President Orders Purge of Loyal Federal Workers

Richfield Man Dies Over Bet

Manager of Store Fires Clerk

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—President Truman tonight ordered a purge of all government employees who there are reasonable grounds to doubt their loyalty and set up executive order standards to test it.

His sweeping order directed a “loyalty investigation” of everyone who applies for a job in the executive departments and agencies, without exception, where now only questionable applicants are tested.

And it instructed the names of all federal bureau of investigation check wherever they have not already been done.

The attorney general is ordered to make a list, and keep it up to date, of all subversive organizations. A person's membership in or sympathy with any of them will be grounds for stamping him disloyal.

This blacklist is to include all “totalitarian, fascist, communist, or subversive” groups, all that advocate or approve force to deny persons their constitutional rights, and all that advocate the form of government by unconstitutional means.

Moreover, a “central master list” was ordered set up of all persons whose loyalty has been investigated since Sept. 1, 1939. It may be referred to by all government agencies.

“Not a Witch Hunt”

A White House official said that “this will not be a witch hunt—it can't imagine that any great number of firms will be run out of business.”

“It does not apply to the judicial or legislative branches of the government, he emphasized, nor to the military or naval security forces of the armed forces.”

Supplemental appropriations for the civil service commission and FBI probably will be asked. They may amount to $15,000,000 to $20,000,000.

“Loyalty Boards” Directed

The establishment of one or more “loyalty boards” in each department or agency was directed to set up in the civil service commission.

Accused employees may summon witnesses and counsel at each step of the procedure.

The chief executive directed that the agencies, in their check-ups, may call on the FBI for assistance.

Plan to Slash Budget, Taxes Is Deadlocked

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—A Senate attempt by Republican leaders to end the current differences over slashing government taxes, reducing taxes and making payments on debt, failed tonight.

Although Senator Bridges, R., N. H., and other Republicans said they would support a one-hour session of the fiscal conference committee, which would be held tonight, they produced only further deadlock.

Charges that the highly controversial sales of unstamped whiskey by the Twin Falls liquor store Feb. 27 were a “frame-up” came as a new development over the week-end, with the Twin Falls county Republican central committee and the sheriff's office agreeing that the sales were a “frame-up.”

Coming with this development was the announcement that Robert Bandy, clerk at the liquor store, had been dismissed by C. R. Shipman, manager. This action was taken on the recommendation of the Republican county central committee.

After the committee's meeting Friday night, Clyde Musgrave of Filer, chairman, wired the following committee resolution, unanimously adopted, to Gov. C. A. Robins at Boise:

“We request that no action be taken on liquor store management change until after trials and pending and then only on recommendation of central committee. We request that you send personal investigator to Twin Falls to study this case.”

According to Musgrave, the committee re-endorsed Shipman as manager of the liquor store when “it became apparent that an effort was being made to blame him for the sale of liquor not properly stamped, when in reality the sales at issue were nothing more than a deliberate frame-up.”

“It was also on the county central committee's suggestion that Bandy was discharged,” said Musgrave.

“When we learned that Bandy was to give the prearranged signal for the unstamped liquor to go on sale by walking out of the door when Shipman returned from depositing the previous day's funds, we recommended that Bandy be ousted immediately.”

“In hearing out the Republican county central committee's contention that the liquor sales in question were the result of a scheme for an ulterior purpose, Claude P. Wiley, chief deputy of the sheriff's department, announced developments immediately preceding and following the sales.”

“Sometime before these sales were staged,” said Wiley, Dale Williams, manager of the far gambling casino, told the committee that he had given the signal for the unstamped liquor to go on sale by walking out of the door when Shipman returned from depositing the previous day's funds, we recommended that Bandy be ousted immediately.”

Russia Wants

Weimar Plan

German State

Moscow, March 22 (AP)—Russia

proposed to the council of foreign ministers tonight that the future German government be based on the Weimar republic which Adolf Hitler used to climb to power and then destroyed.

Secretary of State George C. Marshall, expressing the opinion that the Russian view was not as far from the truth as the German view, declared that the Soviet proposals would be regarded in America as suggesting a federal form of government as the term is understood by Americans.

In general, both the United States and Britain support the idea of a federalized Germany, while France is for a loose and decentralized regime. The Russian proposals were subjected to an immediate attack by Americans.

The long-awaited Soviet proposal for Germany, which was made public for the first time by Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, included a two-chamber parliament elected by proportional representation through a list voting system.

Seen...

Forget-me-nots made by disabled veterans blooming from Dec. Sergeant Lee McCracken's badge, Gus Keeler's label and from woman's hat. Well-preserved maple leaf preserved between pages of county commissioners' minutes for 1909 at courthouse. Small folk in LeBlond Larson's yard on Lincoln street stargazing with Irish setter and her puppies as chief attraction, admission one cent per peek at pups, one cent per peek at mother, two cents per peek at pups and mother.

Cost stuffed into broken window of car to stop breeze. Elderly fellow sitting carefully on bench at park, with feet cocked up on adjoining bench. Unflattering description on back of wanted woman's photograph at police station: "Age 30—looks 40." Fellow striding along street carrying new garden spade. Barney Clavin running out of store to put nickel in meter. Max Lloyd looking breath of spring in tan and white shoes. Bill Nitschke washing off sidewalk in front of store with hose. Just seen Mrs. E. LeRoy, Harold Kleinkopf, Truman A. Greenhalgh driving pick-up truck, H. G. Lauterbach, Patsy Kall, J. W. Humphrey, Mrs. Joe Estelin, Frank Tiedel and John E. Hayes. And overheard, "Well, here it is the second day of spring and another day of asking is gone."

Agency Probe Of Gas Price Boost Started

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—Motorists' complaints over widespread boosts in gasoline prices the past two weeks have started an inquiry by the justice department's anti-trust division.

The department said it has received many complaints about the increases which, reports from representative cities show, range generally from a half-cent to a cent and a half a gallon. In some areas the advances were the second in recent weeks.

Officials studying situation Douglas W. McGregor, acting attorney general, told reporters: "We are studying the situation and have been doing so for some time through the anti-trust division."

Two governors, Man C. Wallgren of Washington and Earl Warren of California, joined in criticizing the increases and in asking an FBI investigation.

Crude Oil Prices Up In New York the Standard Oil company (N.Y.), which announced increases of 3 of a cent a gallon for gasoline and 7 of a cent for kerosene, effective immediately, attributed the action to a recent advance in crude oil prices.

Columbus, O., reported that Standard and other oil companies there had boosted gasoline rates 1 1/2 cents a gallon 10 days ago. Motor fuel prices went up a cent a gallon in recent days in Washington, Baltimore, Roanoke, Va., Memphis, New Mexico, Salt Lake City and Oklahoma City. Pittsburgh and Philadelphia reported advances of a half cent to one cent a gallon.

SIGNS OF LIFE!

Twin Falls, like a good many cities the country over, has been needing a shot in the arm.

During the war, with all its restrictions, there was a natural tendency toward curtailment of everything, excepting those things having a direct bearing on the war effort.

Traveling went into a slump, business carried on as best it could with reverse English and civic activities generally hit an all-time low.

Throughout those wartime years plans were made for "that great post-war period." Chambers of Commerce made all kinds of surveys, designed to provide homes and employment for returning service men. Post-war planning boards spent hundreds of hours on various schemes for the promotion of business and industry. Municipal governments likewise got themselves in position for immediate take-off on energetic programs for civic improvement the minute the go-ahead sign flashed green.

But now that the war is over many of these things have failed to get underway as automatically as it was hoped when the plans were being made. Our wartime lethargy had gotten us into a sort of rut. It seemed to take too much effort to get back into high gear. So to a certain degree, at least, we just rocked along instead of springing into action.

In view of all this, it was gratifying to witness the spirit that once more began to show itself at this week's meeting of the Merchants' bureau of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce.

In rapid order it was decided to have a three-day holiday over the Fourth of July, a bang-up celebration for the opening day of the Cowboy baseball season, and, most likely a special event in May, featuring window displays of all merchandise having to do with outdoor activities, including an elaborate fashion show of sportswear.

At last, it would seem, our big, post-war sigh is over, and we're starting once more to go to town!

LET'S GET OUT A VOTE

It is probably to the credit of Col. H. G. Lauterbach, I. E. (Bill) Nitzsche and H. R. Grant that no one is running against them in the city election, Tuesday, April 1st.

Evidently they are recognized as capable men for the offices they seek, without any serious opposition. Otherwise opposing candidates would have entered the race.

It is true that Twin Falls is fortunate in having such outstanding men assured of election, but there is one disadvantage in having no contests. Without any opposition it usually follows that the people show little interest in any election, and that lack of interest gives the newly elected officials little encouragement for the work they are about to undertake in their community.

With the many public improvements Twin Falls is about to tackle and the numerous responsibilities that will face the new administration, it should be apparent to everyone that great faith will be placed in these three men.

To demonstrate that faith, the least the people of Twin Falls can do is to turn out a vote sufficient to appear appreciative—to represent a fair measure of support. That will mean a lot to these unopposed candidates who could not help being disappointed if only a handful of voters showed enough interest to cast their ballots.

The Times-News would like to suggest to the service clubs and all other organizations that they put forth a special effort to get out at least a fairly representative vote in the city election, just to show these men that the civic organizations of Twin Falls are with them—ready to co-operate.

GUESTS—NOT CUSTOMERS

The Times-News has contended all along that liquor convictions are cases just can't take our laws seriously.

We saw that demonstrated in Twin Falls not so long ago when several cases folded up with no more chance of convictions than a snowball has in a hot sun.

Now a shining example of this general disregard for liquor laws turns up in Burley. The lessee and the bartender of one of Burley's "social" clubs were found not guilty of selling liquor illegally to three state law enforcement officers. The jury's verdict was unanimous.

That decision, apparently, was reached as a result of the defense attorney's argument that the state law enforcement officers were guests—not customers—of the club, and that as guests they were served drinks out of the bartender's own personal supply. The defense also argued that liquor had not been served to them over the bar.

Very, very touching. And what does that make of the three law enforcement officials? According to the jury's verdict, they were merely guests of the club, just loitering around, sipping up the bartender's free liquor.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

OIL—President Truman's detailed knowledge of America's need for foreign oil reserves was partially responsible for his prompt and firm decision to ask Congress to authorize loans and grants to Turkey and Greece, and make such risk money available to Arab states for similar aid.

The special committee for investigating the national defense, which Mr. Truman headed when he was a member of the senate, made an exhaustive study of this subject. It was pursued by another group presided over by Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming. Reports from the army, navy, state and private industry emphasized the necessity of pursuing a "strong" policy in these regions.

The present chairman of the oil policy committee, Senator Owen Brewster of Me., has frequently questioned the wisdom of this program. He would eventually involve the United States in another world conflict.

It has been offered as an alternative the development of shale as a source of fuel, further exploration of domestic and South American fields and use of the wood which the nation produces. The latter would be their wartime drive toward the very areas in the middle east which are now the prize in the Russo-American struggle. The latter would be their wartime drive toward the very areas in the middle east which are now the prize in the Russo-American struggle.

VITAL!—It is not generally known outside the petroleum trade, but several American firms are now forced to ship oil drilled in the western hemisphere to supply the middle east.

In view of the drain on our total supply during World War II, increasing competition of oil with other fuels, and the increasing use in another conflict, military and diplomatic experts insist we maintain control of this territory because it has the greatest production potential in the world.

Testifying before the Truman and O'Mahoney committees, Charles Rayner, the state department's assistant secretary, explained that the United States government has spearheaded the private industry's movement to obtain concessions abroad. After World War II, the United States had a half billion dollars "cut us in" on the Turkish Petroleum company, now the Iraq Petroleum company.

STAKE!—The British protested and imposed numerous restrictions, but after six years of negotiations, an agreement giving American participants a one-third share in the oil fields was reached. The United States expanded our oil interests with the loans and honors which heaped upon King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia, by refusing to approve any further settlement unsatisfactory to the monarch.

The American firms involved are Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard Oil of California, Socony-Vacuum Oil company (successor to Standard of New York) and the Texas company. Such a deep stake does this country have in this question that oil firms operating in the middle east are permitted to send important messages to their home offices by airmail, and code in their messages to safeguard their trade secrets from rival companies or nations.

RESERVES!—The figures on the world's known oil reserves which Mr. Rayner presented to the Truman and O'Mahoney committees, explained the importance of the middle east sources to the U. S.

Known reserves in the western hemisphere amount to 30 and a half billion barrels, of which about 20 billion barrels are within this country. The middle east has sources totaling 20 billion barrels, although it is believed that unexplored fields will increase this figure vastly. Of this vast reserve, only five billion barrels are under concession to American interests, the balance to the British, Dutch and French.

Russia had a potential of six billion barrels as of 1935, but it is understood that new fields have been brought in; Moscow publishes no statistics on this subject. The Dutch East Indies can provide about 10 billion.

In short, of proved reserves outside our boundaries, we have control or ownership of only 10 billion barrels. The British and Dutch have 12, Russia six, and other interests hold title to slightly more than two billion barrels.

ACTION!—Despite polite depreciation of capital hill talk that we must back off, the military action in event of a crisis. Senator Brewster forced such an admission during questioning of Brig. Gen. H. L. Peckham, his war department petroleum adviser.

"The minute we take a hand in the middle east," queried the man from Maine, "it's not our sole military problem radically transformed, in view both of the distances and of the character of the terrain?"

Yes, replied General Peckham. When the latter said that his immediate testimony did not contemplate military defense of the Arabian area, Senator Brewster remarked:

"You speak of protecting it (the middle east). How are you going to protect it by sending a few diplomats over there and slapping somebody's wrist? Or you could not, but I think our state department should exhaust its efforts before anything else is done."

DEFENSE!—Senator Brewster: "We all agree with that, but we must be very realistic. I mean we know that, while the state department is our first line of defense, it cannot be our sole defense. We have got to get a little more realistic internationally, and if we are going to send diplomats into the middle east to protect our national interests, we have got to be prepared to back that up with force."

General Peckham: "I agree... If we should not use our oil reserves in the middle east, presumably they would then belong to somebody else. If we had to depend on supplies in this country while our enemies had access to the easy volume of oil that obviously are available in the middle east, it would be to our great disadvantage."

IT CAN HAPPEN HERE
That Americans are inclined to be too complacent about the defense strength of our country is an example of our carelessness in that regard.

We are a peaceful nation, wanting nothing in the way of territorial aggrandizement and therefore feel that there is no reason why any other nation should attack us.

We read with mild interest, but no sense of personal concern, of the "iron curtains," the oppression of small nations at the hands of European dictators, the threat of Hitler, and shrug it off with:

"Oh, well, it can't happen here."

Well, let us see whether it can or not.

Ign. Gouzenko, the former Soviet cipher clerk in the Russian embassy in Ottawa, Canada, who disclosed the secret of the atom bomb to the world, states the case clearly and succinctly in an article he wrote for the March issue of Cosmopolitan magazine.

"Most of the Canadians were working as Russian spies held responsible positions such as government departments as the national research council, the department of external affairs, and the office of the high commissioner in Canada for the United Kingdom," Gouzenko states in part.

With such Soviet infiltration into the highest offices of a friendly nation, for the supposed "weakness" that nation's defenses, only the bat-blind can shrug it off with "it can't happen here."

Perhaps the best defense for the United States would be the slogan:

POT SHOTS

PERSISTENT MARKS

The other day Pot Shots reported to you about the big housecleaning operation in the Boy Scout office.

It was told how Wilmore McIntire and Della Delia, the Scout office had marked up the off-colored walls with wall cleaner making it necessary to clean the entire wall surface.

With it seems Bob DeBurr, the field executive, got in on the job too. While the wall was still a little dirty, he did a marking up on show.

The big clean up and all the marks made by Willie and Della were wiped away, but the eraser marks by DeBurr were a little persistent. The new-clean walls at the Scout office in exchange for a picture of a gent with a large tummy and the label "Herb."

"Frame-up" in Liquor Sales Alleged Here

KVMV radio announcer, advising that he had some information that "could make a good story." When the "Times-News" representative arrived at the KVMV studios, Wildman, defendant in the suit against the "Cur Club, Clements, Christie (Chic) Crabtree and Pat Welch, photographer, were already there. But on a desk were three bottles of liquor which Wildman said were purchased from the liquor store about time previous to Two of the bottles were unstamped Canadian Club.

Financed Purchases
Wildman then gave two of those present $5.00 apiece, asking them to buy a bottle of Canadian Club whisky. At the liquor store three others joined the party which had been asked to make the purchases of Canadian Club.

After five bottles of the liquor had been purchased, Welch took pictures of the five purchasers. Clements then opened his package and pointed out to the chairman the lack of a stamp.

The liquor was then taken to the KVMV studio where two more pictures were taken. At that time Wildman requested purchasers of the liquor to leave the bottles unstamped until after his trial, indicating that these bottles might be used as evidence.

"Every attempt was made to make it appear that the local store was not stamping liquor and that Max Shipman was responsible for this negligence," said Republican Chairman Muguere. "When in reality the store had been stamping such liquor under his supervision—such one particular episode being arranged on the side for an obvious purpose. When Shipman said liquor out of a case that had been planted for a special reason, he did not realize he had been double-crossed."

Bean Experiment Plot Subject of Conference Here

Dean C. W. Hunsicker, plant pathologist of the experimental branch of the University of Idaho, Moscow, and Ralph Knight, superintendent of the experiment station at Aberdeen, were here Saturday to confer with local leaders on the project to establish an experimental plot here on improved strains and varieties of beans for Idaho and experimental work on cultural practices. While here, they conferred with Sen. Carl D. Irwin, County Agent Jack Smith and Dean Broadhead, president of the Western Bean Growers' association and manager of the Dean Growers Warehouse association, Inc. The last legislature approved incorporation of $23,500 in the experiment station budget for this project. This experimental plot, when established, will assist in conducting the experimental work on the project east of Buhl which is working on development of bean varieties resistant to curly top.

Board Creates 2 New Weed Areas

In an annual springtime action, Twin Falls county commissioners continued existing weed control districts and created two new districts at their regular meeting Friday. The two new districts are both in the Homan area.

Continued with the same boundaries were eight previously created weed control districts. Also continued was district No. 1, which includes all areas not within other districts.

A large variety of weeds were designated as noxious by the commissioners who grouped them according to the date by which they must be exterminated or controlled to prevent seeding.

The commissioners also signed an agreement with the state for the control of noxious weeds along highways. Under the agreement, the county will furnish labor, equipment and chemicals for highway weed control, in return for which the state will pay the costs up to $1,000.

Crook Offers Eye to Blind Girl, Age 14

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP)—Glória Garrity, 14 and blind, sat in her home in Astoria today and wondered if she would see again through a third eye.

Across Long Island in a dim cell in Brooklyn's Raymond street jail sat Joseph Ross, 28, a scrawny, nervous automobile thief, wondering if the court would let him give Glória Garrity one of his eyes.

"My eyes haven't done me much good," said Ross, who has a long record of juvenile delinquency and felony.

Judge Questions Legality
In his home, Judge Samuel Leibowitz pondered whether the law would permit a person to be blinded deliberately in one eye.

"There is a lot more for a little girl who is 14 to see than for a man inside the walls of a prison," argued Ross.

Glória's mother, Mrs. Lucy Garrity, 38, after a week of trying finally located Ross yesterday at Leibowitz court. Two weeks ago she received a letter from Ross which said he had been blind since his fight against the world of darkness since she lost her sight in an accident when she was five.

He said that she was a talented pianist and had won a scholarship to a Catholic girls' high school despite her blindness. He wanted to help her.

Mother Sees Foe
Mrs. Garrity was to the county probation department yesterday seeking permission to talk to Ross in jail where she was blindfolded in court in another part of the building.

As she entered Leibowitz' courtroom, Ross, who has two small daughters, was standing before the bar for sentencing as a two-time felon and convicted leader of a gang of car thieves.

Leibowitz said he would make a decision Monday.

Ross stopped as he was led, handcuffed from the court by two lawless jailers. He drank in a long moment of the blue sky above Brooklyn.

"It's beautiful," he said, "I think she would like to see it."

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

By INEZ PUCKETT

The Duchess invites us for a day at Sun Valley. We leap into our bobs and tuckers and depart. The Duchess has pink cheeks and a platinum cologne.

"Where are your ski pants?" she says politely.

"Two bag around the equator since we got the Cedar Draw skitaki?" we told her.

"But your ski—where are they?" she demanded.

"Well," aligned the Duchess. "You might have at least put on some Max Factor No. 3 to make your face look like the place. People are apt to stare and make remarks."

PUCKETT

The Harriman cup races were coming up, and Sun Valley was a swarm with ski enthusiasts, champion teams, celebrities of screen and radio. Over half a dozen nations had sent their greatest ski champions to compete. At the Lodge, the Challenger Inn, the Ram, athletic looking folks babbled, ate, and laughed. Their pants, coats and boots, were wacky and wonderful, their faces all burned to a last mahogany.

Among them were the "casualties" with their crutches, casts, and arm-slings. One got the impression it was an honor to crack one's bones for the glory of warded bedstade on a snowy mountain-side.

We did a tour of the entire setup: the greenhouses, employes quarters, dining rooms, the famous Ram, the Duchin room, the steaming blue pool with Idaho snow lying just below its glassed-in sides. The pool attendant was a blythe young soul who stopped chatting to say, "Excuse me, but that fellow lying over at the edge of the pool is a movie director. I hafta turn him every few minutes." He then went over and turned this big hunk of lard so the sun could hit him from another angle.

Up in the red room of the Lodge an enormous polar bear skin hung over the fireplace. A Mr. A. I. Mikos, the man-behind-Sun-Valley, said the bear had been shot in Russia had given it to Mr. Harriman, the man-behind-Sun-Valley, who had then given it to him. We wondered if it was symbolic. We checked its measurements, and no foolin' deers, the critter was eight feet 12 inches from nose to tail.

Maybe we Idahoans ought to have Mr. Harriman and Mr. Mikos, who is a corvette skin. Coyotes aren't so hefty, but they're plenty smart.

Over in the Opera House the organist for Sun Valley was arranging her music. This little gal Janet Peit, one of Magic Valley's most gifted young musicians, Janet was an advanced piano pupil of Teala Bellini, and studied two years with John Stark Evans, one of the foremost organists of the northwest. As she sat at the Hammond organ and started among her piles of music, Janet talked about her work at Sun Valley. "I play piano with a trio for private parties at 'Tall Creek,'" she said, as her pretty red cap bobbed on her fluffy head. "and every day from 8 to 10 p. m. I give an organ concert which is broadcast over the grounds. Would you like me to do a request number?"

So we looked at Janet's little red snow shoes with the blue hearts on 'em, and said, "You bet! Make us 'Smoke Oats in Your Eyes'."

After lunch we took a bus, along with dozens of skiers and their equipment, and jounced over to Dollar mountain to watch the dog-gone-damners risk their bones riding the bedstade down the long white crust. Among this carefree crew was Little Marjory Gooding of the Gooding clan. Marjory looked very shapely in her ski top, and her halo of bright hair was a sight to behold. We recalled that Attorney Branch Bird and Mrs. Bird were two more Goodingos who went in for skiing, and looked about for them. No luck.

During the late afternoon we had tea and sandwiches in the cozy atmosphere of The Ram, the hang-out of the ski hounds. The air was warm with funny accents and a cackle of foreign tongues. "Bon-

Heyburn Gets Two Popular Art Paintings

BURLINGAME, March 22—Two of the most popular paintings exhibited at the Bull life, a study of red and white, and a study of red and white, were purchased by the Heyburn family and added to the permanent collection, according to announcement by Mrs. Anna C. Moller and O. B. Wright, superintendent of Heyburn schools.

The painting, a study of red and white, was painted by Prof. T. R. Nielson, head of the departments at Idaho State college, Pocatello, was one of the pictures purchased, rating high among those in popularity.

Show Elderly Lady
A portrait painting, "The Gentle Age," showing a kind-faced elderly lady, was the second picture purchased by the school. Earl Reed, the painter, now lives at Casper, Wyo. where he is teaching art in the high school and junior college. Reed studied at the Kansas City Art Institute, Chicago Art Institute, as well as at many other eastern schools, and his paintings are represented in many private and public collections.

The highest popular vote of the past year went to the painting, "The Gentle Age," by Earl Reed.

The painting, a study of red and white, was painted by Prof. T. R. Nielson, head of the departments at Idaho State college, Pocatello, was one of the pictures purchased, rating high among those in popularity.

It seems quite a given of Magic Valley people go up to Mr. Harriman's resort to risk their bones on skis, and otherwise have fun. Among those seen around of late are Dr. and Mrs. Frank McAtor, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Self, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gerhart, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Colner, Gladys and Dick Long, Margaret Barton, Marjory and Bill Lash, Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Chaney, Tom and Dorothy Peaver, Dr. and Mrs. E. Beamer and Bob Minshew.

"Twilight was settling down over Dollar mountain when we left the Ram and prepared to hit the get back to Magic Valley. The tall evergreens along walks began to twinkle with jeweled lights. In the blue dusk Sun Valley looked like some old world village. Over the grounds there suddenly fell the throbbing glory of organ music. Chattering groups paused to listen; in the Lodge and the Inn, windows were softly lifted. The melody blended with the snow, trees and starlight, and we knew that Janet Peit, in her red cap, was sitting at the Hammond over there in the Opera House beginning her evening broadcast. The spell of her music was still on us as we departed. The last thing we heard was the wistful chorus of our request number swirling over the treeltops and the snowy side of Dollar mountain:

"When your heart's on fire you must realize, Smoke Oats in your eyes."

This is supposed to have happened in Buhl. An enthusiastic young matron had just taken her second first aid lesson. Going home alone, west Main she spotted a man lying face down on the road. Nobody was doing a thing for the poor guy so the matron rushed over and began artificial respiration. A red face was suddenly turned up at her and the man yelled, "Lady, I don't know what the heck you are tryin' to do, but I'm tryin' to get this wire down this man-hole!"

Grand Council Fire

One of the most outstanding Grand Council fires ever held in Twin Falls during the history of Camp Fire Girls in Idaho, was conducted Thursday evening at the Idaho Power auditorium. The event, which was the birthday party of the annual birthday month of the organization, was attended by a large number of parents and other interested persons.

Theme of the birthday project for this year, the 25th anniversary of Camp Fire Girls, was "Olden Places." Mrs. Rose North was council fire leader. Going places as citizens of one world, south, east and west, was accentuated by the lighting ceremony. Representatives of the four parts of the world came from the four directions, meeting at the fire with symbols representing each part of the world, and lighting candles. The general idea was based on the U. N. charter. This was followed by the social leadership girls. Birthday candles representing the birth of the world and symbols of friendship, sharing and understanding, and also the Woldo candles were lit. The invocation was given by the Rev. Martin Christensen, and proceeded with the singing of "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Camp Fire Prayer" by the assembly. The Bluebird, by Bluebird, was followed by the singing of "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Camp Fire Prayer" by the assembly. Annual Wage Question Gets Serious Study

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP)—The highly controversial question of a guaranteed annual wage for labor is coming in for serious study by men in government, business and labor.

If careful analysis should indicate the plan could stand on its own feet, without benefit of subsidy, or without working financial injury to employers, many manufacturers, labor leaders, and economists claim it would become a powerful stabilizing force and say they would favor it.

Many others, however, feel that the plan, if adopted universally, would hurt the national economy in short order.

They claim small businesses lack the necessary reserves to make good on commitments in bad times, and large businesses in good times would hesitate to expand because of additional guarantees necessary for additional workers.

While some of the big CIO unions are expected to stump for year-around wage contracts, the plan is by no means a labor project exclusively. Many unions vigorously oppose it, and others regard it with apathy.

The International Ladies Garment Workers want no part of an annual wage commitment, claiming their immediate goal is "to create stability among employers," many of whom fade after a few months of operation. They say what good is a contract when the boss goes bankrupt?

The Independent fact-finding boards and some unions say a guaranteed wage is possible only under a regulated economy, with government responsibility for production and consumer choice.

Philip Murray, CIO president, arguing for the more, said that guaranteed wages would stabilize economy and ward off depression.

Big Money in Forage Seed, Farmers Told

SPOKANE, March 22 (AP)—Farmers seeking greater diversification in their crops as well as those interested in intensive production of the most profitable crops are being urged to consider forage seed production.

John A. Schwendman, manager of the island empire unit of the university division of the soil conservation service, says that "there are now more than at any other time in the past several years, opportunities in forage seed production."

Schwendman says a shortage of forage seeds exists. Not only that, he says, but in the future the need for such crops will remain at a high level.

The national shortage of forage seed began in 1933 and 1934 during the drought years. However, Schwendman says, the demand for seed was almost met when World War II began.

But with the start of the war, the demand for food, the high prices of other crops and the shortage of labor caused, according to Schwendman, a reduction in acreage of forage crops raised for seed.

And now in the place of imports from foreign countries, "we have demands," he says, "for seeds from this country to cover devastated areas and to help them raise their fields which were plowed up to produce grains for human consumption."

"Where there is a shortage of food," he continues, "many countries will probably find it more economical to import forage seeds than to devote food production land to seed production."
