Small Cause for Cheer Found in Price Prediction

The nation's consumers, juggling their budgets to cope with continued high prices, found little, if any cheer today in a prediction by the bureau of agricultural economics on prices and supplies of major foods and farm products for 1948.

The outlook by the bureau indicated higher prices were on the way in several commodities, some of which appeared headed toward peak levels reached during and after the first World War. Yesterday for the sixth consecutive day the Associated Press index of the wholesale prices of 35 commodities set a new all time peak.

Group Studies 'Hardship' on Ban of Liquor

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—The citizens food committee, striving to save grain to feed hungry Europe, today began studying hardship cases expected from a distilling ban. Also under study is the possibility of calling for grain-saving Thursdays.

Luckman arranged a telephone conference with his seven-man executive committee to discuss acceptance of a "final offer" for grain-saving Thursdays. Luckman's aides told reporters not all of the committee members could get to Washington and a further meeting may be called if a decision is not reached in the telephone conference.

Luckman, who was reported to have been in Washington, said he had been in a meeting with the president's cabinet food committee and other problems.

Solons Offer 6 Changes in Grazing Plan

Six recommendations for changes in forest grazing policy have been submitted to Clinton P. Anderson, secretary of agriculture, by the house public lands subcommittee for consideration in final arrangements for 1948 adjustments this fall, according to a letter signed by the 10 congressmen on the subcommittee.

A copy of the letter has been received by E. U. McInire, Kimberly, who is a member of the public lands subcommittee of the Idaho Cattlemen's association. A copy of the letter was forwarded to McInire from P. E. Mollen, secretary of the American National Livestock association, Denver.

Seek Cooperation
All six recommendations made by the solons apparently are designed to secure better cooperation on grazing problems between the forest and stockmen. The congressional subcommittee, of which Rep. John Sanborn, Hagerman, is a member, recently completed a tour of western areas. The tour was based on observations and hearings held in western states during the summer.

First recommendation made by the solons was that stockmen holding forest area grazing permits be given more encouragement by the forest service in cooperation for range improvement and soil and water conservation practices. It was pointed out that some cases had been found where public officials rejected the offers of stockmen to furnish seed for reseeded certain grazing areas.

Test Plan Urged
A three-year test period during which there would be no reduction in the number of permits was recommended to determine the efficacy of the changes previously enforced. The suggestion was emphasized by reference to scarcity of meat on domestic world markets which would make the test period "imperative" according to the solons.

It was also recommended that a system of impartial appeal boards be established to eliminate the condition where the holder of a grazing permit can appeal an official decision only to a higher official in the same bureau.

Written Agreements
Another change recommended was use of written agreements or promises in matters connected with a grazing permit. The change is urged as a means to protect stockmen who have found in the past that oral agreements or promises are not always observed following switches in personnel.

The representatives also suggested that record hearings be started in matters pertaining to grazing problems, with stockmen permitted to retain attorneys for technical and semi-legal procedures.

Local Statistics Asked
Last recommendation was that local conditions be taken into consideration in any livestock operations in forest areas are curtailed. The group recommended that consideration be given to economic conditions affecting the operation of livestock operations and the effect of proposed reductions on the stockman, local community and tax structure. It was suggested that community leaders and experienced stockmen be consulted in such matters.

In closing their letter of recommendations, the house subcommittee urged that full and complete use be made of the forest resources of the United States. Such use should include watershed protection, conservation of wildlife, development of recreational areas, grazing and other utilization, it was noted.

Base Operators' Leases Prepared

Members of the Twin Falls airport commission, two base operators, Mayor Herbert C. Lauterbach and City Attorney J. H. Blandford drafted provisions for base operators' leases at a meeting of the commission Tuesday night.

The lease agreements will be drawn up by City Attorney Blandford for final approval at a later date although a paragraph by paragraph approval was made by all parties of the rough draft.

Provisions approved include protection for both the city and the operators who will lease the land from the city on which to build their shops, hangars, and other facilities. No action was taken by the commission regarding bids on the proposed administration building.

Most of Celebrities Same as "Ordinary" Folk, Boyle Says

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP)—Celebrity roundup:
Three young school teachers on a visit to Manhattan decided they wanted to see some celebrities.

Figuring that even the shyest of the famous have to come out to eat, they decided the best at a king ground would be a well known midtown restaurant at lunch time. They came early and got a good table. The food was a wonder, the check was more reasonable than they expected.

ed, but the junk was a complete flop for the girls. "Not a single celebrity in the whole place," they walked. "We might as well go shopping."

As the disappointed teachers left, they passed a bushy-haired man at the next table. He was Leopold Stokowski, the symphony conductor. The mountaintop-faced man they passed unnoticed in a corner was Bert Lahr, the comedian.

The truth is few people look less like celebrities in real life than the celebrities themselves. They don't have to. The most glamorous girls you see about town aren't famous. They'd just like to be. S. L. Bakers Will Hike Bread Price

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 22 (AP)—Salt Lake bakers will soon have to raise the price of bread, it was learned today.

The reason for the anticipated price boost is that with the rise in cost of grains the bakers will soon have to pay more for flour.

A. C. Schwerts, president-treasurer of the Holsum Bread company, revealed that most Salt Lake bakers are out about out of the lower cost flours.

But Schwerts explained the time for the price advance "will depend upon individual circumstances."

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

SPOKANE—Although Franklin D. Roosevelt undoubtedly died in the belief that his conservation of natural resources and the release of mighty forces of nature in big game and streams would be his most lasting contribution to American greatness, he is not the only man who has played a role in the construction of giant dams, irrigation projects and to attract population to the great northwest.

Men who helped to inspire and carry out these great modern miracles insist that he simply seized on a fire-political opportunity. In the course of their importance, they give credit for the Grand Coulee power and irrigation system, which has transformed this territory into an "inland empire" of its own, to a generally unknown lawyer named E. F. Blaine, to Mal-Oen George Goethals, builder of the Panama canal, to Col. Walter L. Hoge, who was in charge of the dam at Washington, and, finally, to the late President Roosevelt. It is a story with vivid interest and some historical importance.

VERNON—"Old Mr. Blaine," as they refer to him, was an excellent railroad lawyer and a community spirit. He saw the need for a dam to control the flow of water in industry and agriculture, although he emphasized the farm production feature after water had been brought in by the aid of semi-arid land of eastern Washington.

Local economists and engineers framed blueprints for tapping the stupor of the river, to a generally unknown lawyer named E. F. Blaine, to Mal-Oen George Goethals, builder of the Panama canal, to Col. Walter L. Hoge, who was in charge of the dam at Washington, and, finally, to the late President Roosevelt. It is a story with vivid interest and some historical importance.

WATER—Next, the empire builders looked around for a sufficient supply of water. They evolved a plan for tapping the stupor of the Canadian border, the Pend d'Oreille, and channelling it into the great construction of Russia's mighty Volga, which was destroyed during the "war" which just below it. It was a plan to draw water from the northern stream. Had that program gone forward, his profitable enterprise would have been left high and dry.

Partially to protect his interest, he visited and made an inspection of the Columbia basin's possibilities. And he found a dam where the store dam should be. But not even he saw the possibilities for development of power. This was in the early thirties.

EXPENDITURES—The Hoover administration dabbled with the plan, but the depression ruled out the dam. It was not until the Roosevelt administration and beautiful the politician named Blaine stepped in. The Hoover man of Washington resumed the struggle with the Roosevelt administration and beautiful the politician named Blaine stepped in. The Hoover man of Washington resumed the struggle with the Roosevelt administration and beautiful the politician named Blaine stepped in.

UNPOPULARITY—Incidentally, two other Roosevelt projects, the Snake and the Snake river dam, which explains why any proposed Wallace-ikes third party or anti-Taft-Hartley movement may not place emphasis on liberal opposition. The two enemies of the unpopularity contest are, obviously, former Secretaries Wallace and Ickes.

WELCOME SMACKDOWN

If the Taft-Hartley act never accomplishes anything else, it can rest on its laurels, confident that it has led to the rap heard round the picket lines, and proud of its achievement.

John L. Lewis had been the only one of 13 AFL vice-presidents to refuse to sign a non-union affidavit, then required of all union officials before the union could use the national relations board facilities. So the AFL passed a resolution, under his loud and typically vituperous protests, that abolished his title, permitting all AFL unions to participate in the NLRB process. So we could all do well to keep in mind that the Vishinsky oratory and the harangues of the Russian press are cut from the same bolt of cloth, and that they are tailored chiefly for the ears of the folks back home. It's right, and his statement is worth remembering.

FOR HOME CONSUMPTION

Grove Patterson, Toledo, O., editor, says Russia's Andrei Vishinsky "fills the record for the sake of the folks back home." It's right, and his statement is worth remembering.

The U. N. general assembly is an impressive sounding board, but Mr. Vishinsky's use of it does not add truth or dignity to his accusations. Nor do we think that the U. N. delegates are overly impressed. So we could all do well to keep in mind that the Vishinsky oratory and the harangues of the Russian press are cut from the same bolt of cloth, and that they are tailored chiefly for the ears of the folks back home. It's right, and his statement is worth remembering.

U. S. Crying, But Goes on With Buying

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. America are crying over the high cost of living but going full speed ahead with most of their buying plans.

A federal reserve board survey of the financial position and buying plans of consumers, indicates today that they have not let the rising cost of living shake their intentions to purchase washing machines, refrigerators, radios, furniture and the like.

In a separate report, the bureau of agricultural economics said that most signs point to a continued high level of employment, incomes and prosperity in 1948.

Notes Family Adjustment

The survey, made at the end of July, noted how families are adjusting budgets to higher prices for food and how they feel about clothing purchases.

It found:

1. Two out of three families, regardless of income group, reported they were spending more for food since the first of the year, but three out of five said they were buying less clothing than usual.

2. A substantial portion of the middle group which kept normal spending on food down to former levels—especially those in the under $2,000 income group—reduced the quality of the food they bought and often canned or preserved much of their own food.

Trim Other Expenses

3. Those who spent more in order to maintain the customary quality and volume of food—and they included about half of those with incomes under $2,000—try to make up for it by trimming other expenses or cutting down on savings.

The summary said, "consumers were generally optimistic about their future well-being."

'Homecoming' at Albion Attracts 300 'Old Grads'

SOUTHERN IDAHO COLLEGE OF EDUCATION, Albion, Oct. 22—Approximately 300 alumni of SICE and the old Albion State Normal school attended homecoming on the campus last week end to see the SICE grid team down Tropic college and join in festivities which included crowning of Mary Lou Christensen, Idaho Falls, as homecoming queen.

Miss Christensen was crowned queen during halftime of the football contest. She later resigned over the homecoming ball in the new student union building.

Malcolm Alfred, Burley, president of the Associated Students, announced that the training school had won a plaque for having the best decorated building on the campus. The plaque was the prize in a homecoming sign and decoration contest.

Some 225 persons, including alumni, students and faculty members, attended the homecoming banquet.

Biggest Beet Crop in History on Way to Bins

By trucks and railroad cars, the largest Magic Valley sugar beet crop and record is now pouring into the hungry maws of processing plants at Twin Falls, Rupert and Burley. These photos, made at the Twin Falls factory of the Amalgamated Sugar company, show scenes typical of the present run. At top, a truckload of beets hits the conveyor belt to be lifted onto the storage pile. Below at right, District Manager Harry A. Elcock and William McCrea, public relations director, view the steadily growing beet pile, eventually to be turned into sugar for bulk storage in the new silos at left. The 38 carloads of raw beets at bottom that had just arrived from Curry and Pester in the west end of Twin Falls county represent only a 13-hour slicing run for the factory. At lower right, Betty Taylor, sugar company secretary, operates the teletype machine that is clacking out favorable reports these days on the bumper crop and heavy processing run. Sugar Firm's Teletypes Carry Good News on Area Beet Crop

By JOHN BROZMAN

Teletype machines linking the intricate system of factories and offices of the Amalgamated Sugar company are carrying good news out of Magic Valley these Indian summer days.

The report to the head office from District Manager Harry Elcock would read something like this: "BIGGEST CROP IN MAGIC VALLEY HISTORY—515,000 TONS NOW 40 PER CENT OFF OF GROUND. THE 202,000 TONS NOW HARVESTED IS 10 W H I G H SUGAR CONTENT. APPROXIMATELY 31,000 ACRES PLANTED SUGAR BEETS GREATEST ON RECORD. TWIN FALLS, BURLEY AND RUPERT PLANTS PROCESSING 5,500 TONS EACH DAILY. TWIN FALLS FACTORY SETTING NEW RECORD OF MORE THAN ONE MILLION BAGS THIS YEAR."

Supplementing this condensed version of the present outlook for a bumper crop, Manager Elcock disclosed that the 515,000 tons on the way for this year outstrip by nearly 60,000 tons the best year of 1941 when tonnage hit 425,000.

Besides the heavy 31,000 acreage yields per acre have been holding up well in Twin Falls county, fields have been running at about 20 tons per acre; while on the north side acreage has been between 18 and 19 tons. Twin Falls "per" here is the Burley-Rupert sector has been about 17. Average yearly acreage planted has been about 25,000.

When the processing runs end Nov. 15 after starting on Sept. 25, it is expected that the Twin Falls factory alone will have produced 1,041,000 bags of 100 pounds each. This will be the first time the local plant has topped the one million bag mark.

Completed just in the nick of time to enable storage of this sugar in bulk are the new elevator-type storage bins capable of holding 45,000,000 pounds of bulk sugar, or nearly half of the 94,100,000 pounds to be produced this year. Combined output of the three plants in this district will be around 2,208,000 bags.

Around the plants proper, 1,050 persons are employed, or 850 per plant. This does not include the thousands engaged in the actual harvest in the fields.

Harvesting is about equally divided between new machines and hand labor, although the prevalence of mechanization is in the west end of Twin Falls county. Approximately 100 men are needed in the Hazelton-Eden area for topping and an effort is being made to obtain Mexican nationals to meet this shortage, according to Manager Elcock.

Turning to the weather, the official pointed out that it has been highly favorable from the viewpoint of actual harvesting, although recently it has been a little too warm to preserve beets in storage piles.

With the harvest at its peak, W. A. Denning, Ogden, president of the board of directors of the sugar company, with an entourage of other board members, is now making an inspection tour of all plants, starting with the factory at Lewiston, Utah, Monday afternoon they were at Rupert, Tuesday at Pines, and Nampa, and Wednesday at Twin Falls.

While in Twin Falls they were to attend a luncheon at the Rogerson hotel to be attended by Harry Elston and Curtis A. Turner, vice presidents of the Twin Falls Bank and Trust company; Guy E. Shearer, president of the Fidelity National bank; Roy Painter, cashier of that bank; and Earl Balle, Gooding, president of the First Security bank.

Girl Believes Dreams; Dad Finds Family

MODESTO, Calif., Oct. 22 (AP)—Barbara Hanson, 17, of Los Angeles, believes in dreams. For years her father, Clinton S. Hanson, 44, tried to establish her true identity after his foster mother told him she had taken him from his mother at the age of three months. The foster mother was loath to tell him more.

His wife wrote friends of the foster mother in Pueblo, Colo., learned from them that Hanson's parents were named Spott and that they lived in Colorado when the foster mother took him.

Two months ago Barbara was visiting in Colorado. She dreamed that she saw her father going to a funeral in a big black automobile. In the dream other mourners told her father that he would find his family.

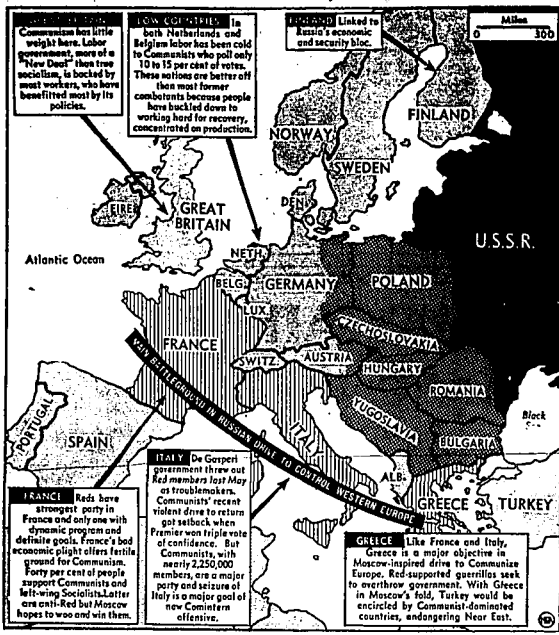

Barbara felt so strongly about the dream that she stopped in Fruita, Colo., to try to establish a connection and asked an old-timer if he knew of a family named Spott around there. He recalled the name and gave her the name of a woman in Garfield, Utah.

Barbara told her mother the woman in Utah, received a letter that she had found her father named Stewart Spott living in Modesto.

Last Wednesday Hanson telephoned Stewart Spott. He learned that the whole family was gathered at Stewart's home. Stewart's wife had died and the family had just come from the funeral.

On Saturday Hanson came to Modesto. He found that Stewart Spott was his brother. At Stewart's home he also found his father, Hugh Spott, 68, and another brother, T. Sgt. Hugh S. Spott, who is stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Princess Assuming Her Royal Task Is Just a Girl After All

LONDON, Oct. 22 (AP)—Royal heralds in medieval times of gold and scarlet trumpeted a fanfare Tuesday as the ceremonial opening of a new season of parliament. Elizabeth was presented to the British empire as its next ruler. The princess Elizabeth made her debut as the crown princess to the throne at a ceremony opening of a new season of parliament. She sat at the king's right hand. Only the heir to the throne does that distinction. The last to do so was the Prince of Wales, in the closing years of the reign of George V.

Elizabeth, the girl who will be married Nov. 20, still will be heir presumptive officially. By tradition it must never be assumed that the king and queen will have no male issue. But as clearly as though it had been clarified in words, the princess in the long-sleeved gown of dusty pink ermine was being presented today to the empire as its future queen, providence willing.

The ancient ceremony appeared to provide the princess with an awkward 20 minutes. From the dim distance of the pibian press gallery she appeared to fidget.

At the state procession entered the crowded house of lords, she walked slowly and alone, a few feet behind King George and Queen Elizabeth.

The king and queen ascended the three steps to the dais and sat upon the ancient carved and lacquered throne seats. The princess stood in front of her rather ugly chair on the second step at the king's right.

Mrs. Iverson, 70, Wendell, Passes

WENDLELL, Oct. 22—Mrs. Anna Catherine Hummer Iverson, 70, resident of Wendell for 20 years, died Tuesday morning at St. Valentine's hospital here following a lengthy illness.

She is survived by seven sons, Leo and Harvey; Gooding, Vernon and Robert; Lon, Jerome, Volney, Bert, Wendell, and Blaine; and Ashland, Ore.; two daughters, Mrs. Lorena Taylor, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Helen Gooding; two sisters, three brothers, 26 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday at the Wendell Presbyterian church with the Rev. N. Smith, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in the Wendell cemetery under the direction of the Thompson funeral home.

PTA Open House Draws Big Crowd

The junior-senior high school "open house" Monday night drew the largest attendance in years according to High School Principal John D. Platt. He said the faculty and school executives were very encouraged by the turnout which indicates parents are interested in school activities and accomplishments.

"Open house" is sponsored annually by the Junior-Senior Parent-Teacher association. A short PTA meeting with Mrs. O. M. Bales presiding in the absence of Mrs. Wallace Bond, president, was held prior to the informal get-acquainted period. Mrs. Bales reported contributions from the parents have assured the success of the hot-lunch program.

The next meeting of the Junior-Senior PTA will be held Nov. 30. The general public is invited to attend the discussion of the over-all school situation. It is hoped that the meeting will help to clarify the present organization of school administration.

Love Not the Nicest Thing, Expert Avers

CHICAGO, Oct. 22—Love is not the sweetest thing about marriage, Sociologist Ernest W. Burgess said today.

He said a man and woman who get married because they are mostly in love don't stand as good a chance for happiness as the couple who wed so they will have someone to talk with at the breakfast table every morning.

Burgess, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, said love has been overrated as the determining factor in predicting a happy marriage.

"Companions Engage"

He thinks marriages of companionship are happier than unions based solely on romantic love or infatuation. It is more important, he says, that a couple be able to discuss each other's views on such things as the stock market and the corn flakes.

Burgess, a bachelor, expounded his views on marriage in the second of a series of academic lectures on how to predict a happy home life.

He said he picked up on 528 couples in Illinois by means of a scientifically prepared questionnaire and had just about an average number of differences of background and opinion.

About 135 have fewer grounds for acrimony in the home than might be desirable. More than 200 were reasonably congenial and the remainder had just about an average number of differences of background and opinion.

ACA Chairman Asks Reports To Speed Pay

Farmers who have completed conservation practices under the 1947 farm program should report three practices to the county agricultural conservation committee, according to Ben Jansen, chairman.

The official pointed out that assistance payments to farmers can be made earlier if they will call at the ACA office in Twin Falls as soon as possible to report these practices. Farmers have the responsibility of supplying the committee with evidence that practices have been carried out.

"Each year there are a few farmers who fail to report on practices completed, and then, after the deadline is past come in and want to know why payments haven't been received," Chairman Jansen said.

"They point out they have completed the practices in accordance with specifications and that the assistance upon which they are depending to pay for seed or for work done has not arrived. Failure to report practices by the deadline often causes them to forfeit the payment, which otherwise would have been earned."

Funds to assist in carrying out conservation practices are allocated on a yearly basis, and for that reason a deadline date has to be set, Jansen pointed out.

We, The Women

By RUTH MILLETT, Staff Writer

Are you making a baby sitter out of grandma?

judging from the number of letters I've had from older women during the past few years, a lot of young married couples are having to answer "yes" to that question.

It is a part of a typical letter: "My son and his wife have a lot of friends and like to go out and about, and they need a baby sitter."

"Sometimes they telephone ahead and ask me if I'll keep the children while they play golf, go off for a week-end or get together with a group of their friends for an evening. But often they just drive by and say, 'How about keeping the kids for us' and I'm stuck."

"I don't like to refuse them, but since they have money for recreation I seem to me they should put some of it aside to pay a baby sitter who wants to go out."

Instead of imposing on me, I'm glad to help grandma. The fed-up grandmother is right, of course. No young couple has a right to make an unwilling baby sitter out of grandma.

When a baby sitter is needed, grandma seems to be the candidate. She doesn't charge by the hour, with extra rates for after midnight.

What grandma ought to do, of course, is to announce at the birth of her first grandchild, "I'm delighted to be a grandmother, but I don't ever wish to be a baby sitter."

Dear "Toff";

You know we have been busy for some time, developing a new loaf of brown or whole wheat bread.

We have finally perfected a formula for this type of bread which we believe will win the immediate approval of all those consumers who prefer a loaf containing more of the darker portion of wheat. Now we are ready to go into production.

The bread will be marketed in an attractive plaid wrapper and will be called "Butter-Krust SCOTCH ALLWHEAT". It will go on sale in Magic Valley some time next week.

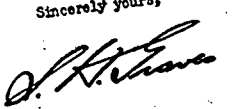

In announcing this new loaf to the public, which is your job, let's not resort to any Hollywood superlatives. We make no claims that this new bread is any "cure-all", that it will grow hair on bald heads or prevent children from having mumps, chicken pox or any other childhood diseases.

I have been in the food business in this valley since 1911 and expect to remain in that business. I know the popularity of BUTTER-KRUST has been established solely on the basis of quality.

It is with all this in mind that we introduce "Butter-Krust SCOTCH ALLWHEAT"—confident that it's a loaf of bread the homefolks right here in Magic Valley will like.

You go ahead and let the people know about this new product. If it doesn't measure up to our expectations, it won't be because we haven't done our best to produce an excellent loaf of bread, with the best ingredients, equipment and processes available.

Sincerely yours,

PIN-DOWN GIRL: Short Step Starts Bowler on Balanced Glide

SPORTS EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth of a series written for the NEA and Times-News.

By CATHERINE FELLMETH Women's World Champion Using the four-step approach, the first step, taken on the right foot by a right-handed bowler, is a short one. This short step starts the leg...

down the approach in a well-balanced glide. At the end of the third and fourth steps are increasing steps. The momentum gained allows the bowler to take the ball with comparative ease. The bowler do the work. That's an old and true saying. If the footwork is rhythmic and the delivery is coordinated with it, the ball will almost deliver itself. Putting it in the right place at the end of the approach permits the ball to do its best work. The key to this approach on a straight line, to the right about one-half of a step.

Always station yourself at the same spot on the approach, depending on the type of ball you roll. Move forward on a straight line parallel with the sides of the alley.

Delegate Ends Eastern Tour, Packing Study

John W. Noh, member, has recently returned from an eastern tour to study meat packing and processing and market conditions under auspices of Swift and company as a representative of the Idaho Woolgrowers association.

Making the trip was a delegate from each of the 13 western sheep-producing states, as well as representatives of agricultural colleges, one economist and the secretary of the National Woolgrowers association. The Kimberly rancher and sheepman was selected by the Idaho Woolgrowers organization as its representative, and he will submit a report on his observations at the Idaho Woolgrowers convention to be held in January.

Study Packing

After starting the journey on Sept. 28, Noh joined other members of the entourage at Chicago Sept. 28. There they spent three days studying packing and processing and other procedures of the meat industry at the Swift and company plants.

Then the group traveled to meet centers in Boston, New York City, Philadelphia and Baltimore where they viewed procedures and facilities of different plants in the industry.

Of a less technical but equally interesting nature were the studies conducted among consumers in which members of the delegation had an opportunity to sample public opinion and to view the wide range of markets into which the product is eventually distributed.

Ration Opposes

Interviewing eastern housewives, the group found strong sentiment against rationing, as buyers felt they would eventually lead to revival of the "black market" and exorbitant prices.

Members also had an opportunity to view the two extremes of canning in buying in Chicago. At the lower priced places at which down-out buyers often confined their purchases to "two potatoes, two cabbage leaves and a one cent box of matches"—just enough to prepare one thrifty meal. At the other extreme, they found markets catering to well-to-do shoppers who did their buying accompanied by chauffeur, and who selected the most choice meat cuts.

Studies meeting officials of the Swift and company research department, Noh attended a dinner meeting with Charles Smith, chairman of the board of directors of the large concern.

Reluctant Immigrants

These are a couple of DC's—displaced camels. And they just don't like the idea of taking up residence in the Philadelphia zoo. The dramatics apparently miss the old east Africa atmosphere, but their keepers are determined to make them feel at home. (NEA photo)

Inquiry Slated to Find Exemptions In Pay-Hour Act

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—The wage and hour administration must resolve Dec. 2 to consider a new salary yardstick for determining who is exempt from the 40-hour week.

The wage-hour law, requiring premium pay for work over 40 hours a week, exempts executive, administrative and professional employees, but it leaves to the wage-hour administration wide discretion as to what workers come under those classifications.

Under the regulations adopted in 1940, one of the requirements for exemption of executives is that they receive at least $20 a week on a salary basis. An administrative employee must receive $200 a month or $50 a week on a salary or fee basis.

"Professional" employees must receive at least $200 a month.

The UIC United Electrical workers, citing living cost changes, asked for amendments to require that an employee be compensated on a salary or fee basis at a rate of not less than $200 a month in order to qualify as an executive, administrative or professional employee.

Grain Regulation 'Wouldn't Work,' Solons Informed

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 22 (AP)—Consumer and farm cooperative representatives last night suggested government controls to regulate use of grain, but a Portlander who helped formulate OPA grain price codes asserted they wouldn't work.

W. E. Sanford, manager of the Continental Grain company here, told a congressional price hearing group that his experience formulating wartime grain controls indicated production would suffer.

When asked by Rep. Walt Hiran, R. Wash., if he thought the government should freeze the price of grain, Sanford answered "no."

Earlier, N. J. Barbare, president of the Portland Grain exchange, told the two senators and three representatives, sitting here as the western subcommittee of the joint congressional committee on the economic report, that "speculation (in grain) in itself is not responsible for present high prices."

"I believe that the violence of the market movements since early September has been largely due to intangibles emanating from government officials," Barbare said.

Drive-in Theater Struck by Winds

High winds that struck Twin Falls and Magic Valley Monday night are reported to have done considerable damage as well as caused a near panic at the Motor-Vu theater drive-in movie, east of the city.

According to Deputy Sheriff Dwight Shaw, who was attending the motion picture at the time the wind hit, sections of an aluminum fence, to keep Jayco park lights from shining in the movie audience's eyes, were hurled about by the high winds.

Shaw said the theater management warned drivers of cars parked near the fence to move and told all other patrons to stay in their cars away from the flying pieces of metal.

The deputy sheriff reported that the din created by the large sheets of metal being buffeted about by the wind added to the excitement caused by motorists trying to move their cars from near the fence.
