

BLACK MARKET CUTS DEEPER IN MEAT SUPPLIES

By United Press
Carving knives lay idle in kitchen drawers throughout the U. S. today as meat dealers reported black market cuts deeper in poultry supplies.
Lines lengthened before the corner butcher and most housewives considered themselves lucky to obtain meat of any kind—only the best substitutes.
In Chicago, the only beneficiaries of the current meat shortage are the nation's butchers, suddenly supplied with an unprecedented amount of leisure. Many are quitting work after an average four-hour day. There is simply no more to sell.
In Chicago, the meat packing center, office of price administration officials estimate that supplies have dropped 50 per cent in the past month.
Meat markets have adopted a practice of opening only two or three days a week, with deliveries as soon as the day's supply is exhausted.
Almost a man, the butcher wears the black market.
If He Pays
"A relation can get all the meat he wants if he has a high-income client and will pay the price," one butcher complained.
In New York, half the butcher shops are closed and advocates in the street urge a ban on meat sales.
Major Florentio H. La Guardia has urged city officials to "segregate the rationing of meat, and to keep unregulated meat stores off the streets Tuesday and Friday, and also proposed that restaurants and hotels be required to collect ration points from patrons for meat service."
Little Hope
The war food administration holds out little hope for increased meat, poultry and egg supplies in the number one population center. It points out, however, that "meat is coming into the market at the rate of 1,000,000 a day, 300,000 above the normal supply."
San Francisco's market shelves inventory empty by May 25, only 40 delegates to United Nations conference find few steaks on the menu. They are short of fish, which is plentiful, or lamb, available in small amounts.

Wilhelm Keitel, Jodl's aide, Acting commandant, Gen. Sir F. L. Morgan, SHAEF staff deputy; Gen. Francis S. Parker, French; Gen. H. M. Morgan, Allied military commander; Gen. Dwight D. PAGE TOO SLOW, COUNTY WARNED

Total seventh war loan bond sale in Twin Falls county reached $394,100 Monday, P. J. Schweitzer, county drive chairman, announced.
Of the total, $242,000 was in "B" bonds. Mr. Schweitzer, who has told of the importance of the purchase of the latter type bonds, said, "We'll never make it at this rate."
Schweitzer said emphatically, "This is only about one-tenth of the goal we must achieve in this county. It points out, however, that 'meat is coming into the market at the rate of 1,000,000 a day, 300,000 above the normal supply.'"

Uncle Sam Stiffens up With Soviets About the Balkans

WASHINGTON, May 21 (AP)—The United States is preparing a polite but firm request that Russia begin applying the Yalta principles in the Russian-occupied Balkans, an official source said today.
He indicated that this government felt the time ripe for big three consultations aimed at broadening the Soviet-fostered governments in Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary.
Military considerations and the big three tangle over Poland have stalled joint British-American-Russian action in the three countries which, by agreement among the major allies, lie within Russia's sphere of influence.

ROAD WEED PLAN DRAWS REJECTION

Rejection of a contract by which the state proposed that Twin Falls county highway weeds along state highways within the county, and about 20 varieties of noxious weeds, should be controlled, was announced today by the county commission. Monday by Everett M. Sweeney, county attorney.
The board immediately approved plans to go ahead with the proposed contract, and it appeared that state regulations for roadside weed control would necessarily shift to the highway districts.

PARLEY HURDLES WORST OBSTACLE

RUSSIA holds firm control over the countries, although the United States and Britain are represented on Bulgarian, Romanian and Hungarian control commissions in a "look-no-farther" agreement, like the Anglo-American domination of the big three commission in Italy, was agreed upon early in the war.
For the last three months OPA has been a storm center of contention over meat prices and distribution. But while this holds public opinion, the real mental issue has been developed.
The Balkan governments now in power under red army auspices.

War Vessels Prey on Japanese Patrol; Ringing Patrol; Fall of Shuri Near

MANILA, May 21 (AP)—In one of the war's outstanding aerial feats, a single Philippines-based navy patrol plane destroyed an entire Japanese convoy of five ships, totaling 17,000 tons, off Formosa, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today.
The largest ship, more than 5,000 tons, was a troop carrier, judging from its numerous lifeboats.
A total of 360,818 Japanese have been killed and captured in the seven months' Philippines campaign, 14,008 of them in the last fortnight, MacArthur announced.
Japanese forces driven north of Davao into a succession of defense lines on Mindanao island appeared to be weakening.
A U. S. 24th division column which speared up the coast, throwing a flank threat at stoutly defended Santa Rita, did not meet resistance until the end of a full day's advance. At nightfall, it overcame strong Japanese resistance, 3,000 yards northwest of Ipp village.
Other elements of the 24th knocked out strong Japanese resistance around Tapok on the main Jap-held island, advancing toward the coast that grew up between Ipp and Davao.
A single Japanese plane shot down near Ipp.

Lily-Like Splendor Reposes in Collars

Make reversible collar and cuffs, buttons and cuffs for trousers, and employ other such ingenious tricks to keep white accessories which a little lingerie gives their lily-like splendor all year long.

For a strategic bit of white which launders like a handkerchief, wear what the French call "little sleeves." They button on to wrists instead of to necks, sleeves and make eye-riveting touches which are easy on the upkeep.

Ace Adams Gets Closeup of Mel Ott's Giants Only When Putting out Fire

By AL YERMEK
NKA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, April 18—Ace Adams really earned a closeup today when the rest of the Giants take their position of assembly in the pitcher's box, deep in right-center field, waiting for Mel Ott to get ready for a rescue job.

Adams is blessed with a gift which most other pitchers lack. He has an unerring arm which is ready for service at any time and he is unlimbered. He says this is an exaggeration, but admits he doesn't have to play catch for 20 minutes before going to work, as do most pitchers.

Because of his sturdy arm, Adams, unlike other mountaineers, gets no days off.

He must always be ready to stave off a rout, to rescue a hurler who shows signs of wavering. In 1943, his second year in the majors, he equaled the modern record by relieving in 61 games. In 1940 he ran the mark to 70 games. Last year he relieved in 61. And not once did his right arm complain of overwork.

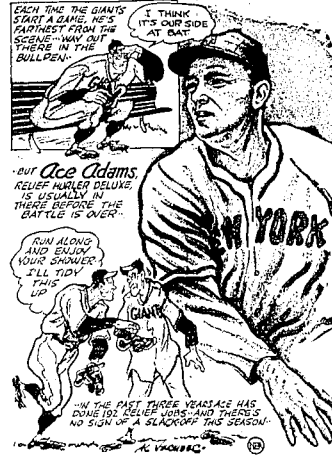

Adams appeared in 162 games as a relief hurler before manager Mel Ott rewarded him with a starting assignment. Ace fashioned a three-hits victory, then returned to his relief chores satisfied that he had spared the critics who claimed he would never make a good starter.

Relief hurlers commonly yearn to start in golf. You get to stretch about them and the first thing you know that's your ball is in it. Always figure it's easy to do the other side to belt home runs in our park, then it's easy for my side too.

Apparently the little brush in right-center field was out of the brakes on rallies.

He can even make the men who pitched those hours and was about to do so, when a shrill whistle sounded in right field, where Mel Ott is stationed.

"That is my cue," said Ace Adams. He arose from the little brush in right-center field and marched away to the mound.

"Ace Adams RELIEF HURLER DELAYS... BUT HE SAYS IT'S EASY TO DO THE OTHER SIDE TO BELT HOME RUNS IN OUR PARK, THEN IT'S EASY FOR MY SIDE TOO."

Russell's 84 Low in Jaycees' Best-Ball

None of the five golfers who braved the wind and cold Sunday to qualify in the Jaycee best-ball tournament at the Twin Falls municipal links will be the medalist in that annual event. Their scores just won't be good enough to capture the prize in that department.

Not even Jimmy Russell, who a couple of weeks ago was pronounced the best high school golfer in the state by the youth who beat him for that honor, was able to ring up a score adjudged good enough to win the medal.

Russell could get no better than an 84 when one must generally shoot in the 70s to win the medal in any tournament at the local course.

As a matter of fact, Russell was the only golfer to go below 100, the second best score rang up by H. G. Larsen, E. O. Vawdrop came through with 101, while Charlie Elster, more generally liked camp fairways and greens, put together a 112. George Zwickler was the other golfer who qualified—with a 119.

Fred Stone, course maintainer, said that golfers entering the tournament would have until next Sunday night to qualify for the tournament. He expects more than 60 golfers to play in the event.

BROWNS AHEAD OF 1944 PACE

St. Louis Wins 2 From Yankees

NEW YORK, May 21 (AP)—The St. Louis Browns, who get there by plugging in their slugging prowess through their fair-weather friends today by moving ahead of the 1944 pace with which they won their first annual.

Riding a five-game winning streak, the American League champions have a record of eight victories in nine starts and the fans are climbing.

After accepting their four games with the Yankees by winning a double hit at St. Louis yesterday, 19 to 1, and 5 to 2, the Browns moved up to a second place in the division.

Their 13 victories and nine defeats for a percentage of .594 compared with a .47 figure on 17 wins and losses at this time a year ago.

Bested Early in Season
Last season, the Browns got off to a great start but no one took seriously. Adams appeared in 162 games as a relief hurler before manager Mel Ott rewarded him with a starting assignment. Ace fashioned a three-hits victory, then returned to his relief chores satisfied that he had spared the critics who claimed he would never make a good starter.

Phillies Sent Reports on Many Promising Youths at Camp Here

Looking Hopeful Over
Two of the most interested spectators at the trout camp held by the Philadelphia Phillies at Jaycock park were Fred Leach and Worby Odell, left to right in the picture. Leach is Hazenrath's former major league coach and a son, Dan, trying out, while Odell just never misses any sport attraction in which boys are involved. (Staff photo-engraving)

The first major league baseball trout camp ever held in the Magic Valley—that of the Philadelphia Phillies at Jaycock park—came to an end yesterday but the work of Bobby Coltrin, western representative of the National League, and coaches George Lial and Jack Campbell wasn't completed.

They spent today pondering over statistics for the more than 60 boys who attended the largest camp ever held by the Phillies in the west, reports on many of the youngsters that will be mailed back to Philadelphia, there to be filed as a reminder that they are promising and should be kept under the eyes of the scout for another year or more.

May Sign Paris
In the case of one youngster, a different story may be written today after Coltrin conferred with him and his father at the Rogerson hotel. The youngster is a 12-year-old, Jerome high school pitcher, whose name may go on a contract for fulfillment when the team camp closes around next spring.

Coltrin doesn't want to send the best out this season, he said, because it would be unfair to send the last in competitors while they already had more than a month of major league experience.

There was only one addition to list of youngsters seeing trout this yesterday. He was Billy Foster, who played in the Browns' outfield during the last two seasons.

Little Fellows Perform
Coltrin gave many of the Twin Falls youngsters a chance to perform in the continuous same yesterday. Kennedy Anderson, Bobby Long and Bill Burkhardt, the pony members of the Braves' pitching staff, got their chance and came through with flying colors.

"Scrappy" Taylor, Harrison high school's popular southpaw, who came back to school after serving some time in the army, also was on the list as were Pat Cox, Hotelling, and Bill Dacy from Hagerman. The youngsters got the field during the one inning he worked, leading Coltrin to remark as he came off the mound that "A scout couldn't do much better than that."

Sharman, "Bad Man of Mat," May Tangle With Soldier Here

Hy Sharman, Salt Lake City's "bad man of the mat," who thrilled the wrestling crowd that attended the first Jaycee wrestling show Saturday night, will be brought back for the program to be held on the night of Memorial day, according to L. H. "Pat" Patterson, chairman of the Jaycee recreational committee.

"Sharman was a big hit on our first show and we've been asked to bring him back," said Patterson. "We discovered that he would be available immediately signed him for a return engagement."

Patterson said that Sharman has been challenged by a soldier stationed near Twin Falls, but that the Jaycee wrestling crowd, after becoming tired of the same old, before giving him the chance.

"If the soldier's request is all that he says it is, we'll be only too happy to put him against Sharman as he matches the Salt Lake City wrestler in weight," stated Patterson.

The Jaycee's second program was to be held last night, but was postponed for a week when Jim Longson, champion of the world championship wrestling club, appeared against the Green Dragon, who was injured in a St. Louis bout. The fight was set for another date against the Green Dragon, but Greg decided to postpone the program.

LET AMERICAN HOUSE

XXIII
Benjamin and Jay dashed down over the rocks of the gully. Right down over the front of the hill. We followed them, slipping, sliding, crawling through bushes. By the time we got to the foot they had turned the survey and were ready to drive.

"Wait! Wait!"

As we sat on the back seat, Julia and I, clinging to the arms, while Nellie raced toward the village. The sky had a glow in it now. We were beginning to smell smoke. The ladder—the only one we had—was way up in the doorway. I remembered.

"The village oughter have told the rest," Jay said, breaking the silence. "They'll have seen by this time." Benjamin answered, "I want to get the horses out."

We could see little flames now, not so red, high up, where the roof would be. Then the outline of the chimney, and the smoke and growing darkness. The chimney, where we set the stove to, Jay said.

"As we dashed into the yard, we found a horse kicking at a man. 'That's Lady,' Benjamin shouted. He got out and headed for the stable."

"You girls go tell Miss Trewoy to get the rest of the horses out as he started to unhitch Nellie. Miss Trewoy was the village telephone operator."

We rushed across the street and found a horse kicking at a man from behind a curtain and saw the man. We heard her at the switchboard.

"Fire! Fire! The village's burning!"

We looked back. Major and General were coming out of the stable, slowly, steadily, with a white flag that must be Nell at their heels. Benjamin followed, leading Lady, who neighed and whinnied. Two Nobe shambling, listless, unperformed.

We hurried on again, stopping whenever there was a light.

"Fire! Fire!"

When we got back men were running about with buckets and ladders. Some children had gathered in the back yard near the stable. One of them, a boy, came up from the top of the roof for several weeks. Smoke was pouring from the fourth floor window. People were throwing out mattresses, bureau drawers, chairs, chamber set.

A buckboard rolled in, bearing my father and mother. "That's my father," my brother shouted, stripping off his coat.

Others took up the cry. "A bucket brigade!"

"Bring them buckets from the stable!"

All of us fell in, stretching in a long, gaping line to the brook.

"Pass it on!"

"Pass it on!"

By the time buckets reached my father, standing at the foot of the ladder, they were almost empty.

"Father! Steadier!" he shouted, as he passed them to Benjamin.

People had already begun to arrive on foot from the hill. Some rushed inside to bring out one or two things they could lay their hands on. Furniture, silver, linen, dishes, clothing, blankets. An armful of funny papers. Others filled in the gaps of the bucket line.

"Steadier! Steadier!"

The flames were hot and noisy. You had to raise your voice to hear above them. Sparks were flying.

"Children around front," my father shouted. "The chimney's swaying!"

We went reluctantly. The village was brightly lit. People were taking furniture out of their

"Mama! Oh, Mama!"

My mother, she and Mrs. Cuppall were hurrying by, busy and out of breath.

"Who's your father?"

"We'll have you a chance to get into the yard of the house."

The bucket line had broken. Even my father had given up hope. "It's too late," he was shouting. "It's too late." Before we could reach the front porch, the young ladies from the kitchen. He was black with foot, and his eyes were running.

"How did it get?" my mother asked him.

"Two asked with Kerocene."

"Oh, my mother said. She went stood now. That chimney had an opening in Mr. Carter's room. She remembered the shining copper plate.
