

U.S., Britain Trying to Choke New War

The Trouble

LONDON, May 29 (AP)—The tiny middle eastern French mandates of Syria and Lebanon, backed by the Arab league, appeared today to be forcing a showdown which may cost France part of her empire.

Diplomatic observers in London, who are watching developments in the Levant with apprehension, expressed the view that France had only two alternatives—either she must stand by her demands and put down opposition by force if necessary or she must withdraw and accept inevitable loss of prestige as an imperial power.

Both in London and in Washington diplomats were seeking an amicable solution and striving for policies which might further disturb the delicate balance in the middle east.

France already has broken out in Syria between French forces and natives protesting their presence. An Associated Press dispatch from Damascus said Syria's acting Premier Jamiel Marwan Bey had expressed fears that a "general clash" might be near as fighting seemed to have moved 20 miles farther north, after the French had moved reinforcements from there to quell an outbreak at Hama, 30 miles farther north.

The French were reported to have the main strength of Hama under central cross-fire yesterday, according to a source venturing on the street, and that the artillery shells had knocked out one wall of the school (government) buildings. Syrians ambushed and captured French troops, killing six and wounding three.

Hama, best available estimates in Damascus indicate, has a population of more than 200,000, and a plebeian expected proportion of race. The French were outnumbered.

This tense situation was viewed in London as rapidly involving the question of fundamental colonial rights. The French desire to retain a paramount position in the Levant such as that enjoyed by Britain in Egypt, Iraq and Palestine. The French foreign office wants to safeguard special interests deriving from long established financial and industrial ties.

The Syrians and Lebanese see this as a threat to the arrival of additional French troops and pressed as a threat to achieve an agreement by force.

PATTON DUCKED FROM SUPERIORS

BY ROBERT RICHARDS

LONDON, May 29 (AP)—Gen. George S. Patton's most spectacular coup of the war—the surprise crossing of the Sauro river that led to the capture of the island of Sicily—was surprised his own high command almost as much as it did the Germans.

With the lifting of military censorship it can be revealed that the colorful Patton not only had to hide his plans from the Germans but occasionally even ducted his own superiors until it was too late to stop him.

Open Joke

It was an open joke among his third army troops that "old blood and guts" didn't give a damn if the Germans knew what he was going to do. He worried plenty over who might happen if the high command at Paris got wind of some of his more audacious plans.

It wasn't that any one in the high command wanted to stop him from attacking the war, but there were some who felt that sometimes Patton tilted to do too much with too little support.

Just before the fifth infantry division crossed the Sauro river on March 30, one of the third army's top brass was in a meeting with Patton. He was afraid it couldn't be done.

On Its Way

But Patton took off with what he had and before anyone realized what had happened the famous fourth armored division under Maj. Gen. Hugh Gaffey was blazing through the fifth infantry's bridgehead and on its way to the Ky river.

Even then, Patton was still taking no chances on anyone at headquarters. He had a number of correspondents tied to catch up with the rolling fourth's tankers and asked that they be kept out of the way of a tank at Patton's press camp.

HOOPER PARLEY TRIKS U. S. REDS

BY LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON, May 29 (AP)—The big building American communist leader, Hoover Parley, who has been elected to the political coalition which elected the Roosevelt-Truman ticket last November are working to bring back President Truman's invitation to former President Herbert C. Hoover to head a food conference to bring instant program to the Daily Worker, communist organ published in New York.

Specific invitations which have been sent to Alf M. Landon, Hoover Parley, and Dr. Thomas E. Dewey last year's GOP selection, probably will further agitate the Daily Worker wing of the new deal-Democratic coalition. The communists already are using Hoover's name to build a coalition because of the trend of opinion at the San Francisco conference.

The sharpest language directed at Hoover appeared in yesterday's Daily Worker in a charge that the invitation to Mr. Hoover encouraged democratic movements in Europe. The substance of the complaint was that Mr. Hoover's address to Mr. Truman would be a "pro-American food to combat communism in Europe."

The Daily Worker put it this way: "Hoover's record of the past 20 years has been that he has always refused food a major weapon on the side of reaction and fascism."

Senators Balk at Taking More Cash

LEND A HAND, NEIGHBOR, IN THE biggest clearing job in the world!

The "tank-dezer," one of America's mighty new weapons that has cleared the way for our fighting men from the hedgerows of Normandy to the jungles of Luzon

Let's talk turkey.

Today your country is asking you to buy War Bonds—twice as many as you did last time—in the biggest and most urgent War Loan of all... the Seventh.

Why so much more than you bought before?

Here's why: Up to this time last year there had been two war loans. This time, the Seventh War Loan must do the job of two.

And because the cost of the war is just as great, the money you put into War Bonds in one loan now must equal what you put into two last year.

Sure, a lot of optimistic people are saying, "Look at what's happened in Europe!"

They don't stop to think that regardless of Germany's condition, we at home must keep sending our millions of men in Europe tons and tons of supplies daily.

They don't realize how much money it takes to pay for the care of our wounded... for medicines, for hospital ships, for months of careful nursing and rehabilitation in hundreds of convalescent hospitals.

And in the Pacific—well, we've at last got into position where we can really start harvesting the seeds of victory our fighting men have planted.

We've got to back those men up, right now, by loading more ships with more supplies, more guns, more tanks, more shells, more food than ever went across that broad ocean before.

That's why your country is asking that you back up our soldiers and sailors, among them millions of farm boys, who are fighting and dying far from their homes and fields... back them up by buying twice as many bonds as you did before.

WAR BONDS PAY-OFF IN THESE 7 WAYS:

- 1 The same Government security backs your War Bonds as backs the actual dollars you put into them.
- 2 You get $100 at maturity for every $75 loaned now.
- 3 You can get your money back any time you need it... in the meantime you get safety and steady growth.
- 4 You have a backlog to renew farm buildings and equipment after the war.
- 5 Bonds will insure your children's schooling, or provide for your own security, travel, retirement.
- 6 Bonds go into a national nest egg that will help to assure post-war prosperity.
- 7 Bonds transform your love of home and country into action... you join personally in the biggest, most urgent War Loan of all—The Seventh!

ARMY HEADQUARTERS, PACIFIC OCEAN AREA, May 29 (AP)—A new U. S. western Pacific base command under Maj. Gen. Sanderford Jarman has been formed to take over the defense and administrative duties of territory seized from the Japanese in the western Pacific.

Formation of the command was announced today by Lieut. Col. Robert C. Richardson, commanding general of army forces in the Pacific ocean area. Other such base commands were established in the central Pacific and the south Pacific in the summer of 1944.

Jarman, a graduate of West Point in the summer of 1914, was island commander of Salpian. He built that base into a powerful sea and air stronghold.

Jarman holds the distinguished service medal for achievement in the Meuse-Argonne campaign in World War I.

Marriage is a Serious Business

By Randolph Ray

CHAPTER 5
Problem of the Wartime Marriage

Parents can do a great deal to keep their children drifting into unhappy marriages. If they will start their children in the way of making and maintaining a true home, Home is a place of peace and contentment and preparation for busy, successful and happy lives. If children are brought up to regard their own home as something sacred, as a place where happiness and contentment and preparation for the world may always be found, these same children will want to establish their own home of the same sort.

Our great-grandfathers were taught that marriage was not a career for a woman, and they were made to feel that a wedding ceremony was the great goal toward which every girl was born to work. The modern girl is taught to look upon her individual career and material success in that career as the only goal toward which the intelligent woman can move, and on marriage as a step down at the banquet.

The girl whom you wish to save from a possible heartache and the tragedy of divorce should be brought over a middle course somewhere between the old-fashioned idea and the new one. Marriage, home, and children still constitute the ideal career for a woman. The only goal toward which the intelligent woman can move, and on marriage as a step down at the banquet.

Marriage, home, and children still constitute the ideal career for a woman. The only goal toward which the intelligent woman can move, and on marriage as a step down at the banquet.

The mating instinct continues in war as it does in peace. But the war marriage raises many problems. The young couple marrying in wartime are faced with a new kind of time—the fleeting moments allowed them before the man receives his orders to go abroad. The time that is going to count in the war marriage, as in any other, is the long time ahead. If they are to be happy together then, they must stop now to weigh their feelings for each other, their knowledge of each other.

At a time when life is hectic and uncertain, when the future seems problematically in an easy to foresee, that the day must come when the couple will have to settle down to a world at peace. When that day comes, and the marriage faces its real test, it will be the marriage with the fewest obstacles to hurdle which will have the best chance of survival and happiness. Then the uniform will be gone and the hysteria of war. The stranger will be a husband. If his interests and tastes, his culture and sense of values, his attitude toward life, his religion and his background are similar to his wife's, they will have a fair opportunity of coming out all right.

But if they ignored these differences when they got married in haste, if they knew only too little that they did not even discover until the other was like, they are headed for trouble. The faith of people getting married that "it will come out all right" like a marriage's faith in black magic. You magnify the qualities you dislike in this marriage in a long future and the habits that you disregard now cannot be disregarded when you are married.

You are not going to change the person you marry into someone else you approve of. You are going to have to adjust yourself to the kind of person he is. Marriage can bring out your best qualities but it will

LORD HAW HAW TAKEN BY ALLIES

WITH BRITISH SECOND ARMY, MAY 29—William Joyce, a Briton whose broadcasts over the German radio won him the nickname of "Lord Haw Haw," has been captured by allied troops. It was announced officially today.

Joyce's wife was captured with him, at the announcement.

Details were not immediately disclosed.

Joyce had been broadcasting German propaganda for the German radio since April, 1939. One of the latest broadcasts was the English translation of Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz' order regarding the death of Adolf Hitler, which he read over the Hamburg radio.

In October, 1940 Associated Press Correspondent Preston Grover called from Berlin an interview with Joyce which contained the following quotes:

"I was born in New York in 1906. My father's people had lived in Ireland since the Norman conquest. I went to school in Ireland.

"From my earliest days I was taught to love England and her empire. Patriotism was the highest virtue I knew."

Joyce told Grover that he joined the British fascists in 1924, when he was about 17, and saw a "certain amount of street fighting," against the communists. He added that he joined Sir Oswald Mosley's "British Union of Fascists" in 1929 and applied in it a definite anti-Jewish policy.

In October, 1940, after the outbreak of the war, he said, he prepared to leave. He said he felt that "for perfect reasons of conscience, I could not fight for her (England). I must give her up forever."

The British government announced more than a year ago that British subjects who had worked with the enemy would be returned to Great Britain for trial.
