U. S. Arms Aid to Chinese Urged by Ex-Envoy to Russia

WASHINGTON, March 2 (AP)—William C. Bullitt, former ambassador to Russia, advised congress today to vote $100,000,000 for "military supplies to China."

Bullitt testified in a house floor affairs committee which is considering the administration's request for $100,000,000 aid for China.

The administration's program includes military aid to finance food and other consumer imports and for improvement of railroads, roads and facilities. Some congressmen have urged that the program be broadened to include weapons the Chinese government can use in fighting communists.

Bullitt accused the state department, which drafted the aid program, of "blindness and apathy" toward China.

"China is the key to the entire Pacific," he said. "If our government should permit the communists to take over China, it would have failed to bar the way to attacking our country by overwhelming masses of Stalin-driven armies. We cannot successfully oppose communist conquest of the world by opposing communism in Europe only to stand.

extension service and the Idaho Woolgrowers' association.

O. Curtis Hughes, supervisor of the Montana wool laboratory, Bozeman, Mont., spoke about the structure of wool and stressed the fact that wool has not been surpassed by synthetic products. He said during the war both the army and navy tried to find a substitute for wool in plastics and synthetics, but that the attempts were not successful.

The Rambouillet sheep, which does not have wool over its eyes and does not have wrinkles on the body, was discussed by J. E. Norby, director of the U. S. sheep experiment station, Dubois, Mont., and said that the sheep is well suited to range conditions in Idaho.

A. M. Coon, manager of the Western Wool Storage company, Portland, Ore., discussed skirting, or removal of grade wool from sheep. Some portions of the wool on the sheep, including the neck and leg wool, are inferior to the other portions. A fleece according to Coon.

He told the group that before the fleece is shipped the wool should be graded or skirted and the best and inferior portions tagged.

Superior wool storage school was O. W. Hickman, head of the animal husbandry department at the University of Idaho, Moscow, who discussed sheep problems.

Bill Smith, George Cook, Elwood Rich, Dave Little and M. C. Glass arranged details of the school which was one of two held in southern Idaho.

A. M. Coon, manager of the Western Wool Storage company, Portland, Ore., discussed skirting, or removal of grade wool from sheep. Some portions of the wool on the sheep, including the neck and leg wool, are inferior to the other portions. A fleece according to Coon.

He told the group that before the fleece is shipped the wool should be graded or skirted and the best and inferior portions tagged.

Superior wool storage school was O. W. Hickman, head of the animal husbandry department at the University of Idaho, Moscow, who discussed sheep problems.

O. Curtis Hughes, supervisor of the Montana wool laboratory, Bozeman, Mont., spoke about the structure of wool and stressed the fact that wool has not been surpassed by synthetic products. He said during the war both the army and navy tried to find a substitute for wool in plastics and synthetics, but that the attempts were not successful.

Ferries Stop Transport on Puget Sound

SEATTLE, March 2 (AP)—A ferry company serving more than 100,000 Puget sound residents quit business yesterday after nearly 30 years of operation, leaving commuters to use makeshift cross-sound transportation.

The Puget Sound Navigation company, biggest ferry operator on the west coast and one of the largest in the world, tied up 18 ferries and 11 routes last midnight, and stopped paying its 750 employees.

Cap. Alex. Peabody, company president, said it quit because it was losing money rapidly under state-established rates.

LST Used

Commuters got to work in an assortment of craft-excursion boats, chartered yachts and small private boats. The navy used an LST (landing ship, tank) to transport workers gratis to and from the naval shipyard at Bremerton. The makeshift vessels carried only passengers. Some motorists drove 128 miles around the head of Puget sound via Olympia to get to Bremerton, a distance of 18 miles by water.

Back of the controversy is a sharp drop in ferry business from wartime peaks.

$255,000 Loss

The company reported about $255,000 profit last year under a temporary 35 per cent rate increase. But the state ordered the rate brought back to 10 per cent, and directed the company to refund $650,000 to ferry passengers. Peabody said this left the company $225,000 behind, and that it was losing money even more rapidly this year.

Meantime the emergency transportation, both for passengers and freight, was costing more than the former ferry rates; in some instances twice as much.

State Girding for Wage Tax 'Rush'

BOISE, March 2 (AP)—A last-minute rush is expected at the office of the state income tax division in two weeks—as usual.

P. G. Neill, director, said that although current filings are running slightly ahead of last year, there would be the last-minute line-up of persons seeking assistance from supervisors stationed throughout the state 10-12 p.m. with returns.

He said the limited number of employees would be "overstretched." About 44,889 returns out of an anticipated 140,000 have been filed to date, Neill said. He expects the total nearly $2,000,000 dollars. About $2,000,000 is anticipated from state income taxes.

Traffic Fines

Traffic and overtime parking fines, including a $12 speeding fine, were levied against 17 violators in Twin Falls police court Tuesday.

Assessed $1 for overtime parking were Grant C. Zitting, Shige Ogasawara, William Scott, T. A. Whitney, Dick Orabel, Glenn Kolord, J. H. Breckenridge, E. E. Andrews, C. Kelley, Mabel Berube, H. G. Hayes and Mrs. J. E. Hill.

An $12 fine for failure to halt at a stop sign was paid by Bob M. Crawford; $12 by Andy Romjue for speeding; and $2 for improper parking by Albert Brown, E. R. Henderson and Bill Cronin, police report.

Oil Lack May Cause Ration; Expert Avers

CHICAGO, March 2 (AP)—The U.S. must import 1,200,000 barrels of crude oil daily by 1951 or face rationing, an oil industry official said today.

L. Majewski, chairman of the Kansas-Oklahoma regional advisory committee of the National Petroleum Council, made the prediction at a committee session. The session was called to consider ways of meeting fuel shortages.

"We are 400,000 barrels short daily now," Majewski, president of an oil company, said. "Consumption this year will be 6,250,000 barrels daily. Next year it will be 6,500,000. In 1950 it will be 6,800,000 daily. This demand cannot be met domestically. We either import or ration," he concluded.

Greeley Salesman Injured in Wreck

GOODING, March 2 — W. R. Stevens, Greeley, Colo., salesman, was treated for slight injuries at the Gooding county hospital Sunday evening following an accident three and one-half miles south of Gooding.

Stevens, driving alone, reported that his car skidded on a turn in the highway and turned completely over at the side of the road about 7 p.m. Sunday.

No other car was involved in the accident, according to Deputy Sheriff R. O. Gates who investigated. Only slight damage was done to the car and Stevens was dislodged from the hospital Monday morning.

STEELE'S PRICE INCREASE

It is encouraging to see that the advance in steel prices has caused as much interest—if not as much anger and political heat—in congress as the drop in food costs in recent weeks.

The joint economic committee, headed by Senator Taft, wants to know why this $5-a-ton rise in semi-finished products, why it takes place at this time, and how come this uniform sum was announced almost simultaneously by the big steel companies. These are pertinent questions.

One reason given for the increase is that coal and scrap prices have gone up. A steel company officer, asked if it was also meant to take care of expected wage increases, said, no, steel prices weren't high enough to compensate for past increases.

Yet the President's economic report last month showed that profits of the industry's leading members in 1947 would amount to more than $480,000,000 after taxes—almost double the biggest profit of any year and about three times the 1939 profits.

Steel spokesmen say that the price advance is "nothing to get alarmed about," because it affects only a small percentage of total output. That reminds us of the visitor from India who was complaining that the American press had exaggerated the importance of the riots in his country, which actually had affected only 5 per cent of the population. He forgot to add that 5 per cent of India's population is 20,000,000.

The steel price increase is 10 per cent, and applies to 11 per cent of the industry's output. Well-informed guessers say this may add $68,000,000 a year to consumers' bills. They also think that the present rise will be followed by an upshot in the price of finished products.

People in the industry defend their current high profits—and, by inference, another price hike to keep them high—by saying that these profits are not out of line with those of other advancing commodities. They also point to the gray market as proof that bidders are prepared to pay more than the industry is asking under "voluntary price control."

The first excuse is a broad one, and it is contradicted by the slump in the grain market with its resulting cut in food prices. The gray market in steel is, of course, the result of an excess of demand over supply.

The industry will be hard put to contradict Sen. Ralph Flinders' statement that "the industry as fundamental as steel there are public questions involved as well as questions of private business policy. Any rise in prices at this time and under these conditions has to be defended on public grounds as well as for business reasons."

Steel's present move obviously adds to inflationary pressure. It will push up the price of consumer goods all along the line. It will justify demands for pay increases, tend to push prices still higher.

The steel industry's defense will have to be good if it can't do this doesn't add up to a grim outlook for everyone—including the steel industry.

SALES TALK

Lawrence B. Sizer, sales promotion manager of Marshall and Company, has addressed some thoughts on the new affairs to retail merchants through the trade magazine, Stores. His language is of a kind that merchants understand.

"What do you do," he asks, "when the unscrupulous fly-by-night competition does the street bazaar a busy push for his phony stuff. You don't want a line telling him or the world that he's a phony. No, you unlimber your biggest guns in behalf of your own merchandise that you know is top-grade stuff—stuff you'll stand behind."

"Well, the world can't tell the difference between phony junk being foisted off on a lot of people—and the amazing thing is that we sit by and take it. In your business that isn't good enough. It isn't good enough in your nation's affairs either. You've got to prove your merchandise is as pretty buy... and that's precisely why you are in business today and the phones are out."

"We've got to stay in the democracy business, too."

That's a pretty good sales talk, for consumer—and merchant.

A CASE OF YES OR NO

Former Supreme Court Justice Owen Roberts has sent a blunt letter to Rep. Leo Allen, who, as chairman of the house rules committee, has shelved the Towe universal military training bill and told reporters that "the bill will not become a law."

Citing Mr. Allen's prewar voting record against all defense measures, Mr. Roberts wrote: "As an individual member of congress it is your right and duty to vote your own convictions. My right is to tell the other 334 members of the house are equally entitled to vote their convictions."

If Mr. Allen agrees with that statement, he must let the bill come to the house floor for debate and a vote. If he does not agree, he cannot escape the charge of repudiating the Democratic process of the government of which he is a member.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—The prospect that a Wallace bloc of radical democrats may hold a small balance of power in the next house of congress has caused the leaders of both major parties. They fear that such a setup might transform the national legislature into the same kind of squabbling, unparliamentary body that has been so many European governments.

In light here, it would be possible for neither Democrats nor Republicans to return a clear majority. It has happened several times in recent years, each might win about 200 of the 435 seats.

It would be a situation, according to the pro-Moscow candidate's views on foreign policy would considerably influence the party especially on key committees and in debate.

COMPROMISE—The GOP and Democratic rejection could outvote them at any time by their forces. But whenever the major parties are divided on partisan lines, as they will be on questions of domestic economic policy, the Democrats will have the deciding vote.

In any event, the Wallace men would fashion a fair bit of compromise. They could also embarrass and endanger both national defense and foreign policies in these troubled times.

SHIFTING—Repercussions abroad from such an event would be considerable. The American government would be threatening to all the world stability. It would discourage the nations which we seek to mobilize in a showdown with Stalin, and tend to deter the nations which we seek to cooperate with.

It would be welcomed by communists everywhere as a sign that the United States was shifting toward the left.

It might be the deliberate program of the more extreme members of such a cabal to try to prevent continuing to provide evidence that our capitalist society is as internally weak as Stalin says it is.

CHANCE—The victory of the Wallace candidate in New York's 24th district has finally fixed the pattern for the strategy of the independent's attempt to roll up a similar congressional haul.

Based on that surprising result, his advisers say they have spotted approximately 50 districts in which they think they have a chance. But they will count themselves fortunate if they can grab off even 20.

In these contests, Wallace and his slogan-makers will enter to every disappointed and disoriented element of the American electorate.

FORMULA—They will top President Truman's demand for more radical action, and they will back away from this issue because of southern protests. They will argue that a Wallace bloc would be able to provide evidence that our capitalist society is as internally weak as Stalin says it is.

They will promise cheaper food, clothing and rent, free education, and free health care. They will promise better wages and farm prices and "peace in our time."

This was the fantastic formula which enabled Leo Wallace to win the election, to garner more votes than three rivals in the Harlem district.

MARCH—No responsible nominee on either major ticket can afford to match these utterances either, although it is expected that developing signs of Wallace strength will drive Mr. Truman further to the right.

The first excuse is a broad one, and it is contradicted by the slump in the grain market with its resulting cut in food prices. The gray market in steel is, of course, the result of an excess of demand over supply.

The industry will be hard put to contradict Sen. GENTLEMAN IN THE FOURTH ROW

BOB HOPE

The latest page in wrestling today is a high class gentleman called "Gorgeous George," who is really the grunt and growler man of the district.

He makes quite a sight when he comes out for his bout dressed in a high class suit and white tie.

On special occasions he wears a tuxedo and a top hat.

In fact, his favorite hold is the full dressed Nelson.

He's the only wrestler in the ring today who has the hair of a lion.

And instead of a pretty girl fattened on his arm he's got Adolph Menjou.

In fact, Gorgeous George is so high class that instead of cauliflower ears he has broccoli ears.

Naturally, every time he gives his opponent an airplane spin... it has a hostess.

Before every bout he has his hair blown with a special perfume. It's called "Surrender... or I'll break your back."

Of course, whenever Gorgeous George wrestles, the match takes a long time. As soon as his opponent falls to the mat he stays there and does his hair with talcum powder.

The New York Herald Tribune formerly was known to the protection agency as a pillar of the Republican party. The British Empire and the United States, it was a stodgy, elderly, and somewhat stuffy old fellow. It was a pillar of the Republican party.

In 1941, Gannett and George Brant of the New York newspaper guild discovered, to their surprise, that the communists had slipped through a resolution condemning the universal draft law for the sole reason that this law was then opposed by the Communist party.

Driver Fined $25
HAILLY, March 2—Charles E. Hainman, Sunday, was fined $25 and costs Monday by Probate Judge George A. McLeod after he was arrested by State Patrolman Wayne Lundberg Sunday for reckless driving.

But only a few weeks ago, driven and devoted to depression, the New York guild finally did vote the communists out and one of the election districts which did the trick carried the name of Gannett.

"Let's clean communist influence out of this run right through the door," the Guild said in its resolution. "Let's clean communist influence out of this run right through the door."

He still doesn't call a communist a communist, although the Herald Tribune did not hesitate to identify the Catholic church as a degrading institution at Boston.

It might be observed here that there is no force in the United States more vigorously opposed to communism than the church which Gannett damned as a corruption.

Pasture Crop Use Urged in Raising Hogs

"Successful swine production in Idaho depends to a large degree upon using pasture crops," according to Wade Wells, extension swine specialist for the University of Idaho. He points out that pasture crops not only supply comparatively cheap food but keep the hogs in good physical condition and aid in the most advanced sanitation practice.

"When hogs under 200 pounds are on full grain ration and alfalfa pasture, the pasture will replace from 15 to 20 per cent of the grain requirements. As a rule," Wells says, "hogs on full feed that have access to a good legume pasture, preferably alfalfa or clover, require only about one-half as much concentrated protein supplement as they require in the dry lot. If they are not on full feed, they will consume more forage and require only one-third to one-half the amount of protein supplement consumed by those in dry lot."

The larger and more mature the hog, the more forage it will consume. Consequently less protein supplement will be required. When fattening market hogs on pasture, the protein supplement may be removed entirely from the ration during the last 30 days of the feeding period," he said.

Alfalfa is the most desirable pasture crop for swine. In common with other pasture crops, it grows better when not pastured too closely. The Wells maintains "it is a good policy to provide enough acreage so a crop of hay may be taken off during pasture season. Cutting improves palatability of alfalfa for the swine because they prefer the young succulent shoots."

Safety Heads to Attend California Meeting in June

Three Idaho safety leaders appointed by Gov. C. A. Robins will attend the 10th annual western safety conference being held at the Hollywood, Calif., Roosevelt hotel June 16-18.

They are Eldon E. Beck, safety director, Idaho Power company; R. C. Lewis, commissioner of law enforcement, and Ella Matila, state highway department. Representing the three men for many years have been active in spearheading the fight against the unnecessary accident toll in Idaho and the west.

This three-day conference will feature sessions on aviation, industrial, maritime, traffic, home and commercial safety.

Some 2,000 delegates from Alaska, Canada, Mexico, Hawaii, and the western 11 states will attend the conference to hear outstanding national safety authorities speak.

Play Sponsored By SICE Society

Dworshak Reports Increase in Numbers of Federal Employees

An increase in the number of civilian employees in the executive branch of the government is reported by Sen. Henry C. Dworshak. Senator Dworshak, Idaho junior senator, stated that for the first time in many months, this reverses the gradual trend toward retrenchment in federal employment.

Senator Dworshak said on Jan. 31 there were 2,001,400 persons on the federal payroll and stated that at a recent Republican conference he suggested that it should be possible to effect a 10 per cent reduction in federal personnel without seriously impairing functional operations.

"This would mean approximately 200,000 personnel," he said. "While most Democrats oppose such reductions, there are also some Republicans who oppose any retrenchment, which naturally makes it difficult to reduce the federal civilian payroll of approximately 16,000,000 annually."

Dworshak also said that he had been assisted occasionally by Drew Pearson, radio and newspaper columnist, because he had refused to be a "tipster" on activities of the senate appropriations committee, of which he is a member.

"Pearson has stopped on Capitol Hill from whom he and his aides procure 'inside' tips on developments about a year ago a number of his staff suggested that I could easily make available advance information which the Pearson column could use," the senator said.

"When I pointed out that all of our committee sessions were open to newsmen, including members of the Pearson staff," Senator Dworshak continued, "so they could get leads on stories, the retort was that 'open' sessions made it more essential that Pearson's office get inside tips to scoop other columns."

"My refusal to cooperate in this manner has resulted in retaliation, and consequently the Pearson staff has sought to undermine me and hamper my congressional service. Refusing to be a tipster has its drawbacks," he concluded.

Pope Is 72

VATICAN CITY, March 2 (AP)—Pope Pius XII celebrated his 72nd birthday and ninth anniversary of his election as pontiff today.

The Pope worked as usual. The double anniversary will be formally observed March 12, when the Pope will read a special pontifical mass.

All Vatican offices were closed today and Vatican flags were flying for the holiday.

Plans Discussed by Hansen PTA Board

HANSEN, March 2—A special meeting of the Hansen PTA executive board and all school teachers with Mrs. Victor Goertzen, Twin Falls, was held recently to discuss new plans for the group.

The group toured the new health room of the school following the meeting. The tour was guided by Mrs. Maxine Prior and Mrs. Goertzen. Sandwiches and cakes were prepared by the high school home economics class.

A President's Labors Never Quite Finished

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, March 2 (AP)—A President's labor is never done.

That Mr. Truman does not in Florida vacationing.

He has had to take time out to consider the problems of Mrs. Ella White Bull and Mrs. Beale Two Elk-Poor Bear.

This came out when the White House announced that Mr. Truman had vetoed two bills—one for Mrs. White Bull, one for Mrs. Poor Bear.

As members of the Ogish Sioux Indian tribe, these women own—but can't sell—land in the Pine Ridge Indian reservation in South Dakota.

Congress passed bills which would have enabled them to sell their property. These are the bills Mr. Truman vetoed.

Congress knows how he finds out all these things.

But Mr. Truman said in his veto message that Mrs. White Bull and Mrs. Poor Bear are not only very limited education, and no business experience.

As matters now stand, Mr. Truman said, Mrs. White Bull gets an income from the land; if she were allowed the sell it she might make a bad deal.

Hence, the veto.

Same for Mrs. Poor Bear.

Said Mr. Truman:

"Advanced age, business inexperience, nomadic habits, lack of interest in agricultural or grazing pursuits."

Hence the veto.

Largest 4-Jet Fighter Plane Given Testing

LOS ANGELES, March 2 (AP)—The U. S. Air Force's new four-jet fighter, comparable in weight to the famous Flying Fortress bomber, made its first test yesterday.

The XP-47, built by Curtiss Aircraft at Columbus, O., remained aloft for more than an hour, and its maiden hop was pronounced a success. At the controls was B. Lee Miller, Curtiss' chief manager of flight operations who said it responded splendidly.

The XP-47 is reportedly the biggest fighter plane ever built, weighing only slightly less than the B-29 Superfortress. It is designed to travel in the 600 mile an hour range, and its service ceiling is more than 35,000 feet. Its range is 1,500 miles.

The craft's wings span 55 feet, and its overall length about 65 feet. The two pilots sit abreast instead of in line, and the four Westinghouse 24-C engines are set in pairs in single nacelles in each wing. It is the first four-jet fighter.

No announcement was made of its speed today. There have been unfounded reports that it was built to break through the sonic speed barrier.

80 Attend Monthly Methodist Program

BURLEY, March 2—More than 80 persons attended the monthly Methodist fellowship dinner held Wednesday in the church.

Games were played following the dinner, and a short program was given including a vocal solo by William Keller.

A Boy Scout court of honor was held by Scoutmaster Ray Reid. He presented tenderfoot badges to Lynn Robertson, George McGonigal, Jr., and Monte Hixon.
