KYUSHU AIRFIELDS GIVEN B-29 BLAST

QUAM, April 17 (AP)—Six separate groups of Superfortresses blasted enemy airfields on Kyushu island today with the aroused purpose of neutralizing southern Japanese bases which have been hurling suicide planes against American carrier and land forces around Okinawa for a week.

It was the third day of American air raids on Kyushu airbases, 725 miles north of Okinawa.

Carrier aircraft destroyed 100 Japanese planes and damaged 60 in sorties from Kyushu on Saturday and Monday, contributing to a total of 1,700 Japanese aircraft and the 100 Japanese planes which were destroyed in suicide attacks by Mustang fighters from two Jima also raided Kyushu yesterday.

Today's blow was struck by a large task force of B-29's against six airfields. Five of them are on southern Kyushu. The fourth Superfortress blow against Japan's southern island is from around Kanto.

The Japanese Dornier planes raided airfields for an hour and a half in the afternoon. The attack was believed to be a tactical bombing aimed at destruction of our air strength.

Today's targets included airfields at Kuroki, Kanoya, Katsunuma, Izumi, Koyabu and Kitagahara. The last five are in the southern district of Kyushu, around Kanto shima bay.

Eleven B-29's reported missions yesterday. 60 plane incendiary raid on Tokyo, which rendered enemy incendiary bombers and fighters last Saturday burned out 100 square miles of the industrial area.

1,013 FOE PLANES WRECKED IN DAY

LONDON, April 17 (AP)—American bombers and fighters pumpeled southern Germany again today as a coalition bombardment showed 1,013 German planes destroyed yesterday by Allied pilots during a record assault on east Europe.

The new figures boosted the tally of enemy aircraft knocked out on the ground and in the air by Allied pilots in the last 10 days to 2,400— which represents about half of the estimated reserve strength of the Luftwaffe at the time of the Rhine Crossing.

In the first 18 days of April 1945, 1,011 German planes have been destroyed.

Airforce officials worked all night checking and retreating the record smashing claims turned in by fighter pilots—777 by pilots of the U. S. eighth airforce.

The Luftwaffe has been knocked out," said one highly placed official who cannot be identified by name.

Months of relentless bombing of German oil plants had had their effect. The German airforce had engine planes in reserve—probably 2,400—but at the crucial moment there was no fuel to get them into the air.

There was no klug in the heavy bombing campaign which Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, commander of the U. S. strategic airforce in Europe, declared last night might switch to strategic to a purely tactical job in support of the ground forces.

As he was leaving an office in the day to American airmen saying that the strategic air war had been won, British fighter bombers were striking Czechoslovakia and southern Germany, where they were being used to rail blockades in direct support of the American tank and seventh armies.

The U. S. eighth airforce announced that eight heavy bombers and 24 fighters were in the air yesterday's operations, carried out by nearly 2,000 planes.

Home Romance Shattered by Imaginary Third in Triangle

PARIS, April 17 (AP)—From a German prison camp a French soldier came home.

They had told his wife two days before. They always give 48 hours notice. The French are like that in the breadth of their understanding. But in this case it wouldn't have been necessary. The woman had waited and waited well. Everybody knew that.

When they told her she stood for a moment without moving. "It's a coming home," they said. The color drained from her face. She looked around. "He's been cleared and the Americans are flying his section back to Paris," they said.

A smile burst over her face and she murmured "thank you" and again "thank you so much" and then she turned and ran.

She spent the whole two days cleaning their home. It isn't a very big house, but she started in the attic and went right through to the cellar, sweeping, dusting, polishing.

Neighbors who knew so well what this would mean offered to help her. She refused. They told her he would arrive before noon.

She arranged everything. She went to the grocery and the butcher and handed over all her ration tickets. When they showed their surprise she said "never mind. It isn't every day that one has something like this."

Two Places
She laid places for two at the table.

Throughout the house it was like that. Two of everything. Two arm chairs fronting the fireplace, two sets of towels in the bathroom and ten pillows on the bed. Everything was ready.

She didn't remember how she liked his salad—with just a touch of white pepper. There wasn't any white pepper in the house. Almost in panic she stripped off her apron and ran through the streets to the grocery. He opened the door while she was away.

Only Echo
He called her name and only the echo of his voice answered him.

Then he saw the table set for two. He went through the house. Everything was something for two.

Then he heard her footsteps and suddenly they were looking at each other. She started to speak. He struck her across the mouth, savagely. Then with his fist he struck her again and again until she fell. He walked out of the door. He disappeared.

ALL 15 BALLOTS FOR SCHOOL LEVY

JEROME, April 17—In one of the tightest votes ever cast in Jerome for approval or disapproval of school tax levies, 15 residents of Independent School District No. 23 Monday approved an additional eight and one-half mill levy necessary for the operation of Jerome schools during the fiscal year beginning July 1. All votes cast approved the measure, according to Charles H. Welter, secretary-treasurer of the North Side Canal company and clerk of the Jerome school board.

"The extra levy will be divided into the general fund and playground and gymnasium purposes," Welter said.

The total levy for 1945 is 23 mills, a drop of 2 mills over last year.

Mrs. Mary Speakman served as judge of the voting. Clerks were Mrs. Bertha Sarpan and Mrs. Harry Fritzer.

NEW FIRST LADY PUZZLES SCRIBES

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
WASHINGTON, April 17 (AP)—The Mrs. Roosevelt press conference association, which for 12 years held a monopoly on all news coming from the first lady, is a lodge with a problem.

She'll do as it folds or she'll do the job of the press try to get together regularly with Mrs. Harry S. Truman and discuss such things as blouses and the best way to vacuum a rug?

"The Mrs. R. PCA, consisting of 65 active members, has written Mrs. Truman, asking whether she intends to continue Mrs. Roosevelt's weekly meetings, which sometimes produced some surprising stories."

The members were scheduled to meet with her for the first time late today but the session has been called off. They still hope to see the new first lady within the next few days to find out if she plans to meet with them periodically.

The lady's pencil pushers are hopeful she'll say "yes," even though they realize she is a quiet, retiring woman who always has her husband do the talking for the family.

So much for the current situation, which has President Ruth Montgomery of the New York Daily News, secretary-treasurer Eulalie McDowell of the United Press, and the board of governors wondering whether the members ever will produce a fraction of the news generated by her press corps.

PAINTERS GIVEN $125 JUDGMENT

The case of Boyd Ash and Noble Gaultney, co-plaintiffs in a painting and decorating business, who sued Laddell Larson, et al, for $151.25 allegedly due them for work in the latter's home, ended in district court yesterday when District Judge J. W. Porter ruled the plaintiffs were entitled to $125 with interest at six per cent from Sept. 15, 1943. The plaintiffs in their original complaint charged that "on May 1, 1943, they entered into an oral agreement with the defendant to paint the latter's house and gave it a prime coat and later a second coat, the work amounting to $151.25."

In an answer to the complaint, dated Jan. 27, 1945, Larson charged that when the painting parties painted woodwork in the house they did not first remove wax, causing the paint to peel off. And when they removed the paint with a paint scraper, the work amounted to $151.25.

Carl E. Walker represented the plaintiffs with J. H. Blaudon as attorney for the defendant.

ROTARY SPEAKER URGES VIGILANCE

BUILD, April 17 — Choosing his topic "Being Waxed, You Look At It," W. Taylor, speaker and former state attorney general, talked to the Build Rotary club.

The difference between looking and seeing frequently determines important things, Taylor said. While the average American is very keen and alert about his personal affairs and generally knows what is going on, all collectively, the people of this country have not distinguished themselves by the ability to visualize a situation. As collective beings, Americans are not noted for their perceptivity or their vision.

Country Is Prepared
"Prior to World war I, the signs of approaching conflicts were hardly to be mistaken, yet the course of events found our country in a state of helplessness and uncertainty. The people were warned by individuals and representatives to regard the situation with what was at that time, but the American eye was dimmed by the famous belief that nothing untoward could happen here.

It was impossible to mistake the trend of events for several years preceding 1931, but everybody seemed to have a different opinion as to when the nation would blink and at the time prompted decision and a definite course of action, Mr. Taylor said.

Japan Beating
"America dealt with Japan with-out the least conception of the cruelty and enormity of the Japanese. In spite of solemn and frequent warnings from our representatives in Japan, the Japanese people remained firmly fixed in the public mind as a nation of peace-loving people. It is 1945 when the Japanese repudiated the name of peace-loving nation, this country sank half its navy to appease them. For the same purpose, the United States navy was sunk in 1930, and the American navy was reduced to a few scraps of metal and wreckage left over from the disaster of Pearl Harbor.

Fredita War's End
"We are now facing the conclusion of a great war. The question of what should be done is being asked, with grave doubt whether the people will follow. It is likely to end banditry among the world powers.
"We will have among an international organization for security or will return to the chaos of the past. The people seem to be divided between the two. Apparently, those who know the least are making the loudest noise, and the average citizen is likely to accept sound for reason.
"This country," Mr. Taylor pointed out, "has been only to look at, but to see what confronts it. A large group advocates the policy of hands off. They seem to think that we can recede from the world as far as responsibility is concerned, but can take an active part so far as commerce and profits are involved."

Both Hired Man And Truck Gone

No trace has yet been found of a Twin Falls man, his car and truck, who allegedly stole his employer's pickup truck Friday after the rancher had given him permission to use it on a business trip into Twin Falls. Sheriff's officers are seeking to trace the whereabouts of both man and truck.
The man's employer said he was to return the truck the same day, and emphatically had no permission to take the vehicle other than to Twin Falls. He said a previous report that the truck was loaned to the hired man for a wedding trip was in error.
The farm on which the missing man worked is located on county roads.

Roosevelt Leaves All Income From Trust Fund for Widow

NEW YORK, April 17 (AP)—The late President Franklin D. Roosevelt in his will filed Monday bequeathed to his widow, Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, all the income from a trust fund to be set up from his residuary estate. Upon her death, one half of the remaining principal, with any accumulations it is to be paid equally to his children or their heirs.

The other half is to be divided into separate trusts, to be held by the trustees for the benefit of the children and grandchildren.

The will, filed in Dutchess county surrogate's court, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was made public here by John C. Farber, of the law firm of O'Connor and Farber, who said in a statement: "No attempt has been made as yet to place any valuation upon the assets of the estate."

Upon the death of Mrs. Sara Deane Roosevelt, the late President's mother, on Sept. 7, 1941, Mr. Roosevelt received nine-tenths of her net estate of $1,027,000 and her Hyde Park, N. Y., property.

Mr. Roosevelt last year conveyed the main house and adjacent grounds of the Hudson valley estate to the federal government, with the provision that Mrs. Roosevelt and her children could live there during their lifetimes.

The will, executed Nov. 12, 1941, shortly after his mother's death and a few months after his meeting with Prime Minister Churchill to frame the Atlantic charter, provides that Mrs. Roosevelt have the right to select any personal property she desires.

HITLER MADNESS HAS NO PARALLEL

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Staff Analyst

The madness of Hitler's last-ditch stand in which he is deliberately sacrificing his fatherland in a despairing effort to save his own life is one of the amazing pages of history.

Having become somewhat accustomed to the operations of his abnormal mind, one isn't surprised at the violence of the war—and perhaps the violence of his troops to hang on at all costs in face of the great Russian offensive. He has made the mistake of Frankenstein and again stands out what he often has described as the bolshoi monster.

The fascist declares that the "Jewish-bolshevik axis" is "trying to wipe out our people." He insists that "while old men and children are being murdered, women and girls are being reduced to the status of prostitutes and remaining led away to Siberia. Drown the bolshoi monster."

That would be a strange document to come from anyone but Hitler. This man, who has no more conscience than a coyote, raves of murder and prostitution when he himself has given orders for the slaughter of countless thousands of civilians and has made brood animals out of German's young girls by teaching them to have babies out of wedlock as a patriotic duty so that the race might have more men for cannon fodder.

It's safe to say that Hitler himself also is afraid of the Russians—and with good reason. He double-crossed them and broke his bond when he made war on them. He has carried out terrible atrocities on Russian territory.

BOISE, April 17 (AP)—Gov. Charles C. Gooch participated yesterday in a radio broadcast urging support for the cancer control fund drive of which J. R. Simplot of Caldwell is chairman.

"Lots of them who by all reason shouldn't have been able to walk could and did," said Captain Prince. "One said to me, 'If I could get through the march of death, it can make this.'"

The captain is completing a tour through with his family here.

LONG JAPAN WAR, GENERAL'S VIEW

By United Press

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander in chief of the Australian army, predicted today there will be a "prolonged campaign of heavy fighting for an unpredictable period" in the by-passed areas of the Pacific. Melbourne radio reported in a broadcast recorded by United Press.

Gen. Blamey said Australian troops engaged in future operations in the Pacific "will exceed the greatest number of Australians maintained in the field in two years." The Australians presently are fighting by-passed Japanese garrisons of Bougainville, New Britain, New Guinea and other islands.

"The high degree of success which attended the by-passing strategy of Gen. Douglas MacArthur in his advances to the Philippines encouraged some people in the belief the Pacific war would end soon," he said.

"I have not heard that view expressed by any allied service leader. Rather it is felt we must face possibility of sustained campaigning of heavy fighting for an unpredictable period."

The average American family gets about twice as much electricity for its money today as it did 15 years ago

Yes, the first is a trick, but the second is a fact—a fortunate fact for you.

By using more and more electricity over the years, you've helped us reduce the price to a point where the average family now gets about twice as much electricity as it did 15 years ago for the same money.

Keeping the price of electricity pinned down to the floor in wartime is a much tougher job than keeping a pin-up girl floating in mid-air!

It takes much more than magic. It takes careful planning, hard work and good business management.

Death's BRIGHT DIAMONDS

By Lionel Mosler

MR. P. A. X. SHIFTS HIS

At that moment Cass Hopes appeared, looking very blood-thirsty. He had a little package in his hand which he laid on the desk. He took the package and revealed the gun that I had taken away from the intruder in my room at the Lodge two nights ago.

"Ever seen that, Trent?" he asked.

"Frank said 'and to have you? You admit ownership?'"

"No."

"You paused for a moment, then went on, deliberately squaring the jaw of vicious satisfaction over the situation.

"I don't deny that you were an illegal possessor of this gun?"

"I don't know what you are saying, Trent."

"I told you the story about the gun yesterday. What about it?"

"This said Hopes bluntly, "is the gun that killed Phineas Hudson."

"I looked at him before I got through with this business. I was not going to trust anyone. And it was legitimate. Used as no one would trust me."

"Where did you find it?" I asked.

"On the desk beside my body."

"How convenient, my first impression was some one had planted the gun where it could easily be found," I said.

"I took my first impulse," corrected Marks, "but it might be a carefully considered possibility of this kind of thing of an attack on you at the Lodge. You see, there were no other witnesses."

"There never are," I said, giving Hopes the full benefit of my derisive grin.

"Five million dollars," said Marks equably.

"You mean—I stopped."

Marks nodded.

"Phineas Hudson had the Ostermann diamonds."

"The picture was far from pretty."

"Where did you find them?" I asked.

"We rather hoped you had them."

"He gave me the death benefit and my patience snapped."

"What?" I snapped.

"Licenses or salaries? Do you want the truth or just a victim?" said Marks.

"As a matter of fact," said Marks, "I might be very valuable for you to furnish an alibi. Phineas Hudson was killed in his room at the Lodge. Where were you then?"

"I was in his bedroom."

"Anybody see you?" asked Cass.

"No, Cass," I said wearily.

"Watching your step may have recently become very rare."

The spectator looked quizzically from me to Hopes.

"I think, Mr. Hopes, that Mr. Trent and I might accomplish something together. Will you leave us alone for awhile?"

"Believable," Cass left. Marks leaned back in his chair and looked his hands behind his eyes.

"Trent," he said, "you're holding out on me."

"So I told him about the message in my room and in the cellar. I dug up every last shred of information that could possibly hook up with Phineas Hudson's murder, and laid it all before the inspector. It wasn't until I had finished that I thought of the little round man in the Boston cab."

"And another thing," I said. "A Peter A. Xavier registered here last night."

Marks nodded.

"I know, I saw his name in the register. Mr. Xavier, unfortunately, is not available. He checked out early this morning and left no forwarding address."

The inspector examined his nails reflectively.

"It's your P. A. X. on the amulet," he continued. "A very shrewd and unscrupulous individual. And he has sources of information, too. He appeared at his headquarters yesterday, put in a claim for the amulet. Recovered it, and demanded that the American gendarmes recover the remainder of the collection. He produced affidavits from a Cayo Brocena, a soldier of the weight of Pietro A. Xavier's influence. He produced affidavits from a King's seal for the Ostermann's, authenticating Xavier's claim to the stones. The stones you got were earmarked P. A. X. and would be recognized as the key to the collection. It presented to the proper person, Xavier said. But he refused to reveal who that person was."

"Did you give him the amulet?"

"I asked."

"The inspector shook his head. We decided to risk the forces of Mr. Xavier's influence. We put a tail on him, but lost him in traffic when he took the cab and headed for home."

"To contact the person who was to have received the gem?" I asked.

Marks looked at me keenly.

"Inappropiately," he said, "I said little because anyone of the seven at the Lodge could be that person."

"Anybody," I agreed suggestively. "And now the fire," suggested Marks persuasively.

"You say as much about that as I."

"The inspector looked dubious. 'It was set.'"

"It was a lovely place, but I shall always dislike it," I said.

Marks didn't hold me after that—not even for further questioning.

"Maybe I've got time to hold you on, maybe I haven't," he said. "An officer of protective custody."

"What makes you think I'll help?" I asked.

"What makes you think you won't?" he answered.
