

Four Couples Get Divorces; Pair Reunited

Four divorces and a motion to withdraw a default and set aside a divorce decree, were granted Friday by District Judge James W. Porter.

Who Schultz's motion for withdrawal of default and asking that the divorce decree awarded his wife, Nellie Schultz, July 18, be set aside was granted.

Mrs. Schultz charged Schultz with cruelty in the original suit filed June 5.

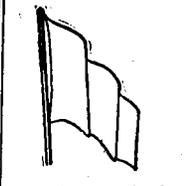

Donald M. Boyce received a divorce from Arlene Schultz Boyce, who defaulted, on grounds of extreme cruelty in difference in their religious beliefs. In his complaint he charged she told him if he did not join her church "he was going straight to hell." They were married in Reno, Nev., Sept. 6, 1945.

Janetta Gibbs was restored her maiden name, Janetta Van Ostran, when she was given a divorce from Lewis B. Gibbs, who defaulted. Suit for divorce was filed one week before it was granted. They were married in Reno, Nev. in 1940, and have no children. Their community property was divided in a previously signed property settlement agreement.

Ethel Margaret Gage was divorced from Asa W. Gage, who defaulted. They were married in Seattle, Wash., April 18, 1946, and have no children and no community property.

Walter R. Smith was granted a divorce from Elsie Smith, who defaulted. They were married at Redwood City, Calif., Nov. 10, 1943. They have no children and no community property.

Valley Horse Fanciers Put 'On Defense'

Magic Valley horse owners will have to look to their laurels during the fourth annual horse show to be sponsored here by the Frontier Riding Club, Inc., Aug. 21, 22 and 23.

The show will feature fanciers from Utah, Nevada, Oregon and Montana. Owners of out-of-state horses are invited to exhibit, 600 being offered winners.

Secretary J. E. White announced Saturday he had received a long distance telephone call from Col. Hayward at Bountiful, Utah, requesting information on the show. Hayward said he planned to ship a cartload of horses by express to compete here.

From Nevada came word that a number of western stock horses would be exhibited in one of the top prize events. Horse owners in Oregon have also signified their intention of bringing their western stock horses here.

Interest is being shown by horse owners in Jerome, Burley, Rupert, Pocatello, Wendell, Gooding and other Magic Valley towns, and entries are expected from these cities.

Three mounted passes will present colorful drills. The Jerome posse will show on its drill the first night of the show. Twin Falls possemen will appear on Friday night, and the posse from Burley will perform Saturday night.

General chairman of the horse show, C. R. Nelson, announced that all weeks will be devoted to a program of publicity and advertising for the event.

The event was originated in previous years, being held twice before Pearl Harbor. During the war, the show was not held, but in 1946 the event was revived.

Preliminary eliminations are planned, with top horses being in the ring for the actual classes. All there will be 36 classes, 12 events being run off each night.

Manager W. W. Lowery announced Saturday that work parties would be needed at the riding club arena and urged members to report to the grounds Monday for assignments of tasks to be performed.

28 Motorists Arrested for Auto Defects

BUHL, Aug. 2.—State, county and city officers cracked down on 28 motorists in a traffic lane in Buhl Friday night. Defective lights and lack of drivers' licenses were responsible for 22 of the arrests, and six persons were charged with speeding inside the city limits.

The speeding charge carries a maximum fine of $25 but the others carry lesser fines. Those arrested for defective auto lights must have the lights repaired and show certificates to that effect with their citations, to the judge.

The motorists given tickets were not "repeaters" or persons who had been issued courtesy tickets in previous traffic lanes. Only five courtesy tickets were issued Friday night. They require the repair of mechanical defects plus a report of the repairs to state officers.

Emphasizing that previous traffic lanes should have served as ample warnings, state officers said in Friday night traffic lane is the first of a series of "test" lanes to be conducted throughout Magic Valley. To be checked are brakes, lights, operators licenses, and truck tires and reflectors.

Paying speeding fines to Police Judge A. C. Anos were Lewis Hart, John H. Barker, Bryan Rogers and Henry Thomey, Jr., Buhl; Worley H. Olds, Twin Falls, and Perry Bagley, California.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

STEEEL—President Truman's economic advisers have undertaken a major campaign to persuade leaders of the steel industry to expand production capacity by approximately 10 per cent. Otherwise, they maintain that the current situation will result in a shortage of this basic product for homes, factories, ships, railroads, motor vehicles.

Production capacity is estimated at 91,000,000 tons, although it frequently falls below that figure. The United States alone is absorbing that amount, but it is not sufficient to fill the backlog of orders for heavy goods. The scarcity is the greatest contributory cause to the current inflation of prices and the level will continue to rise unless checked by a larger output.

The situation will become even more critical when European nations submit their inventory under the Marshall plan. Indeed, administration spokesmen have expressed concern that American inability to satisfy foreign countries' demands, especially in view of the war in which the United States has been engaged, will be a black eye to our industrial system of free enterprise.

Here again, as they have done in urging congress to appropriate funds for foreign relief, Mr. Truman's aides have raised the "Russian bogey." They have argued, in their talks with representatives of the steel industry, that the government will make good will contribute to the spread of communism here and abroad.

ARGUMENT—Steel statistics sharpen the argument of the government's spokesmen. In 1940 the world produced and consumed approximately 146,000,000 tons of steel. It is true that the war and the rearmament race fattened demand, but it is believed that postwar requirements and expansion will take up the slack.

In 1940 the world produced and consumed approximately 146,000,000 tons of steel. It is true that the war and the rearmament race fattened demand, but it is believed that postwar requirements and expansion will take up the slack.

EARNINGS—Although the industry claims that it has not made excessively large profits over a long period, earnings reached their peak in 1946. The amount for the first quarter of 1947 is in its rather sharp contrast with the industry's leaders. Mr. Truman's agents have recalled that the companies' earnings have fallen to their lowest point in the war that capacity was equal to future needs, but they had to increase production to meet the demand.

BRREAKUP—The resignation of Ben Cohen marks the final disappearance of the famous "brain trust" which Franklin D. Roosevelt organized and brought to the White House. Although Mr. Cohen was the most modest and perhaps the ablest of the lot, he was the legal and intellectual leader of that unique organization.

The breakup of this dashingly, spectacular, experimental group has definite economic and political significance to the different spokesmen of the Truman administration. The Rooseveltians, who were admittedly amateurs at statecraft, were uneasy under the Missouri. In every department, notably state, agriculture and interior, he has turned to trained, conservative, experienced men. He was not sympathetic to the brain trusters.

The "invaders" themselves charge that they reached the top of the mountain and were left there, mentally and physically, they found that the thespians were not to be despised.

PAY—Most of them have profited from their public service. It is a material way that they descended, all better off than they were when they descended, all unknown, upon Washington.

Those who have returned to the law—Tommy Corcoran, A. Berle, Thurman Arnold, Paul Fort, Dean Acheson—will collect farter fees than before. "Stevie" Acheson is supposed to make $75,000 as a Pullman vice president. The other two make a profit of $25,000 a year. Henry Wallace draws down $25,000 a year. The Roosevelt family is not doing too badly.

Re-reporter "Mike" Stratus receives more as a reclamation commissioner than he did when covering the senate. His former boss, Harold I. Ickes, has done well on his writing, lecturing and curmudgeoning.

It seems that "idealism" can be made to pay, if properly publicized.

NEWS OF OTHERS

LIDICE ONCE AGAIN
A terrific thunderstorm broke over the former site of the village of Lidice in Czechoslovakia as officials were laying the cornerstones of a new home for the widows of men slain five years ago by the Germans. There is a singular appropriateness in this baptism of fire.

NEWS OF THE MASS MURDER of those 14 innocent men of Lidice as a penalty for the death of Reinhard Heydrich struck the enemies of Germany with stunning force. That was what the Germans intended it to do. But it was not the paralyzing force of terror which the Germans had anticipated but the devastating force of moral outrage.

Savage deeds like this had been done often enough in the past—cities razed, hundreds of innocent men slaughtered by the thousand, but humane and enlightened men had begun to hope, and with reason, that in this twentieth century a more civilized order was at last arising even amidst the brutal stupidity of war. Even war had its accepted decencies.

Germany's example at Lidice appalled civilized men with the realization of the kind of order they were dealing with. They have dealt with it by force and by law.

At the Kiwanis club meeting the other day, I. E. (Bill) Nitschke was passing out day to Kiwanians with names of business firms or offices to contact about installing a gun ball vending machine. "Bill" was blabbing through the office with "sheriff's office" on it. He asked for volunteers to contact the sheriff about putting a machine in that office, but all that could be said was a roar and series of puffaws. Finally, someone suggested Police Commissioner Nitschke himself see the sheriff. Bill backed down. "It's too much like gambling," he said.

"WASHINGTON CALLING" BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Within a few days Gen. Omar N. Bradley will leave his post as head of the veterans' administration. He is planning to sail for Europe on Aug. 15 for a six-weeks tour of American occupation zones in Germany and Austria.

If there is time, Bradley will visit James Forrestal, almost dead in Normandy where, just three years ago, he was leading the army of invasion in some of the bloodiest fighting of the war.

Not long after his return to this country, Bradley will replace his friend, Gen. of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, as chief of staff. Thus the carrier of the veterans' message will come to a new climax.

What is so troubling President Truman's advisers is how to replace Bradley with a man of sufficient stature and courage to carry through the Bradley reforms in the veterans' administration. It is once again the familiar story of those post-war years—the search for a big man for a big job. Secretary of Defense Louis A. Howey, in his first press conference since his appointment, when he said his chief task was: "To get people."

How serious this is for the veterans' administration can only be understood against the background of the pressure on that far-flung organization, with its more than 200,000 employees. Equally important is the extent of the reforms which Bradley, with his patience, tenacity and his fighting spirit, has initiated.

When he became head of the VA two years ago, he found it was pretty much under the thumb of the professional veterans' lobby dominated by the American Legion. Outsiders who were powerful in the veterans' organization gave the orders behind the scenes.

This had led to serious abuses. Men were kept in VA hospitals as penitentiaries even though they were not in need of medical care. In some cases, Bradley discovered, privileged veterans would establish themselves in VA hospitals in the south the winter and then, with the coming of hot weather, they would move to a VA hospital in cool New England. One result was that less privileged veterans in need of hospitalization were kept on long waiting lists.

Even more serious was the fact that first-class doctors would have nothing to do with the VA. They found that their orders were overruled by politics. Bradley has changed all that. Clashing openly with the veterans' lobby, he has abolished privilege. With the aid of his able assistant, Maj.-Gen. Paul R. Hawley, chief medical director of VA, Bradley has persuaded leading physicians and the top medical school to participate in the program of retraining and rehabilitation.

Summing it this way makes it sound easy, it has not. Every step has meant a fight. Other obstacles have stood in Bradley's way. Leading physicians and the cost of building new hospitals by 50 per cent, so that the VA can build only about half of the additional hospitals so badly needed.

Bradley knows better than anyone else how quickly these reforms can be wiped out, since they are still so new. In two or three years, if the new system is well established, it can stand up against the assault of those who would go back to the old methods.

It is this that makes the choice of the new director critically important. It can make or break the new VA. A man of sufficient stature and courage to carry through the reforms in the veterans' administration from World War II.

The candidate of the American Legion is generally understood to be Maj.-Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, who has had of selective service during the war and is now winding up that operation. The present head of the Legion, Paul H. Griffith, was with Hershey in selective service.

While recognizing the efficiency of Hershey's wartime performance, which Truman is said to have passed over him in his search for a new director of VA, the President is anxious to find a man who will be free of any commitment or connection—a man concerned with the interests of all veterans.

The salary is $12,000. If his successor follows Bradley's routine, he will spend his days and many of his nights in conferences and meetings, making decisions on which the welfare of millions of men and women depend.

BOB HOPE

The tourist trade is finally getting a break. New houses are shooting up everywhere you look these days. It's wonderful to be able to relieve the housing shortage, but there's one drawback to these mushrooming dwellings—they all look alike.

My brother just moved into one of these housing developments. He is third from the left in a row of 18 little frame cottages. It seems the builder had a cement mixer and some carbon paper.

The 16 houses are alike in every detail. When a couple was expecting a baby, the architect looked for the right house, and then had a nervous breakdown. Just to give you an idea of how confused these people are, one guy painted his house a different color so he could recognize his from the rest. When he finished the job his neighbor thanked him and threw him out. It was the wrong house again.

One guy tried to be different and

HAS WORLD WAR III STARTED?

The one biggest issue before the congress just closed and in the session ahead is whether the United States must fight another war. Everything else is considered secondary. It is also the biggest issue on the President's desk in the state department, and before the American people.

As Chairman Charles A. Eaton of the house foreign affairs committee remarked, the "shooting war" may already be on. It is entirely possible that World War III has already begun—in the border clashes in Greece, in China's civil war, in the Dutch-Indonesian fighting, and in the armed forces each other across the 38th parallel in Korea and the occupation zone boundaries in Germany and Austria. The first and second World Wars began over incidents and differences far less serious than these.

This is not a pleasant prospect. But it needs to be faced.

There is general agreement that when and if war comes, it will be Russia and her satellites against the world. What the line-up would be can be guessed. But the important consideration is that every country in the world is so weakened from the last war that it would be more of a burden to support, as an ally, than to be overrun, as an enemy.

Where this war would be fought, or how, is debatable. Any idea that the United States could drop a few bombs on Moscow and end the war in a week is nonsense. Even if victory could be won that easily, there would remain the problem of occupation. As the United States has discovered in Germany, the reform and reorganization of a conquered nation takes longer than the defeat.

While the Axis was defeated in the last war, it is apparent only now that the world is not ready to fight it. The country that is that nobody could win in the next war, either.

Facing that gloomy prospect, it may be said there are four ways to maintain the peace: Appeasement—giving Russia whatever she wants on the theory that any sacrifice is cheaper than war; imposing the will of the United States on Soviet Russia—by economic force if necessary; by dividing the world into two spheres—communist and non-communist; or by long, exhausting and compromise negotiations to arrive at a satisfactory basis of co-operation in one world.

This last was the Byrnes policy. But endless arguing did not bring the desired result. It was the old philosopher's riddle of the immovable force—Russia—meeting the irresistible force—the United States. That led to the Marshall plan, which, at the present moment, seems headed toward the creation of two worlds instead of one. This is the third of the alternative policies listed above. The question is whether this is a step towards peace or war.

DOSE OF INFLATION

In the session of congress just closed, the Republican and conservative Democratic majorities have not had to worry too much about unemployment. Employment has reached an all-time high of over 60 billion jobs. In prosperity such as this, few people worry about anything.

This boom has brought with it definite increase in price levels. The squeeze put on wages has been tremendous. While few people may admit it, the United States is actually suffering from a good dose of inflation. This is its first real experience with the disease. But if history is any teacher, spiraling of wages to meet prices and vice versa can end only in economic trouble.

In every U. S. war—Revolution, 1812, Spanish-American and World War I and II—prices have gone sky high. But after the wars they have always gone down sharply, into a depression. The Republican philosophy apparently seems to be built on the belief that this time it isn't going to happen. After other wars the country has always gone back to approximately the same standard of living it had before the war began. Now the theory is that the United States is going on to a higher standard of living.

THE TREND—WHICH WAY?

The reaction given by Henry Wallace on his western tour has awakened in some politicians a realization that a large number of the people may be way ahead of congress on foreign policy—on a desire for greater co-operation with the United Nations, a desire for peace.

American voters will line up to be counted on all these issues in the 1948 elections. If the trend of recent events in Washington is approved, the conservative Republicans and Democrats can count on being returned to control congress. And the Republicans can count on electing a President and vice-president for the first time in 20 years.

If the electorate disapproves, it will be Harry Truman and a more liberal congress, possibly complicated by Henry Wallace and a third party ticket. If the latter is developed, the conservatives can still win, and Wallace will turn out to be their biggest help.

What a conservative sweep in 1948 would lead to, no one can accurately foretell. For the voters, the important thing is to know what the shift towards conservatism in the last seven months has meant.

He Agrees With Suggestion to Name Bridge for I. B. Perrine

Editor, Times-News: In your editorial last Sunday you further encouraged my suggestion along the line of I. B. Perrine and his accomplishments in this valley. Your suggestion that a monument of some kind or plaque be erected in his memory harmonizes with my thoughts completely.

In the development of our recent parent, the life of I. B. Perrine, was carefully studied and his achievements entirely weighed and though we admit the part of the segment portraying some of the events in the life of Mr. Perrine did not do justice to his noble achievements, at the same time our purpose was to again renew in the memories of the "old-timers" the original irrigation of this valley and depict for the younger generation the hardships endured in the development of Magic Valley and the practically worthless condition of the land here without water and thus bring to our thinking an appreciation for the men and women who made Magic Valley "blossom as a rose."

Through research and reading, I have developed a profound admiration for Mr. I. B. Perrine. I never knew him personally, or do I recall ever having seen him, but his tenacity, perseverance and patience were overshadowed only by his keen vision and faith in this valley. He was a remarkable man and as a "new-comer" I feel that I owe him a debt of gratitude and it is my sincere feeling that the least we could do in the memory of this man who played such a vital part in irrigating Magic Valley is to have a plaque made, setting forth his accomplishments, and to name the rim-to-rim bridge the "Perrine bridge."

May I commend the Times-News on the timely editorial in this connection and may I have entire support of the old-timers and new-comers who feel as I do about this remarkable man.

Bicycle Riders Said Dangerous In City Traffic

Editor, Times-News: While we are talking traffic safety, why not instruct the small boy who rides the streets on a bicycle? Motorcycles may be called "murder cycles" but a bicycle in the hands of a small boy is a terror to car drivers. They zig-zag ahead of a car, turning without warning directly in front of one. They have no idea which side of the road they should be on. Time and again we have almost hit one through our carelessness on our part.

As I stepped out of my car one morning on Main avenue, a boy about 12 years old came up the street on the wrong side and seeing the empty space beside my car, turned in, bumping into me rather violently. I took hold of him and asked him if he did not know he was going the wrong way to park and if he couldn't see anyone so large as myself, plus a few other things.

He was not apologetic nor was he sorry. All I got out of him were the remarks that he "had a right to park there," and "you don't own this street."

I believe all boys who ride bicycles should be examined as to their knowledge of traffic rules and until they show an intelligent understanding, they should not be allowed to ride a bicycle in the business district or out to the ball park.

Child Drownings Can Be Avoided, Writer Suggests

Editor, Times-News: Each year, in the irrigated sections of the United States, babies from 1 year old to those of 4 or 5 are gathered from the fields and small ditches and more homes are made desolate by the loss of these little ones. Each year, parents, old brothers and sisters and other persons in care of children think and speak of the dangers of drowning, but they think "it won't be my child, but that of someone else." But each small victim has to be someone's child and may be yours next time. Many of these drownings could be avoided and it is with the thought that some child may be saved that I submit the following suggestions:

1. Never leave a young child alone outside if he can get into or near a canal or even a small ditch. Many a child has been drowned in three inches of water.
2. If you want to have the child outside to play and you or someone else cannot be with him, make a long loop in the end of a rope so you can put it over a clothes line and fasten the other end to the child so he cannot undo it. In this way, he can have a long range of the yard to play, usually in the shade of some trees, and he won't be found unconscious in the water. He may not like this, but you will have him at the end of the day.
3. Fence in a play-yard for the tiny ones until they are old enough to understand they must stay away from the water.
4. Don't expect young brothers and sisters to watch over the child all the time. They are still young enough to forget.
5. See that every child learns to swim as soon as he is 6 years old. He may be the one to save one of your family from death.
6. Finally if your clothes line is entirely in the sun, perhaps you can tie the child to a tree or a fence in the shade or even use a large iron stake. Anything is better than providing another candidate for a funeral.

Idaho Should Be Family Vacation Land, She Avers

Editor, Times-News: Allow me to congratulate the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce upon its vision in erecting signs directing travelers to Shoshone Falls. Idaho has so much natural beauty to offer the tourist as well as a little taste of real peace in our mountaining and along our streams abounding with trout that we should be much more active in advertising. Make Idaho a family vacation playground.

It is to be hoped that some organization or group of organizations will become active at once to save for Idaho the Sacajawea museum at Spaulding, Ida. It makes a lover of Idaho sad to find other states have purchased many things of vital interest to our own state. The entire files of the Silver City Idaho "Rancher" were purchased by another state for its museum.

It is to be hoped that the citizens of Idaho and their representatives at the next legislature will consider many things which will build for Idaho a reputation for those things which have made it great in the past. Idaho had and has so many resources with which to build a state of which we can continue to be proud.

She Seeks More Information on 'Marshall Plan'

Editor, Times-News: I for one would like to know more about the Marshall plan. We hear a great deal about it, but know nothing really very definite about it. How much does it involve our future of our children?

Senator Dworshak has pointed out serious. Our highway safety program certainly should take a shot at that. Not only liquor in the driver's tank, but the debris of his broken bottles are a real menace to safety.

that the American people should be better informed about our foreign policy and that the people as a whole should insist on this information.

It seems to me the way things are now is like signing one's name to a paper whose contents are unknown.

It would be better if the plan were explained rather than talked about.

Dusty Blasts Create Some Area Damage

Power company employees likewise reported an extremely busy season between 4:30 and 8 p. m. Saturday. Several poles and lines were blown down in the south part of Twin Falls and at Castletown. Trees were blown down on power lines at several places south of South park. Crews were working late to restore street light circuits in the east part of the city. Some trouble was experienced by the wind blowing power lines together, causing momentary short circuits.

Not the least exciting incident of the windstorm was a large cottonwood tree pushed about halfway down threatening the home of Mrs. J. B. Waken, 1437 Fourth avenue east. Looking out the door to Mrs. Waken saw the tree start to lean slowly towards her home.

She hastily summoned the driver of a nearby truck, the vehicle was hitched to the 15-foot tree and pulled it away from her home before it crashed to the ground. It tore up the yard and also damaged an irrigation ditch.

Also excited were residents in the neighborhood of the 1100 block of Wilmore avenue, where the Twin Falls fire department was called at 8:43 p. m. Saturday to drench weeds set afire by a man. A second wind of the day was scattering the burning weeds over a wide area. That wind brought along a few drops of rain.

BURLEY, Aug. 2—Andrew Garcia, about 70, was reported in good condition at the Cottage hospital after an attempt at suicide resulted in what Sheriff Saul E. Clark and State Patrolman J. E. Bedingfield termed an attempted homicide.

Three stitches were taken in his left arm at the elbow. The aged janitor was attempting to cut his throat, the officers said. He was found about 6 p. m. Friday in the Chet Parkes pool hall in Declo.

Straus Urges No Bickering For Projects

Urged conservation of water allowed to go to waste in winter.

Citing the difficulty of obtaining appropriations, Straus stated that most members of congressional committees are from east of the Ohio river, and are neither familiar with nor friendly to western needs for development.

He pointed out that it was with western appropriations that congress first started to pare expenses, but that western needs were not entirely sidetracked to make way for eastern labor and industrial appropriations.

Following a week-long meeting of bureau officials in Salt Lake City, Straus had reported that the reclamation bureau has scheduled a $185,000,000 construction program on 147 projects in 17 western states. He said construction approved for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1948, commits the bureau to a seven-year program which will result in additional expenditure of $1,235,000,000 by the end of the 1954 fiscal year.

Construction goals for the 1948 fiscal year, as announced by Straus, include $503,000 to continue construction of canal and lateral systems in the Minidoka project and $765,000 for investigations, design and solution of water-right problems for the Palisades project.

Man Arrested In Drive Has Jail Trouble

children can be properly fed, housed, and given something to occupy their minds until they are returned to their parents or until more permanent arrangements are made by legal action.

Officers who cared for the boy illustrated how incomplete was the care they could afford lost children by describing the barefoot lad's accident during his stay at the police station.

Beating a path from the desk sergeant to the door of his father's cell, the miserable lad, clad only in a pair of blue denim overalls, repeatedly called out to his father and tried to open the door that separated them.

During the morning junior made the rounds with various officers in the jail. The accident occurred at the home of one officer to spend the afternoon.

All was well until the officer started to leave the cell. The boy would not stay, so he was brought back to the station, where he went immediately to the cellblock and sat down on the floor, leaning against the iron door to his father's cell.

Officers admitted liking the lad whom they claimed was not a bad boy who, like any other child forced to spend hours with nothing to do, was only restless.

acre. He said it was man-caused and that it is blazing through the Malheur river and the Gooding-Shoshone irrigated areas.

It broke out about 4 p. m. Friday and was brought under control 10 hours later by a crew of some 15 firefighters. At noon Saturday, when only four or five men were patrolling, a strong wind whipped it out of control. The wind was blowing at gale strength Saturday evening. Thirty men were dispatched to fight the fire which will be aided by a crew to be sent from Burley early Tuesday morning.

The fire is an isolated, rough terrain where it is impossible to take tanker trucks and other heavy equipment usually sent out to ranged fires.

Another, and much smaller blaze was reported by the Shoshone grazing service office. It swept over a few acres adjacent to the Wellville village dump. A tanker truck was sent there and the blaze extinguished.

Crashes in Area Damage Vehicles

Two traffic accidents were investigated by Twin Falls county and city officers Friday and Saturday afternoons. Reports showed that property damage, but no injuries resulted.

At 8:58 p. m. Saturday a 1936 sedan driven by J. H. Beaver, 79, was involved in a collision with an army type truck two and a half miles south of east Five points, county officers reported. The accident occurred when the Beaver machine came out of a driveway in front of the truck and then made a left turn into another driveway as the truck started to pass. Left front fender of the sedan was damaged. A man whose name was not given was driving the army type truck, which was residing on the Salmon track, which was driving the truck.

Officers were damaged in a collision between two trucks investigated by city police at 1:08 p. m. Friday in the 100 block of Fifth street south of East Hill. The driver of his truck off the Honda Elevator pit, police reported, hitting a truck owned by the Utah Wholesale and Retail Co. The driver of the overloaded bridge at 3:30 p. m. today.

A. C. Howard, about 70, was badly shaken, and Mrs. Dollie Campbell, 71, was out and bruised when the 1937 sedan in which they were riding left the road on the curve and was damaged to the extent of about $300, according to Sheriff Saul Clark, who investigated. Both are residents of Grand Island, Neb., and Howard was driving at the time. The officer blamed too much speed on the curve as cause of the accident.

Howard was dismounted shortly after being taken to the hospital, and the attending physician of Mrs. Campbell indicated that she would be dismounted Sunday. They were en route to Portland and were traveling from Burley to Paul when the accident occurred.

Mining Company Continues Drive To Get Workers

What R. E. O'Brien, superintendent of the Mountain City Copper company described as a "general shortage of miners" brought him to the Twin Falls office of the Idaho state employment service last week with an offer of high-paying mine jobs for 25 men at the mine in Rio Tinto, Nev.

Following up on a drive for mine workers in the latter's check of the Dahl-Crisman story.

O'Brien said all the advantages offered in June are still open to applicants. They include three-room apartments with electric appliances, oil heating and modern facilities, bunk and boarding houses for single men and wages averaging $91 a day.

Located 85 miles north of Elko, Nev., near the Idaho border, the location offers some of the best hunting and fishing in this section of the country, according to O'Brien. The town is small, he says, but it includes a church, school, theater and general store.

(From Page One)

Smith had gone to Tacoma to join Arnold in the latter's check of the Dahl-Crisman story.

Smith would say nothing for publication beyond the fact that he and Arnold had talked at length with Brown and Davidson and had given them the pieces of metal or lays.

Smith says he does not know what happened to the pellets after the B-25 crashed and burned.

In San Francisco, General Schramm said by telephone that Brown and Davidson had been engaged in gathering material on flying discs and that this material was being passed on to "high headquarters."

He said no special emphasis should be placed on the fact Brown and Davidson's reports were passed on to higher headquarters, as that was a normal procedure.

Schramm said he did not know of his own knowledge if there were anything aboard the plane or any information on discs in the plane "except what Brown and Davidson were carrying in their heads."

The driver of his truck off the Honda Elevator pit, police reported, hitting a truck owned by the Utah Wholesale and Retail Co. The driver of the overloaded bridge at 3:30 p. m. today.

A. C. Howard, about 70, was badly shaken, and Mrs. Dollie Campbell, 71, was out and bruised when the 1937 sedan in which they were riding left the road on the curve and was damaged to the extent of about $300, according to Sheriff Saul Clark, who investigated. Both are residents of Grand Island, Neb., and Howard was driving at the time. The officer blamed too much speed on the curve as cause of the accident.

Howard was dismounted shortly after being taken to the hospital, and the attending physician of Mrs. Campbell indicated that she would be dismounted Sunday. They were en route to Portland and were traveling from Burley to Paul when the accident occurred.

Henry Barry Ain't Mad at Nobody

Why? This has been a hot week and hard on the constitution, but good for the growing crop. Most farmers are "anxious under" with work in the fields. However, we have been busy at the lumber yard discharging lumber and building materials.

We are getting in materials all the time. The best we've got a car load of woven wire, barb wire, and steel posts. This is the first shipment of barb wire and steel posts that we have gotten in for a long time. A few rolls came in at a time, but not nearly enough to go around. And steel posts have been almost impossible, but we have them now.

Another item has been difficult to buy. It is treated cedar posts. We got in a car load of both the 6 1/2 foot split treated cedar posts, and the treated round cedar posts. These round posts are exceptionally good and we have them in about any size you desire, 8 foot long. Our woven wire stock consists of practically all heights; also have some chicken wire.

When we were visiting in the East a month ago, the corn crop was hampered by the very wet weather, in such corn states as Missouri, Illinois, and Iowa. We hear that there is not enough rain in many places now. I'll take Magic Valley, Idaho, where we can make a rain when we want it. There is one thing that every clerk, farmer, laborer, or business man in New York City would like to know is where you raise those Idaho potatoes. We have learned we were from Idaho, there was one common expression we heard, "Oh, yes, it is where you raise those Idaho potatoes."

We have seen some mighty fine fields of potatoes here this week. And if you need panel boards for your apud cellar, we have them. Also have a supply of 8 and 9 foot dry, straight, oak buck rack teeth. We got a shipment of knotty pine—of course we always have some knotty pine, but this is the surfaced kind that is used for inside and outside finish. Several electric hot water heaters on hand on which we can save you money.

We also have Glenville type of dual proof spring lift windows, 18 inch pine siding, fir flooring, oak flooring, glazing, bath, plaster, and many other hard to get items.

She's 99 and Determined to Pass Century

By LETHA TESTER
GOODING, Aug. 2 — Mrs. Nettie Metcalf will observe her 99th birthday anniversary Sunday, looking forward to next year when she will pass the century mark, a goal she is determined to reach with the aid of vitamin pills, daily walks about the neighborhood and plenty of good food.

Because Mrs. Metcalf leads an extremely active life, it was no surprise when she took her first plane ride at the age of 82. Today, however, her activity is confined to daily walks which may include several city blocks and calls on many friends, and her daily stint of household duties.

Born Aug. 3, 1848, in Jamestown, N. Y., she lived a full and active pioneer life including plowing in Iowa where she and her husband lived in a sod house and traveled by ox team, with the nearest neighbors miles away. In 1881 she was married to John E. Metcalf, who died in 1908. She recalls the Spirit Lake Indian Massacre in early years and many other Indian "scare".

Left a widow with three small children she prepared herself to teach in order to support her family. Until the last few years Mrs. Metcalf did a great deal of sewing, reading and kept up a large correspondence. She made regular trips to the beauty parlor. In 1925 she died of flooding to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. H. J. Leyson. She has traveled extensively in her lifetime. She attends the Universalist church at Storm Lake, Ia., and was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star there.

There are six grandchildren, two of whom are well known in this community. Mrs. Don Best, Yakima, Wash., and Howard Leyson, Jr., Jerome. Also, there are three great grandchildren. Mrs. Metcalf attended the wedding of one great-grandson, Don Leyson, Jerome, recently.

Game Officers Get Changes in Posts

BOISE, Aug. 2 (UP)—Idaho Fish and Game Director Thomas B. Murray said today that 10 conservation officers will be transferred to new posts effective Aug. 10.

Murray said the reason for the change is "for efficiency and where the key men can do the best job."

Those affected by the change (the present station and where they will be transferred) includes Elmore Heter, Mackay to Stanley; G. R. Lounsbury, Stanley to Burley; Hawley Hill, Burley to Salmon and Frank Keough, American Falls to Pocatello.

Murray said more changes are to be made and several vacancies are to be filled. The game commission recently authorized the hiring of 15 additional officers, Murray added. These will be chosen according to their civil service rating and as conditions warrant.

SCS Marks 10th Anniversary by Expanding Area

The 10th anniversary of establishment of the first soil conservation district will be observed Monday, according to word received by the soil conservation office here from R. N. Irving, state conservationist.

Following establishment of the first district Aug. 4, 1937, in North Carolina, approximately 1,900 such districts have been established, covering more than a billion acres of land and including more than four and a half million farms and ranches.

The first soil conservation district organized in Idaho was the Latah district in 1940. Since then, 19 additional units have been established, the last two being the Boundary and Gooding districts, completed in May, 1947. Total area of the 21 districts in Idaho is 13,800,000 acres of farm land, plus 3,500,000 acres in other classifications. More than 18,000 Idaho farms are in organized soil conservation.

Meanwhile, hearings have been set for creation of other districts for proposed Franklin and Madison districts; and petitions are in transit requesting a hearing and referendum by the state SCS commission on the organization of the proposed east side soil conservation, which would include all of Bonneville county east of Snake river.

Other areas in which interest in district organization is manifest include Butte, Power and Caribou counties in eastern Idaho, Ada and Canyon in western Idaho, and Blaine county in the northern part of the state, according to the official.
