

Radio-Rigged Train Tested In Utah Trial

By MURRAY N. MOER
PROVO, Utah, Feb. 6 (U.P.)—The latest word in radioing is the radio-equipped freight train—the train that not only whistles at the crossings but also talks.

The Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad is the first line in the nation to get beyond the experimental stage and put a radio-rigged freight into regular service. Engine 34—with microphone and its gear-filled caboose that has been present Monday night between Salt Lake City and Provo.

Two radios
Riding in the cab with Engineer Bill Smith and assistant Division Superintendent Bill Horner, this correspondent tried out the experiment—and found it worked with an almost unreal clarity.

Actually, there are two radios on this fancy D and RG train. One is a VHF—very high frequency—set used for communication between the cab and caboose. The other is a low-frequency induction rig that broadcasts from the caboose to the pole lines along the tracks for communication with way stations.

Trainmen Talk
Here's the way the radio worked in one case.
Caboose to engine: "This is the conductor calling. A troop train is about 10 miles ahead of us coming our way. Get ready to pull into the American Fork siding."

Engine to caboose: "This is the engineer. Okay. Incidentally, the head-end brakeman says he can only see a few car-lengths back because of the snow. You'd better keep a sharp lookout for hoboes back there."

Caboose to engine: "Okay. Will do."

No Statist
From the engine, we could talk to the caboose at all times. The VHF radio is frequency modulated so there was no static at all. The D and RG Radio Engineer Ed McCreary, who has been experimenting with this train radio for five years now, explains that radio can save "hours" on freight runs.

Without radio, the crew has to depend strictly on hand and whistle signals," he said. "Our line is mostly through the mountains—and you can't see the hand signals—end-to-end most of the time."

Formerly, when trouble—such as a hot-box—developed, the conductor had to stop the train, walk up to the cab—sometimes a mile away—and find out what was wrong. Then he'd have to walk to a way-side phone, sometimes a long way off, to report it. Now he can do everything without leaving the caboose. It's a lot safer this way, too.

KTFI Announcer Resigns Position

Announcer Ray B. Streeter resigned Monday from the KTFI staff. Another announcer, Cecil 122-4, dies; leaves the station Feb. 6 for the army. Florence M. Gardner, station manager, said yesterday.

Streeter left Monday for his Madison, Wis. home because he could not locate here. Mrs. Gardner said. She, who has enlisted in the army, departs Feb. 12 for Ft. Douglas.

Catcher Coming Who'll 'Make Fans Forget Kuper,' Scout Says

"I'm getting you a catcher that will make you forget Earl Kuper," Yankee scout Joe Devine informed Maury Duer, president of the Twin Falls Cowboys by telephone. The Pioneer league club presy had mentioned the fact that he had received no reply to the offer: that he had made the former Cowboy.

"I wouldn't worry to much about Kuper as you will not need him," said Devine.

The scout reported that the catcher the Yankees would send here was a heavy hitter and excellent fielding pitcher that a year in the Pioneer league would give him.

"You don't mean that you are sending me another Lombardi?" inquired Duer.

Maury Duer, who once played in the old Utah-Idaho league was long on waiting but lacked the abilities as a receiver that he later showed in the majors.

"Maybe," returned Devine. And now Duer is hoping that the scout is right, for if there is anything that the Cowboy fan, like it is a mighty warrior.

MAJOR LEAGUE

Corby Carlson, Twin Falls' most all-around of all-around athletes, had a big total in the palm of his good left hand last night in the Major League but slipped.

Carlson started with 212 and 222 but fell to 161 in his last game. O. Colman opened with 236 but could total only 552.

Designer Has Single Piece Business Suit

By EDWARD ELLIS
CHICAGO, Feb. 6 (AP)—Jack Dent sleeps eight minutes longer every morning because he has designed a one-piece suit for himself.

He hops into his neat business suit in less time than it takes to say "Jack Dent." And that's pretty fast.

When he was a tailor, working near the mountains of Ohio, Dent, 22, found some fatigues just what he needed. At the end of two days his shirttail was out, the trousers rumpled, crumpled and soiled.

Dent, dressed with a perfect ship, laid out a design for a one-piece suit that would solve the problem of rumpled shirttail. He sent it to his Chicago sister, Mrs. Betty Voss, together with all his measurements.

When Dent came home he found the material the new day, and on the third day Mrs. Voss had him looking like a refined gentleman. The new outfit had a heavy weave and a button fastener. It zipped up to the waist and stayed there. The neck is cut in V-shape and the back is a single, one-piece material. It fits like a glove, a deep pleat down the back gives him ample room.

But the one-piece suit was not for the idea, Jack and Betty Voss also thought it was really going to wear that but in public, are you?

Films on Disease Shown to Pupils

Two films, "Water, Friend or Enemy?" and "The History of the Rocky Mountain Ticks," were shown Monday at an assembly of the Twin Falls Junior High school.

The first film, "Water, Friend or Enemy?" is a well-documented, colorful educational film and deals with the contamination of water, the life history and methods of eliminating it. It shows travel far and quickly through the underground laws of water. To prevent disease and to be certain that water is safe it should be treated regularly by the health board. If the water is unsafe the health department will give the water as to how the well can be corrected.

"The History of the Rocky Mountain Ticks" was a technical film showing the life history of the different stages of a tick. The male adult has a dark brown and the female a reddish-brown. The female ticks lay 5,000 to 10,000 eggs which take two years before developing into a full grown insect. Only a few thousand of these larvae become adults, the others dying of starvation, exposure to the elements, and accidents. The film showed many beautiful scenes of the wildlife and forests of the Idaho and Montana mountains.

In order to combat the disease Rocky Mountain spotted fever, health officials urge that Idaho Valley residents take the preventive tick shots that are given at the county health board. These shots are given free. All ticks are not infected.

Army Plane Goes Back on Feb. 13th

A PT-17 allotted to the local CAP squadron will be used here until Feb. 13 at which time it will be flown back to the Boise state CAP headquarters. Adjutant Mary Harris announced Tuesday.

Previously the ship was to have been returned Feb. 5, she said. Adjutant Dan Rogers, then CAP member, will probably pilot the plane to Boise. The PT-17 is loaned by the army to the state group which in turn permits squadrants to use the ship.
