Aggression Is Started Early, Doctor Avows

LONDON, Aug. 12 (AP)—Aggression starts in the high chair, Dr. Fredrick H. Allen, Philadelphia psychiatrist, told the international congress on mental health.

Some 200 specialists are meeting here to consider the world's mental health. They are trying to find means of treating sick nations and thus cure the disease of war.

Dr. Allen addressed the conference on child psychiatry. Discussing the theme of "aggression," he said constructive or destructive aggression begins with the youth, where the child senses his first feeling of power.

"Mouth Is 'Barometer'"

The mouth, explained Dr. Allen, is the child's "emotional barometer." It signals the need or the lack of need for food. It can express anger, in crying, if a child feels frustrated. He explained that if parents do not understand the child's emotional currents in the high chair and correct them, the child may go on fighting his playmates, then grow up to influence a gang of hoodlums, or, in some countries, to influence a whole nation to war.

"Creative Development" Urged

Dr. Allen urged psychiatrists to seek to develop "creative and responsible" actions in the world, as opposed to aggression that leads to war.

Dr. Anna Freud, daughter of the late Sigmund Freud, pioneer psychoanalyst, told the gathering that "much of our emotional life is spent in the struggle to rid ourselves of aggressive instincts."

Project Plan Set for Most U. S. Rivers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12 (AP)—Government experts have approved $45,000,000 plan to harness virtually every river in the country for irrigation, flood control and electric power production.

This was disclosed by Sen. George Malone, R. Nev., in a statement on water development work by the corps of engineers and the reclamation bureau.

$57,000,000,000 Needed

The engineers figure that $57,000,000,000 will be needed to carry out their plans in full. Of that figure, about $10,000,000,000 represents an $8,100,000,000 program planned through 1955. Of that amount, 87 per cent has been spent or authorized by congress.

The benefits and advantages which will accrue from a long-range program of water reclamation development as estimated will far exceed the cost," Malone said.

$45,000,000 Annual Saving

The reclamation bureau, which that completion of their program would save $45,000,000 a year in flood damages and $45,000,000 a year in transportation costs. Such a program would develop nearly 600,000,000 acres of power, irrigate 17,000,000 acres of land and drain another 15,000,000 acres.

The reclamation bureau, which operations are limited to the 17 western states, estimated fulfillment of the program would bring under irrigation 12,000,000 acres of now unutilized land in the west.

The bureau program would develop about 4,000,000 more kilowatts of electric power than now exists.

Reason Given For Choice of Balloting Date

By ROWLAND EVANS, Jr.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 12 (AP)—Why do we hold our national elections on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November?

"You'll have to dig back in some old books to get the answer to that one," said John Andrews, clerk of the house of representatives. Carl A. Loeffler, senate secretary, didn't know either.

"I really don't know offhand," said George Washington of the state department's constitutional law section. "But I might be able to dig up a statute on it." It was the same everywhere. Nobody knew.

Finally Found Book
I finally found a book in the library of congress that told me it was a bound volume of the 1845 Congressional Globe, predecessor of the Congressional Record. It goes that way back in the first half of the 1800s states elected presidential electors while they felt like it. The only rule on it was a law passed March 1, 1792, providing that electors be elected within 34 days of the first Wednesday in December. On the latter date the electors would meet in Washington and choose a President and vice president.

"That gave the states 34 days in which to appoint or elect their electors," said Andrews. "The 1840 term for ballot box stuffing, Ohio voters elected their presidential electors on Nov. 10, for example. Then on Nov. 20 some unscrupulous chaps carried the state to the polls and voted for electors from Pennsylvania. Three days later, maybe they straggled into Indiana and voted for Indiana's electors."

Peak in 1840
This reached some kind of a peak in the 1840 presidential campaign, especially in Ohio. So in 1844 a bill was introduced by Representative Daniel C. Bayne of Ohio to uniform election day throughout the country. Hamilton Hamlin of Maine, a leading member of congress, said:

"I believe it will prevent the frauds which have been perpetrated and will preserve the great and fundamental principles of the elective franchise in their purity."

When the question came up—what day to set? The committee in charge of the legislation decided three things: (1) To stay within the 34-day period established in the 1792 law. (2) To set election day as early as possible. (3) That it should be a particular day of the week and close Tuesday.

Constant Interval
Having decided these things, the committee found the best it could do was to designate the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. That meant a constant interval of 20 days.

Why not make it the first Tuesday in November? some congressmen asked. "Because," said Senator Berrien of Georgia "a case might arise in which the first Tuesday of November might not be within the 34 days prior to the first Wednesday in December." He explained that if the first of November fell on a Tuesday, the first Wednesday in December would come more than 34 days later.

Now the question is, why did congress back in 1792 decide to make the first Wednesday in December the day on which presidential electors should meet and choose a president? And did you know that law has been changed? Today, our presidential electors don't meet until the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December!

Record of 550 Scouts, Leaders Attend Area Camps During First Three Weeks

A record of 550 Boy Scouts and leaders attended the 1948 Snake river area camps at Lightfoot and Altura lake after three weeks of activity.

The number attending at one time varied from 100 to 200 so that at all times the location seemed like a village itself. Herbert B. West, executive, reported.

"To actually visualize the activities and work of the camp, it is probably best to take one troop and follow it through the week," he said. "All troops' activities vary somewhat, because Scout life is not regimented like the army, but the activities are somewhat standardized."

The troop arrives in camp on a Saturday, and spends the day establishing camp. The senior patrol leader draws for the location of a camp site, although returning troops may retain possession of the site held the previous year so they may work out long range improvement projects.

As soon as the site is set, the troop erects its tents, arranges for cooking and establishes its own sanitary facilities, all under the watchful eye of Parkland A. Terry, resident camp director, who gives aid and advice wherever needed. Scouts bring their own food and do their own cooking. The use of the camp ground and expense of the trip is provided by the Scout organization.

Saturday afternoon the Scoutmaster attends a leaders' council, where goals are discussed with the four permanent camp staff members. Suggestions are made and programs integrated.

The evening is spent at a "get-acquainted" campfire. The Scout hears the traditions and stories of the camp from Clarence J. Barrett, activities director, and meets his fellow campers.

At about 10 p. m. the Scouts retire. There's little sleep the first night for the excitement of the camp and the thrill of adventure and anticipation keeps the boys awake for a long time.

Sunday morning Scouts arise literally at the crack of dawn. Following breakfast, Scouts of all denominations unite in religious services held in the Scout's Own Church of the Pines. The remainder of the day is spent in fishing and hiking in the area and surroundings, with Sunday evening devoted to a quieter campfire hour, somewhat religious in nature.

It's a little easier to bed and in to rise this time—the first day has taken its toll. Monday morning the troops arise at 7 a. m. and unite in saluting the flag raising at 7:30 a. m. This is followed by another Scout-cooked meal with a different Scout taking his turn at cooking.

Then throughout the week the Scouts try their hands at the various activities. In the ax yard they are given training in the use of the axe and safety precautions to be followed. At the knopyard they are shown different knots which they try to duplicate.

They are shown the demonstration camp, which shows the proper method of preserving food, preparing fires and making camp arrangements. They are taught leaf identification, and by the end of the week can identify at least 20 distinct species.

In the center of the camp is the swimming pool, which is divided into three areas for non-swimmers, beginners and accomplished swimmers. On Monday they are given tests and "buddy tags." The "buddy tags" are used for safety precautions—about every 10 minutes while the pool is in use a whistle is blown and each boy grabs his buddy's hand and holds it high in the air. A missing buddy is spotted quickly. At the end of the swimming period, the tags are replaced on a rack and used as a further check.

The evening campfires continue throughout the week, but are reduced in scope after Monday evening, each group maintaining its own campfire, presenting a program and inviting another troop or Scout leaders to attend.

Thursday night each troop selects by secret ballot its most outstanding candidate for the Order of the Arrow.

The winning candidates are not notified at the time, but after two a pair of "Indians" goes through the camp and taps the electees. The candidate arises quietly, packs his gear for a long trip and leaves at this time for a 24-hour "secret adventure." Those who "make the grade" and there are many who do not, eventually meet for initiation into the order.

All troops make one overnight hike during the week, and usually qualify for the 14-mile hike on this trip. In addition, they are given compass courses. They are given instructions in the use of the compass and then given compass directions to find a mystery object. If directions are followed correctly, they will find a stake.

Friday morning the troops join in "adventure trail." It is a competitive free-for-all in which each troop tries to out-rank all others in knot-tying, the use of the axe

Statement by Marshall Not New Comment

By J. M. ROBERTS, Jr.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst
Secretary Marshall, saying that the United States must not give up agreement with Russia merely for agreement's sake, is reiterating something that has been an accepted part of American policy for a year and a half.

If it had been accepted three or four years ago we might have escaped many of our current troubles. In that period we were still leaning over backward in an effort to buy the United States.

of 16 activities of which he is expected to perform 10 before the end of the week. These activities include knot-tying, use of the compass, going on long hikes, swimming a specified distance, cooking a meal and others.

Friday afternoon the Scouts pack before a board of review and on Friday evening attend the court of honor, where awards and merit badges are presented. Then it's all over but the shouting and the last night at camp.

The entire program is supervised by West as director, and three field executives, Robert W. DeBuhr, Terry and Clarence J. Barrett, LeVell McIntire is the swimming instructor.

Russia's postwar cooperation. Yet the storm signals already were flying.

Marshall was speaking with direct reference to the Danubian conference at Belgrade, where Russia has made it clear that her definition of "free" navigation is on par with her wartime definition of "free" elections to which she agreed for in eastern Europe. But it was perfectly clear that his statement also holds good in all of our dealings with the communists imperialists.

The Marshall statement was highlighted by its coincidence with testimony that the Russian embassy in Washington has paid at least one American citizen to spy against her own country.

It also comes at a time when the Russian propaganda machine is re-running the "peace offensive" which followed Molotov's rejection of America's "base for peace" in May.

Reports from Paris and London indicate strongly that to avoid a complete breakdown of negotiations for a four-power conference, the allies have been forced to start bargaining.

Europe has a total population of about 500,000,000.

Newcomer in State Politics Seldom Wins

By ED HAROLDSEN

BOISE, Aug. 12.—A newcomer in Idaho politics, it appears from the records, rarely ever wins a major state office in his first try at vote getting. But, it is not unusual eventually have made the grade.

There were three political freshmen running for the Democratic nomination as congressmen in Tuesday's primary election. Burns B. Brigham, Geneva farmer and ex-school teacher, ran against the veteran Compton J. White for the first district nomination. Aarv Loyn, Rexburg, and Bert Minwegen, Montpelier, a pair of 27-year-old political newcomers, sought the second district nomination. They were virtually unheard of before the election, but in the absence of their showing in the election they may, if they choose to run again find the going easier in some future election.

Taylor Good Example

Like the best example of the success of the try-again formula in Idaho politics is Glen Taylor. He decided he wanted to go to trade his simple cowboy hat in 1914 but in the big time—the United States senate—and managed it. But only after his first defeat in 1914 by the late John Thomas. Taylor made the grade in 1914 by winning over E. A. Bottner and he has been able to get himself unpopular with the old age pension people, by a plurality of 672 votes.

Like-wise Henry Dworzhak, Republican candidate for re-election as senator, suffered two defeats before winning the second district congressional post. He lost out in an eight-sided primary race in 1923, running second to Heber G. Hale, Boise. Two years later Dworzhak won the nomination but lost in the general election to D. Worth Clark. The third time turned the trick, for he defeated Bert J. Miller by 1223 votes . . . in 1938. Since then Dworzhak's been a steady winner.

Miller Tried Twice

Miller tried twice without success for a seat in the nation's congress. He won the nomination for congress back in 1914 but lost in the general election. He served four terms as attorney general in the 20s and 40s but lost an eight-sided primary race for governor in 1936. The most recent defeat was his loss to Dworzhak in the 1938 second district general election race.

But with the other 1948 congressional nominees it is largely the old story of working up in party circles, running for the nomination and then trying for the nation's highest law-making body.

John Spurner, Republican incumbent second district congressman served five terms in the state house of representatives and in the senate. By the time he entered the 1946 primary he was fairly well known.

Alb. Goff, out for another term as first district congressman, got himself well known by taking active part in state bar association activities, serving as latcha county prosecutor, working in church and civic affairs and serving in the state senate.

Compton J. White, Clark Fork veteran seeking the seat he relinquished to Goff in 1946, worked up in the councils of the Democratic party in north Idaho, serving in precinct, county and state jobs. He was twice a delegate to a national convention. Also he served on the town council and school board. It's true he got into office with the Roosevelt landslide of 1932, but he stayed a lot longer than many Democrats.

Not Exactly What He Told Him to Do

Henry Agrees That Istanbul's Grand Bazaar Really 'Grand'

By HENRY McLEMORE

ISTANBUL, Turkey—If you could see but one thing in Istanbul, the thing to see would be the grand bazaar.

I have been told that there is nothing quite like it in the world, and after a half dozen visits I am quite willing to believe it.

It is housed in a vast building of white marble and red granite, whose cobblestone streets and sidewalks have been worn smooth by the tread of centuries of shoppers.

So enormous is the bazaar, so many its streets and alleys, that those who have lived in Istanbul for years still get lost when in its midst. From the time the doors open in the morning until they close just before sundown, the bazaar teems with people. There must be upwards of 20,000 shoppers.

There is everything unobtainable for sale and the shops range from little hole-in-the-wall, lighted by candle, where second-hand buttons and nails are sold, to elegant shops that would do credit to the Rue de la Paix.

For example, right around the corner from where a Turk sits cross-legged selling nothing but empty spectacle frames, we walked into a shop where King Farouk's sister was examining a ring she has having made—a neat little ice cube of 24 carats.

When you go into one of the better shops the proprietor shuts the door, lowers an iron shutter and gives you his complete attention. He states you on beautiful oriental rugs and coffee is served to you. Jean and I found this a pleasant way to get our morning coffee for free.

But it is in the little middle-class shops, of which there must be a thousand or more, that the tourist finds the most fun. Haggle is a game with these Turkish merchants and they want you to play along with them. The asking price is a quote is nowhere near what they expect to get.

It is just the kick-off, as to speak, of the real fun. Haggle is the start. "Yok," which means, "No, no," in Turkish, "nope," and offers half the asking price. The game gets going in earnest now, and half an hour later a compromise will be reached. Outside the shop, rival merchants will be grinning and beckoning the buyer to come to their shops. They cast aspersions on the honesty and character of the man with whom you are dealing and if you get close enough they will try to bend you away. All of this is done in good spirits, however, with no one ever getting angry.

The oldest restaurant in Istanbul is somewhere near the center of the bazaar, and it is unique. It is built in one of the huge pillars of the bazaar, and seats six people at one time. There is a table for two downstairs where the cooking is done, and a spiral staircase leads to two tables upstairs. The food is excellent in the pillar, and people wait in line to eat there.

The giant auction rooms, where dealers come from all over Turkey to buy rugs, are said to handle more valuable rugs than any other place in the world. The antique shops contain treasures from all over the east—Persia, Russia, Turkey. There are swords, jewels of all sizes and descriptions, ikons, silver, furniture, watches, all done by the masters of their times.

It 'd do make a fellow wish he had saved up his money and hadn't gone to so many bull games and squandered so much money on popcorn and peanuts while he was there.

U. S. Denies Tax Privilege To Red Units

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12 (UP)—Some taxpayers may be forced to repay the government for income tax deductions they claimed on donations to alleged communist-front organizations, it was disclosed today.

The internal revenue bureau has revoked the tax privileges of about 20 of these outfits. A bureau spokesman said government auditors will refuse to approve deductions for donations to these organizations if they come across them on returns for the past three years.

Donations before this deadline will not be affected, it was said, because of a three-year statute of limitations in the revenue law.

Under the law, the treasury may allow tax-exempt contributions to religious, educational, charitable, literary or scientific organizations. There are about 30,000 of these on the internal revenue bureau's approved list.

The tax-exempt status of the revoked subversive groups was allowed after Sen. Joseph H. Ball, R., Missouri, introduced legislation that protected that this amount to granting a government subsidy to these organizations.

Among the groups dropped from the privileged list were the National Council for American Soviet Friendship, the International Workers Order, the American-Russian Institute for Cultural Relations with the Soviet Union, and the Legion of American Writers, Inc.

Boyle Learns Meat Boycott No Pun at All

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK, Aug. 12 (AP)—The butcher is at bay.

This is a new spectacle in our civilization and may be the first vindication of Oswald Spengler's prediction of the collapse of the western world.

Harried by high prices and protesting housewives, the man at the meat block no longer can be sure on which side his pork chops are breaded—or buttered.

The lone man with the cleaver doesn't know whom to cleave to—his irate female customers or the stern wholesaler who has forced his costs up above the usual pattern that brings in a profit.

Mama Getting Mad
They can talk all they want to about the normal law of supply and demand, but mama the gal who forces the family budget is getting mad.

And for the first time in our history, the man in the white apron behind the meat counter is on the defensive.

The neighborhood butcher, lone the arbiter of customer menus, now finds he has no friend at all. Housewives who courted his favor and bought him presents in wartime have finally reached the point of rebellion.

The butcher would like to rebel too—but there is no way he can. Torn out with the beeline over inflation, he would like to take it on the lam, but all he can do is stand there patiently and live and let live.

Rough Situation
It isn't meat that this once proud figure should bear all the brunt of family budgetary problems. It's a rough situation for him, anyway you slice it. And he veals it as much as you do.

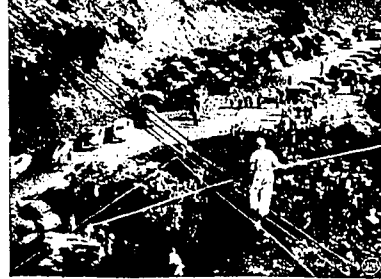

Nobody really loves a butcher. He lives always in an arena of doubt. I learned this years ago in my golden youth, when I served as an apprentice meat cutter. It was a period of depression and we formulated a rare hamburger at three pounds for a quarter. Then the clientele accepted the price but questioned the hamburger. Today they accept the hamburger but question the price.

Sees Both Sides
Having in my lifetime been on both sides of the counter, I realize that there is no permanent answer to the problem of buying and selling meat. In bad times, when round steak goes begging at 29 cents a pound, the butcher yearns to throw a slab in the faces of his finicky customers. In good times he can't afford to. Meat is money then.

Perfom and forsaken behind his well-stocked display is the man the butcher now faces a dubious future. His usual careful camaraderie with the housewife is clouded by a fog of ill will and soaring prices.

Gent 'High' on 82nd Birthday

Celebrating his 82nd birthday, Ivy Baldwin goes for a short stroll—300 feet across a wire stretched over a 125-foot deep mountain canyon. The octogenarian retired as an active trapeze performer in 1923, but has kept in pretty good shape. This was his fifth trip over the South Boulder creek canyon, near Eldorado Springs, Colo.

Weed Control Unit Director Asks for Help

"Our aim is to get farmer cooperation in fighting noxious weeds," the county noxious weed control director, Harry Gault, told landowners of Twin Falls county's sixth weed district at 9 p. m. Wednesday when they met in the district court chamber.

"Our fight has not been entirely successful this year, but we have made definite progress," Gault stated. He explained that some of the farmers had not fulfilled their promises of work and this made it more difficult for those who were employing control.

He pointed out that Canada thistle is the worst weed the county has to fight, not because it is hardy, but because the seeds spread so rapidly over an extensive area. Late spraying of 24-D is the most effective way of combating ground cherries, he said.

Weeds were hauled in and planted when the white man came to the county and now the white man will have to fight them, he said. Evidence of this can be seen by looking at areas where man has done no planting and no weeds will be found, he said.

"Most of our time is spent negotiating with farmers about the work to be done. What we need is authority to step right in and do the work when and where it is needed," Gault said.

"The Philippines contain more than 7,000 islands and islets, of which only 466 cover a square mile or more."

"We just cannot concede there was a drop of 63,000 in Idaho's population between 1944 and 1945. Furthermore, even if the 1946 estimate was anywhere nearly correct, the 1947 estimate of 523,000 seems fantastic."

"If the people are rushing in and out of Idaho at the rate of 55,000 a year, it is no wonder we have a serious highway problem in the state."

State C. of C. Official Happy About Census

BOISE, Aug. 12 (AP)—Earl W. Murphy, secretary of the state Chamber of Commerce, was pleased today with a census bureau estimate showing Idaho's population had increased from 470,338 to 523,000 in the year ending July 1, 1947. But Murphy was critical of the bureau's Idaho figures over the past eight years.

"We have been 'upped and downed' so often we are getting a little confused," he said.

Murphy said the bureau has made the following Idaho population estimates as of July 1: 1940, 528,861; 1941, 515,597; 1942, 479,893; 1943, 488,203; 1944, 523,240; 1945, 500,109; 1946, 470,338; and 1947, 523,000.

He said so many sales quotas, area representations, budget allocations of national firms and determinations are based on the census bureau estimates that "this becomes a matter of grave concern to the people of Idaho."

"We just cannot concede there was a drop of 63,000 in Idaho's population between 1944 and 1945. Furthermore, even if the 1946 estimate was anywhere nearly correct, the 1947 estimate of 523,000 seems fantastic."

Criticized Ruler Of Indian State Rests in Britain

LONDON, Aug. 12 (AP)—The rich maharajah of Baroda took his case in England today, seeking in no way to get back to India to answer critics who want him to abdicate.

A member of his household at Jeddah, in Surrey, said the maharajah was still asleep at 10 a. m. today. He arrived on the Queen Elizabeth last night from New York and ducked reporters who wanted to ask him about accusations made by the Baroda state legislature that he dipped into the state treasury for $10,000,000 in a six-week spending spree.

The maharajah's secretary said a statement would be issued tomorrow concerning the maharajah's plans. He told the Associated Press in a ship-to-shore conversation he would fly back to Baroda "very shortly" in New Delhi, the state's ministry of a year's time is no wonder we have a serious highway problem in the state."

Dixiecrats Not To Deal With GOP, Wallace

HOUSTON, Tex., Aug. 12 (AP)—The Dixiecrat party, organized to fight President Truman and his civil rights program, made it plain today that it won't deal with GOP candidate Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

For with Progressive Candidate Henry A. Wallace, for that matter.

The rebellious southerners cheered wildly last night as their standard bearer, Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi, ripped into the Republican and Democratic parties and their candidates.

Adds Wallace

Thurmond, in his speech accepting the presidential candidacy on the Dixiecrat ticket, threw in Wallace and the Progressives for good measure.

"It is beautiful if it is such brethren—Dewey, Truman and Wallace—to deal together in unity," Thurmond said.

The crowd of 5,000 or more gave him the rebel yell and begged for more.

Progressives Picket

The Sam Houston coliseum was only about half full for the formal acceptance speeches by Thurmond and Wright. Outside, four pickets from the Progressive party took their placards and went home early.

A policeman, one of many standing by to preserve order, said: "See, these boys really took a beating from the people going in. They called 'em everything in the books and those guys just took it on the chin, like they didn't hear 'em. About the only printable ones are 'comrade' and 'stinky commie'."

Tears up Placard

Only incident on the picket line was a scramble in which a young Dixiecrat seized one of the placards and ran, stopping a half-block away to tear it to shreds while photographers popped their shutters.

The 175 policemen on duty at the coliseum were not needed. There was no heckling, just frequent loud applause.

U. S. Loan of Silver Repaid By Only One

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12 (AP)—Only one nation has returned the silver it borrowed under war-time leases, Senator Dworkak, R., Ida., said today.

The United States loaned 410, 615,000 fine ounces of silver to eight nations for college purposes.

"At our present rate of production," Dworkak told a reporter, "this represents the yield of all our silver resources for almost 12 years."

Robins Urges Better Pay on Doomed Land

BOISE, Aug. 12 (AP)—More liberal severance allowances on land withdrawn from production because of the Albert Falls dam have been urged by Gov. C. A. Robins.

The governor made the request in a letter to Lieut.-Gen. R. A. Wheeler, army department chief of engineers, Washington, D. C.

The governor said these lands cannot be measured by their appraised value alone. He said that potential future return to the present users and continuing loss in taxes to county and state should also be considered.

He asked that the severance allowances for the land be reapportioned and more liberally set up.

Governor Robins also suggested that certain adjustments in the planning of the dam may be necessary in view of the recent flood. He said these adjustments were especially concerned with flood protection of Clark Fork and Sandpoint because of the flood of the Clark Fork river, Lake Pend Oreille and Pend Oreille river.

The reservoir's elevation of 2022.5 feet remains the point of maximum regulation to which the state can agree, the governor said. He said the five-foot freeboard should be considered from the standpoint of scenic attraction.

The mother of the bride was attended in a two piece navy gabardine suit with black accessories. Her corsage was of red roses. The groom's mother wore a gray summer crepe dress with black accessories.

The ceremony was officiated by Rev. Bennett, who sang "Always" and "At Dawning."

The bride is a graduate of Twin Falls high school and has attended the Southern Idaho College of Education at Albion. For the past several years she has been teaching at the Washington school in Jerome.

Safeway Trims Them Before Weighing

(SO YOU SAVE MONEY)

We'll give you DOUBLE the number of Rib Lamb Chops you buy (they won't cost you a penny) if ever you get SAFeway Rib Lamb Chops not trimmed this money-saving way!

TIP END OF CHINE BONE removed from each chop before we weigh your purchase of rib lamb chops at Safeway. It means there's more good-eating meat in Safeway's lamb chops—less waste in each pound you pay for.

"TAIL" OF EACH CHOP (the end portion of bone and excess fat) cut off by Safeway before we weigh your rib lamb chops on the market scales. It gives you chops that cook and eat better... that fit better in the pan and on a platter.

Wherever you buy meat you are entitled to money-savings that result from proper trimming of each cut before it is weighed. Insist that your butcher trim this way. If he refuses, why not buy at a market where this kind of trimming is done?

YOU SEE ABOVE how Safeway removes excess waste, bone and fat from rib lamb chops before weighing them. We prepare other cuts in similar fashion—each according to its special requirements. This waste-free cutting is part of Safeway's Guaranteed Meats plan. We regularly trim our meats this way.

When you compare meat prices, remember that Safeway's prices always are on the TRIMMED cut... free of excess bone, waste and fat... ready for cooking.

If ever you're not satisfied the meat you buy at Safeway is trimmed the money-saving way we say, just show it to the manager of the Safeway store where you bought it. If your Safeway rib lamb chops (for example) are NOT trimmed as shown above—you get DOUBLE the number of rib lamb chops you buy WITHOUT a penny's extra cost (and without quibble or argument!).

Safeway buys nothing less than the top government grades of beef (all beef sold at Safeway is U.S. Government graded)... nothing less than the top grades of lamb, pork and veal.

Come prove for yourself—there's more good-eating at less cost in Guaranteed Meats from Safeway!

Idaho's Labor Demand Gains In Past Week

BOISE, Aug. 12 (AP)—Idaho labor demand registered a slight increase during the past week, the Idaho state employment service said today.

The service said its net total of job listings increased by 21 to an Aug. 7 total of 1,918. Forestry, logging, lumbering and construction led the net increases while mining, agriculture and transportation recorded net declines.

Lessened Turnover
The service attributed mining declines to lessened turnover at one Wallace mining company and showed further increases in labor supply in that area.

It was predicted mining demand for labor would reach the lowest point in Idaho since 1941 this winter.

Rails Call Workers
Despite declines in the number of railroad job openings, the state's principal railroad was calling back workers in preparation for heavy crop movements this fall.

The employment service said farmers continue their crop harvest unhampered by labor shortages. Soft fruit, hay, grain, early potato harvesting and corn de-tasseling were the major farm activities.

Poultrymen May Have Good Year

IDAHO FALLS, Aug. 12 (AP)—Poultrymen will experience a banner year in both egg and meat production outlets, members of the Idaho Poultry Improvement Association were told at their annual convention here.

Housewives may have to shop early for that Thanksgiving turkey, and prices will be higher than they were last year, reported Mack O. North, St. Louis, Mo., who addressed the delegates.

North reminded delegates that feed prices are down 15 to 20 per cent from February of last year in keeping with the general decline of grain prices nationally. Demand for poultry meat as well as red meat will remain high.
