be available to the people in Lincoln county.

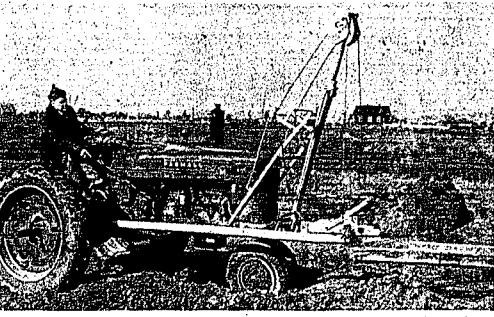

The movie sponsored by the Richfield Grange on Monday, March 12, to organize the 4-H club will be held in Richfield, and all interested persons are invited to attend.

Movie Scheduled By Soil Service
SHOSHONE, March 9.—The motion picture being exhibited by the soil conservation service will be shown at the following places during the week of March 12 to 17: Monday afternoon at the Lane Star school, Tuesday afternoon at the Richfield Grange, Wednesday night in Shoshone at the county court room, Wednesday night in Twin Falls, and Thursday night at the Bliss Grange meeting.

The projector and films will be available for other showings on Friday and Saturday nights.

The films are in sound and color and include a number of scenes on farming and flood damage in the California flood of 1938. Also show the benefits to agriculture of changing over to conservation farming and experimental results obtained in agricultural experiment stations.

Preview of a Tractor Made a Giant

Four bolts hold this leader to the Farmall tractor—all tractors can be thus equipped after the war—to convert this type of farm machinery into the most valuable work on the farm. On a small scale this unit will duplicate anything done by earth-moving machinery—and in some instances will surpass the performance because of its compactness. (Staff engraving)

NEW BIG HANDY FARM IMPLEMENT

It's called the "Barnyard Janitor" by its manufacturer, this newest, biggest thing which actually converts all farm tractors into one of the hardest-working pieces of machinery on the farm.

But whoever gave the name of "Barnyard Janitor" to this truly hard-working implement, the inventor told only half the story. Here's a few of the things this leader can do: Hang feed, hay, barments and pit silos, pull posts, load logs, pull wire, fill slumps, haul banks, dig ditches, clean ponds, repair roads, handle sand, gravel and concrete, dig, grade, and level.

Members of the chamber were reminded of the election meeting of their organization, set for Wednesday evening, March 14, in the Wood case banquet rooms. Ballots on which nominations were set down by members, have already been sent out. It was stated, whereby choice of the individual member was given for candidates.

There are to be four board members elected to serve two year terms. Two are to be named to serve one year terms. The entire membership of 104 names is to be chosen from. Eight nominations are to be made for election of two year directors, and four for the election of two to serve for the one year term.

Forma of those directors exploring include R. C. Matson, Frank Reilig, John Housman, Al Woodhead and James Patton.

WENDELL, March 9.—Adoption of resolution urging sale of farm machinery from the Hunt camp "to any interested parties" and to dealers, as has been planned according to press dispatches, and the notification of proper authorities marked the dinner meeting of the Wendell Lions club.

The resolution was introduced by Charles T. Gates, Wendell manufacturer and equipment dealer, and was adopted by the club Saturday night, March 10, were made President Jerry Williams completed his committee appointments as Bill Taylor, Charles Oates; sealing, Bus Parr, A. P. Hyde, Norman Waab and Bryan Willard.

Jerome, Wendell Back Plea to Sell Farmers Hunt Equipment

JEROME, March 9.—Because the Jerome Chamber of Commerce is also of the opinion that the surplus farm equipment of the Hunt evacuee project immediately, instead of months from now, it will cooperate with the Lions club of Wendell in request that sale of the equipment be made directly to farmers instead of to dealers. The club will undertake any favorable action that it may take towards the disposition of the machinery at this relocation center.

MILK PAYMENTS TO BE QUARTERLY

JEROME, March 9.—Dairy records in Jerome county were advised this week by L. E. Pool, chairman of the Jerome county triple-A committee, that milk production payments will be made on a quarterly basis during 1945 instead of every two months as they have been made in the past.

This change to a quarterly payment period was made for 1945 to establish a consistent payment period for the producer and to give as much as possible the work in the county. AAK officials necessary in making these payments.

Thirty cents per hundred weight will be paid for whole milk produced during the first three months of this year to southern Idaho producers and to cents per pound will be paid for butterfat in all areas of the state. As previously, a producer may call at the county office in person or he may mail his evidence of sale to the county office. However, all applications for payment must be made during either April or May for milk sold during the first quarter of 1945.

Prolific Cow
BURLEY, March 9.—John E. Schenk, of the Grandview subdivision, reports an unusually prolific cow which has had seven calves in less than three years. He says he believes that she is "doing her best to produce more milk and meat for the war effort."

This cow gave birth to twins in May, 1943; one single calf in the spring of 1944; a set of twins in the spring of 1944, and another pair of twins on March 1, 1945.

JEROME, March 9.—Members of the Appleton Grange met recently, opening with a prayer service and a reading of a membership drive. Andrew Dykstra was master of ceremonies. Mrs. Albert Lancaster sang, "It's a Grand Old Flag," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Phil Hirsch, O. H. Hirsch gave an interesting talk when he reported club activities of some of the Grange members.

Mrs. Frank Burke gave a humorous reading of the program close with a song, "Barefoot Days," by Beverly and Lillian Newberry, and songs by their mother, Mrs. Ralph Newberry.

Alfred depuy Ray Smith gave the obligation to the following new members: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Speck, Mr. and Mrs. Edger Utter, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Etzel Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Hirsch, Mrs. J. H. Hirsch, Mrs. Gladys Newberry, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Miller and James Burgoyne. Albert Lancaster gave a report of the meeting of the five subordinate executive councils. Phil Hirsch reported on the resolution committee. Mrs. A. Dykstra gave a report concerning the members of the Grange sponsored by the Northside Pomona. The subordinate Grange receiving the most points wins a prize of $25, the second prize is to be $15. The officers of Appleton Grange invite members to attend regularly, as the work to be done for this context will help all members to understand better the work of the Grange.

Chick Chats

Healthily vigorous young hens that are fed right and handled right are not paying good profits to their owners. It's a hard job to keep your flock of healthy pullets in the best of condition during the laying season. Keep an eye on your flock and manage them for quality and quantity of production.

Feed a proper egg producing ration. 2. Gather eggs often. Eggs will freeze in winter if not gathered at least twice a day in colder weather. This also means cleaner eggs and less breakage.

3. Cool eggs properly by keeping them at a proper temperature (65 to 70 degrees) with humidity at about 75 per cent to preserve their freshness all marketing.

4. Market eggs often, preferably every three or four days.

Letter Describes Death, Desolation At Civic Conclave

JEROME, March 9.—One good word, the horrors of things of this war soon enough, and develops a pretty impersonal attitude toward death and destruction. That's the business of the letter here.

"Watching those kids move up the front lines, you can see how dead low their faces are. Then the planes come over and strafe. A few of them are killed before they ever get up to the lines to pull a trigger."

"That's what makes one sore when he reads about strikes, about people quitting the war plants, and people squawking about petty things."

These words of Capt. Earl A. Garretson, Jr., husband of Mrs. Roberta Ems Garretson, whom she read from letters of her husband, to members and guests of Jerome Civic club this week.

Program Given
The program, featuring souvenirs and letters sent home from soldiers, was given by Mrs. Ems Garretson, chairman of the club. Mrs. Ems Garretson and others who were mothers and wives of servicemen.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. J. W. Miller and Jennie Hoopes. The program was given at the home of Mrs. J. W. Miller, 214 S. 1st St.

Bonanza Displayed
A silver pipe, jade ring, silver bracelet with hand-painted ivory inlay, tapestries and a goat's hair rug were some of the articles sent from India and China. A shell purse from Honolulu, mittens made from gray wool, two handkerchiefs, a silk shawl and a whole bunch of neckties were featured from Barrow, Alaska.

Others shown were a pair of mittens, a pair of shoes, a pair of socks, a pair of gloves, a pair of stockings, a pair of shoes, a pair of socks, a pair of gloves, a pair of stockings.

There were many pieces of mosaic jewelry, from Tunis, Rome, France, Africa and north Africa. A lamp with base fashioned from brightly polished ammunition shells.

Two became members of the club, Mrs. C. E. Wright and Mrs. William H. Galt.

Houses Included
Mrs. Walter White, Mrs. Dudley Strout, Mrs. J. W. Miller, Mrs. J. W. Miller, Mrs. H. O. Woody, Margaret Siple, Mrs. John Kenneth Walker, Mrs. M. L. Zug and Mrs. H. Walker.

Care of Your Children

Teachers are working harder and suffering more during these war years than they ever have before. The teachers who have never seen a day of their lives as easy one. Teachers need help more than they ever did. Their pupils are more restless, less attentive, more time than ever and routine is the least of school life. Supervisors are appointed and paid by the people to help the teachers but from all a can see and gather they do little actual helping and a deal of hindering.

What the teacher needs is somebody other than she, wiser than she, stronger and fiercer, to take notes on her in the classroom and show by example, the way to success. Few supervisors go into classrooms to teach. Most of them go to take notes on what the way paraded teacher is trying to do. They give you the office and write endless reports, and instructions, and send you the slip to the disfigured teacher who sticks it in the bottom drawer and mutters a malediction upon it and upon the author. I have seen this experienced it often.

A supervisor should be a master teacher, not a tyrod and a million good teachers. Any good teacher knows that handing a pupil a printed sheet of instruction is about the poorest way of teaching that could be covered. It is an easy way out for the teacher, a step to complacency, it hooks you on the records, but it is of little wholesome service to anybody.

A SONG TO REMEMBER

By William Wines

XXV.
AT NOHANT
At the last moment, for some reason Madame Sand had neglected to contain Lisa, failed to join them.

"And I want you, Monsieur," said to Frederic as the coach rumbled on toward Nohant, "you will discipline me very much if you do not make use of your holiday to treat. There will be a piano of course—and you are to play when the mood strikes you. But no work, and no purposes, heaven forbid, Monsieur."

The country about Nohant was flat and at first view not particularly impressive. But you were soon captivated by the winding lanes, the high ivy-covered hedges, the fragrance of honeysuckle, the orchards and fields of hemp.

"No purposes," she repeated. "I shall remember exactly, Madame."

"Madame! That sounds so distant, George! Plain George! Say it, Frederic."

"—George."

"But that way, George!" Frederic tried it again. George stamped her foot. "You're a good friend of mine, Frederic," he said in a shrill whine.

"Better! Much better! I knew you could do it, Monsieur—I mean Frederic."

They laughed together, but George's laugh was loud and boisterous.

In the evenings they sat by the fireplace, and Frederic, at a time without talking. Then George would rake the fire and send the flames shooting and Frederic would watch them in silence imagining them spire that were reaching toward heaven.

George lounged in red trousers and a white shirt, which she had once described as courtly, and she wore yellow slippers, bordered with a fringe of hair.

She talked about herself, one of her favorite topics. "Yes," she said, as though it were in answer to a question, though none was asked; "I have always treated impudently to my hat, and I have sometimes made mistakes about other people, but never about myself. The thing, Frederic, is to know yourself well."

"But can you always know?"

"If you're honest about it, yes. But most people pretend to be what they're not and try to live up to the pretense."

One evening Frederic was seized with an impulse. "George," she smiled.

"Close your eyes."

"Why?"

"No, don't ask questions." She closed her eyes.

"Are they closed?"

"Don't you see they are?" Frederic raised his hands, then they fell again to his side.

"—Well! May I open them?"

"No."

"How long, Monsieur, would you play this game?"

Frederic looked at her, hesitant, but having the courage to follow his impulses: "You may open them, George."

She looked up at him, laughing.

"Well, Monsieur, what was the purpose of that?"

"—George! I must leave Nohant."

"But."

"I am serious," Frederic said at last. "I am an idiot."

"What kind of talk is that?"

"—You want me to put everything into words, George, I can't do it. I don't talk very well, never did."

"You talk very well, Monsieur. Indeed, the most excellent refreshment I have ever heard."

Life was a poem. She was convinced of it. Yet it was a poem the rhythms of which only the artist, with his sensitive ear, could catch. There were rhythms and cadences in all experience and it was the artist's highest duty to catch those cadences and rhythms and to freeze them into words or in music or in whatever other medium he might choose.

"It is for that reason," she said, "you must live for yourself. But you must do it truly, selflessly, and absolutely, even at the risk of being misunderstood. For the highest purpose is always to discover yourself. The idea of yourself—yes, beautiful, bare, naked. There are other purposes of course, but they are not for you, Frederic. They must be left to others who have neither the seeing eye nor the hearing ear, but the courage to shield themselves of pretenses."

In talks such as this, the like of which he had never heard, George Sand began to discover Frederic to herself. She gave him a vision he had never had, a point of view, a direction, a way out of the life that was to be and from which he must never deviate.

And then—

"The other day you said you must leave Nohant—"

"I did say it, because."

"—George!" he said in a shrill whine.

"Better! Much better! I knew you could do it, Monsieur—I mean Frederic."

They laughed together, but George's laugh was loud and boisterous.

"You talk very well, Monsieur. Indeed, the most excellent refreshment I have ever heard."

Life was a poem. She was convinced of it. Yet it was a poem the rhythms of which only the artist, with his sensitive ear, could catch. There were rhythms and cadences in all experience and it was the artist's highest duty to catch those cadences and rhythms and to freeze them into words or in music or in whatever other medium he might choose.

"It is for that reason," she said, "you must live for yourself. But you must do it truly, selflessly, and absolutely, even at the risk of being misunderstood. For the highest purpose is always to discover yourself. The idea of yourself—yes, beautiful, bare, naked. There are other purposes of course, but they are not for you, Frederic. They must be left to others who have neither the seeing eye nor the hearing ear, but the courage to shield themselves of pretenses."

In talks such as this, the like of which he had never heard, George Sand began to discover Frederic to herself. She gave him a vision he had never had, a point of view, a direction, a way out of the life that was to be and from which he must never deviate.

And then—

"The other day you said you must leave Nohant—"

"I did say it, because."

"—George!" he said in a shrill whine.

"Better! Much better! I knew you could do it, Monsieur—I mean Frederic."

They laughed together, but George's laugh was loud and boisterous.

In the evenings they sat by the fireplace, and Frederic, at a time without talking. Then George would rake the fire and send the flames shooting and Frederic would watch them in silence imagining them spire that were reaching toward heaven.

George lounged in red trousers and a white shirt, which she had once described as courtly, and she wore yellow slippers, bordered with a fringe of hair.

She talked about herself, one of her favorite topics. "Yes," she said, as though it were in answer to a question, though none was asked; "I have always treated impudently to my hat, and I have sometimes made mistakes about other people, but never about myself. The thing, Frederic, is to know yourself well."

"But can you always know?"

"If you're honest about it, yes. But most people pretend to be what they're not and try to live up to the pretense."

One evening Frederic was seized with an impulse. "George," she smiled.

"Close your eyes."

"Why?"

"No, don't ask questions." She closed her eyes.

"Are they closed?"

"Don't you see they are?" Frederic raised his hands, then they fell again to his side.

"—Well! May I open them?"

"No."

"How long, Monsieur, would you play this game?"

Frederic looked at her, hesitant, but having the courage to follow his impulses: "You may open them, George."

She looked up at him, laughing.

"Well, Monsieur, what was the purpose of that?"

"—George! I must leave Nohant."

"But."

"I am serious," Frederic said at last. "I am an idiot."

"What kind of talk is that?"

"—You want me to put everything into words, George, I can't do it. I don't talk very well, never did."

"You talk very well, Monsieur. Indeed, the most excellent refreshment I have ever heard."

Life was a poem. She was convinced of it. Yet it was a poem the rhythms of which only the artist,
