POLICE AUTO-IN 2-CAR ACCIDENT

Unpredictable Idaho weather was credited with one-third of the blame yesterday by police as the cause in two of four auto accidents when the police patrol car became involved in a two-car collision at 1:33 a. m. at the intersection of Fourth avenue east and Locust street.

The driver of the other car, according to police, was Ernest B. Priceman, 100 Third avenue east.

Yesterday afternoon, after six hours of sunshine, ice-covered streets no longer figured in two other accidents reported by police.

At 2:50 p. m. cars driven by Minnie Wells, 141 Blue Lakes boulevard, and Otis L. Lutz, 154 Buchanan street, collided in the 200 block of Robinson street, and the Sears machine was being backed from the curb, police reported.

Five minutes later, at 2:55 p. m., cars driven by Homer Smith, 1545 North avenue east, and John Boehm, 202 Birch street, collided in the 100 block of Second street west, as the former car was pulling away from the curb.

In the two latter accidents, police said the amount was directly responsible for damage to cars amounted to damaged fenders, bumpers and tail lights.

A SONG TO REMEMBER

XXXXXXXX

The hours passed into days, the days into weeks, and the weeks into months. All Josef Elzner—except thinner—never had a direct word from Frederic—“master pianist, master composer and still a pupil, Monsieur”—as the old man never failed to tell anyone who would listen.

Frederic's star was in the ascendant. He was not only talked about, he was played by the master pianists of the day, including of course Chopin and Liszt himself. Josef Elzner gloried in Frederic's success, but not without reservations. Yet he could never hear the name of Chopin without a beam lighting his eyes and a bloom forming on his cheek. If an occasional tear should fall he rubbed it briskly away, choosing to think it the consequence of weak eyes rather than a sign of emotion.

His visits to Frederic's home were frequent. He became feverish, he hungered for news but there was never any. Frederic had withdrawn from the world, withdrawn into his room, and he appeared occasionally in the salons of the great—and would sometimes change his audience with a condition of one of his own compositions.

Whenever Josef Elzner stopped in at Frederic's he was always on the pretext of familiarly viewing Frederic's latest music.

One day a familiar voice greeted him. “Professor Elzner! How are you?”

It was Franz Liszt.

“I was Franz Liszt. Fine, thank you.”

“My shock hands; Liszt warmly, Elzner warmly.”

“The teaching, Professor? How does it go?”

Josef Elzner put on a bold front. “I have a pupil or two, yes. And in some ways, Liszt—setting a competition for him.”

“I have no doubt of it! Last night the sheet music Josef Elzner had just purchased, ‘Something of Frederic’?”

“—Umm, I happened to be passing—Josef Elzner said he needed cover his embarrassment. ‘Well, I enjoyed meeting you—’

“—Liszt held his head. ‘You haven't seen him for a long time?’

Josef Elzner's chin went up. “True—quite true, Monsieur. Professor Elzner keeps me informed.”

“Liszt looked at the statement for what it seemed to be worth, which was not much. ‘You know, then, that Frederic—’

Josef Elzner knew nothing of the kind but his pride would not let him admit his ignorance. He said lightly: “There's no danger. Is there?”

“Liszt did not answer.”

“Well, you agree, don't you?”

“Yes. Liszt bowed his head. ‘I agree, certainly.’

“Then what could be wrong? Nothing? Frederic is busy, Monsieur. So am I. We both have work.”

Josef Elzner attempted a smile. “—Monsieur.”

“Liszt said earnestly: ‘When he plays occasionally—mean in some way—wouldn't you care to hear him?’

“—‘No, Monsieur? Josef Elzner shook his head. ‘No—really, serious are not in my circles—’

“Nevertheless, Professor, I shall see that you are invited—’

“Thank you just the same, Well, good day, Monsieur. Liszt—”

Liszt called after him in a jocular tone: “Remember, Professor—each time I shall see you have the invitation—’

“—‘No, I'm afraid I wouldn't know what to do with it.’

It was Louis Pleyel who brought the news to Monsieur. A recent Polish musician had just been supping at the house.

—George read the paper in silence.

—A thousand miles from Paris.

—The light glowed very much.

It will disturb him.

Frederic came into the room. He was thin, his face was white as ever, his movements more jerky than ever.

“I'm late for my appointment, Louis. You will forgive me.”

He forgave Frederic, of course. Then he glanced at George who was underhandedly folding the paper to keep it from Frederic's sight.

“How do you feel this morning, Frederic?” George asked.

Frederic didn't answer directly. He wanted to get the room. “Truthfully, Louis, I am not exactly in a mood to have company. My head seemed to be wandering. It's nothing important, Louis.”

Does Louis ever have anything important, darling?”

—Frederic's eyes were fixed on the floor.

—You've heard it a hundred times. Every city in Europe will pay you a fortune for one concert appearance. Isn't that right, Louis?”

Frederic smiled, but it was a sad smile.

—Louis Pleyel gulped.

—“Well, Louis, you have the same story. I have the same answer. It's very nice to see you.”

—Pleyel's eyes could not possibly be loosened more than it was already. “Naturally, Frederic, I realize. His words were honeyed but they had never been more sweet. “Yet how often have I dreamed—yes, night after night—of just one concert here?—”

Frederic suddenly lost patience. He looked at Louis. “Excuse me, Louis! I have my own work to do. Good-bye, Louis. Thank you for coming!”

He strode from the room.

—George smiled to her desk. She unfolded the paper. She fingered it. She looked at it.

—Really, Louis,” she said, raising her eyes, “don't think news of this kind would disturb him very much. I don't think it would disturb him at all.”

JEROME MAN WOUNDED

JEROME, March 16—Mrs. Hyrda Lee Thompson received a brief message this week informing her that her husband, Pvt. Clinton Thompson, was wounded in battle in France Jan. 14 and was in a military hospital. The card read that he suffered wounds to the fingers which are considered “moderately severe.”

“What can't you just pass notes the way the others do?”

“I just saw the first robin... confound it, it won't be any time until my wife will be turning everything upside down—cleaning house!”

HOLD EVERYTHING

“Then what could be wrong? Nothing? Frederic is busy, Monsieur. So am I. We both have work.”

Josef Elzner attempted a smile. “—Monsieur.”

“Liszt said earnestly: ‘When he plays occasionally—mean in some way—wouldn't you care to hear him?’

CONTROL OF RENT EXPLAINED HERE

An overflow crowd of more than 50 persons last night in the Idaho Power company auditorium heard A. T. Fredricka, Boise, district rent control officer, explain the purpose and workings of the rent control regulations which are expected to go into effect here by April 1.

The meeting, described by Fredricka as "one of the most representative" he ever had so far, was called for the purpose of explaining to tenants and landlords the "things the new rent control can and cannot do."

Explaining the plan step by step, Fredricka highlighted his talk with small, plain illustrations which should be equally understood by tenant and landlord alike.

He listed as important the following points: "Every rental decree must be filed with the rent control office in the area rent office to be opened in Twin Falls in this community as well as Blaine and Rupert within 45 days after the area is declared under rent control."

"Every new rental establishment after that date must be registered within 30 days after it is opened, subject of the offender to retroactive refunds, but that date will not remain status quo, except when diminished by consent of the tenant or by a court order."

Fredricka also declared: "If by tenant's consent a decrease in the amount of rent charged, a report of the decrease must be made to the office within 10 days. Failure to do so may end in retroactive refunds."

Speaking of retroactive, Fredricka said: "If a tenant has paid more than he had expected as specifically set forth in the rent control regulations, he will be entitled to a refund."

Fredricka said that "any landlord increasing the benefits of a property may petition the area office, if the new benefit is substantial, such as would have been an increase in normal, an increase in rent will usually be issued."

"A landlord who changed property from unfurnished to furnished, or who extensively remodels so that the accommodations are original, or who may establish his own rent, or he may request an advanced opinion from the rent office," Fredricka said.

"Any rent established by such a change is subject to reduction to the freeze date level for the similar rental," Fredricka declared.

W. A. Larson, Boise, district board executive, also addressed the group on the relation of the bill of housing costs in relationship to food and clothing.

FILER PRISONER HOUSING OKAYED

Adequate sewers at the Filer fairgrounds "are in the bag except to find out who will pay the bill for the pipe required," W. R. Hatfield, chairman of the Twin Falls canal board, stated yesterday.

Success of the plan will assure the opening of the Filer fairgrounds as a prisoner of war camp.

The sewer proposal, expanding the sewage disposal facilities at the fairgrounds, would carry sewage into the Filer system to the Filer cess pool. From there an outlet would run into the canal company's hydroelectric drainage tunnel, which empties into Cedar draw.

Survey found that there will be no hazard to health by the overflow into the drainage tunnel.

Hatfield stated that during a meeting held in the canal company office yesterday, a contract drawn up by Everett M. Sweeney, county prosecuting attorney; Jants R. Bolwell, representing the canal company; and E. M. Rayburn, Filer city attorney, was agreed upon by those present as "most feasible."

The contract was signed by members of the canal board, and will run for two years.

The Filer city council will meet with county commissioners and Prosecutor Sweeney upon who will bear the burden of the cost.

Hatfield stated that the pipe will cost $1,000 to connect the present sewers with the tunnel northwest of Filer.

"The finished contract will have to be a three-way contract, signed by the canal board, the county and the city of Filer," Hatfield said. "At present, the canal company has signed it with the understanding it will run for two years."

WOMAN TELLS OF JAP INTERNMENT

JEROME, March 16.—"The conditions are so nice and full they are like different babies—and I guess we act a bit different ourselves with full 'ummies,'" wrote Mrs. Ellen Fee, who with her family was rescued from the Santo Tomas prison by American soldiers at the return of Gen. Douglas MacArthur to Manila.

Mrs. Fee is a cousin of Mrs. Katherine Eakin, and a niece of Mrs. Jennie Stewart, Jerome. She has been interned since Manila fell to the Japanese.

"I'm telling how overjoyed the internees were at the sight of 'our boys,'" Mrs. Fee declared that since they arrived, "things have been happening in a big way and we all now know what it means to be in a war."

She stated that the main building at the camp was shelled by the Japs Feb. 8, 1945, and that several internees and several "addicts" were killed.

"Americans Safe".....

"Our family happens to be in a very protected position, so we have never been in any danger, and every day more and more of the city is being cleared."

"We've hit the area on this side of the Pasig River, almost from the very start and now they are being finished off on the other side."

"In spite of being right in the midst of a good big battle, our U. S. army has got such truly wonderful food, we are just amazed, and ate so grateful."

Mrs. Fee and her husband are now safe again in the Philippines, with their two children. Prior to the fall of Manila, Mr. Fee was an employee of the Standard Oil company, and just prior to the capture of the island by the Japs, Mr. and Mrs. Fee had gone on a brief shopping tour to a nearby place.
