ROOSEVELT'S ANGLES

NEW YORK (AP)—In August, 1917, I received from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt an envelope which I have always kept close to my chest. It was a letter which she had written to me during her visit to the White House. It was a letter which she had written to me during her visit to the White House. It was a letter which she had written to me during her visit to the White House.

That was the story which I told the world when I wrote the book "The White House Years." Mrs. Roosevelt herself was engaged by the Pan-American coffee bureau, an organization supported by the public funds of many Latin-American nations, to promote the sale of coffee in the United States by a series of weekly broadcasts.

She has been told that her fee was $100 a week and that she was to be accompanied by a secretary, Betty Lindley, of Washington, as her agent, called on the national publicity agencies, to advise her on all matters relating to the project. The Latin-American group of the coffee bureau in the United States group, called the association, was working through the State group, called the association, was working through the State group, called the association, was working through the State group.

Mr. Patterson had nothing to say at that time. He did acknowledge that he had had some such idea of having the war department attempting to correct that condition. He then mentioned that the provision of travel accommodations is up to the office of defense transport. He then mentioned that the provision of travel accommodations is up to the office of defense transport. He then mentioned that the provision of travel accommodations is up to the office of defense transport.

It is entirely possible, as the undersecretary of the army was at that time, that soldiers were required to ride three per cent on a five-and-one-half-day ride toward the Pacific where, inevitably, some of them must die. Perhaps the war department could be blamed, even if it was not the cause why the army did not make sure, in advance, that men bound on one theater of war to another would, at least, ride in comfort.

But, without attempting to say who it might be, certainly someone was to blame. And it is proper that the responsibility should be fixed. It is not enough to do everything possible to insure that such things do not happen again.

True enough, the shortage of railroad equipment is serious. But no American will be particularly shocked by the shortage of equipment that a soldier should be required to share a seat with two others, and to sleep in the aisle, during a trip across the United States. That sort of business cannot be justified as long as there is one pullman car being used for civilian travel, or for any purpose except, perhaps, the movement of sick or wounded veterans. If this means discomfort to the average citizen, or that they are crowded on trains entirely, what is it? How many civilians would be willing to trade places with Pacific-bound fighters, even if they could travel like royalty?

Probably it is the officials of ODT and the railroads to provide the equipment on which soldiers are transported. But, unfortunately, it is the job of every American, including the railroads, to make sure that the accommodations are the very best available. And it will be difficult to persuade any American citizen that the best available would be to have everything in the OPA which the nation's fighting men can travel and sleep in comfort.

CROSS-COUNTRY GI TRAVEL

Underscretary of War Robert P. Patterson invited the accusation of resorting to "inferior methods" in passing his associates with official Washington in his recent comments about charges that shameful traveling accommodations are being provided for soldiers transported from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Most readers recall the circumstances. Charges were that servicemen were being packed like sardines into vermin-infested coaches for the long trip across the continent. Mr. Patterson had nothing to say at that time. He did acknowledge that he had had some such idea of having the war department attempting to correct that condition.

But, without attempting to say who it might be, certainly someone was to blame. And it is proper that the responsibility should be fixed. It is not enough to do everything possible to insure that such things do not happen again.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL 'HITTING'

GOP—Republicans in Capitol hill plan to hold a caucus in the near future to decide their general attitude for the Democratic President. They and OGD leaders charged in the public press, awakened to the realization that practically all the Republicans are in the same boat as the current administration, which is their party a distinct political entity.

Ex-Captain Is Called up As Private

NEWPORT, R. I., July 18 (AP)—A former army captain who rose from the ranks during 10 years service, including more than three years in this city, decorated for heroism and recently discharged, faces induction as a private.

Paul P. Socolak, 29, resident of Wheeling, W. Va., and resident of Newport, had word today that he had passed the physical examination in Boston, ordered last week by a military board of the 37th Army and was informed that within the next two or three months he would be inducted.

A veteran of the invasions of north Africa, and Italy, and the actions at Anzio beach and Salerno, Socolak—an artilleryman—is the possessor of a bronze star medal for heroism at Casino Dco. 26, 1943. A subsequent victim of malaria, he was medically discharged three months ago.

At Wheeling, Bernard Kater, member of the board, said it had been ordered by the adjutant general's office in Washington to place Socolak's name on the list of registrants eligible for induction.

Kater added that the Washington authorities gave the board no details on the case.

Memorial Service For 2 Lost Boys

BUIH, July 18—Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Farnsworth, with their daughters, Rhys and Bernice, and small son, Loren, have returned from Oxford, Ida., where memorial services were conducted for their sons, Capt. Everett W. Farnsworth, 21, and Sgt. Andrew Keith Farnsworth, 19, who lost their lives within a week of each other on opposite sides of the globe.

Captain Farnsworth, pilot of a P-51 Mustang fighter plane, who was reported missing in action over Weizler, Germany, on Dec. 12, 1944, had his status changed not long ago to killed in action on that date.

Sgt. Andrew Keith Farnsworth, an aerial gunner, was killed in action on Dec. 5 over the Netherlands East Indies.

The Farnsworth family moved to Oxford when the younger of the two sons was a year old, and spent 15 years in that city, and the boys received most of their schooling in the Oxford schools. From there they moved to Oxnem, and came to Buih a year or so ago.

Mr. Farnsworth is in charge of the

Former Jerome County Assessor Weds in Church

JEROME, July 16.—The announcement was made last week of the marriage of former county assessor, William N. Hardwick, Jerome pioneer, and Miss Mary Stewart, Burbank, Calif.

The couple was married in a ceremony, performed in the First Congregational church, Salt Lake City, at 4 p. m. Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hardwick, Salt Lake City, attended the couple. The Rev. George Weber, pastor, officiated.

The couple pledged vows as they before the altar backed by pink and white summer-time blossoms. Illuminated candles flanked the altar.

Mrs. Hardwick chose a two-piece girdle suit of French blue, and accessories were orchid. A bouquet of white and pink roses, a brooch of gold, which belonged to the grandmother of Mrs. Andrew Hardwick.

Mrs. Andrew Hardwick was dressed in an aqua blue and her accessories were white.

Following the wedding, a dinner was arranged for the bride and friends at the Hotel Utah. Mr. and Mrs. Hardwick returned here where they will reside.

Born in Brooklyn, England, Mrs. Hardwick completed her education at Crofton Park. She was employed for several years before coming to Canada. Later she was British States for Loyals of London. She came from England to Canada in 1910 and resided in Vancouver until 1922, and moved to Burbank, Calif., where she since resided.

Hardwick is one of Jerome county's earliest pioneer residents, coming here in 1888. He has served as county assessor and has farming interests.

An Actual Movie Shooting Script

THE STORY: Corlie Archer and Mildred Pringle are selling guest towels at a USO bazaar, are actually selling Alaska. Business breaks up and they well wish their mothers suddenly put in an appearance.

INT. MOVING SEDAN—DAY
TEMPERATURE
The Pringle sedan, with Mrs. Pringle at the wheel, is moving through a crowded section. Mildred and Corlie are in the back seat. Mrs. Archer is seated between Corlie and Dexter.

CORLIE: (protesting shrilly) Honestly, Mum, I don't know why you're making such a fuss! It was Mrs. Archer! He quit, Corlie. Corlie arches in a martyred manner. Mildred looks at her mother's angry face.

MILDRED: I'm sorry you so upset, Mother, but I don't see any harm in what we did. There has been no comment to make, but Mrs. Archer leaps into the breach.

MRS. ARCHER: Possibly not, but you are nearly 18 and Corlie is 16. You've got to be more careful. Mrs. Pringle turns around to glare at Mrs. Archer, almost letting go of the wheel.

MRS. PRINGLE: I resent that remark!

MILDRED: (frustrated) Mother, please—look where you're driving. Mrs. Pringle grabs the wheel just in time to avert a collision.

CORLIE: But, Mum, if you'd only—

MRS. ARCHER: I don't see any way you could let Mildred persuade you to do such a thing.

ALEX: Mrs. Pringle proceeds traffic to turn around.

MRS. PRINGLE: Now just a moment, Janis—as I understand it, the idea originated with Corlie.

CORLIE: As a matter of fact, it was Dexter who started it all.

DEXTER: (sighing) My? Holy cow, that must be crazy!

RAYMOND: (bored) I think it's all very dumb. What does it matter, how does it affect you?

MRS. PRINGLE: You be quiet. It matters a great deal.

MRS. ARCHER: (frigidly) When we get home, Dorothy, if you want to come in where we can discuss this thing out properly—

MRS. PRINGLE: (equally frigid) No, thank you, Janis—I have no desire to intrude where my daughter is considered a continuing influence.

MILDRED: Mother, please!

MRS. ARCHER: Now, Dorothy, I never said—

MRS. PRINGLE: Oh, yes you did—those were your very words, Janet—and I for one am not likely to forget them!

The car is slowing up in front of the Archer house at this stage of the altercation.

EXT. ARCHER HOUSE—DAY
This is a modern, two-story frame dwelling with a nice yard in front. A cement driveway separates it from Dexter's home next door. Sitting on the stoop of the latter afternoon, we find MRS. PRINGLE, while Mr. FRANKLIN is running the driveway and gets Corlie ecstatically. This is MORONICA, the Archers' somewhat time-worn pet. Without waiting for any further overtures, Mrs. Pringle slams the door the other way and pulls out of the shot. Over the

Little-Boat Tars Yearn For Big Sea

QUAM, July 18 (AP)—There is great yearning for the seven sea among sailors who man dozens of Pacific fleet boats—if you can believe aboard a ship. It's a boat, mate, which daily darts about this great war harbor.

They joined the navy to see the sea, and most of them complain as they are being in a harbor here. It's a busy, interesting harbor to the newcomer, but, like anything else, it can become tiresome.

"And how!" chorus the four "swabbles" of the "Mickey" mess hall—as distinguished from the seagoing "Donald duck navy" of sub-chasers, escorts and the like—who operate the YTL 65 in Apra harbor.

The YTL is a yard two launch and her number, 65, shows she came along in the order when hundreds of similar little craft were being launched for their bumble but essential service along the big boats of a sort, with not enough engine power to pull big ships but very useful for fire-holding and other light jobs.

Day after day, the two "swabbles" take the small, grey YTL 65 on its round of chores inside the harbor brackets and along the Guam shores.

"I wanted sea duty," snorted the engineer, motor machinist and other Vladanar Mica, Chicago, "and look—!"

Hagerman Man on Famed Air Carrier

HAGERMAN, July 18—OM 1/2 Robert Dickerson was aboard the famed aircraft carrier which made the amazing single day's record of 11 enemy aircraft shot down, 10 probably shot down and eight destroyed and 12 damaged on the ground on a raid over Tokyo.

The ship's outstanding Oklahoma for eight days straight and a record of 600 landings in plane strikes. Ten Jap ships were sunk including three attack transporters, a sub tender and a large tanker.

He joined the navy in January, 1943 and spent several months in Alaska. He was wounded in October, 1944, and was on a hospital ship two months.

In Pearl Harbor, where he has been for the last month, he met an uncle, Pvt. Bert Dickerson.

DICKERSON

HOME ON LEAVE

FILER, July 18—S 1/2 Glen Max Filer, who has been stationed at Seattle, is home on leave visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Filer, in Seaman.

Filer entered service in 1941. He was trained as a mechanic at the Great Lakes naval training center, at Norman, Okla., and at Chicago.

At the end of his leave he will return to Seattle for reassignment, possibly on an aircraft carrier.

5 Magic Valley Lads Enter Navy

BOISE, July 18 (AP)—The navy reported these 17-year-olds enlisted at the Boise recruiting station today:

Leahd Maurice Davidson, son of Vernon J. Davidson, Twin Falls; Harman Vernon Shank, son of Harman V. Shank, Piler; Charles Francis Cowan, son of Mrs. Grace Cowan, route 1, Hammen; and Kenneth John Turner, son of Alma L. Turner, Declo.

Still Work To Do Over In Germany

OCCUPIED GERMANY, July 18—"The war has gone on and a lot of men since time previously was devoted to shooting have less to do, but there are those among the occupation troops working harder than ever."

It is that way for the messengers center men of the 77th tank battalion. Drop in any day and you'll find Sgt. Joseph Ambrosius at Gillette, Penn., muttering "paper lead" and never ending in addition to handling messengers, the unit must dress up papers, booklets, magazines and the like to the outfit. Also it serves as an information booth for the battalion.

"When is the next jeep going to Co. D? How do we get over to such and such? Have those papers come in from the division yet? There's a newspaper looking Kraut, meaning around down here—what'll we do with him?" So on every time the shaver rings.

Alding Joe is Sgt. Seymour Eganman, Akron, O., considered the battalion's best question answerer and an authority on when to pipehobble unnecessary paper.

Old John E. Carter, Dallas, is an art student who for years wished he could visit some scenic European town where he could point to his boat's content. Now his third battalion of the 334th Infantry regiment has moved into the quaint little town of Eberbach on the Neckar river, just the sort of place an artist would love to paint, and there's enough he's painting.

"But what am I painting?" snorted one Carter, "Red and white army road signs."

He Was Dwarf, But He Had the Sweet Potatoes

WENDELLE, July 18—Pygmies and sweet potatoes were part of the Philippine adventure of Maj. Kenneth D. King, Wendell, who arrived home recently after 28 months in the Pacific.

While in the islands, he and his company were being led back to a mountain from which their negro guide had been chased by the Pygmies. He was four and a half feet tall. He wore rubber boots, a pair of GI shorts, size 44, and a helmet. He removed the helmet when he hunted Japs, whom he chased he could smelt.

The pygmies led the weary men up and down canyons for two days, only to show them his sweet potato field. The sweet potatoes grew tall and the plant resembled a willow. The soldiers were hungry. They had expected a shorter trip and their food was exhausted.

"The obliging dwarf proudly uprooted some of his spuds, built a fire, and the sweets munched each sweet potato."

Major King, who probably smiles every time he sees a potato in Idaho, is spending 30 days with his wife and children and will visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. King. The officer also is getting acquainted with his youngest son, Howard, whom he had never seen.

Proposed Road From Northwest Would Cross Southern Idaho

Frank O. Kreeger, Patrons, Wash., in Twin Falls on a business trip, has revealed a proposed plan for a northwest-southeast national highway to start in Washington and extend through Oregon, Idaho and other western states down to the Gulf coast of Mississippi to Florida and Key West.

While here he conferred with James A. Spriggs, Twin Falls Chairman of Commerce secretary.

Kreeger said that in traveling many times across both the northwestern and southern states he had been impressed with the necessity of such a super-highway as he outlined and which, under a tentative route he has mapped, would touch Twin Falls.

Would Aid Trade

Kreeger stated that a highway crossing the country in this manner would be important in trade development, tourist exchange and national defense and would be several hundred miles shorter than the shortest present route.

The proposed highway would cross Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Utah, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas and Louisiana. It would then follow the Gulf coast of Mississippi and Alabama and would cross Florida diagonally to Miami and Key West.

Incidentally, the highway would connect with the Okanagan valley highway of British Columbia at Oroville, Wash., the Mexican highway at Laredo, Tex., and at Key West by ferry to the Cuban highway.

Because of blitzards and snow, many tourists before the war traveled by train through Chicago and Cincinnati. This makes the Gulf coast and the scenery of the south.

Other Advantages

The proposed highway would, according to Kreeger, make it easier for northwestern people wanting to drive their new cars from the factory to do so, since the greatest demand for new cars is from November to March. At this time snow, blitzards and cold weather make northern highway hazardous. The new car owner traveling on the new highway would have only 200 miles to go before he left the blitzard zone. He could then tour the deep south on his way back to the northwest.

Kreeger named Alaska, the West Indies and the Panama canal as the nation's danger points. With the proposed highway connecting these points with the military training zone of the nation, large movements of troops, armaments and supplies could be made quickly, he said.

He listed three points necessary in making the highway a reality. First he emphasized the importance of getting the facts and most of forming public opinion. Third, he pointed out the necessity of securing war department cooperation for a military highway.

Wendell Soldier Home on Furlough

WENDELLE, July 18—AO 3/2 George Amos, Wendell, has arrived home to spend a leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Amos, Odessa, Va., where Amos is stationed at the Norfolk, Va., airbase.

S/SGT. Edson Amos in the Pacific, arrived in Wendell from Kimberly to visit at his friend's home.

On Saturday, Sgt. Fred Anders, Wendell, who had been overseas a year, relinquished his parents from San Francisco. He is to report to Harman general hospital, Lexington, Tex., and will receive medical treatment for a skin infection.
