TRUMAN INTENDS NO BIG CHANGES IN THE NEW DEAL

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—No social-economic crusade is in the cards under President Harry S. Truman. The prospect is that it is a simple continuation of the here-at-home things that sprang up under Franklin D. Roosevelt to become famous as "alphabet agencies" in the pre-war years.

Mr. Truman's record shows him as an ardent new dealer, but it portrays him as a man who advances the established things he likes, rather than a boomer of new ideas.

Time, contacts, employment gains in the war have killed a number of new deal social-economic programs. Notable among these now are the works progress administration, public works administration, national youth administration, and civilian control.

Extended Agencies. Not the new President finds other agencies, many of them busy at war tasks, as inoperative which show every sign of being "dead" or "dying."

Commodity credit corporation—Lends to farmers to protect income prices and assure adequate production.

Export-import bank—To aid in financing exports and imports.

Federal deposit insurance corporation—To insure bank deposits and prevent unwise banking practices.

Federal security agency—To supervise agencies concerned with economic activities, national health and safety.

All that is within me cries out to go back to my home on the Hudson river," he wrote last year. The letter announced his agreement to accept nomination for the fourth presidential term which he did in action when he died in action.

Millions Mourn as Late Chieflain Lies In Nation's Capital

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—Family, friends and the nation's great, paid the capital's last homage to Franklin D. Roosevelt today in the sad splendor of a White House funeral.

Over the world millions joined in the mourning for the man who symbolized for them the ideals and aspirations of the United States.

Their high diplomatic representatives stood for them before the bier in the famed and roomed the executive mansion in a flag-draped casket, the body of the fallen leader arrived from Warm Springs, Ga., at 7:50 a. m.

The black army caisson brought the late President to the door of the mansion at 9:16 a. m. At 2 p. m. President Harry Truman joined the widow and close relatives, associates of many years and representatives of many foreign governments in the rites of the Episcopal church.

In the flower-decked room, the casket stood on a small ornamental rug before an altar. The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal bishop of Washington, officiated at the simple 23-minute ceremony of the faith in which Mr. Roosevelt was a lifelong communicant.

On one side stood a vacant wheelchair and on the other the maul which struck the President down in a game but couldn't keep him down.

Only a small fraction of the huge throng that gathered for the funeral remained outside but to depart the funeral to be refused to depart. Many were seen participating in the street in silent tribute.

Many Dead Churches. Mrs. Roosevelt was seen at the funeral by the prayers and hymns her husband liked so much but there was more to be said with it. The room, Mrs. Roosevelt's room, was the same again a score of years ago.

First and Last. And as that was his first word as President, the bishop said, "A man who had been a boy in the room, and we should go forward into the future as those who go forward into the future, without the fear of our allies and friends, and without fear of our own institutions."

FLORAL TRIBUTES FROM THE NATION

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—This was the scene at the famed east room of the White House today when the body of the late President Roosevelt lay.

The flag-draped casket of general was being borne on a platform covered with a brown shroud. A sailor, a filer, a marine and a soldier in uniform at the corners of a small ornamental rug which the casket was centered in. In charge of a "naval" lieutenant who stood stiffly, left arms behind their backs, bayoneted rifles over their heads. An American flag to the left, the presidential flag to the right.

Flowers from all America, from big people and little, some in the form of large bouquets, some in the form of hearts, were all but simple wreaths. They lined all but one wall of the room.

From the east wall, portraits of George and Martha Washington looked down.

Three dimly-lighted crystal chandeliers cast a shadowy 200 gold straight-back chairs for those invited to the ceremony. In the center were a dozen armchairs upholstered in pale green brocade. Those were for the family.

To one side was an empty white chair, standing near a wall painted halfway to the ceiling with flowers of every description.

The huge mirrors on the walls are gold framed. The drapes are of a subdued red. The painted walls are an off white.

A small Negro lad, helping bring to the wreaths, was all but hidden behind the offering of white flowers, called lilies.

In an official limousine before his identity could be learned.

Air Power Should Be Postwar Bulwark, This Soldier Says

Editor, Times-News: We have only to look about us and at our common enemies to realize the role the army has played in world affairs. We can not deny the fact that it was the army which retained control of the republic of Argentina. It was the army which sent the army which ousted the liberals of Japan. It seems to be a historical fact that the army has given a free hand, it has taken over the government.

If we turn the spotlight of analysis on it, those bits of evidence all add up to political corruption. Let us calmly look at the situation. You know, and I know that it is perfectly possible for a republic to be run by the leadership of an army sooner or later. We should thank God that we do not have such a situation on our chief of staff today. Our generals and admirals are unquestionably the greatest in the world, for they have sound and level heads to guide the destinies of our nation at war, but we must not forget that we can't have them forever.

In a few years the army will be put on the shelf to be replaced by others. The danger we must guard against is that if radicals take the place and if they get enough power to seize the government, we will be left with a government which has been the people, by the people, for the people. If we do not want to become a nation of the government, by the government, and for the government?

In my opinion there are four cardinal reasons why we should have compulsory military training. All of them are in the nature of things which can be done, it can be done, it can be done, it can be done.

Military life underlines a man's sense of responsibility. It is a competitive market. It is a discipline which confronts everyone who begins to make his way in the world. It is a discipline which is not to be broken for this, that or the other. It is a discipline which is not to be broken for this, that or the other.

Enlightenment of a national military training program will serve the world well. It is a discipline which is not to be broken for this, that or the other. It is a discipline which is not to be broken for this, that or the other.

The cost of maintaining a large ground force would cost without billions of dollars. It is a discipline which is not to be broken for this, that or the other. It is a discipline which is not to be broken for this, that or the other.

As for putting Hoover in a bad light, Hoover did that himself on several different occasions. First, his business was raising grapes for alcoholic wine. This should be his first official act was to pardon a criminal, Albert B. Fall, from federal prison. Fall pleaded guilty to rigging the government in the Teapot dome case. Fall was pardoned by Hoover. That should condemn him with every intelligent American.

He Says Hoover Put Himself in Very Bad Light

Editor, Times-News: It seems my letter was very much misunderstood. Either the party did not read it correctly or did not understand it. I compared the people with those in Christ's time, and I do not appreciate any good done there now any more than then, as everything of any real good to the farmers and labor has been done by his administration.

Albertson was wounded Jan. 4 by shrapnel and was evacuated to a hospital in France where he later was returned to the United States for rehospitalization.

He suffered leg wounds in action. His wife is living in Rupert with their small son, who was born Nov. 11, 1944, at the time of Lieutenant Albertson's absence overseas. He was principal of Kimberly high school before entering the armed forces two years ago. Why aren't the returning veterans entitled to receive ALL the food stamps that are valid? Do they have to be penalized and go on a bread and water diet just because they've been in uniform for a few years? My son has just been discharged from military after serving three years and three months. Twenty of those months were spent in a hospital due to injuries received in Guadalcanal and he has a long way to go to get back to the normal life of the OPA. All but five valid stamps had been removed, and most of them were valid until June! The members of the board at the OPA office said they had to "go to the books down. Why? For whom? Does ALL our food have to go to our allies? I'm in favor of helping our allies, BUT our injured and returning veterans should come first.

This is a sample of what the returning soldier and sailor will receive from our real food. It is coming back to a bureaucracy that is for farmers, after serving they have been, and still are, fighting. It is unfortunate that the individuals that see fit through ignorance of lack of moral firmness to take advantage of the veterans, and it would be desirable to see these individuals that they be made to serve in the front line.

Death's BRIGHT DIAMONDS

By Lionel Moshier

P. A. X.

After the movie Charley had taken Brenda home and the tail lights of the station wagon with Brenda Hudson at the wheel had already winked out of sight on the "Sandy Hill" road.

Pat and I were just going through the door of the Wagon Wheel when I saw a tall crowd of people looking again. It was a Boston tank. Boston cars were rare in Idaho, and they meant either fun or trouble. After a glance at the tank's content, I decided that this one didn't mean fun. He carried a brief case with undistinguishable gold initials on the top.

He came tripping through the door as if he were hurrying, and I beat him to the desk. While I registered Pat and myself, he stood there with a small round man, obviously important and impatient. I passed him them; he started at me with big eyes through incredibly thick lenses and smiled without winking at the 45's.

"Thank you," he said in an accent which I could not identify.

But I saw that his hair needed cutting and his overcoat was much too long. I saw also that he preferred that way, for his clothes were patently expensive. I was conscious of twitching at the white, fat hand writing floridly in the register, when suddenly he stopped. He started up at me, his thick lips pursed reflectively, and I moved off. The last I saw of him was the white spots twinkling beneath his too-long coat as he went to the elevator. I was still and faintly disturbed when he availed himself of another look at the 45's.

There was no thought of going to bed. We sat on the big leather divan in front of the fireplace and talked. Charley joined us at 11:30, quipped about the movie and then, as my mood relaxed into a gloomy silence, by 12 o'clock the room was cool and I turned over the log and stilled over to the desk to glance at the register. I found the name listed under my city.

PETER A. XAVIER
NEW YORK CITY

The little round man had written the little round man had written the little round man had written.

the little round man had written. After all, we reserved rooms. We had seen them."

"Not I," said Pat. "See any signs of the fire?"

The tent to the window, and there, plainly visible about four miles to the east, was an angry glow from a mountain. I remembered I had seen that. I had seen that. I had seen that.

"That could be The Ledges," she said.

We talked the last piece of apparatus up to the hose lines and pulled up the last half mile of the drive had killed our last hope that it might be some other kind of volcano. The Ledges. We could see the whole south wing alive with flame.

Pat sat, stunned. Charley and I got out and drifted around, seeking some sign of Princess Hudson, but in vain. She had slipped away as I do.

"Anybody in there?" he asked.

"I don't think so," I said. "We were all at the movies in Minot."

He looked at his watch.

"What time did you get out?"

"The usual time."

For while we sat and watched the fire reduce a stately mansion to a pile of rubble. Then we went to the Wagon Wheel where Brenda met us.

"I heard the alarm," she said, "and they told me it was The Ledges. I'm taking Pat home with me."

"I'll love you for it," I said.

"This is 'so much' she smiled warmly. "The most I had hoped for was that you wouldn't hate me."

"Why not?" I asked.

"She uttered the question under her breath, I shrugged and shook my head. She gave me a wide look and turned. Pat and Brenda gone. Charley and I started back for Sandy Point. And Peter A. Xavier got back into my consciousness.

"Excuse me," I said. "Peter A. Xavier registered at The 'Wagon Wheel' tonight?"

"What an odd name," Charley said.

"He arrived in a Boston cab, registered from New York City, and was an unusual-looking an eccentric as I've ever seen."

"Probably an official of the S. P. C. A. With a record for charity as long as your arm."

"My arm is quite short," I replied.

"He carried a brief case, I didn't see, but I bet his initials were on it."

"What are you getting at?" I asked.

"I think I saw 'Peter A. Xavier'."

"Peter A. X." answered Charley. "So what?"

"Then he straightened slowly and my head gave me a wide look.

$60 PENSION PLAN BOBBING UP AGAIN

BOISE, April 14. (AP) — The senior citizens grants act, the $60 per month at age 65, which was turned into the hottest Idaho political potato in years, still is not dead.

Passed as an initiative on the 1943 general election ballot, it was defeated by the 21st legislature early in 1943 and the repeal was sustained by the supreme court in 1944. But the issue is back before the supreme court which will again hear arguments on constitutionality of the legislative repeal next Thursday.

The case is one filed by Orland A. Scott, of Coeur d'Alene and others against former Gov. Bottorff, senator and other officials. District Judge Charles F. Koelch of Boise dismissed it.

Scott and his associates have appealed to the federal circuit court. They have been amended, naming Gov. Charles C. Gossett and present state officials as defendants who have left office.

The previous court decision was in a case filed under original jurisdiction of the high court by George L. Baker of Boise, attorney in the relay of State George Curtis.

The suit asked the court to prohibit Curtis from publishing in the 1943 legislative session the statute which repealed the pension act. Letter had said the legislative repeal of the act was unconstitutional.

Justice James P. Aleshire wrote the decision which "inhibits provision of the constitution on power of amendment or repeal of an initiative act."

Kimberly Schools Pay FDR Tribute

KIMBERLY, April 14.—Students in the grade and high school here held ceremonies here yesterday honoring the memory of President Roosevelt.

When the school resumed after the noon recess, students gathered for flag ceremonies at which the flag and stripes were covered half mast.

At the high school, Ernest Emerson, commander of the American Legion post here, gave a short talk on the life of President Roosevelt and a prayer and made a brief address. Taps were sounded by Pat Day and the band.

This was followed by the playing of two numbers by the band, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," and the other a solo, "The Lord's Prayer," by Bill O'Connell with accompaniment by the chorus.

The girls' chorus then gave "Home in the West," and "A Soldier's Prayer." At the grade school, following the ceremonies, Mrs. Grace Hendricka, one of the teachers, offered a prayer.

You Think Sagebrush Worthless? Just Scan All the Amazing Things Pop Avery of Jerome Can Make of It

Buhl Country club golfers still get their annual trophy awards—metal priorities or no metal priorities.

For the last two years, Artime's Trident has come to the rescue—with the deft persuasion of Frank "Pop" Avery, Jerome.

And the awards that tournament winners have received are more highly prized than the traditional metal cups, according to Jess G. Gaskin, chairman of the club's tournament committee.

They're fashioned of Idaho aspen—Artime's Trident to the fore—and are set with a variety of hand-turned, wood-working laths and a variety of lathe tools. Avery converts into well-proportioned, well-balanced trophies, central core blocks of wood, on which have been superimposed layers of carved woods, glued one upon the other.

Ornate, flowing curves and forms develop almost magically under the manipulation of the lathe and chisel and other tools. Contrasting colors and grains of wood give an varying decorative effect.

Intricate Inlay Work Then comes the inlaying of small diamonds and the final stages of wood to complete the geometric patterns. Next the sanding, the applying of the finish and the final drying.

Common woods have taken on jewelry like qualities and the final operations of an artisan in love with his work.

Members of the Buhl Country club who received trophies of his handiwork at the recent awards dinner at Browne's cafe in Buhl, are: Medalist, Gus Averett; champion, Frank and Dora; runner-up, Ken Curtis; second flight, Jack Wright; third flight, Frank Gies; and fourth flight, E. M. Tomlinson.

Sagebrush was used in each trophy. Otherwise, the woods varied, among them was Idaho mahogany, which Avery obtained in the vicinity of Albion; also red juniper, which he got from a peach and other native Idaho woods, in addition to California, California orange and Missouri walnut.

Each bore a small plaque attached to the trophy by chain. The name of the winner was burned into the plaque with an electric engraving needle.

Sagebrush Enthusiast Avery has been known to which Avery is most devoted. "The Almighty put it on this earth as the greatest of all gifts to man. All Idaho would be a desert of drifting dunes were it not for the sagebrush," Avery declares.

"I'll pick up a really good chunk of wood from a dead live work shop, handle it almost reverently, as the tools of what the apparently light, spaced wood was done. One stage is to time that hunk of aspen so it will come salt and pepper shakers, a frame for boldly colored western scenes, a powder box or a hidden candy box, a playing card case, perhaps, or a sagebrush "snifter."

"I call these craftsmen 'Idaho's television.' Shut your eyes, take a snuff, and you'll see a beautiful Idaho profile and hill, no matter who you are," he declares, inviting a visitor to take a sniff.

The Leaves Do It Into the hollow of a round, lidded box of sagebrush he places asphalt and have that pungent, characteristic odor.

It was while he was stalion agent for the Oregon hortling at Troy, when he and his wife, Jennie, first discovered the beauty of aspen. A glancing blow of the axe as he was chopping firewood revealed to him a beautiful grain that was to challenge his artistic sense in later years.

"I made match boxes for Jennie's folks for five months that year. Sent 'em with the message, 'Idaho says our daily grub.' But I wasn't retired from railroad work in 1937 that I actually got into business with my sagebrush hobby."

Opened Station He opened the Twin Falls Railway company's station as agent in Jerome, Nov. 11, 1931, and in that same town until his retirement Oct. 13, 1937. The first station at Jerome was a box car.

His hobby has become an avocation, and some of his sagebrush has been sent as gifts, as far as England.

The sagebrush novelties have been sold to friends and admirers from many states and several foreign countries, as the Avery gift boxes, covered with blue-glazed strips of native sagebrush, discolored.

Business is so good that an representative and registrants from foreign countries include former residents of Canada, China, Singapore, Alaska, Hawaii and cities in Canada. The signatures vary from "Miss M. Simpson" to "Gentle breeze of children."

In his letter file are acknowledgments of appreciation from celebrities, including Clarence Budgee, the Kolland literary creator of Scattergood Baines and other favorite fiction characters; letters from the Wanda of a Wanda and a Wanda; and one from a young woman who will always consider me a stick."

What Avery has to say about sagebrush is well-balanced, to say the least. "What he has to say about it is a 'reclamations' is something that calls for poetic expression. The following is one of his contributions to the 'Sagebrush' section of the 'Pop' from Sandpiper." Salt Lake Tribune writer, Here's his:

"ODE TO THE SAGE" "You're grubby and dirty and ugly as sin. But of all brains we love you the best. You stick by closer than any other kin. And helped us to win out in the west. When whittlers have coveted and And tried to raise heck with the sand. You stand to your job and held down the soil. You make this a glorious land. "So, here to you, old brush, root. 'Twas a god-send when you were needed. With your chances would have been sold. With your sweat and sweat and courage succeeded."

FBI ACHIEVEMENT TOLD AT SCHOOL

"No nation can ever make a war without, and it is a strong will." This statement was made by Sam Grathwell as he spoke to the students of the high school on the "Story of the G-Man" Friday during an assembly.

Grathwell stated that the FBI has been the eyes and ears of America, protecting her from the enemy. "If it had not been for the FBI," stated Grathwell, "many more war casualties would have been added to our list."

Not a member of the FBI himself, Grathwell stated that his statements on the FBI were based on research work done in Washington, D. C. and with personal interviews with the director, J. Edgar Hoover.

He has lectured on this topic before audiences throughout the United States, in the past.

Grathwell told the students of the requirements for becoming a member of the FBI, telling them that the character requirements are the hardest to meet. He told of the importance of fingerprints and nicknames in tracking down criminals.

Contrary to popular belief, the G-man kills few of the criminals he tracks down. Most of them are brought to trial and 97 per cent are convicted.

"America has an average of a crime every 22 seconds, a record of the nation's high school. The best way to bring down such a record is to train our young boys and girls against crime to teach them the G-man's code of law."

Grathwell also spoke to the students in junior high school in the same manner.

NAZI YOUNGSTERS KEEP UP FARMS

WITH THE AMERICAN FIRST ARMY, April 14 (AP)—German boys to have peace, honor, and respect, girls and elderly men and women whose place was taken by the First Army, the youth, Wesley Donald Patton of 302 East Spring, Guthrie, Okla., said in his letter to the sheriff that his mother died two years ago. He continued:

"On June 8, 1944, dad married without letting anyone know it. The woman he married had a number of children. Finally, after everything had calmed down, Dad wanted to send me and my two other brothers and baby sister, away. After my uncle and aunt had talked to him he tried to change his mind slightly."

"After my uncle that I am now staying with heard what Dad was trying to do he let me stay with him until I finished school."

"I am working every day for Martin Sporting goods in order that I may take a vacation this summer. I like to work and always did want to work on a ranch. If you can find someone that could use a young rancher please let me know."
