TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—The bipartisan capitol bill opposition to the administration's program of semi-wartime controls over food and finances was given by Senator Truman the same opportunity for the kind of "attack-act" strategy he employed so effectively in the 1940 campaign.

At the 80th congress in the 1944 presidential campaign, Truman's brilliant decision on civilian restrictions expired next Saturday morning. He had to make a choice between the senate and house committees so far have torn the presidential proposals to bits.

Truman has voted, at least temporarily, against proposed rollbacks on military production. He has also voted against a bill to curtail a pound. They are weakening such things as steel, aluminum and copper may be weakened, in response to certain industries' protests.

REVENUE—The tax bill on the house side gives Mr. Truman only $7,200,000,000 of the more than $10,000,000,000 he asked in order to pay 100 percent purchase power and to finance rearmament. Should 1945 production and purchases of goods be reduced, the federal revenue from this measure may fall below the legislators' estimates.

CHINA—The great material shortage of scarce materials such as steel, aluminum and copper may be weakened, in response to certain industries' protests.

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

The supreme court, packed with adherents of the regime which embraced our enemy, nevertheless has mustered the loyalty to admit that the Communist party is a criminal conspiracy to teach and advocate the overthrow of our nation by force and violence.

A conspiracy is a criminal partnership. Every party to a conspiracy is a criminal partner. Every party to a conspiracy is a criminal partner.

The majority opinion, written by Chief Justice Vinson, repudiates a previous judgment of the same tribunal written in the first Harry Bridges case. That vicious writ was done at a time when it was politically stylish and socially chic in the staid society of Washington to pronounce as law the cynical paradox.

It held that Bridges was not abetting the communist conspiracy against this nation merely because he had cooperated with the traitors up to a point short of their goal of success. That regime knew it was an ally. That regime knew it was an ally. That regime knew it was an ally.

FOREIGN LOBBIES

Sound American public policy probably would be served by a fair congressional inquiry into lobbying by foreign governments. But there's serious doubt such an investigation conducted now would measure up to vital standards.

Senators McMahon and Morse first broached the idea in the MacArthur hearings, suggesting that the so-called "China lobby" be probed. They contended that funds originating in the U. S. are being used to influence American far eastern policy.

Secretary of State Acheson agrees such a study could be valuable, but believes it should distinguish between "proper and improper" foreign lobbying activities.

He told the senate that President Truman has instructed all appropriate executive agencies to cooperate fully should such a study be undertaken.

From the senators' discussion of the issue, it is apparent the inquiry, if voted, could not be confined to "China" alone. It would extend to all governments, friendly or otherwise.

On its face this proposal seems eminently wise and fair. Other things being equal, there is reason to suppose the widest possible scrutiny of foreign lobbying operations.

But, unluckily, other things are not equal. Senators who approach our foreign relations in a cavalier spirit of justice and reason are the exception rather than the rule. Too many have pre-likes and dislikes among foreign nations.

In their eyes, the countries they disapprove can do no right. Those they like are given every sine including those they will not tolerate in any other nation.

Consequently, putting the lobbying activities of all nations under the microscope at this time would mean more than useful disclosure of improper doings.

It would provide lawmakers who have varied foreign phobias with an ideal excuse to unleash those with their widest and most biased biases. It would be another day of emotionalism, of which we have already had too much in congress these recent months.

In the course of a lobbying inquiry, American international relations would inevitably suffer, as they have suffered too often in the past few years from irresponsible congressional outbursts.

There has been enough talk for the moment. The need now is for action—action to arm the free world against the communist danger.

At some later time, when the atmosphere of congress is more temperate and the risk less from irresponsible behavior, it will be wise to study just how foreign nations may have improperly tried to influence American policy.

Almost certainly, that goal would be quickly brought to light if the investigation were undertaken now.

REACTION—It is almost as general the life of national austerity outlined in the President's message to congress last January, when we were suffering from the effects of the war, as it is now setting the stage for business as usual in many lines. It refuses to heed Truman-Acheson-McCarthy's warning that it is time to profit from the war, to blaze into a full-scale conflict at any moment.

It is a natural reaction, and reflects a vast segment of public sentiment. It is a natural reaction, and reflects a vast segment of public sentiment. It is a natural reaction, and reflects a vast segment of public sentiment.

PROFIT—As the almost certain Democratic candidate for President next year, many foreign-born politicians are anxious to profit from such a congressional program. The same idea has struck the strategists at National Chairman William Boyl's headquarters in Washington.

If heavy government spending, which will hit its peak next year, is to be used to profit from the war, prices and scarcities, the failure to enact the White House control proposals will enable Mr. Truman to make a profit from the war.

He will represent himself as the only spokesman for "the consumers" at the capital, as he did at a recent White House conference.

ALTERNATIVES—On the other hand, if economic conditions remain fairly normal, did if unfettered farmers and manufacturers boost production, as they have in the past, the government will be bound to the man in office. It always does. Anyways, the voters will be no so interested in the identity of their benefactors as they will be in the fact factors.

Mr. Truman's politically minded opponents, including sincere critics of a controlled economy even in a semi-war state, are discussing two alternatives. The first scheme is to give him absolute control, but fewer men making him alone responsible for the general economic situation on the eve of the 1952 election.

FIGUREHOLE—The other is to renew the existing national defense act, with a few modifications, for 12 months. Extension, or for one year would revive the controversy in the midst of the two national congresses, and only four months before the voters go to the polls.

Renewal would pigeonhole the problem until after the voters have spoken to the point.

The congressional confuser is understandable, for the business community itself is uncertain over anti-trust groups, immunity, price controls, and other restrictions. Yet many industries, retailers and insurance executives feel them necessary to their own economic, democratic, however.

CIO President Philip Murray recently held a conference of his key men to high-pressure congress into approving price controls all down the line. But Rex Roubicek, head of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, says federal reserve curb on safe cars for fear it will mean unemployment for his members. Many other labor leaders are in the same fix.

GENTLEMEN IN THE FOURTH ROW

The late Senator Mudd, Maryland, who gave professional service to John Wilkes Booth after Booth had shot Abraham Lincoln thus helping him to escape briefly, was sent to a moated Caribbean prison for this.

There are literally thousands of prominent new dealers who, by this precedent, are guilty of criminal complicity with the criminal conspirators of the Communist party in the United States and should be stripped of their spurious honors and formally reprobated by the nation and sent to prison.

Mudd did no harm. He did not know Lincoln had been shot. He was purged by an oath having the highest official recognition and by the purest ethics to do as he did.

No political agent of the guilty political party which recruited Soviet Russia in the face of many formal commitments by the Soviet government to destroy this government, can plead any such justification as Doctor Mudd could.

The fact that many of these betrayers of the United States had the run of the White House does not mitigate their crime, but aggravates it.

A time is not quite in sight but is just over the hill when the people denied him to deportation as a communist.

Being adjudged a communist by a court which, on the same day, previously held that there was no such thing as a nation and is ordered out.

Attaining the obvious consequences of the conviction of the infamous traitors who were tried in New York, the court now holds that the phrase "clear and present danger" does not forbid the government to act in its own defense to prevent the success of the conspiracy.

How often have we seen acting on confidential underworld tips, stepped in to prevent the commission of armed robberies? What court would hold the conspirators innocent because timely action had thwarted them? Such timely action does not disavow the criminal conspiracy nor is the guilt of the conspirators diminished.

Plainly, every member of the Communist party is equally guilty of armed robbery. What court would hold the conspirators innocent because timely action had thwarted them? Such timely action does not disavow the criminal conspiracy nor is the guilt of the conspirators diminished.

MEANING OF DEMOCRACY

Even among those who approved General MacArthur's dismissal in April, there was widespread regret that the action removed from Japan the man who had so ably administered the occupation there.

Correspondents on the scene contributed to the general concern by voicing fears that the Japanese might react badly to the event. Some foresaw a deterioration in the situation that could wipe out all the excellent progress Japan had made under MacArthur.

Actually, no dire results have ensued. That a calamity has not occurred does not, however, cast any doubt on the judgment of those who measured MacArthur's administration so highly.

It is simply a reflection of the endlessly-demonstrated fact that in a working democracy like America's, no man is indispensable nor need be regarded as such.

General Ridgway, his talents as a field commander already well proved, is now displaying the special abilities required for an occupation administrator, as did MacArthur before him, and General Clay in Berlin.

This is not to say he has the same specific qualities, or that he sees the job in quite the same light. There are significant differences between his personality and MacArthur's, and inevitably their approach is different.

The important thing is to make comparisons in an effort to determine whose administration would be the more effective. The exciting fact is that a man of MacArthur's stature can be supplanted without damaging the nation's prestige or reducing the effectiveness of its policies.

We can be grateful that in some fields, at least, we appear to have an ample reservoir of leadership and can thus give continuity to our affairs.

But probably the greatest benefit from Ridgway's excellent follow-up performance is the lesson it has given to the Japanese. There had been in their extreme regard for MacArthur something of the same worshipful attitude the Japs always had felt for their emperor.

To a nation being schooled by us in the ways of democracy, it was therefore valuable instruction to learn that leaders could be changed without unduly disturbing the continuity of leadership is inherent in our concept of democracy.

General Ridgway deserves our thanks, and the whole free world, for demonstrating the human vitality of a nation living under liberty.

NO CRIME COMMISSION

A congressional crime committee should be set up as a permanent agency of the congress and we are equally convinced that the congress should take a full look before it authorizes the setting up of a federal crime commission.

If existing laws are strengthened and local authorities are required, by the people, to provide a satisfactory and adequate quality of enforcement the actual needs will be met. The reluctance of a congressional "watch-committee" should be enough of a spur that without adding another agency to the already preoccupied agencies of government.

A national crime commission, to accomplish what its well-meaning sponsors intend, would have to evolve the means of an independent investigative agency and the step from that to an unwanted federal secret police outfit would be short, indeed.—Memphis Commercial Appeal

Traffic Gains Are Noted in State for May

BOISE, June 27.—Traffic over Idaho highways during May was 4.5 per cent above that of May, 1950. The state highway department reported only one of the nine permanent toll counters showed a drop. Traffic on the county west of Coeur d'Alene on U. S. 10 declined from a daily average of 172,910 in May, 1950, to 159,395 this year.

However, this department noted that the decrease was due to a new location of the counter, which has been moved further west of Coeur d'Alene. It is now 8.5 miles from Coeur d'Alene and misses much of the around town traffic which boosted its figures in past years, the department said.

Other toll counter stations included:

- U. S. 89 eight miles east of Boise, 78,006 in May; 70,064 in May, 1950.
- U. S. 30 three miles east of Twin Falls, 111,022 in May; 123,242 in May, 1950.
- U. S. 30 N. seven miles south of Pocatello, 111,477 in May; 100,122 in May, 1950.
- U. S. 6, 199 seven miles north of Pocatello, 159,621 in May; 126,021 in May, 1950.
- U. S. 6, 39 three miles east of Lewiston, 82,640 in May; 81,335 last May.
- State 25 two and a half miles west of Jerome, 81,272 in May; 79,701 a year ago.
- U. S. 21 eight miles west of Kings- ton, 71,731 in May; 74,658 a year ago.
- State 19 two and a half miles west of Caldwell, 76,010 in May; 76,000 a year ago.

Dam Progress Labeled Slow

TACOMA, Wash., June 27.—Construction of multiple purposes dams in the Pacific northwest is progressing too slowly for the welfare of the region, Sen. Dan O. K. Walsh of the army engineers, said.

General Walsh spoke here at a meeting of the Columbia basin inter-agency committee.

The engineer cited the proposed Hells canyon dam on the Snake river as the important project not yet authorized by congress. He said the proposal has been approved by the army engineers bureau of reclamation and the President.

Ticket Agent Bothered About Outcome of Race He Started

OLINNS PERRY, June 27—It's surprising what life can throw at a person in the way of worrisome little uncertainties.

Take the case of George Mogrovo, Union Pacific depot treasurer and ticket agent. He's wondering if any strange pigeons roosting around here are members of a flock of 23 he released here for the Tillamook Pigeon Racing club, Portland.

"This was the second time they were stater for a pigeon race. Just the other races, interest in which brought pigeons returns home first isn't entirely to pride of ownership.

Several years ago, Mogrovo was reported—the knows not why—to release pigeons a club expressed here. Sent from that one showed several birds never did reach home—only landed at Council, another at Weiser and two others still are missing in flight."

The ticket agent hasn't reported yet on the latest race but thinks the pigeons should have Tucker.
