Gooding's Rotary Club Hears Talk On School Issue

HAGER'S DEPARTMENT STORE

The oldest department store in the country—under the same family name and ownership—and at the same location for 127 years—that's the proud boast of Hager's at Lancaster, Pa.

The store is now operated by five Hager brothers who tell an interesting story of its growth since it was founded by their great-grandfather, Christopher Hager, in 1821.

Lancaster, now a city of 112,697 population, has long been the center of one of the most prosperous farming regions in the U. S.

Starting as a small country store, Hager's has grown until it now occupies a five-story, block-deep building, modern in every detail. Last year's sales amounted to more than $3,000,000.

- All of this background automatically presents the question: To what do the Hager brothers attribute their store's success? For the answer are the highlights of their formula:
1. Friendly, courteous, competent service.
 2. Paying store employees good salaries to assure contented personnel.
 3. Liberal credit. (20 per cent down and 12 months to pay. Thirty day credit business now constitutes 52 per cent of total sales.)
 4. Promotion. Departmental newspaper advertising, window and interior displays, radio, and periodic wide sales. It runs a special price ads nearly every day, a total of 40,000 inches annually. In Lancaster's one daily newspaper, a morning and evening combination.
 5. Goodwill. The Hager brothers are all active in civic affairs. It has been their policy never to pay a philanthropic or civic-minded organization. In fact it was the founder's policy "never to refuse any request from any source, no matter how apparently unreasonable."

But there's another angle to this outstanding success story. Hager's shares one of our business' chronic ailments—lack of ready capital with which to expand, or safeguard against a serious business slump. They blame the government tax policy. Says T. E. Hager:

"The present tax set-up is actually much more severe on small business than large. By the time we pay our taxes and book operating costs, there isn't much left for reserve. Our capital is constantly tied up in the business."

Over the head of the one-family business, he says, also hangs another Damocles sword—death taxes. He cites many cases from personal knowledge where upon the death of the head of the firm, the family had to sell the business to raise the estate taxes. "Invariably," he added, "a large chain buys entire or controlling interest in these forced sales. The big grow bigger and the small disappear."

CRUMP IS DUMPED

During the last two or three state-wide campaigns the newspapers of Tennessee have been fighting the E. H. Crump political machine in Memphis, a scummy outfit which has had a strangle hold on that state for 20 years.

Crump had never been friendly with the newspapers of Tennessee for obvious reasons, and the fight between him and the state's press developed into a battle to the finish. He even challenged one editor to the extent of saying that "either you or I leave town."

For a long time Crump had the people of Tennessee fooled. He was a master at juggling at pulling the wool over their eyes, so clever in fact that he had a lot of them believing he was a martyr—that the newspapers were persecuting him for an ulterior purpose.

But the awakening finally came. In the Tennessee Democratic primary election early this month, in which the FBI was asked to stand by to be sure that all votes would be counted as cast, the Crump machine collapsed in defeat.

The Knoxville News-Sentinel put it this way in its front page banner line: "Tennessee Dumps Crump."

With him, the state also dumped a new Crump protegee, a county circuit judge. Others with whom Crump had surrounded himself included a machined-to-order attorney general who was Crump's chief lobbyist in the legislature and "leg man" in Memphis politics.

The Memphis Press-Scimitar exposed the fact that even employees of the city-owned light, water and gas plant had been coerced to do work for the political machine nights and off hours.

The Nashville Tennessean warned voters that no other candidates had a war chest like that of Crump's and charged that some of the money actually came from a slush fund gained from "shaking down" state employees.

Idaho, one might say off-hand without much thought, is fortunate in having no such machines in politics. There are signs, however, that several political machines, still small by comparison, are definitely in the making. We may be a little far-sighted, but it appears to us that a political machine of some sort or other is taking shape now, right here in our own county. It might be wise for all of us to keep our eyes open.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—John R. Steelman, industrial and labor adviser to the White House, has organized himself into a one-man lobby for promotion of a steel-making housing program. He has received criticism from other government agencies, the industry itself, rival builders and members of the House of Representatives.

Mr. Steelman has boasted them over with the verbal assurance that he acts for President Truman, and that he is not a lobbyist.

The firm involved is the Lustron Corporation of Columbus, O., which is virtually a government-owned enterprise. It is, in fact, a subsidiary of the Steelman project, which he favors the firm in its project of building 25,000 units of which he forced that agency to make against its better judgment. He also acted under pressure from certain politicians in capitol hill and from veterans' groups.

The head of Lustron, which has conducted an extensive advertising campaign in newspapers and magazines, even though it has not yet got into large-scale production, is Carl O. Strandlund, a well-known and likable individual. He is said to have made an excellent record shortening the time for construction of banks during the war. Now he is being treated as a favorite with the Truman administration as Henry J. Kaiser was with the Roosevelt regime.

SECURITY—The Lustron corporation's original application for a loan was not recommended by the Washington office of the Federal Reserve Bank of the R.F.C. But on June 30, 1947, the last day that any advance could be made under the housing act, the R.F.C. did so, even though its original stipulation that the borrower raise $3,500,000 was not met. And it was not until after the war that the R.F.C. was reformed.

Steelman, former Housing Expediter Wilson Wyatt, White House officials and several members of house and senate, there is no doubt, had a strong influence on the money. Previously, former R.F.C. Chairman John Goodloe had told the senate banking and currency committee that the Lustron project was a prefabric housing program that had a failure.

Although R.F.C. had made loans of $200,150,872 to manufacturers of such units, Goodloe testified that the government had to pay out more than $7,000,000 in settlement, and with no constructive result.

STEEL—Steelman and Strandlund next ran into difficulty when they started on a search for sufficient steel for manufacture of the units. The steel industry, Marshall plan and industrial demands for this metal, it is allocated by the department of commerce and the steel industry. The steel industry, which is now being pressed at White House request.

Such applications are first considered by the steel plant, which in turn, which indicates the nation's general needs before making any allocation request. This body turned down all petitions for steel for the Lustron project, but finally set aside 50,000 tons in one of the most peculiar requests.

After referring to previous difficulties encountered in prefabric construction, and pointing out that such houses require 10 tons of steel each as against only one-and-a-half in the ordinary type, it said:

UTILITY—However, we have been advised by various government agencies, including certain members of congress and representatives of the construction finance corporation and the housing administration, that the prefabricated steel housing program is feasible in the judgment by the steel industry and will result in cheaper and more plentiful housing.

In approving this action, Commerce Secretary Bruce M. Wilson said the same sort of thing. He referred to various critical reports on the project, but said he would allocate the 50,000 tons as a sort of "loan" to the steel industry, which would be allocated steel should not go to Lustron alone, but to "at least six producers."

It is hoped, he added, "that each of the producers may be able to give adequate demonstration of the utility of its particular type of home."

PUZZLES—But here is the catch with respect to the 50,000 tons grant that puzzles and worries rival builders and small contractors who are now closing or curtailing operations, thereby causing unemployment, for want of the metal:

The R.F.C. construction of only 6,000 homes at the maximum. But Strandlund has testified in executive session on capitol hill that he must have and at least 100,000 tons of steel to make a small profit. Even if he obtained all the allocation through Steelman's influence, he would run out of it in six months.

Nevertheless, he leased three plants at Columbus with a floor area of 1,000,000 feet and 20 acres of land. He has a great deal of steel, but he has not used so far. He says that he will be turning out 100 units a day by November, and has fixed a goal of 50,000 annually, requiring about 500,000 tons annually.

PARTIALITY—Obviously, as the industry, government and construction agencies and companies are aware, the 50,000 tons is only a starter. And they also fear that, as a government-created corporation, Lustron is not a fair competitor in the market for steel and materials to the detriment and destruction of private concerns in this and related fields.

They contend that not even FDR, under the pressure of the steel industry, showed such partiality to individual industrialists as have such proclaimed apostles of private enterprise as President Truman and Eleanor Roosevelt. Strandlund has an answer to the shortage problem with which many agree. He advocates curtailment or restriction of construction of racetracks, baseball parks and other amusement structures, sports markets and similar unnecessary projects. Others point out that steel used in making automobiles would be enough material for 2,000,000 homes annually, and they ask which is more important; semi-luxury transportation or shelter?

JANE DOE FOR PRESIDENT

In a thoughtful article in the August Ladies Home Journal, Dorothy Thompson comments on the fact that women have reached their greatest heights not in the field of art and letters but of statecraft. She cites as examples Joan of Arc, Blanche of Castile, Eleanor of Aquitaine and the great queens of the century: Elizabeth, Victoria, Maria Theresa and Catherine. There is more chance in this evidence for a woman to make a great President than to rise to the rank of empress. In this year which celebrates a century of women's progress since the first woman's rights convention at Seneca Falls, it is interesting to find that the New York Herald of that date declared it was much mistaken if "and even a pre-feminist congressional committee in 1851 was compelled by the facts to recommend that women have no part in the White House."

And she, Thompson, who has been a prominent and conspicuous member of the race, "who weighed against that single-minded, reckless devotion to the creative imagination which produces great art, then we may expect to see those qualities take women more and more, into public service—and why not into the White House?—Christian Science Monitor.

NO HARD FEELINGS

Browsing in a bookshop yesterday, George Bernard Shaw came upon a much marked-down volume of his plays. Inside he found his autograph addressed to Mrs. E. B. Shaw, and dispatched it back to the original recipient—Adrian Anderson in New York.

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

NEW YORK—About the time the New York Yankees brought Babe Ruth down from Boston, a young woman reported that she had hit him down from the sticks with $60, a few weeks ago.

The story, which was picked up by the "Clippings and letters" of character of the chief of police, the chief of police, a clergyman, and a clergyman, landed on the job on the New York Herald Tribune. The paper, which was written by Phil Payer, the city editor, had an assignment which had been a turkey for several other reporters and she came in not only with the one story but her two.

Her assignment was to learn whether the vestry of the Church of the Ascension on Fifth Avenue would uphold or repudiate the Rev. Percy Slocum Grant who wanted to use the edifice as a political forum. This she did by walking up a wrong flight of stairs where she encountered a tall, making alterations and he, gesturing her with sheers and adjusting her to be quiet outside the door and had heard them vote in favor of Doctor Grant.

The emotional reek of leave and fall was rift, mingled with the rich bouquet of booze and hairs in the catcombs beneath the stands. Ruth was a busy old but, as one remembers now and again, just a wild, humphous reform-school kid, with a nose as wide as a hand-span and cheeks so fat he seemed to have pouched a grapefruit on each side.

Ruth was a busy old but, as one remembers now and again, just a wild, humphous reform-school kid, with a nose as wide as a hand-span and cheeks so fat he seemed to have pouched a grapefruit on each side.

Confronting some vestrymen, she confirmed her information into knowledge or story No. 1, and, the afternoon, there was a preliminary meeting going on at that moment which she could attend by walking quietly and pretending to belong, which she did. The speaker was a wild red head whose main proposition was to blow up the capitol in Washington, in no rhetorical sense but physically.

This gave her to inquire if a determined woman sitting in the twilight whether the speaker was "ex-Governor Sulzer" who had been kicked out of Albany by Tammany. For all the political propaganda that added more to the list of a martyred victim of a brutal, political monster, he was as cool as a Bubbled-and-Wallick and a dangerous man to the extent of his powers. But Tammany trimmed back in the nick of time.

The determined woman turned on her husband reporter and angrily said: "This is Governor Sulzer! Not 'ex-governor'!"

It was indeed Sulzer no less and the wild man's inflammatory counsel that added more to the list of a martyred victim of a brutal, political monster, he was as cool as a Bubbled-and-Wallick and a dangerous man to the extent of his powers. But Tammany trimmed back in the nick of time.

A few weeks later the lady reporter was injured when a street car crushed her tailback so she happened that even by the fall of 1921, the year that the "Yankees" with Babe Ruth sitting in home runs, won their first pennant and went into their first world series against the Cincinnati Reds.

That was a wonderful world series and more liquor was drunk and more anecdotes were laid than at any other before or since. The whole intermezzo of the Commodore was a bad thing. There was another bar at the Martingale for the more private rejoicing of the late "Cap" in Boston" an engineer and a partner in the Yankees who, in France, 1917, had gone around saying "my building a committal and timid overture toward her before she was paralyzed and the old waiter for the rest of the night, which, for some reason, they had in mind. But perhaps it was a game!

In the 20 years since our marriage in the summer of 1922, she has often retold this with intent to embarrass me. But I have never been put out of face at all. It was a beautiful gift, an authentic "Babe" Ruth ball of the series of 1921. The greatest year of all.

If you can believe all the releases about the new Army, the life is going to be cooler than a suite at the Waldorf-Astoria, hear Gen. Omar Bradley says that from now on officers and non-coms who like to coast the enlisted men under them had better mind their Emily Post or they'll be dropped like a hedge party hint. If this sticks there'll be a lot of top-sergeants who'll just have to nod their heads. They won't dare speak. Putting the muzzle on a top-kicker's oral calisthenics is like having Jack Kramer play tennis in a strait-jacket. Still, it might work out fine... especially for the new enlistees.

Woman Questions Aim in Plan For Parallel Parking in T. F.

Editor, Times-News: On this matter of parallel parking, it seems to me the "expert" hired by the city ignored many facts pertinent to the situation. For one thing, he stated that a much greater number of cars could pass through the streets of Twin Falls if we had parallel parking. What is the object here we try to make a through-street of the town, or are we trying to accommodate as many shoppers as possible with parking space?

People driving through town at the rate of so many hundred per hour do not leave any money here. When it comes to holding up traffic, did Mr. Barton ever get himself stalled while a driver not always a woman—backs and twists and pulls forward to start all over again, then we try to shove into a flat park? If he hasn't he is one in a million.

Get over three cars at one time going through these contentions, along a block, and you really have a jam.

The pretty little sketch in the Times-News showed cars about the size of kiddy cars parked on either side of a traveling down the middle, while seemingly areas of street were unoccupied. Draw that to scale and see if this plan really puts in the picture a few drivers in an episode of getting in a flat park one before they can pull out with this much advertised "ease."

If there isn't better parking made for people who have business to transact, we are going to find the center of town a ghost town because of the short-term parking space. I agree with the statement made recently by one of our prominent business men, the merchants had better wake up before it is too late.

Woman Refutes Claim of More, Cheaper Goods

Editor, Times-News: Mr. Crawford, I haven't seen any reports of cheaper and more abundant autos, harvesters, repair bills and other things that you mentioned last week.

I would like to add that well casing is something else that doesn't seem to be so abundant.

We have tried for a year to secure casing for our well, but 125 feet of six inch casing can't be found or else someone stretches the truth. There must be plenty of casing or there would not be so many wells being drilled.

Maybe we don't hold our faces just right or didn't feel them a line mile long. When you live 50 miles from town you don't have time to stand and feed this line either.

These housewives, too, are going backwards to bring meat prices down.

I hope Mr. Crawford, that you opened someone's eyes for that was a nice letter for the social class.

In closing I would like to say what fine cooperation we have from our harvester dealers when we need parts. We went to Rupert sometime ago to get a part we ordered for our harvester machine and what happened next, for he had given it to a friend.

We argued with him for a few minutes. Then he threw his parka book on the counter and told us to go somewhere else for our parts. We ended up in American Falls.

Woman Cites Figures in Claim On Idaho Polio Incidence Rate

Editor, Times-News: It would seem that "Lunch" spot in my Public Forum letter of two weeks ago when three salient points of polio incidence challenged my personal integrity in last Sunday's edition.

Three days before their statements were printed, I offered one of them an answer in writing to any of their queries or criticisms with the source of the facts. That offer was not accepted.

They questioned my veracity in saying the incidence in Idaho has only about one chance in 15,000 of getting polio. This, if they had but taken the trouble to investigate, was an understatement.

Idaho bureau of vital statistics data available at the time I wrote my letter shows a total of 619 recorded polio cases in Idaho for the years 1924 through 1940. U. S. bureau population figures for the years 1920, 1930, and 1940 show an average population of 407,284. Averaging out these figures indicate a polio incidence average of 27 cases per year for an average population of 407,284, or one case in 17,007 population. This is actually a lower rate of incidence than I gave in my original letter.

However, since my first letter appeared, three other letters have been released by the Idaho bureau of vital statistics and the U. S. census bureau has released an estimated figure of 525,000 as Idaho's population as of July 1, 1948.

Adding these new figures to the 619 cases in Idaho for the years 1924 through 1940, the incidence rate, but still leaves the odds above 10,000 to one against a person getting polio in Idaho. The new figures are:

Total polio cases, 1924 through 1947, 894; average population, 408,142; new average rate of incidence, 42 per year per 408,142 population. That averages out for a rate of one case per 11,818 persons in the state. Those are good odds and they speak for themselves.

On the matter of rates, two salient points they do sell individual protection at the rate of $3, even in their policies. Then they call attention to family rates, which make individual costs lower. That is true—but in my original letter I made the point that the rates mentioned are not a public agency. It is an organization whose purpose is dedicated to the care of polio victims regardless of financial status, race, creed or color.

The national foundation pledges every polio victim the finest of medical care—absolutely free—for as long as it may be deemed necessary by competent medical authorities. This may be for a short time or for the entire lifetime of the individual.

These are the facts. Let the reader decide about polio insurance.

Wendell Woman Urges State Be Kept Clean, Too

Editor, Times-News: We are hearing so much about keeping Idaho green, why not also keep Idaho clean?

A few days ago I drove 50 miles and most of the way the borders of the highway were littered with rubbish, tin cans, empty bottles, cardboard cartons and numerous other things.

We brag about our scenic wonders and the beauties of our state and then destroy our beauties by using our roads for a dumping ground. Most of our towns have dumping grounds. Why not use them and "keep 'em clean."

Highway Worker Accident Rate Is Reported Lower

BOISE, Aug. 21 (AP)—Accidents among state bureau of highway employees have dropped markedly the first six months of 1943 since the beginning of a safety program.

The bureau said payments for compensation and medical care as the result of accidents totaled $222.32 for the first half of this year.

These payments cost the bureau $5,456.26 for the full 12 months in 1942. The highest cost of accident payments since 1942 was in 1945 when $17,219.93 was paid to highway workers.

The safety program was begun in September, 1947, and safety schools were held this spring for employees. About 1,000 maintenance and engineering workers are employed by the highway bureau.

New Construction Slumping in T. F.

Proposed construction, as indicated by estimated costs in building permit applications, went into a tremendous slump last week. The total was only $7,293, less than one-seventh of the $55,193 figure for the previous week.

A break-down of the total for last week shows two applications for new residential construction, $5,200; two applications for new non-residential construction, $1,018; and four applications for additions, alterations or repairs to existing residences, $915.

A building permit application was filed Friday by Harry Packnitz to build a 16 by 24-foot frame one-family dwelling, without basement, at 410 Locust street south, at an estimated cost of $1,000.

Wednesday, Gooding; Thursday, Jerome, and Friday, Burley.

The Twin Falls marine office at 203 Shoshone street north will remain open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. throughout the week, the sergeant said.

Solon Selects Registrars to List Draftees

BOISE, Aug. 21 (UP)—Gov. C. A. Robins reported today that registrars are being picked for each county and that equipment and supplies are being shipped to county clerks in preparation for the registration of an estimated 25,000 Idaho youths under the new draft law beginning Aug. 30.

The governor said, however, that organization of selective service boards in some counties is coming along very slowly. He said this was due to the fact that many men appointed now are away on summer vacation and that it has been difficult to get a quorum present for board meetings.

The governor said he is attempting to place veterans of World War I on local boards along with former board members and the older citizens of the community.

But he added that many World War I veterans still are in error or commissioned reserves and can't qualify. This appointment of replacements is necessary in many instances.

Meanwhile, John F. Walsh, state selective service agent and editor of newspaper editors throughout the state advising them of two proclamations recently made by the governor.

One called upon Idaho men aged 18 to 25 to register under the new draft law. The second pointed out that youths under 18 and one-half majority (in Idaho) are exempt from the draft and are exempt from the draft.

HARRY BARRY LUMBER CO.

Charley and his wife rolled in the other day from a vacation visit to their old "atompin'" ground in Missouri. Charley says he's glad to be back, and that the prospects indicate a bumper crop in Missouri and Kansas.

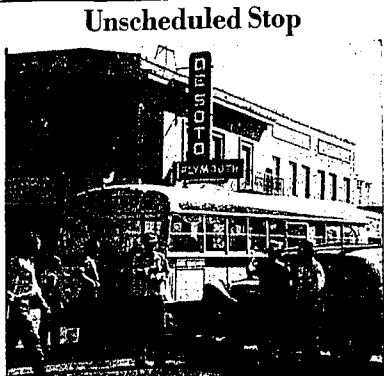

We have a bumper crop of lumber in the yard, and we just keep getting it in about as fast as we sell it. A man came in Friday from Burley to get some of that good No. 2 oak flooring which we are selling at $182 per thousand. A man came over from Gooding last week for some No. 1 oak flooring at $108 per thousand. We still have plenty of both No. 1 and No. 2 oak flooring. This oak flooring is 1 inch thick, and in 1/4 and 2/4 inch widths.

Then we have dimension oak, 2 and 3 inches thick, and 4 to 8 inches wide. We can supply you with a piece of oak for most any purpose desired. We still have No. 1 and No. 2 fir flooring.

This is the time of year that there is a demand for 2 and 4 room houses. If you need one quick, we can build it in a "jiffy" right here in our yard and John Deeks will set it upon your foundation with such skill that you would think the house had been built upon the foundation. Clyde Briggs and his crew can build you a house in ten days with the sewer saw in our yard. We build these houses on four floor plan.

We are getting another shipment of No. 1 shingles, that should be in Monday. We now have 4 inch, 4 inch, 4 inch and 4 inch ply wood. Also have a good supply of C pine, from 4 inches to 12 inches wide. A shipment of nails was unloaded Friday, so we now have all the different sizes of nails.

Maximum maturity is 18 months for contract payments not exceeding $1,000 and 18 months for contracts above $1,000, except that monthly payments on such contracts shall not be less than $10.

Talks Set for School Dates In New Zone

Opening dates of schools in class A school district No. 413, the recently reorganized district in the Piler-Hollister area, will be adjusted at a trustee's meeting at the Piler high school auditorium at 8:30 p.m. Monday.

The great all purpose car!

Pontiac is the right car for so many people because it does all things—so unusually well.

If, for instance, you are concerned with economy—as most of us are—you will find that Pontiac is virtually as inexpensive to own and operate as any full size car you could buy.

If you like to tour and take long trips—you will find that Pontiac is one of the easiest-riding, nicest-handling cars ever built.

When you need to "put your best foot forward"—go to a fashionable wedding or some other social event—you will find that your Pontiac looks "right at home."

And if you have to make hard daily trips over rough country roads—you will find that Pontiac can "take it" like the thoroughbred it is.

Truly, regardless of what you want a car to do, Pontiac provides a splendid answer to your problem. And this is always true of Pontiac, year after year—for Pontiac is deliberately designed to be America's "all-purpose" car.

CGM Motor-Drive and Wide Sidewall Tires and bumper guards optional on all models at additional cost.
