

U. S. Readies Bacteria for Future Wars

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—Gen. Alden H. Wright said today the United States has succeeded in producing "perhaps the most highly toxic substance known" but that the poison exists now only in test tube quantity.

Wright, chief of the army's chemical corps, issued a statement on the new poison as more or less cryptic hints of terrifying new weapons came from two other directions.

Tucked in Letter

One was tucked away in Secretary Wallace's controversial foreign policy letter to President Truman — a passing but significant reference to radioactive poison gas.

Another was contained in a radio address by editor-scientist Dr. Gerald Wendt, who spoke of a "super-deadly" poison so potent a single ounce could kill every person in the United States and Canada.

Wright, who said the bacterial toxin came out of wartime research, frankly acknowledged that his experts have worked with toxic agents that have "power far, very far beyond anything we had known in previous chemical warfare research."

In his statement, Wright said the poison at this stage is in the "nature of a scientific curiosity." The statement added the general had no comment as to its "practicality for use as an agent of chemical warfare."

Question Raised

Speaking informally he raised a question of how it could be dispersed for such mass killing as suggested by Dr. Wendt.

Discussing the philosophy of using or attempting to control new weapons, Wright said:

"I believe that it is futile and time wasting to attempt to regulate and control weapons. Our efforts should be directed toward eliminating war by statelessness and the application of political philosophy and the development of understanding and trust between the peoples of the world. Until these efforts are achieved it behooves America to continue to lead the world in research and development of means to maintain our national defense. A strong research and development program is our best guarantee of peace."

FSA Loans Repaid Fast By Idahoans

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—Idaho farm operators have a good credit rating with the farm security administration.

Not only have those who borrowed from FSA repaid their loans in good style, but they are farming larger acreages, have more land in crops and have built up much more working capital than before they obtained FSA assistance.

From the beginning of the program, through June, 1946, Idaho farmers have borrowed $17,700,314 in rehabilitation funds and had paid back $12,971,206 in principal, plus $1,669,693 in interest.

A recent survey disclosed that 25 per cent of Idaho's farmers have received FSA loans since 1935. More than 10,000 farmers obtained operating credit, and 40-year loans to buy farms were approved for 131.

The 22 active borrowers for farm purchases are making a good record. By March 31, closing date for payments from 1945 income, these borrowers, who were following the variable-payment plan, had paid 110 per cent more on their loans than the amount required to keep them current on the basis of 40 equal annual payments. Thus they had a considerable margin of safety for protection in case of unfavorable agricultural years in the future.

19 End Payments

The total amount loaned to Idaho farmers to buy farms was $1,206,036 as of June 30, 1946. Principal and interest collections were $542,275. Nineteen borrowers had paid off in full, many years before final payments on their farms were due. The agency had made 21 farm ownership loans totaling $308,563 to World War II veterans. There have been 604 applications for such loans and a spokesman for the agency said more would have been filled except for the difficulty of finding family sized farms that could be bought at a price in line with their value.

Operating credit has been extended to 397 veterans in Idaho for a total of $707,690.

Three Types Of Lab Tests Fight Cancer

(Second in Series)
By PAUL F. ELLIS
NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Diagnosis of cancer in some cases can be made within five to 10 minutes, and in others usually no more than 24 hours.

The laboratory test, called in medical terms a biopsy, is one of the most important functions of the preventive clinic of a cancer center. It is given to patients who have a lump, a swelling, or a sore, or an additional in such cases to a thorough physical examination.

The biopsy now is generally recognized for its reliability. There are three types of biopsy.

One is the test of aspiration, pioneered by Memorial cancer hospital here when a small amount of secretion from a suspicious growth is extracted by needle and placed on a microscopic slide. Results of this can be determined within 15 minutes—whether the growth is benign or malignant.

By using the aspiration test, there is less chance of causing a cancerous condition from spreading to the blood stream.

Type two is the frozen section test, in which the growth is quickly frozen on the operating table for the removal of a tumor. The surgeon may discover suspicious tissue. A section is sent to the laboratory where it is quickly frozen by carbon dioxide, sliced into thin strips and examined. Within five to 10 minutes while the patient sits in the operating room, the surgeon knows whether he is operating for a malignant or benign tumor.

Type three is a surgical biopsy. This is given when a patient enters the center with a surface lesion. A small section of the tissue is clipped out and sent to the laboratory. Through chemical treatment, the results are known within 24 hours.

In a patient definitely classified as positive, the report is usually sent to his personal physician who then advises the patient where to take treatment.

The type of treatment varies; surgery is done whenever possible. X-ray, radium or radon treatments are used when the cancerous growth may be in some part of the body not safely accessible by surgery.

Princess Renews Friendship With Bronco Rider at Jerome

JEROME, Sept. 20.—Renewing a friendship started 18 years ago in Indianapolis, when all persons involved were there at a round-up, Princess Redfeather and her husband, A. O. Peterson, Phoenix, Ariz., have been visiting at the Jesse Coats home here.

It all started when Coats, who was a world famous bronco rider, was riding in the rodeo in which the princess had gone to see her nephew. While there the Coats' eldest son became seriously ill and the princess took Mrs. Coats and the boy to her home, keeping them for two months until the child was recovered.

Princess Redfeather is in charge of a museum at Phoenix, Ariz., and is collecting articles belonging to famous rodeo riders. While here she has saved her pair of spurs to be placed in the museum.

Coats has ridden in London before the King and Queen; Victoria, Canada, Madison Square garden and Pendleton round-up. He twice won the Wadsworth-Astoria Challenge trophy for world championship bronco buster at the Bozeman round-up.

Tuesday Tour To View 40 Weed Plots

A tour of weed plots with comments on the effectiveness of different herbicides issued from a portable loud-speaker is scheduled to get underway at 10 a. m. Tuesday for the benefit of interested farmers.

Upwards of 40 weed plots, according to Grimes, will be visited on this field day, when both he and Erickson will point out to the farmers the efficiency of 2-4-D, sodium chlorate, carbon bisulphide and planned cultivation in combating such noxious plants as morning-glory, knapweed, Canada thistle, and ground-cherry. Some of the fields visited will be those which Erickson treated this summer, others will be plots which Erickson has been working on ever since last fall with 2-4-D in varied concentrations.

Erickson will arrive Monday to accompany Grimes and Smith over the proposed route.

Burns Yearns For Location To Moonstead

By ARTHUR EDSON
WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (AP)—Punishment Bob Burns told the government today he yearns to be a moonsteader.
Furthermore, he said in a letter to Fred W. Johnson, acting director of the land management bureau, he has a peachy moon spot all picked out.
"I would prefer," he wrote (it was just a coincidence, probably, that a press agent was peering over his shoulder while he was writing) "to receive a location on the shores of waterless Mare Crisium."
Burns said a scientist friend had assured him that Mare Crisium would make a splendid artificial lake.
If these lakefront sites are gone, Burns said, he would like to settle for a similar spot on Mare Nectaris.
Or, if that fails, "I'm willing to gain a tract in Copernicus, one of the mountain-ringed plains."
Johnson said in an interview that Bob is a little hasty. The government isn't going its slowpoke, early way, quipping the applications of all moon-eyed homesteaders.
As long as a year ago, the U.S. Rocket society asked for homestead rights, but Johnson said this is the first time anyone has got down to business and picked a location to stake a claim.
Word of Caution
In case other mooncrust individuals dream of a lakefront cottage, here's a word of caution from Dr. Charles Abbot of the Smithsonian Institution. Dr. Abbot, one of the solar system's leading authorities on the solar system, told a reporter that, sure, the word "mare" means sea.
But the place names, Mare Crisium and Mare Nectaris, are supplied by the first astronauts to peer at the moon. They thought they saw oceans.
"But they were wrong," said Dr. Abbot. "There's no atmosphere on the moon, so there's no water. Not a drop."
So if Burns wants to fill that artificial lake, he'll have to tote water quite a piece.
The nearest waterhole is here on earth, 240,000 miles away.

Defendant Upheld In Suit Over $60

Judge ruled in favor of the defendant, Rube Earl, and against the plaintiff, Herman Petroski, in a civil suit by J. O. Pomphrey, justice of the peace.
Petroski had claimed a $60 check had been returned marked "refused payment." In the answer, Earl alleged the plaintiff knew the check concerned a gambling debt.
Costs of the suit will be shared equally by Petroski and Earl, it was ruled.

Salaried Cat Dies but Son Assumes Post

BAYONNE, N. J., Sept. 20 (AP)—Minnie Esso, the salaried cat with a penchant for mice, is dead—but the youngest of Minnie's 100 offspring has inherited her $440-a-month job with the Standard Development company.

Tiger-striped Minnie, whose dubious ancestry placed her in the lower strata of feline nobility, died in 1933 when Frank Hatch, head janitor of the Standard in competition-laboratory, hired her to commit mayhem among the mice which were nibbling at laboratory records and charts.

Several years ago Minnie gained national fame when an auditor, going over laboratory accounts, found a recurring monthly expense charged to "catnip." It was the cost of her milk and salmon and the story of the cat on Standard Oil's payroll was picked up by the newspapers.

Photographers stalked her and reporters "interviewed" her. The president of Standard Oil asked Hatch what provisions and benefits were paid Minnie under the company annuity plan and other employee benefits.

An insurance company suggested a retirement policy and she got even better letters of commendation. Minnie died infatigable the other day of old age, after serving 13 years except for a six-month vacation cruise on a tanker.

Coal-black Tumble Esso, her heir apparent, 10-month-old, is taking over. He gets the benefit of a $120-a-month raise given Minnie recently "to meet higher living costs."

End of World Due Oct. 17, Pastor Claims

PASADENA, Calif., Sept. 20 (AP)—The Rev. Charles G. Long, crossed up on his doomsday prophecy last year, rechecked his figures today and announced that an atomic explosion would end the world Oct. 17.

Long, leader of the Remnant Church of God, originally set the end of the world for Sept. 21, 1945. On Sept. 22, 1945, he said there must have been some mistake.

He went over his parables, mathematical equations, time zones and biblical calendars and concluded that Oct. 17 was the scriptural deadline for the Lord to dissolve the earth by ordering all the atoms to separate.

"This was the day appointed for the end of the world," the 72-year-old prophet told his faithful flock of 60. "This it was prophesied and that shall be, unless there is further tarrying."

The south Atlantic island of Tristan da Cunha was discovered in 1506 by the Portuguese navigator Tristao da Cunha.
