WELCH, W. Va., Jan. 15 (UP)—A "very violent" explosion ripped through the shafts of the Haveno No. 9 mine of the New River and Pocahontas Coal company here this morning, trapping an estimated 150 to 175 men and causing heavy damage throughout this southern West Virginia community of 6,000 persons.

Early and unofficial reports from the mine indicated that 267 men were working in various levels of the pit when the explosion occurred. An estimated 75 to 100 men have since been removed from the first level, some injured and others not. The explosion, however, was reported to be in a dip section of the second level.

Declared Lost

It is not known how far into the deep mine the blast occurred, but the entire shaft construction at the entrance to the shaft was wrecked.

More than a score of Negro school children was sheltered with bits of flying glass when the windows in their school were shattered, 45 feet from the mine entrance.

All windows in the company store, 1,000 feet from the mine entrance, were broken.

The force of the explosion was heard throughout Welch, one-half mile away.

Several other workers who were working at the mine office at the time were said to be injured by flying glass and stone.

Some Chief of Mines G. H. Spindler said in Charleston that he would have immediately for the mine to be sealed.

Spindler said that he received an early report from Mine Inspector E. L. Chaffin that the explosion was "very violent."

Chaffin estimated that 275 to 300 men were at first believed to be in the shaft.

The delegates were said to favor a trusteeship plan for the Pacific islands, but a special adviser, Gen. George C. Kenney, argued that the United States should retain its islands.

Delegates of U.S. Split on Pacific Isles

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Official sources disclosed today that American civilian and military officials at the United Nations general assembly were split over whether American conquered Japanese islands should be placed under UNO sovereignty.

While the American delegation sought solution to this question, it was disclosed that the newly-elected security council, confronted with the twin tasks of controlling atomic energy and preventing another world war, had been summoned to hold its first meeting Thursday.

Indications were that U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Soviet Vice Premier of Foreign Affairs Andrei Vishinsky would speak at the opening session, which will be devoted primarily to organization.

Two hundred thousand electrical workers in 16 states from Massachusetts to California struck today three companies which produce the major part of the nation's home and industrial electrical appliances.

Albert J. Fitzgerald, international president of the CIO United Electrical Workers, announced that the walkout in CIO United Auto Workers and General Motors was "100 per cent effective, according to all bulletins received at the U. E. W. headquarters."

Fitzgerald said 57,000 women and 25,000 salaried and white collar workers were among those who left their jobs. He said that the largest number of women to strike in recent years. Women and white collar workers will be represented in picket lines, he said.

The strikes, involving demands for higher wages, was the largest single one in effect since before the war.

Earlier the largest work stoppage against an industry was against General Motors, involving 175,000 CIO United Auto Workers, in a strike last Nov. 21 in support of demands for a 30 per cent wage increase.

Steel Strike Delayed

The electrical workers' walkout could cause a delay in the steel work stoppage by 80,000 CIO steelworkers, which has been delayed one month.

Another major walkout by some 32,000 packhouse workers is for Tuesday.

The walkout by the electrical workers, who had demanded wage increases of $2 a day, began despite last minute efforts by federal conciliators to avert it.

Government conciliators, headed by Edgar L. Warren, chief of the conciliation and mediation division, made efforts in Chicago to avert the steelworkers' strike.

Council Asks Hunt Houses For Vets Use

Continuing their efforts to relieve the acute housing shortage in Twin Falls, city commissioners Monday night announced that application for the use of vacant houses and surplus property from the hunt camp.

They took their action last Tuesday at a special meeting after conferring with officials of the American Legion, Chamber of Commerce and Twin Falls housing authority.

Announcement of the action was held until commissioners were certain that the application had been approved by the housing authority in Seattle.

If the application is approved the houses are to be moved to Twin Falls and placed on the Washington county list.

Veterans and members of their families will be eligible for renting these houses. Applications are now being accepted by W. N. Terry, county engineer at the city hall.

Airplanes Aid Unification of China Parties

By JAMES D. WHITE
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15 (AP)—Little has been said about it, but one of the strongest influences toward unity in China is the airplane.

The way it has worked out, the transport plane probably has had more to do with pulling China together than either the bomber or fighter.

As the Chinese communists have no airforce, Chiang Kai-shek this way, a monopoly of Chinese airpower, both real and potential.

It is estimated that the communists, since Japan surrendered, voted to defer to American public opinion which presumably would not sanction the use of American-built planes against other Chinese.

By withholding his combat aircraft, Chiang enabled the communists to look back and delay his troops as they tried to recapture Japanese-held areas.

But this attack was compensated for by the use of troop transport planes which carried the communists to such key north China cities as Peiping and Tientsin and more recently to Mukden and Changchun in Manchuria.

This ability to get down town in the rear of opposing armies probably was more decisive than any amount of bombing and strafing which Chiang's airforce could have done with combat planes.

Thinking flashlight and the spotlight of the crowd car, officers searched the area. The investigation was closed. The report came from police headquarters stated, "Just a couple of cats."

Mars Appears At Brightest In Two Years

By J. HUGH PRUITT
Astonomer, Extension Division, Oregon Higher Education State

Mars, variously referred to as the red planet and the god of war, is now more visible than at any time since late 1943. Wherever you look, it is there.

At dusk and dawn, it is seen as a bright, copper-colored disk in the morning sky appears in the constellation.

Mars may be located without the least difficulty. As soon as the evening sky is fairly well darkened, look a little above the horizon.

TUCKER

NEW YORK—When Henry Morgenthau is asked a "perfectly open" question about the trip between Washington and his home in Dutchess county, near the Roosevelt estate, during the war, he told the truth, technically, that the trip was not told about until the other day and Henry certainly would not consent that the news was ever announced. The press at any time. Washington Post Moreover, during the absence of the war was not forbidden to reveal the movement of service planes and so, although information which he surely knows had been actually received by the people, the censorship did it for him.

Not at all believe that Mr. Morgenthau was straightforward in the version of the rest of the day. He says he really doesn't know how many cars, trips he made in his two planes and when I asked him, he said he could not give me an estimate of twenty he couldn't say. I don't believe Henry's answers and answers on the income tax department would have given a man with the authority if he had actually answered a comparable question.

The way I heard it is that Henry Morgenthau, Jr. and his wife, and whereas he says "I got lost my mother, which was a Lockheed better ship in all respects, my informant says Henry went to his friends, chief and patron, President Roosevelt, and asked him for the Lockheed.

As to dates I have to tell you for the time being except for the fact that he got the new ship in 1939, but I can tell you that the Lockheed was built between 20 and 30 million of gasoline an hour while cruising at 90 per cent of her engine power. The fact Henry flew I don't know, but to be quite fair I will give my previous estimate that he had 30 million on each of these little log-homes and, leaving the amount that might have been used to make up the engine, estimate that he burned 75 gallons each way and 30 gallons per trip at a time when the rest of us were drawing gas and one-half gallons of low-grade motor fuel a week. The Lockheed was an "executive" ship with two seats facing a work table, and a pilot, mechanic and radio man. It could carry eight passengers and took about an hour each way.

I do not single out Henry Morgenthau as a prince of privilege in an administration which patronized the free American citizen-taxpayer and called him "the common man" in a term which always has suggested to me that those who use it regard him as an incompetent and themselves as very uncommon and superior men. He was just one of many, as a clique, they made it very hard or impossible for reporters to learn the truth about their privileges.

For example, the wife of a naval officer at Key West once wrote me that Harold Hicks and Henry Hopkins had shown up there as passengers on one of our coast guard cutters, which are not sub-chasers or picket-boats but big ships with luxurious quarters for some. She said the skipper had related that Henry Morgenthau, who commanded the coast guard in peace time, had told him to take them on a vacation cruise and let them fish every hole from Jacksonville to Key West. I asked Henry about that at the time and asked permission to examine the log but he put me off. Although he didn't deny what I had heard.

Another rumor was that a big yacht which had been commandeered for the navy was turned over to Henry Hopkins for his honeymoon. This one came from several directions and the story ran that the owner of the ship was dumped ashore with the explanation that his boat was urgently needed for the war. When he heard what she was being used for he was going to be very angry but absolved when it was pointed out that he was receiving a lot of war business. Now, as I say, that couldn't be verified or printed if it had been verified because this rumor has been "restricted" information under the censorship but I can say that the P. B. I. thought the rumor so important that it sent a man all the way from Washington to Connecticut by automobile to ask me if I had heard it. He said they were checking "subversive" rumors. I told him I had but that another reporter who had made an investigation had satisfied himself that it was not so. I said I don't know but I wouldn't put it past such people and I couldn't tell the uncertainty why this should be so excited about the report. It didn't seem "subversive" to me.

Morgenthau used a government air field of the Civil Aeronautics board, situated by the way at a place called New Hackensack which is not in New Jersey, as the name might suggest, but on the east side of the Hudson near his home and the Roosevelt barony. After the shooting stopped it was abandoned and only a small detail was left to serve as watchmen and private planes were forbidden to land. This was that Mrs. Wendell Willkie, Sen. Pryor, a former member of the Republican national committee, and John Hanes, a former assistant secretary of the treasury. Mr. Morgenthau, who were arrested a few months ago when Pryor put down his ship in which they were taken to Massachusetts for a funeral. Hanes as paid his way to the ship when Pryor dropped down to find him and when they came back the car had been towed away and impounded.

SHOWDOWN—Management, poor-farighted members are ready to settle on this basis. But their constant efforts to reach an agreement that will open the way to large-scale production of automobile, homebuilding, materials, machinery and consumer goods. Everything from a car to a carper, have been thwarted by a few powerful interests in the hierarchy of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers, who by the automobile chiefs as the most influential force in opposing any compromise with the public.

SIDE GLANCES

By GALBRAITH

A few industrialists have said quite frankly in Washington and elsewhere they are the ones President Truman had in mind when he referred to "the fat cats" that they feel the hour has come for a showdown over the growing power and demands of the CIO, which has inspired most of the current and prospective strikes.

ENCOURAGED—The bitter-ness among the manufacturers have been encouraged by the failure of the public to respond to President Truman's plea that the "fat cats" leave "the heat on control" in behalf of the labor legislation.

Their industry in Washington have checked with the four house-keeping committees which the executive specifically requested of "stalling" on his recommendations, and they report correctly that the mail has been heavier than usual.

Naturally, they think that the people and the politicians are in sympathy with their belligerent attitude. They anticipate a "white-hot" rebellion and resentment against labor's worse demands. The Detroit group, in particular, is divided and reluctant by the fact that Mr. Frankenstein, vice-president of the United Automobile Workers of America, was badly defeated by a conservative combine when he ran as Murray-Hillman-Hannan candidate for mayor of that city last fall.

JOHNSTON—The liberal-conservative struggle within the manufacturing group, which has been around the question of electing Eric A. Johnston for a fifth term as president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Other factors center this issue. But the outcome will throw a bright light on industry's attitude toward the labor-management struggle which now perplexes the White House and many other houses throughout the nation.

Mr. Johnston, a manufacturer of electrical equipment, has been the most radical head of the C. of C. ever heard. He has visited and preached in Russia. He recently announced a profit-sharing plan for his employees, and the FBI has the labor-management conference recently held there, against the advice of the Detroit automobile interests. They feared that it would provide a mirror for the workers to share management's responsibilities.

HOLLYWOOD—The Johnstone headline had Hollywood to select the C. of C. president as a successor to Movie City Will Hays. He will get $100,000 a year salary and a $50,000 entertainment fund for his wife. He has done it by his private business at public expense. And it seems that this free transportation so does every member of congress and you could say the same as to every elected legislator in the government service in Washington.

Worried Over Bills? — Look What He Pays

By ARTHUR LOSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—If you think you have bill trouble around the first of the month, consider Lindsay C. Warren, U. S. comptroller general.

Last year 447,649 claims poured in from people who figure Uncle Sam owes them money.

But that's just part of his worries. As head of the general accounting office, he keeps tabs on everything spent by the government.

Business Booms
In 1937, cancelled government checks mailed by this office were around 14,000,000,000. Ten years later they had mushroomed to 312,000,000,000. Last year the U. S. spent about $24,000,000,000.

In this all adding machine in the house? Warren told a reporter today the general accounting office chief chose to see that the money is spent the way Congress wants it spent.

Last Saturday
"We're the last great bulwark for the people of this nation," said Warren, drawing a deep breath, "against unbridled and illegal expenditures of the public substance." In short, he and his men are policemen on a national level.

Every check written by any government department is sent to the general accounting office after it's cashed.

And just how are you on idea of what this means? 446,000,000 cashed checks hurried back to the office for auditing and clearing last year.

Check's Bill
Now about the bills presented to Uncle Sam.

Most of them are routine. But on the other hand—

A man wandered in the other day, asking what about paying for that staff crumpled sold to General Sherman on his march through Japan?

The agency is checking to see if any record was made of this Civil war sale. If it finds the claim real, it will be paid.

Then there was the bid from a man who claimed he had averted a collision between the earth and a comet. He figured that, considering the magnitude of his performance, he was setting in jeopardy—cheap. He would settle for $100,000. He didn't get the money.
