Spokane Girl Wins Honors For Heroism

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 24 (AP)—Margaret E. Frye, 15, Spokane, Wash., who rescued four children from a flaming "Hottel" fire, and other children died, was one of 19 persons awarded bronze medals for heroic deeds, the Carnegie Hero Fund commission announced today.

Frye of the awards were made posthumously to persons who lost their lives in rescue attempts, the commission said. Seventeen persons were saved and six died in fire, flood and cave-in disasters dating back to February, 1950.

The 11-year-old Frye youngster was given an award for her work in saving four of eight children with whom she was staying in the absence of their parents when fire broke out in their home in Colville, Wash. She was hospitalized for three months with burns and other injuries, reported in the fire.

Death benefits, in addition to medals, also were awarded to the widows of three men who died in rescue attempts.

Lee Roy D. Orlem, 26, Tulsa, Okla., lost his life in an attempt to save a drowning victim, E. B. Haworth, 46 and Aquilino S. Howard, Cottonwood Falls, Kans., died attempting to save the life of 82-

Troops Use OCS For Ticket Home

PT. SILL, Okla., Jan. 24 (AP)—Sixteen members said today many overseas servicemen are using the officer candidate schools as a means to get a "ticket home" and to forestall their reassignment overseas.

The officers said it was impossible to get for sure, but the largest number of resignations by OCS recently sent to the school from overseas would indicate that those entering were not anxious to become officers.

More than one third of the officer candidate applicants at the artillery center have resigned shortly after their arrival from the Pacific.

Under present army policy, OCS students who withdraw are not sent overseas again.

In this way, the officers said, the candidate is virtually assured that he will be assigned to stateside duty while he "works out" the remainder of his enlistment.

Col. F. G. Smith, artillery commander, said it would be difficult to prove overseas candidates had no interest in becoming officers.

Solon Says Soviet Seeks Japan Reim

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 24 (AP)—Sen. William Knowland believes Russia is trying to bring Japan into the communist orbit "by hook or by crook."

"Solon has said that with Japan, the communist world would be invincible," Knowland declared.

"With such added capacity and with the psychological impact that communism on the march would have on India, Indonesia, Pakistan and the Philippines, it would be the communist expectation that, if not all, of what remained of free Asia would drop like a ripe fruit into the communist lap," he said.

City Manager Gives Report For Program

City manager Fred Cox continuing projects—service training for supervisors and possible revision of employment practices, and analysis of all existing office equipment—the number through standardization and proof of need, which this week's report states has been done, and study of office and service procedures, now listed under the heading of done or extensively worked on.

Smith's report states:

"A alert has been made on in-service training for supervisors by the recent enrollment of the city manager, director of public works and superintendent of streets and water in the public works administration course conducted by the International City Managers Association. Other work along this line has been accomplished. There is much left to be done, however.

"A report entitled Establishment of Uniform Working Hours for City Employees, dated Jan. 7, and presented to you, is the first step for improvement under this item. Pay for sick leave, vacation and other employee benefits hinge upon the establishment of a standard work day and week.

"Several studies have been made of all office forms, although some have been eliminated through consultation with other city agencies, practices and setting up administrative regulations. Wherever possible, the more expensive type of paper has been used, color form copies have been avoided and expensive printing eliminated.

"The unkeeping and payroll processes have been completely analyzed and new timekeeping methods set up. Considerable study has been made of the management of the existing fleet of papers, rates being established, new printing facilities installed and several improved operating facilities set up in the basket-staple area."

Smith listed the following program:

"Studying the city's total revenue system.

"Carrying on a comprehensive public information program.

"Completion of two large-scale projects: sanitary fill and water system improvements with a third remaining to be done (sewage treatment facilities).

"Projects listed as done or extensively worked on include: Establishment of organization authority and responsibility between the commissioners, city manager and department heads; setting up a system of administrative regulations.

"Establishment of centralized personnel control.

"Establishment of a system of central budget preparation.

"Preparation of agendas for meetings of the commissioners.

"Establishing certain that city employees receive professional publications which are beneficial to them and eliminating unnecessary ones.

"Establishment of a centralized purchasing system.

"Making a complete job classification and wage evaluation study.

"Making a comparative hearing and other city officials more conscientious than ever through a simple and effective system for expenditure control.

"Reorganization of the public works, parks and recreation departments and police departments.

"Setting up a cost accounting system.

"Preparation of approximately 35 special reports to the board on various problems.

"Formation of a seven-member recreation committee.

"Placing city employees under social security laws.

Care of Your Children

The teacher of the first grade hates the snowy months of winter. Why? Ski pants. Ski pants are not easy to get on. Mothers are hurried in the morning, what with getting breakfast, seeing that it is eaten, getting children off to school on time, and they take just cuts. The first grade scholar is faced, ahnked, pushed into his ski pants and hurried off.

When he gets to school those ski pants should come off. The small boy or girl does not know how to get them off, and the teacher, who has a hundred children to get ready for charges, all come up in these warm and woolly garments, zipper snags, buttons, buttons, buttons, buttons, buttons to give to helping get them off. Now and then she just gives up in the struggle to get last year's outfit off this year's owner and he wears it in a room heated to at least 70 degrees. That is not too good.

Difficult as the incoming season with the suits, it is nothing compared to the outgoing time, when these suits must be put on again and zipped in place. Dismissal time demands haste. Every child's body must be out at the second bell and no nonsense. But Tom is slick and he knows better. He is tugging at the pants, her right foot caught in the left leg. Susan Jane cannot get the zipper down. The boys are high and calling for help, and pump. Angela has given up completely. She sits waiting for someone to rescue her.

Troops Fight Tunis Rebels From Village

TUNIS, Tunisia, Jan. 24 (AP)—Recently armed French troops and police recaptured the town of Teboula, 90 miles southeast of Tunis, from Arab nationalists today. The French sustained some casualties in re-taking the town. It had been seized last night by rioting (new independence) forces. However, the casualty figures were not released immediately.

At least 27 persons were killed when the nationalists took Teboula and chased with French forces there and at the nearby fortress town of Mokkuba. It was the nationalist's first seizure of territory in disorders which started Jan. 15. At least 56 persons have been killed and more than 200 wounded.

French troops poured into Tunisia today from Algeria to reinforce garrisons throughout the province. Before the disorders started, French forces in Tunisia totaled 20,000 men and 10,000 officers, plus several native regiments of riflemen and mounted troops, several foreign legion companies and several battalions of provincial gendarmes and police.

No Shortages for Goods Due in '52

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP)—A government expert said today there will be "no shortages" of refrigerators, washers, television sets or other household consumer goods this year. The cheerful prediction came from Leslie P. Dodge, head of the consumer products division of the national production authority. He has just returned from Chicago's big semi-annual furniture and housewares shows, where buyers from all parts of the country place orders for the goods that will show up in retail stores months hence.

Dodge said his survey of the Chicago markets convinced him that American families will be able to get just about any household items they can pay for this year.

State Cash Fund Nearly 2 Million

BOISE, Jan. 24 (AP)—The state wound up the first quarter of the 1951-52 fiscal biennium on Dec. 31 with a total fund balance of $1,707,282. Although this appeared small compared with $5,386,592 in the general fund, free balance on June 30, 1951, State Auditor M. E. Nielson pointed out today that June actually is the high point for state revenues and December a low point.

Nielson said the free fund balance reflected all unpaid outstanding commitments against the general fund. Expenditures from the general fund during the six-month period amounted to $4,093,149. In addition, $6,093,240 was paid out of so-called legislative grants to the public school income fund and to public assistance.

Ten-Age Gunmen Fight Utah Police

TROOLES, Utah, Jan. 24 (AP)—Two ten-year-old boys fought with Utah police yesterday in an abandoned mine shaft near the town of Trooles, where they were hunting for gold.

A state airplane was pressed into the chase for the youthful bandits. Officers had been on their trail since they disappeared from their homes in nearby Stockton, in western Utah, two weeks ago following a series of burglaries. Sheriff Fay Gillette said he tried to locate the two Monday night but deep snow covered their tracks. Then a Stockton tavern was robbed Tuesday night and the search began in earnest. The boys were tracked to their mountain hideout—the mine tunnel.

A battery of 12 anti-aircraft guns was deployed at the command post of Lt. Gen. Sir George Erskine, the British commander in the canal zone. Stall Termed Cause of Big Plane Wreck

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP)—Experts with information from the Elizabeth, N. J., plane crash scene speculated today that the Gowanus river had stalled when it suddenly tumbled into a residential area. They said behavior of the American Air Lines plane during its approach to the Newark, N. J., runway just prior to the Tuesday afternoon crash caused a death toll of 29. They pointed out, however, that details thus far are too sketchy to form definite ideas as to the disaster cause.

Engine Falling Authorities were received information that one of the Conval Jiner's 2,400-horsepower engines may not have been turning out normal power at the time of the crash. Investigation of weather conditions revealed turbulence and sudden wind shifts at the various altitudes the plane flew through. Other pilots had difficulty holding a heading on Tuesday afternoon when a steady headwind was blowing.

Thaw Is Easing Threat of Flood

BLACKFOOT, Jan. 24 (AP)—Threat of a major flood from Ice-jammed Snake river at Blackfoot has been eased by thawing weather. Brig. Gen. John S. Wadsworth, Idaho adjutant-general, said only a chinook wind and extremely quick thaw of snow before crashing more ice could cause drastic damage.

The river already has flooded several Blackfoot homes. Some flood water poured onto the Blackfoot airport, but Walsh saw little damage. The remains of a stall or some other structure were moved. Walsh said he conferred with Gov. Len Sorensen yesterday and received approval for a "wall and levee" attitude on the flood. Proposed demolition of the Ice jam damming the river was vetoed as it might cause downstream flood damage.

GOPers to Assail Policies in Korea

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 24 (AP)—Gov. C. Cabellison, national Republican party chairman, says the chief plank in the GOP platform is assailing the criticism of the administration for "running the Korean war" into a stalemate at the sacrifice of many lives.

Cabellison, here to confer with television experts on plans for the GOP national convention in Chicago in July, accused the administration of placing American soldiers in Korea "not to win, but to be killed." He said other issues that undoubtedly would be Republican platform planks were high taxes, bureaucratic control over state affairs and corruption in the internal revenue bureau.

Hank Puzzled by Lure of Old, Priceless Items at Paris Mart

By HENRY McLEMORE
PARIS—The next time I find Christopher Columbus' statue in New York I may or may not doff my hat. Christopher never sailed more uncharted seas than I do when I come to Paris and go to the flea market. He was looking for unknown lands and I am looking for unknown bargains. The flea market is acres and acres of everything. It is Paris' equivalent of London's "Tavern" market, and the bazaars of Cairo, Damascus and Istanbul. There is always the possibility that the shop which sells old razor blades also will have for sale the slinking brat, that Napoleon, used at Marengo. People have been known to slip over a rusty duck press and buy a book inscribed by Lorenzo the Magnificent. People who like to buy second-hand wares visit the flea market as regularly as people who collect staff boxes dating back 400 and 500 years. Art books are on sale along with Serres porcelain, and it's entirely possible to pick up Queen Elizabeth's favorite pins if one has the patience to root around through...

the blocks and blocks of junk and treasures. Why the flea market is such a magnet to me, I cannot possibly explain. In the first place, I am pathologically ignorant of things antique. Objects of art earlier than the Calvin Coolidge era are not within my knowledge. I would recognize a photograph of the Stuart football team autographed by Herbert Hoover when he was manager of the same, and would pay a handsome price for it, but a pair of Maratist Neg's garçons would leave me cold, although the latter undoubtedly commands a higher price in the market. In my poking around the market yesterday I unearthed a table which the owner said was used by Marie Antoinette for canasta. Noting the look of amazement on my face the proprietor said, "Want to have my ways played canasta in one form or another. Lacking the coldness for poker and the mental for bridge, they have always had to turn to a silly thing like canasta." I turned down the table, but elected to pay more than I could afford for a cuckoo clock, whose cuckoo—I was told—was sticking...

when Pericles invented the toothbrush. A bargain, I guess. It only means that fewer McLemores will get Christmas presents this year. I also bought a mud-covered cow reputed to be of the Ming dynasty. This set me back one whole night in Montmartre. Why do I go to the flea market? Is it because Americans are young and like to own things that are old? Or is it a show-off gesture on my part? My two cats will take that cuckoo out of that cuckoo clock and chew him up within one week. That'll bet. The Ming cow won't be appreciated by any of my friends, including myself, of which I am the best and closest. In short, it will bring me no happiness whatsoever. A half dozen silk ties would have served me better. A lovely scarf for my niece. But no-one can ever say that I don't have in my home priceless, worthless things. And for some reason or other that makes us Americans happy (distributed by Hollandsville, Pa.)

Pending Talk To Determine Spanish Role

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP)—Pending American-Spanish military and economic talks will chart Spain's role in the western European defense pact, authoritative sources predicted today.

The process of establishing closer relations between Spain and the west is expected to be slow because of political objections in western European countries. But this government expects that Spain eventually will be offered membership in the North Atlantic treaty organization.

MacVahg Favor
President Truman, who has approved the Spanish aid policy, is expected to nominate a General MacVahg, now U. S. ambassador to Portugal, to be the next American ambassador to Spain. The appointment will enable the American aid program to continue on scheduling agencies' recommendation of Ambassador Stanton Griffin.

In requesting relief from his Madrid assignment, Griffin said he regarded as "completed" his mission of developing closer American-Spanish relations to advance the military economic talks.

Second Envoy
MacVahg will be the second American ambassador to serve in Spain following United Nations refusal to admit the Spanish Republic to the United States, and how $100,000,000 authorized by congress can be fitted into military and economic aid projects in Spain.

Federal Men Use Cloak and Dagger Methods to Combat Narcotics Traffic

The "cloak and dagger" campaign against narcotics is being waged in the Twin Falls area. This was the beginning of a tense 72 hours—with success or failure depends on whether they could gain the confidence of Jim Yellow.

At the apartment house, Watson left Agent Chappell in the car. He walked into the building and knocked on Robert's apartment door. The Negro peered out, recognized an old friend—and the informer stepped into the apartment. Watson carried a $3,000 Robertson set built into a Chinese cabinet.

"Are you alone?" Robert asked. The informer replied: "No. I'm running with a white boy, but he's all right."

This was a crucial moment. The whole carefully laid plan would collapse if Robert's became suspicious. But then Jim Yellow said: "That doesn't make any difference. I have a white wife. Bring him in."

Watson called Chappell into the apartment to meet Robert. He cautiously led him down the stairs. Jim Yellow told his visitors, "Then he asked Watson what kind of a car Watson was driving. 'A 1934 Cadillac convertible,' the informer replied casually.

Jim Yellow was impressed. "Many you doing all right, too," he said. Then Robert, the host, became expansive and beautiful to prove to Watson that he was a big man around town.

"Did you worry about anything while you are in town?" he said. "There was any trouble with police, he said. Just call him and he would be there and the cops were fired."

Finally the talk got around to marijuana and Watson asked Robert if he had any "pot."

Jim Yellow went into a bedroom and came out with three or four pounds of marijuana in a paper bag. "Help yourself," he said. Watson rolled some marijuana cigarettes and Chappell simulated smoking one.

"This is good stuff," Watson said. Chappell said: "It must have come from around Lexington, Ky."

Robert replied that it was a fact the marijuana had come from Kentucky.

Next day Chappell and Watson returned to Robert's apartment to check on the progress of the plan. And then Watson made his pitch. "I've got to get my nose cleaned," he told Jim Yellow—meaning he needed a shot of heroin.

Jim Yellow picked up a telephone, dialed a number, and told someone: "When you come over, bring 10 of those things and come over right away."

Later, a Negro brought a sack full of money into the apartment, and he handed a little brown envelope to Robert. Jim Yellow passed the envelope to Watson—an envelope containing 10 couples of heroin.

Watson gave Jim Yellow $300—the usual price of a cap junkie pay to Washington peddlers. And the agents had their evidence.

But they wanted a bigger haul of heroin if they could get it. During dinner, Watson asked Robert about the chances of "getting a piece"—getting a large quantity of heroin. Jim Yellow told him the same dealer—announcing the next day.

"I'll try to get it," he said. Watson asked.

"I'll try to get it," he said. Watson asked.

Watson asked he could buy the same amount in New York at a much cheaper price.

"Like hell you can," Jim Yellow retorted. "You know there is a panic there and if you want any stuff that is good, you'll have to get it from me."

The following day, Chappell and Watson tried twice to contact Robert. But the last time they knocked on his door, Tinky pecked around the chaired door and told Jim Yellow wasn't there—and she was leaving soon.

The game was over then. Narcotics agents raided the luxury apartment and seized more evidence than they could get it. Jim Yellow was sentenced to spend 20 months to five years in prison. His wife, Tinky, was sentenced to 16 months to four years in action.

Lag Is Noted In Output by Car Industry

DETROIT, Jan. 24 (AP)—The car makers boosted their output slightly but still lag behind scheduled production.

New models are in production on virtually all "assembly lines" and volume output is needed for dealer showings. Nevertheless the industry is finding it hard to get even the curtailed amount of materials authorized by the national production authority (NPA).

The NPA has told automakers they may build up to 1,000,000 passenger cars in the current quarter of the year. But that total will not be reached unless the auto companies find considerably more material than currently seems obtainable.

For the year's April-June quarter production has been set at not more than 300,000 passenger cars—if it can be done without increasing copper and aluminum consumption.

Some industry sources still appear hopeful more copper and aluminum will be allocated to civilian production. They hope output of cars will be boosted to 1,000,000 to halt the continuing lay-off of factory workers.

The April-June period traditionally is the industry's best-selling season. Most carmakers probably would rather take a production cut in the third and fourth quarters of the year than in April-June quarter, if they had a choice.
