Authority Hits Navy Ideas of Atom Defense

CHICAGO, Aug. 7 (AP)—An authority on armaments charged today that the navy's views on atomic warfare were based on the assumption that atom bombs will be scarce "for a rather long time to come."

Bernard Brodie, writing in the bulletin of the atomic scientists, said that the navy's atomic bomb philosophy "may evaporate a good deal faster than the navy expects."

Brodie, a member of the Institute of International Studies at Yale University, said that some authorities believe the cost of a single atomic bomb eventually will be cut to $100,000, or less than the cost of a B-29 to carry it. The bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki cost about $1,000,000 each.

Brodie said the navy apparently believes atomic bombs will remain scarce and expensive, and that because of their scarcity a reliable means must be developed to drop them on an enemy. He said the navy believes that untested, long range bombers would not be reliable enough.

Brodie said, however, that because of the bomb's destructiveness an attacker could defeat an enemy if only one out of 10 of its atomic weapons ever reached their target.

Bases "Exaggerated"

Brodie said the navy "greatly exaggerates" the value of fixed bases for the interception of enemy planes making an atomic attack. The navy's Pacific bases, he said, probably would not enter into any such attack launched on the United States.

He said the army, however, seemed willing to consider new ideas—something which clearly deserves due credit.

TWIN FALLS

HEAT WAVE

It's been pretty hot generally throughout the northern hemisphere these past few days. It's been hot for Andrei Gromyko and Sir Alexander Cadogan. It's been hot for Henry Kalser and Sen. Owen Brewster. And, of course, it's been hot for a lot of less noteworthy people.

We know how Mr. Gromyko et al have been behaving during the heat wave. But perhaps if we consider for a moment how some of the lesser fry have been taking it, we will wind up with a better perspective and a bit of cautious hope.

A landscape gardener in Pennsylvania got out on the end of a limb and sawed himself off. He fell 20 feet and survived.

A young Michigan couple whiled away a sultry evening with a game of Russian roulette—that criminally astute game in which one chamber of a revolver is loaded, the player twirls the cylinder, pulls the trigger and hopes he has drawn one of the empty chambers. The husband didn't survive.

Members of the White House staff sent back to the artist a portrait he had painted of Mr. Truman last year. The President had striped for the portrait in a gray suit, with gaily striped bow tie and pocket handkerchief to match. The staff asked the artist to change the ensemble to blue suit, polka dot tie and handkerchief to match. He did.

Also in simmering Washington, where congressmen were scolding Howard Hughes for allegedly squandering public funds on wild parties, some of their colleagues were persistently trying to save the taxpayers money. The house commerce committee had been voted a globe-circling junket for aviation study, but no funds. So they were trying to panhandle a free trip around the world from airlines.

The annual carnival at New York's Coney Island was called off because of "insurmountable obstacles"—chief of which turned out to be a dearth of pretty girls to ride on the floats.

The judges of a Lions International parade in San Francisco got so entranced looking at a girl in a two-piece swim suit on the Arkansas float that they gave her first prize without checking the state's name. Kansas gallantly gave the $200 prize back to Arkansas.

We don't know how things were in Gloucester, but in the Irish sea a man was swimming from Eire to Scotland had an awful time because he kept getting fouled up in large shoals of herring.

And in merry England, where one county recently banned Punch and Judy shows, the heat was giving the Nursery Schools association of Britain a bad case of the jumps. The membership solemnly asked that "Little Red Riding Hood" be banned as cruel, deceptive, and likely to give children fear complexes.

All this happened in about 48 hours of a hot spell. In the same space of time, let it be remembered, world affairs began looking increasingly dismal. One was reminded that two world wars started at the tag end of hot summers. But maybe if the human race gets through to the first frost without doing anything worse than using its votes and its naws at the wrong time, its members can cool off and really do something about preserving peace and restoring tranquility.

SPONSORED SILENCE

A mattress manufacturer and a radio station in Cincinnati have come up with a great idea. The station sells the time it is off the air—7 p.m. to 6 a.m.—to the manufacturer, who sends listeners 11 hours of relaxation and restful sleep with his commercials and, of course, the hope that the sleep will be on his firm's product.

Since radio has long had unsponsored programs, sponsored silence doesn't seem too illogical. And it is endless possibilities.

A book store will buy an evening hour of silence for those who like to read without broadcast disturbance. A movie house will sponsor two hours of quiet in the hope that they will drive restless householders to his theater. And so on. Stillness may creep deeper and deeper into the gold-plated broadcasting hours.

REWARD FOR DESERTER

A most pleasant item of postwar news is the announcement that James Minkler has been released from army jail house, given an honorable discharge at Fort Myer, and sent home. Young Minkler is the lad who, tiring of guard duty in the states, deserted, re-enlisted under an assumed name, and was fighting as a paratrooper in France when they caught up with him.

A military court gave the eager soldier two years at hard labor with a dishonorable discharge at the end. Minkler definitely broke the rules, but we don't think he deserves punishment. Fortunately, he didn't have to serve out his term and go home in disgrace. It's good to know that once, anyhow, common sense has triumphed over the rule book.

A California boy of 18 sings grand opera—has a lot of that age can outgrow things.

We human to make mistakes, but it's a mistake to be too human.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG POT SHOTS

QUESTIONS—Question: "Do you and the majority of Washington newspaper correspondents think the record of the 80th congress was as bad as it has been painted by some writers, radio commentators and the like?"

ANSWER: "The answer is a matter of opinion. However, I believe that most fairly objective reporters in the news media would agree with me in feeling that the legislators did a rather good job, considering their handicaps."

QUESTIONS—Question: "The fact of the squawking has come from the leftish side, who dislike the generally conservative trend of the congress and the administration, particularly the anti-Russian move of recent months."

ANSWER: "Two achievements alone, in my opinion, entitle the recent session to high praise. The first was enactment of the Taft-Hartley act, which can produce the first improvement in labor-management relations in 10 years. Although it may require a year or two to put it into its provisions affecting labor unions as the Lewis-Green-Murray chorus wall."

The second concerns federal economy and finances. Although neither chamber cut the President's budget as heavily as they expected, they accomplished a reduction of almost $3,000,000,000. It was the first, concerted effort toward saving public money in almost a generation.

DEFENSE—The 80th congress did well by national defense. It unified the armed services so as to check off potential jealousies and competition that have weakened us in all wars. It provided for a national science foundation, which will provide the engineers, chemists, atomic experts and scientists which our nation as the United States needs in war or peace time.

It corrected years of carelessness in the selection of key men for federal jobs by passing a loyalty act along the lines proposed by President Truman.

The recent dismissal of several thousand allegedly subversive and dangerous individuals from state, war and navy service will provide the kind of legislation which we need.

With a few exceptions, the Republican-controlled legislature appropriated funds to implement the Truman-Marshall foreign policy, although they still do not know its real nature or intentions.

POLITICS—The 80th congress has been criticized chiefly, it is said, for its failure to enact social welfare legislation, certain measures on behalf of the veterans and for its passage of the Taft-Hartley act.

Frankly, I think the GOP leadership deliberately played politics with measures providing federal aid to housing, health and education. It will be smarter to act on these questions in 1948, a presidential year than now. That also applies to legislation favorable to the ex-GI's.

In my opinion, the Martin-Taft-Vandenberg crowd deliberately stalled on these issues for the reason I have given. By passing them next year (and special committees to investigate these questions during the recess have been named) they may pick up more votes in the presidential and congressional elections in November of 1948.

ARMY—"Is it true," asks L. G. M., Long Beach, Calif., "that the Skoda arms works in Czechoslovakia is working 24 hours a day turning out weapons for Russia?"

ANSWER: Our intelligence people cannot vouch for the shift schedule at Skoda, one of the most productive munitions plants in the world. But Russian aviation raids, as they did the Romanian oil fields.

Washington believes, however, that Moscow is producing intensively at all the arms centers she has established in Germany, the Balkans and elsewhere. It would be natural for her to place Skoda on an around-the-clock basis.

WEAK—"Congressman Wright Patman," writes R. K. Texarkana, Ark.-Tex., "says he is encountering strong opposition in congress to printing of a book on fascism in the United States. Is there such a threat from the right, as Patman says?"

ANSWER: I don't think so. At least not so much as there obviously is from the left. Mr. Patman may have due information that the rest of us do not know, but it will be a surprise if he has. Congress has opposed publication because it thought the project a waste of money.

It is understood that, in accord with the Texas member's recognized complex, the anti-fascist volume attacks corporations, so-called trusts, world carrels and so on. But, from the standpoint of the Mussolini, Franco and Lenin type of fascism, he has an extremely weak case, according to those who have advance glimpses of his opus.

TOPSOIL—Many readers have asked for more details on a recent column in which I said that we had exported valuable topsoil to other countries during the war and in our postwar program.

ANSWER: This topsoil is not shipped like fertilizer, rich earth or other soil-building products. It is reported as corn, wheat, cattle and in the form of other food.

Growing these crops year after year, under intensive farming methods, strips away the soil of essential life-giving chemicals and qualities. It necessitates extra expenditure for artificial fertilizers and the part of the farmer's income for artificial fertilizers, agricultural products, thereby resulting in short crops and high food prices at home. It is in that connection that I used the phrase, "exporting valuable topsoil."

VIEWS OF OTHERS

ENLARGE THE CIRCLE

That the Columbia river power projects are beneficial to the federal treasury, as well as to this region, is shown by the fact that surplus for the year ending June 30 was $2,253,230. The net earnings after charging for operation, maintenance, interest and depreciation, since 1939 total $22,852,177.

Those figures tell only a small part of the story. Columbia river aluminum plants gave one-third of the American aircraft used during the war and have advanced the schedule and that saved the treasury about $100 billion, part of which should be credited to the Pacific northwest area.

The entire power of the river is such that there should be no hesitancy on the part of congress about voting funds for McNary dam and other projects.

The earnings are such that there should be no question whatsoever about providing the most effective fisheries that can be constructed, so as to protect the salmon run.

The situation is such that there should be ample funds for a prompt and thorough study of the fishing subject. Pollution should be investigated and if we do not have the right formula for keeping our rivers clean the investigators should recommend a change in methods so as to speed up the work.

The idea of river development is to make the Columbia serve maximum usefulness and that includes the fishing industry, a valuable, time-honored business. Some people would draw a narrow circle and leave out the navigation feature or the fishing. A better way is to draw a larger circle and take them in. The Columbia is a valuable, time-honored business. It may be needed, also for continuous research work. The research work should cover the general usefulness of river nature. The aluminum business offers almost limitless possibilities and it is rational to believe that fish production can be tremendously increased if the right steps are taken.

It is a blunder to assume we must always do things the way they have been done heretofore. It was once thought sheep could be raised only on the open range, but Ohio has a greater sheep population than Oregon. We are told there are more deer in the mountains of Pennsylvania than we have out here in God's country. —Frederick West-Oregonian.

WASHINGTON CALLING BY MARQUIS CHILDS

A great deal has been written about the activity of lobbyists who hovered over congress during the session just ended. Veterans on capital hill say that seldom has there been such persistence coupled with such boldness on the part of the pressure boys.

The reorganization act adopted a year ago required registration with congress, listing the groups they represented and their salaries. To date about 850 lobbyists have registered.

Some of these lobbyists have spent most of their time working on congress. Some are executives of their respective corporations and more in and out of Washington. They might claim that lobbying was not the primary activity as specified in the law.

An analysis of the statute in the Yale law review expresses the belief, however, that corporations and executives would have to register even though lobbying was only one of their duties. And that same view is held by others who have studied the lobby provisions.

The department of justice is just now considering the list of lobbyists who have complied with the law. Attorney General Tom Clark will not confirm the report that the inquiry is to be extended to cover those who failed to register.

There is a question of the power of the attorney general in this instance. The law applies to congress and, under our system of divided powers, the executive branch of the government walks softly where the legislature and the judiciary walk with a heavy tread.

A law that anyone can conveniently ignore is far worse than no law at all. As foreign critics like to remind us, we are at the same time the most lawless and the most law-abiding people on earth.

When congress comes back, the provision covering lobbyists can be tightened. Means can be provided for enforcing the law. As it stands, it is little more than a well-meaning gesture, much as we usually end by making government and the lawmakers look pretty foolish.

BOB HOPE

I thought "flying saucers" in the headlines were silly, but now the front pages are filled with Howard Hughes and his flying party. If throwing a party is bad, I hate to think what congress will do to Atwater Kent.

Judy Cook, the swimming entertainer at Hughes' party, and a number of other witnesses have been sent to the capital to testify at Washington.

Judy was last sighted on her Australian crawl through the Panama canal.

Of course, now that miracle man Howard Hughes is mixed up in the clamor, things will be different. I understand that when the committee questioned him about his part in the "diver," he said, "I don't think anybody would buy a new car."

Despite all the talk I have great faith in Howard Hughes. After giving the nation Jane Russell, how can he let us down now with a motelywood airplane?

But congress isn't giving up so easily. They're digging back into Hughes' past. They claim that when he crashed that first plane into a Los Angeles apartment house, he violated the rent ceiling.

Everything he does hinges on Hughes' ability to get his mammoth, forty million dollar flying boat into the air and that's not an easy task. It's not that the plane is faulty, it just doesn't know how to get the 8,000 families out.

But nothing will stop Hughes. If he can't get that plane off the ground he'll probably lower the earth.

Analyst Avers English Crisis Threat to U. S.

By J. M. Roberts, Jr.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

It's an awesome thing when a British prime minister has to advocate that the mother of democracy resort to a warlike regimentation of labor to save her economic life, and when he says that the erstwhile banker for the world is down to her last four billion dollars.

He says he is fighting to prevent Britain from becoming "permanently dependent upon another country, however friendly."

But his words carry a strong note of portent that, unless the economic storm which is now sweeping Britain is dispasted through proposed co-operative measures, it will cross the Atlantic.

Key to Trade

Britain is the key to the world of trade in which America wishes to live. Britain must produce for export to pay for the food she imports. Her coal makes the process possible. The U. S. is a great supplier of both.

Our idea is to prime the British (and European) industrial pump with dollars and raw materials. Our hope is that the priming will produce a flow of goods which will enable return of the dollars and resumption of two-way trade.

Supplies Running Out

The big question is whether the priming will work before we run out of supplies.

The United States has been pouring billions of dollars worth of plasma into other nations for years. It is not only dollars, but also the little cause for worry. By evaluating in dollars, there is a tendency to obscure the basic facts. The real wealth they represent lies beneath the ground, in plowed fields, and in the skill and strength of manpower.

Priming Limited

In these circumstances the period of our pump-priming is necessarily limited. We must be realistic in materials of which we are short, by a producing world. We must have economically healthy customers or lower our standard of living.

That is why, as a foresighted banker, the United States is insisting that Britain and western Europe adopt certain economic policies, including all-out cooperation to help themselves.

Rudd entered Fair Acres Admiral and Queen of Destiny, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mallory named Lady's Vanity Pair as their entry and Dorothy was entered by Mrs. E. E. Bingham.

and Bob Fazio, who got most of their baseball the hard way, by doing, and not out of textbooks. "I've got so much to teach," Morris told Ye Old Sport Scrivener. "I learned that there was a right way to bat, to run, to throw and to catch a ball and in so doing make the most of the physical attributes with which you are endowed."

Morris said that every Magic Valley coach who would teach baseball should have attended the camp, and in fact he is right.

"They'd have better baseball teams next spring," he said. "Too, they would have learned how to exert their own brains in the game and probably set them on the way to a major league career."

4 Persons Meet Fiery Deaths as Plane Hits Vent

EVERETT, Mass., Aug. 7 (AP)—Thomas Mandell, 46, an official of the Carrier-Mandell Air Conditioning corporation, plunged to a fiery death with two daughters and the pilot of a chartered plane when it shot down into a gas-fume chimney of the Beacon oil plant, early today.

Police said the motor of the small craft apparently "conked out" over the big vent and "dropped" in like a dead pigeon.

Perishing with Mandell were his daughters, Anne 22 and Harriet, 19, and the pilot, Nelson Fell.

The battered bodies were found in debris at the bottom of the flue. Portions of the craft—identified by authorities as a Cessna—were stuck in the 25-foot high, 10-foot wide chimney. The wings were sheared as the ship hit the vent.

Witnesses reported that the crash was followed by a series of blasts, apparently caused by exploding gasoline in the plane. Firemen extinguished the flames quickly.

Company officials said that speedy shutting off of the plant's gas power averted a more serious disaster. The craft, flying in a low hanging fog, narrowly missed hitting a 200-foot high gasoline-cracking unit in the refinery plant.
