Jury Decries Death Order For Quisling

YIDKUN QUILSING, the first of the European traitors to sell out his own country, was convicted and sentenced to death by a jury of fellow-Norwegians today on the charge of treason, murder and theft.

The building Quisling, who steadfastly had denied his guilt throughout the week-long trial, stood erect for more than an hour while receiving Justice Eric Sollen read the verdict.

Sollen said he had been provided conclusively that Quisling had conspired with the Nazis before the German invasion of Norway on April 9, 1940, and betrayed his country's military defenses in exchange for money and the promise of a postwar position.

Specifically, he was found guilty on charges of military treason, treason, assistance to the enemy, and death of 100 Norwegians killed by the Nazi occupation force—embellishment and theft.

Mayor Bert A. Smetz will appeal to city commissioners Monday night the closing down of all card games and punch boards that have been operating openly in Twin Falls.

The city council has made the city closed down pin-ball machines, plans to reject an application by the Brunswick cigar store for a slot machine club and to prohibit the four looker clubs here, he believes that all illegal gambling should be wiped out.

"We have to determine only one of two points," declared the mayor. "If the game is legal, then let's legalize it. If it is illegal, then let's outlaw it. It is not a matter of whether we should regulate it or not, it is a matter of whether we should regulate it or not."

The mayor said that Sunday's Times-News announcement regarding elimination of card games and punch boards was a matter of public health, inasmuch as he had not had any information as to whether the city council had been brought into the open tonight, however, and a decision given.

Members of the city council met in a public hearing today to hear the city officials' reports on the matter and to make recommendations to the city council on the matter.

Nips Amazed With Luck at Pearl Harbor

TOKYO, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Japanese were "amazed" at the success of their Pearl Harbor attack, but they were "amazed" without a plan to take immediate advantage of the blow, a high Japanese naval ministry official said Sunday.

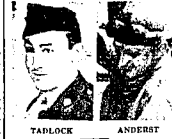

Plans for four carriers, protected by three battleships, eight cruisers and 20 destroyers for Pearl Harbor, said Capt. Yamamoto Isoroku, secretary of the naval ministry, in an interview.

"We had expected a much greater defense at so important a base," he declared. "We were amazed. Our fleet was told to bomb and leave. We had no troops with which to make a landing. If we had, perhaps we could have taken Hawaii, but we had no plans to do so."

"The defeat of our fleet at Midway, where we lost four aircraft carriers, turned the turning point of the war," Yamamoto declared.

On Way to Pacific, He Gets Furlough

JEROME, Sept. 10 (AP)—Sgt. William Smith, son of Mrs. Philip Smith, is here visiting his mother. He has served 20 months overseas in Italy, where he operated a machine gun company before Japan capitulated, and while Sergeant Smith was in the Pacific the best of orders to an American port, where he received his furlough to come home for a few days.

His brothers in service are Sgt. Charles A. Smith, stationed at Ft. Belknap, and Sgt. Raymond A. Smith, in Manila.

Staff Talks Over Posts in Legion

JEROME, Sept. 10 (AP)—Installation of new officers of the Jerome American Legion post took place here this week. Those installed were: Commander, Julian T. Rickerts; vice-commander, Charles Willmetts; L. W. Gardner, secretary; Wallace A. Nelson, finance officer; Elmer Wilson, service officer; Nip M. Blinn, director; A. G. Barker, chaplain; George Easton, sergeant-at-arms; Gus Collier and J. R. Wiley, members of the executive committee.

The Legion members went on record as favoring the adoption of the recent resolution that the 100 acre of land of the Hunt relocation center be sold to the legion, under the plan which is to be presented by Cong. Henry Dworshak, Durbin, to the bureau of reclamation in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Lois Grace, discharged WAC, is the second woman member of the Jerome post. Mrs. Wilson, discharged WAVE, was the first woman to join the Jerome Legion.

Here's why our coffee gives you an extra flavor "lift"

The extra-rich flavor you'll enjoy in Edwards Coffee isn't due just to our selecting the choicest coffee beans. It's how we blend and how we roast them! The secret: a personal formula, perfected by my father 40 years ago... a careful, painstaking method which brings out all the delicious, natural flavor—the one exclusive Edwards flavor. Try a pound... for a delicious extra flavor "lift".

WE SELECT only the finest Central and South American coffee beans for our exclusive blend—the best grown and processed for its taste, shape and color.

YOU'LL ENJOY the freshness of Edwards' flavor. Every pound is ground right after roasting. Beans are packed to capture all the rich flavor and aroma!

Hirohito May Join Rank of Jobless Japs

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Emperor Hirohito of Japan may find himself out of a job soon.

And once the hoped-for military man has ceased to be the royal figurehead of Japan's religious-political system, he may be tried as a war criminal.

At the moment, as far as official Washington is concerned, the emperor's fate is still a possibility. Some foreign diplomatic persons say they entertain no such possibility. The final decision is up to General Douglas MacArthur.

MacArthur's entry into Tokyo opened a period of drastic political and economic changes in the defeated island country. The action symbolizes his control of the country.

The changes will be designed to rip out the war-making powers of the Japanese and begin the long process of rendering them peaceful and more or less democratic. Top developments are tentatively expected to include:

1. Withdrawal of Hirohito from the throne—either by voluntary abdication or by order of the allied powers. He will be succeeded off the throne by the schoolboy Prince Akihito. The recent probably will be an elderly member of the royal family.

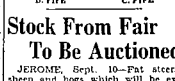

2. Breakup of the "Aikatsu"—the clique of eight great families which have run Japanese industry and commerce for generations. Some authorities who have helped shape American policy on Japan consider these families to be the real basis of lingering feudalism in Japan.

3. Revision of the Japanese constitution to take power from the emperor and place it in the hands of the people.

Thailand Was Partner With Allied Group

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—The office of strategic services pulled another spy-baiter from its voluminous collection of army secrets Sunday to reveal:

That virtually the entire government of Thailand, supposed to be a satellite of Japan, was actually in league with the allies.

That Thai leaders in the denouement of the game were the late King, Luang Pradit; the premier, Thanun Bhanjaket; and the chief of police, King Aduladej Wittayakorn.

That for many months American army officers lived in a room in the heart of enemy-occupied Bangkok and radioed out intelligence picked up by the Thai from conversations with the Japanese. Nowhere else did the allies have so direct a check on the enemy's thoughts, actions and plans.

Part of the heretofore story of underground work in Thailand had been told before. But this is the first revelation that the pro-allied scheme reached into the very highest offices of the government. Thailand was technically at war with the allies.

The OSS directed the allied part of the underground operations, including Thai and American and out of the country under the very eyes

Thailand Becomes Siam Once Again

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Proclaimers will know Thailand as Siam once again, the Thai Legation announced Sunday.

The name was changed from Siam in 1939 under a previous government.

Word of the order came from the legation from Premier Thawit Bunnayak, who said in a telegram that the change to Siam is effective for all foreign languages.

Didn't Make Turn; Car Goes in Canal

BUILT, Sept. 10—D. S. Wallace failed to make the turn on the Castledale road just south of town, and his car ran into the canal. The machine came to a stop headed into the canal at an angle just short of the right angle.

Neither Wallace nor his passenger, Bert Ringwald, was hurt in the accident but the car was considerably damaged and bent.

Only 2,666 Still Remain at Hunt

HUNT, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Japanese relocation center, slated to close Nov. 1 had a population of 2,666 today after 428 residents of the camp moved out during the past week.

Special coaches were used Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday to transport some of the residents back to their former homes along the West coast. Most of them went to Seattle, Tacoma and Portland. Another special bus is scheduled to leave the latter part of this month for points in California.

THE LEND-LEASE BARGAIN

No realistic person is likely to imagine that President Truman's recent action in terminating lend-lease will mean the end of the subject. If it should mean the end of lend-lease, certainly won't mean the end to its headchairs.

It is to be expected that political interests in many nations will be critical and may protest the termination of the assistance that has been furnished through this medium.

Criticism almost certainly will be heard—as they already have been heard—from the home front because of the manner in which lend-lease has been handled.

But, with all its faults, it is difficult to see how anyone can deny that lend-lease has proved an asset to the United States.

Certainly, assistance supplied through lend-lease enabled England to fight when, without that aid, she could have fought no longer.

So, regardless of the cost of lend-lease, present and future, we believe most Americans can agree that it was worth the price, many times over.

THE SEEDS OF WAR

A brief news dispatch from London the other day carried a statement by Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Harris on war and peace that was perhaps more important and certain than any other.

Wars will continue, Sir Arthur said, until there are some drastic changes in the human race.

Those words ought to be locked in every human heart and pondered by every human mind. They are not new words, but they have been forgotten.

ON THE HOME FRONT

The war is over but not paid for. Bonds still must be bought—used into must still be saved.

So let us get back on that so-called high standard of living which we have enjoyed.

"We Kept the Faith, Buddy"

Our role in World War II has been broken and shattered in the future international council. The world rightly gives great credit to the terms of ending the final stroke to Germany.

Through the use of our demoralized military, industrial, economic and scientific authority, the Truman Administration has built a more orderly universe on the ruins of a world that was once a chaotic one.

CHINA has a long and illustrious history. It is a country of four hundred million people, a land of great natural resources.

RUSSIA—As a result of the Truman-Bryce attitude, Stalin has promised to keep hands off territories of Manchuria and North China.

WASHINGTON—The political campaign that began a year ago seems to have happened a long way back, almost in another country.

Another election is not far from being a thing of the past. The political campaign will be getting hot.

FINANCIAL—Messrs. Truman and Bryce did not achieve those modest triumphs by mere vocal professions of the need for foreign goods.

DOCTRINE—It is probable that the framers of this new program do not realize it, but they have devised an extremely far-reaching corollary to the Monroe Doctrine.

The analogy is almost complete. In the first quarter of the century, the United States sought to ally itself with British nations.

There are some who dismiss it as a mere slogan, but it is a slogan that is being put in the right direction.

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGGERS' ANGLE

NEW YORK—As one who looks on from a vantage point which the revelation of the disgraced corruption in the labor movement under the Roosevelt administration.

It is in his opinion before a gathering of workers, made the mistake of referring to the part which "labor" played in the Roosevelt administration.

LaGuardia, with 10,000 policemen, goes without saying that he is a better man than himself, has been slow to discover the existence in the underworld of labor.

I have refrained for several years, as one of the most intelligent of the political labor faker and the underworld lawyer.

Dear Pot Shots: As you seem to have quite good luck finding lost articles for servicemen, I am writing in regard to a small coin purse containing five $10 bills lost somewhere in Twin Falls.

Dear P. S.: I'm not referring to young people over 18 or 20, but it is a fact not to be overlooked that in no way do I mean anything to a huge number of youngsters.

CARE OF YOUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI
Children need music to help them grow. Music is an intelligence. Rhythm is basic to all life, and children respond to it instinctively. It refreshes the mind, it uplifts the child's body and mind. It lifts the spirit and brings joy to the spirit.

Music is essential to every school and the band is one of the strongest supports any school can have.

No school that really wants an orchestra should neglect the band. There is always a way. This is the best way. If there is a piano, a melodion, accordion, a few horns, any instrument that will make a good band, it will do for the beginning of the orchestra and the band.

Every child who volunteers and continues over his instrument through it is a drum that needs ringing. A harmonica that emits a few notes, turns on his own. Write a phrase for his part and let him feel he counts. He does. It is the spirit of music you are summing and that is a matter of the spirit, not the mechanics of the orchestra. The spirit comes first and without it, the mechanics are in honor, the rest follows.

A bridge party will be held Thursday of this week at the home of Irene Meeks, 311 Third avenue north.

A bad habit in a child is only a bad habit. It is not a disease. It is a habit. It is a habit that can be broken. It is a habit that can be broken. It is a habit that can be broken.

Religion Keynote Of Holiday Plays For High School

Religion will be the keynote in high school presentations during the holiday season. Florence M. Rice, high school dramatic director, announced.

"Overturn" one of the plays is a pageant drama, and has been acknowledged as the best play of its kind and is to one of the greatest examples of our literary heritage.

It is difficult to state that it is beyond competent high school scope, she stated.

The theme of the production is the universal morality of man. The setting of the play will be allegorical. Plans are to use simplicity in setting in keeping with the central theme.

The second play, "The Least of These," is a choral dramatization of the Lord's Prayer. Nora Jean Carter will be solo speaker in this dramatization.

Purpose of this dramatization will be to demonstrate what drama could do to make people more concerned over the inherent principles of religion.

The high school choir under the direction of Mrs. Leroy Motherhead will sing the background music for both productions.

SAYS SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE: Despite Victory Used Fat Drains Must Go On!

Every woman in America should know that our country continues to face a serious fat shortage. And victory over Japan won't solve the problem immediately. We must keep on saving used fats in our kitchens!

If you have any thought that saving used fats in one of those wartime chores we can drop, now that Victory is here, please consider these facts and tell them to your neighbors.

America still needs salvaged fats. Not even at the peak of our war effort, when fats were required for mountains of shells and bombs and medicines, in addition to the ever-present need for soap, were our needs for salvaging fats greater than now. Our stocks have been drained by four long years of war, and there isn't enough on hand to meet all our requirements.

Don't let a single drop of used fat go to waste. Little trimmings of fat left on plates, even the skimmings of soups and gravies are important. It is the consistent saving of these small amounts that counts.

Don't turn in fats that can be used. But some fats such as those rendered from lamb and mutton, are not suitable for reuse. Put them in your garbage. Be savvy. Can. And, with other fats, after you've got all cooking good out of them, there is always a little left. No matter how little it is, save it. Your butcher will still give you a cent or two for every pound you turn in. Save consistently — save every drop you can — every day — until Uncle Sam says the job is done.

Don't let "Victory psychology" blind you to this national need! If housewives stop saving fats, the war effort will become even more critical.

THE STORY: Alone on the terrace, Brock broods over the loss of his leg and what it means to him. Thayer, who lectures himself with double, Moza, his childhood sweetheart, makes in his return. She is determined to win him back from Thayer, feels that her chance has come.

VIII
Moza laid her hand over Brock's. "It's like old times knowing you're here. It's as if all my little world were right again. Is it wrong to tell you that, Brock?"
"How could it be wrong, Moza?" "Would Thayer be angry?" I hope not. I've known you so long, so well. Always, really. And I was lonely while you were gone. Brock."
"Better if I'd never come back."
"Brock! When it means so much to so many people."
"To many people?"

She covered the outcroaching of his chin with her comforting. A warm glow spread through her. "All of us who know you are real you. Not the one you've had that terrible pitch of a year ago. That Brock was a stranger. I was afraid of him." She made a little gesture. "I never could live up to him."
"Yes," he said up. Moza's face lit a sort of ghostly joy of participation. "I don't care how you want that! What is he, anyhow?"
"That," she told him softly. "Funny and crazy and every-thing. Remember all the goofy things we used to do?" Her voice related an old, so many people.

"That was kid stuff." But he was grinning.
She smiled. "Maybe, but who wants to be old? I hope I shall never be old and demanding. Or expect anything of another person except to be himself. And at me, that's the best."

He said slowly at last. "There are things in our lives which are the right to make demands. As we have the right to meet them. If you fear."
Moza rose. "I can't see it that way," she said lightly. "But then I've never cared about changing the people I love."

"You don't have to go, Moza." He took her hand to pull her back and she came down he still held it and she made no motion of withdrawal.

He had been at home three weeks now and he and Thayer were no closer and every time he looked at her he burned with the knowledge of how lovely she was. And Jim a cripple an illness he could have fought, but an incomplete body, a maimed body.

He did not admit that Moza helped him to forget Thayer and the uncertainty that possessed him in her presence.
So he sat listening to the girl's low voice, his fingers still interlaced with hers. Thus Thayer found them when she came home some moments later.

"Their hands fell apart but Brock knew that she had seen. Moza rose unbiddenly. "Hello, Thayer. I haven't seen you in ages."
Thayer said, "Our hours elude over like this, do they?"
"Worse," thought Brock unconsciously as Moza colored. Thayer was angry. The knowledge sent a little wave of excitement through him.

"Before he could speak Moza said, "Nice they did, so we could tell." She smiled sweetly. "I thought I did see you last week, though. I was coming out of the Blood Bank."
Thayer said, "I was on my way. I had the afternoon off."

Moza's smile faded. "Well, I must be going. Bye-bye you."
"Thayer," Brock said and Moza left. "You can't work and give blood."
She looked at him. "It's never hurt me. I feel just as fine since blood homecoming." Thayer...

She flushed. "Why, everyone does who can, Brock. It's little enough." "But you never told me."
"You don't go around bragging about it."
Suddenly he felt closer to her than he had at any time since his homecoming. "Thayer..."

His mother appeared in the doorway. "Brock, she announced brightly, has Moza gone? I was going to ask her to stay."
The moment was spoiled. Brock, for a momentary impotence, they were shamed by the specter of their mother's smile. He rose and went on his crutches into dinner.

"She thoroughly annoyed," Mrs. Katteridge announced later and the words Thayer picked her. "Hilthrid phoned. It's that little girl of hers and she's come along home. She's just and she's commiserate. I don't care how far away from home."
Thayer laid a smile. Good Aunt Hilthrid.

Brock said heartily. "I'll be glad to see you, Mom."
Thayer had run into Hilthrid shortly after coming out of the Blood Bank and she had taken her in charge at once. "Come along home, they're just and she's commiserate. I don't care how far away from home."
Thayer laid a smile. Good Aunt Hilthrid.

"I never get a chance to talk to you, child. How are things coming—and why are you keeping on with the job?"
"It's hard to put in yours, Aunt Hilthrid. I know if I weren't there they'd find someone else to run the cup." Moza's face lit the one she familiar thing I have to cling to. "Mother is the same."
"I was afraid it was like that."
"Aunt Hilthrid, I-I can't reach Brock. He's been away from him. He is—well, it doesn't seem like him."
Hilthrid said soberly. "Thayer, you'd need to know a lot more about Brock than you do know to understand him now. Do you mind if I speak very plainly?"
"I want you to get the girl righted."

All right, WHO IS TO BLAME?

EVERY YEAR America's forests and woodlands suffer an average of 210,000 fires. That's 575 a day . . . 575 while you slept last night!

MOST AMERICANS have the idea that forest and woods fires are just one of those things . . . bad, but unavoidable. Maybe if Americans knew the truth about who really starts the majority of these fires, they would change their tune.

HERE ARE THE FACTS: 10 percent of all forest and woods fires are the result of lighting. Not much can be done to prevent them. But . . . 90 percent are caused by good American citizens, like you, and something can be done about that! One word—carelessness—explains the wholesale razing of America.

Every year fires burn over 31,000,000 acres—more than in Yosemite National Park or the state of New York. Every year fires kill billions of little trees—tomorrow's timber—and enough big trees to build 215,000 five-room homes! Every year vital watersheds are crippled, hundreds of thousands of man-days of labor wasted, nature's beauty scarred.

It's time — NOW — to put an end to this crying shame. You and your friends can help! Please read the rules on this page . . . read them again . . . memorize them . . . tell others about them. Then be careful in all forest and woodland areas. Do your part help prevent fires!

MEMORIZE THESE RULES

-  1. Crush out your cigarette, your cigar, your pipe ashes.
-  2. Brook your match in two. When you can hold the burned end between your fingers—play safe, use the ash tray.
-  3. Drown your campfire; then sit and drown it again.
-  4. If you must use fire: First, ask if the law requires a permit. Next, have help handy. Last, kill every spark!
