

Atomic Chief Throws Scare Into Othman

By FREDERICK C. OTTMAN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—I hate to scare you nice people, but this fellow, Oppenheimer, sure has the hutzies. If I can't sleep tonight for worrying about him, I want you to.

of doom. He talks to senators like they are sophomores, whispering to them his required course on the state of civilization.

Oppenheimer was careful we won't be here at all some morning. We'll be whiffs of radioactive vapor, greenish in color, and poisonous to all living things. If there are any living things, which is doubtful. It took me a while to get it through my skull the doc was not spoofing. Nobody knows better than he what happens when you scratch an atom's back the wrong way.

He was head man at the atom factory in Los Alamos, N. M. Now he's here admitting to the lawmakers that the scientists turned up a wild cat. They figured out how to wreck the world, but they never got around to learning how to wreck their wrecking machine.

The politicians are civilization's only hope, he said, looking a few of 'em steadily in the eye. They've got to build some kind of padlock for the atom bomb and yet allow atomic power for heating places like Chicago.

Sen. Millard E. Tydings of Maryland, a member of the senate committee, said there wasn't much difference between building an atomic furnace and a coal bomb that would turn the capital into a golf links without the grass. Dr. Oppenheimer said no three wasn't.

That was the trouble. "In all history," he said, "no other group of men have had placed before them such a difficult problem."

The committee men looked glum. Dr. Oppenheimer said one thing they might do is repeat the New Mexican atomic explosion occasionally for the benefit of scoffers.

"I know," he said, "a fairly spectacular thing."

Sen. Brian McMahon of Connecticut, the chairman, said he'd let the other chuckle of the day. That he said, was a masterpiece of understatement.

do wondered whether there was any apparatus whereby an atomic bomb hidden in a Washington cellar could be detected. Dr. Oppenheimer said, via there was. A screw driver, he said, he'd used it to open all the crates in all the cellars until he found the one with the bomb.

You Take Asia— This Vet Wants Idaho Any Time

Returning from the India-Burma-China theater with photos and souvenirs aplenty, Robert E. Barton, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Barton, Wendell, arrived home this week. He was a mechanic with a P-51 fighter squadron of the army air force and held the rank of staff sergeant when he was discharged at Ft. Douglas last week.

India? Hot, Dirty. Detaching he would not "exchange a handful of Idaho soil for anything they have in Asia," Barton said that India is "a hot and dirty country" and that the coas on the city streets there are a nuisance to traffic and a menace to health.

After entering the service Nov. 2, 1941 and training with the air force squadron for overseas duty at Waycross, Ga., Barton left for overseas in July of 1942 landing at Bombay in September. He was assigned to the U. S. air field at Aomun, India, where he remained for 12 months. His squadron was then moved to Chungking, China and operated from an airbase at Hsian. From this base the P-51 fighters flew precision missions for B-29 bombers and independent missions over the Yellow River country occupied by the Japs.

Chinese More Friendly. Barton found the people of India "somewhat friendly" and greedy for the soldier's dollar; while the people of China "far more friendly and appreciative of American help." Regarding initiation in China, he said the American dollar was worth 2000 Chinese dollars when he arrived. During 1944 it rose to a value of 3000 Chinese dollars and after the war it was reduced to 800.

Barton graduated from the Wendell high school and attended the Twin Falls Business college before entering the service. He is now visiting with his sister, Mrs. G. H. Haskins, 421 Second avenue east, Twin Falls.

Hurley's Rap Is Alarming To American

BY JAMES D. WHITE
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, recently resigned ambassador to China, today made some charges against two men in the military service which will startle a good many people who are in the mood of their defense against the charges remaining to be heard, and good reason to say that the charges to be seen after all the evidence is in and has been taken down.

In the meantime General Hurley qualified his earlier statement that American policy in Asia was "defeated" by such career diplomats as he named, and today told the senate foreign relations committee that the policy was defeated only "to an extent."

This modification of his stand followed the statement of American foreign policy in China made yesterday by Secretary of State Byrnes. General Hurley found it satisfactory enough that he said today he wouldn't have resigned as he did had it been based earlier.

The Byrnes statement in general was a reaffirmation of the traditional American policy of promoting a strong, unified democratic China in the interests of Asia and world peace. But coming as it did just now, when opposing Chinese factions threaten a civil war that could involve American forces on the spot, the statement assumes great importance and may be open to two widely different interpretations.

These are: 1. That it means unqualified support for the central Chinese government at Chungking, headed by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. 2. That it does today place strong support for the national government, but that such support will be by means of mediation. A close examination of the Byrnes statement tends to bear out the latter interpretation.

Byrnes carefully says that "we deem it desirable and essential that China solve her internal problems." Perhaps the key word there is "essential." Perhaps not.

He goes on: "While we recognize that this is a task which China must carry out largely through her own efforts, we seek by all appropriate and practicable means to pursue such policies and action as will best facilitate China's achievement of internal unity and stability."

Divorce Suits Filed in Court

Two divorce complaints were filed here yesterday in the district court.

Charging cruelty, Juanita Allen filed suit to divorce from Ayle A. Allen. The plaintiff asks for one-half of community property which was listed in the complaint as including two lots in Kimberly, personal property valued at $10,000, a car valued at $200, government bonds worth $200 and six head of cattle. Mrs. Allen also asked for the restoration of her maiden name Juanita Butler. The couple married at Twin Falls, July 11, 1941. Edward Debeck, Twin Falls, is attorney for the plaintiff.

John P. Anderson, who charges extreme cruelty, sought a divorce from Emily Anderson, whom he married at Cincinnati, O., Dec. 29, 1924.

The plaintiff seeks ownership of 40 acres of farmland south of Buhl, an account in a Buhl bank amounting to $167.67; cows and bulls; chickens, bonds valued at $1,400 and household furniture.

He also seeks the custody of one minor child and a court order which will prevent the defendant from disposing of any of the estate during the pendency of the action.

J. W. Taylor, Buhl, is attorney for the plaintiff.

GOP Meeting In Chicago to Accept Plans

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Republican national committee members gathered here today for a two-day meeting to adopt a statement of principles which they hope will bring GOP victory in next year's congressional elections.

The conference opens tomorrow with an address by Gov. Dwight H. Green of Illinois. It will get to work on a policy statement after listening to a report by national committee chairman Herbert Brownell, Jr.

Republican leaders in conference brought from Washington a proposed statement which challenges the nation to choose between the GOP's "constitutional principles" and the "machine politics" of the Democratic party.

House Republican leader Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Mass., said it was his first time GOP conference since he had offered an off-year election program to the national committee. He emphasized that it was not intended to substitute for the party's 1944 platform but to bring it up to date in light of new conditions.

Martin will present the statement to tomorrow's session and urge its adoption.

The Saturday meeting will be devoted largely to discussing areas of election campaign. Rep. Charles Halleck, R., Ind., chairman of the House GOP conference, will lead the discussions.

The congressional Republicans completed work on the policy statement only yesterday. It was approved first by house members.

Republicans in the senate then approved it after winning a few changes.

The preamble said the opposing policies of the two parties confronting the nation. It said they should be laid before the people "for a clean cut choice."

The questions, it said, is one between "radicalism, regimentation, all-powerful bureaucracy, class exploitation, deficit spending and machine politics, as against our belief in American freedom for the individual under just laws fairly administered for all preservation of local home rule, efficiency and pay-as-you-go economy in government and the protection of the American way of life against either fascist or communist trends."

The induction call for December 15, 1945, is announced. Joe L. Roberts, clerk of the local draft board, announced last yesterday the induction and pre-induction calls for December.

Letter Praises Gifts of Junior Red Cross Here

A letter from the Red Cross, Pacific area office, San Francisco, praising the Junior Red Cross members who filled 177 Christmas packages forwarding recently to Philippine children, was received by Mrs. Cecil Jones, former Junior Red Cross chairman who resigned in the fall.

This was announced Wednesday by Helen H. Bailey, executive secretary of the local chapter, Charlotte M. Landolt, assistant director of the Junior Red Cross at the California office, also in the letter that the local gifts were part of a shipment of 177 packages, which went to the Philippines. Miss Landolt said her office inquirer reported the boxes to be "very good" and that each contained a good selection of items.

Mrs. Jones was Junior Red Cross chairman for the past eight years and received the letter even though she resigned because of the stress of her duties. No new chairman has been appointed and her name is still on the records as chairman.

Deadly New Poisonous Weed Kills 1,100 Sheep on Ranges

BUILLEY, Dec. 6.—A stock killer is at large in Idaho, according to James Keith, director of the Bureau of grazing service office.

"During the past three weeks this killer has destroyed more than 1,100 sheep on ranges in the upper half of the state," Keith said today.

The highest single loss occurred in a band of sheep belonging to John C. Ward, Almo, in which about 750 head of sheep were destroyed in a band belonging to Oscar Jones, Almo, 715 sheep were lost.

This killer, according to Keith, is a new poisonous plant, halogloss, which recently made its first appearance in Idaho and has caused terrific sheep losses in Canada country.

It is a lethal plant, packed with poison and sure death for sheep. Through the efforts of Dr. L. D. Thornburg, Bureau veterinarian, and the Bureau grazing service, positive identification of the lethal plant has been attained.

Halogloss resembles Russian thistle in general appearance. However, its leaves are not sharp pointed and turn like as are Russian thistles. After freezing has occurred in the fall at which time halogloss is deadliest Russian thistle becomes dark brown or black in color, whereas halogloss dries to a tan color. Halogloss will most likely be found growing along shoulders of roads in areas where crossroads and shade are dominant plants.

Dr. Thornburg stated that the post-mortem examinations revealed swollen kidneys, a hemorrhaged condition of the lungs and certain other physiological phenomena, but that there are no apparent pathological signs by which the average stockman could tell that a sheep had been poisoned by halogloss.

The grazing service stated that if possible, sheep should avoid, during the fall and early winter, areas on which the plant has been found. The only infestation known in Idaho at the present time occurs on lands in the upper portion of the state, in the drainage and near the State line south of Rouseau.

Several experiment stations and some private individuals are studying this plant in an attempt to find a feasible method of controlling it. At present no information along this line is available.

The invasion of this plant into Idaho confronts the sheep industry with a definite problem. The grazing service has expressed a desire to assist the stockmen in every possible manner. Any plant which is so harmful should be reported.

The Almo, Idaho, Pacific medical, the red conduct medal, the Purple Heart and the bronze arrowhead, victory star on victory medal and five battle stars.

Public Aid Vital, FBI Agent Says

"Fine public cooperation has been one of the keys to success of the federal bureau of investigation," John Snow, FBI agent, told members of the Lions club at the luncheon meeting Wednesday at the Park Hotel.

Snow, who recently located in Twin Falls, told members that he had spent most of his time in New York City.

He reviewed his experiences in telling a group which eventually led to the capture of a spy ring.

In his discussion Snow described the intricacies of tracing fingerprints. He told how it was necessary to stay on a person's trail up and down the country in order to make positive identification.

Dr. O. W. Rose was program chairman for the day. It was announced that Stanley Phillips is general chairman of the infantile paralysis drive and the old clothes drive.

Guests at the meeting were C. A. Hader, Robt. Gust of Kenneth Wharft, Richard Duvall of Twin Falls, guest of O. J. Bohner; Snow and E. A. McMillan, the former FBI agent here, were guests of Dr. Rose and Maurice Taisack, was guest of his father, Kent Taisack.

THE MOUNTAIN STATES TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

Here's why it's hard to Say When to requests for Telephone Service

The most encouraging fact in the whole picture is that our "held order" list of people waiting for telephone service is now being cut down, instead of growing larger—and will be cut down by a bigger margin each month.

This is our number one postwar job—and if you are among those waiting, you may be sure that we'll fill your order in its proper turn just as soon as humanly possible.
