TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—Such technical terms as "re-examination" and "de-authorization" will become increasingly familiar to congress and the American people under the Eisenhower administration plan for fiscal 1954 and an additional 10 billion dollars in the following year. Such a budget of recent years may permit a possible reduction of 10 or 12 per cent from the present budget, which now shows a revenue of about 10 billion dollars annually. The total of this amount from the tax collectors' till to consumers for spending or investment is required, however, by congress as one safeguard against a serious recession, when government outlays decline to more normal levels.

CONTROL LOST—Several capitol hill committees have been studying federal income tax administration since their survey shows that congress has lost complete control of public moneys which has been given for many years to the Internal Revenue department, and failed to police the handout branch of the government.

The tax system of this amount from the tax collectors' till to consumers for spending or investment is required, however, by congress as one safeguard against a serious recession, when government outlays decline to more normal levels.

LONG-RANGE PROJECTS—With economic, industrial, military and ever changing conditions changing so rapidly on the eve of the atomic age, it is agreed generally that congress cannot appropriate in 1953 for projects that will be completed in 1954.

Almost every witness at these off-the-record hearings conceded that point, although certain spokesmen for the interior defense department, and others, were willing to admit it. The proposed reform would strip their state of spending the taxpayers' contributions.

UNEXPENDED BILLIONS—The military, for instance, has an unexpended balance of almost 60 billion dollars, and President Truman is expected to make some 100 billion dollars in 1953. The total will represent funds allocated over a three-year period.

Some of the unexpended money has been used for advances in such weapons as planes, tanks, artillery, etc., not to mention the manufacture of hundreds of thousands of bombs and missiles on the production line. The scale production, naturally, has reduced the cost per unit for many of these war items, despite inflation.

Food, clothing and other necessities are being produced in such quantities that they are being sold at a profit. Defense, however, is asked to review its actual household needs and costs today, as against conditions which existed when they first presented their requests for funds. There has been an era of blind spending and blind spending at both ends.

CONDITIONS ENOUNCED—Senator Bridges, New Hampshire, has promised an inquiry and review that may disclose what he regards as "scandalous conditions" in the military program on the home front. He also will have his choice of chairmanship of the appropriations and armed services committees. His investigation will be conducted "step into it."

Not in the presence of a military expert in the White House to be disclosed.

"The record is already replete with faulty procurement, purchases of antiquated equipment, failure to deal economically on the basis of new discoveries and deficiencies in war materials that are needed in this country and elsewhere. Congress must review the total military budget, past and present, and do it continuously."

OTHER AGENCIES CRITICIZED—Two other presidential agencies—Interior and the Army—enormous money departments, all administered by the committee sessions for their handling of public funds. It is estimated that they have ancient appropriations that date back from 10 billion dollars to 20 billion for river and harbor projects, water power structures, reclamation, irrigation, etc.

Many of the construction and conservation jobs are now unnecessary because of economic, geographic, population, agricultural and industrial shifts in the United States. Long before the war, the Interior and the Army had received requests for proposed improvements. But both agencies will go ahead with the obsolete program, but with superficial modifications, unless congress intervenes.

With the Democrats in control of congressional committees, the money departments, all administered by the committee sessions for their handling of public funds. It is estimated that they have ancient appropriations that date back from 10 billion dollars to 20 billion for river and harbor projects, water power structures, reclamation, irrigation, etc.

DRIVER IDENTIFICATION
Local law enforcement officials expressed approval this week of a suggested plan to identify drivers of automobiles by the car itself. On first examination, the idea has a certain logic and would seem to recommend itself for legislative action.

Officers continually are required to make identification of drivers of automobiles. At present, efforts to identify the driver of a car bearing license number 10-5000, for example, reported to have been stolen, are hampered by the fact that the county assessor's records show 10-5000 was issued to John Doe.

The officers have found John Doe, they find he sold the car to a local dealer, who in turn sold it to a Richard Roe in Oregon, who in turn sold it to a Harry Kaiser in California. The dealer sometimes must trace a car through five or six transactions, and then may fail to identify the driver of the automobile.

Under the proposed system, John Doe would be the registered owner of license plate 10-5000. If he should sell the car to a Harry Kaiser, he would transfer the plates registered in his name to the car which he was then driving. It would be a simple matter for officers to trace the license driver or other violator. It also would be much easier for the owner to identify the car.

We have found the system works well in other states where it has been tried. We believe it would be a decided improvement in Idaho.—Emmett Messenger.

AN AMAZING REVELATION
New Hampshire's Republican Senator Bridges came up with an amazing disclosure the other day, that the government has a surplus of 100,000 surplus surplus $1,200,000 to produce C-119 cargo planes which it is also buying from the Fairchild Engine and Aircraft Corp.

The Kaiser-Frazer contract will cost the country nearly $150,000,000 more than if it had been let at the present price.

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

I have had two long, earnest interviews with Dr. Will Wallace, the editor of Reader's Digest, regarding the publication in his magazine of an article entitled Irving Wallace, a political cartoonist.

Although his last known position has been published prominently in the form of excerpts from a periodical, it was not until December, 1941, that Wallace remained silent in the face of many invitations to correct his article.

Wallace is preparing to reply to those leaders of the Digest, who have taken exception to any article of his. He is, therefore, not a member of the staff of David Dubinsky's Communist Workers' union, as was stated in a recent issue of the Digest.

Wallace believes that, if Loveston has been published without challenge as Brown's chief in this European political mission—then Loveston's recantation goes for Brown, not for Loveston.

Wallace is not as well informed as he should be. He is more truthful than he should be. He seems not to have taken the pains to read the plain statement of Loveston's "present political position" to the house committee. This statement does not bear out his wishful belief that Loveston did repudiate communism.

He is the plot of the matter: Dr. J. B. Matthews, the original "Red" writer, and, therefore, the author of the article on Loveston, is not a member of the Communist Party, as was stated in a recent issue of the Digest.

Matthews has been charged with endorsing a communist movement in Europe. He insists that even though Loveston wrote a long tract in 1936 advocating anti-Redism in the communist movement throughout the world, he later renounced, repudiated and changed his position. Wallace does not offer any documentary evidence that Brown has changed his position.

TEACHING DEMOCRACY

Educators are still debating the big question of how much "Americanism" should be taught in the country's schools in the interest of good citizenship. As does Dr. William F. Russell, president of Teachers College at Columbia University, who said recently: "The best way to beat a communist is to face him with citizens who know and love their country, who not only understand and reverse its ideals, and who can recognize these ideals and apply them in the ordinary situations of everyday life."

Such teachers feel it is the school's job to create this kind of understanding, and the consequence they must develop programs to promote study of U. S. ideals and principles. Others say the function of any school system is above all to remain neutral and objective, to steer clear of political turmoil, to take no sides in any political or social controversy, to be fair to all countries and all people.

The goal of objectivity may be commendable. But there seems to be good reason why it cannot be adhered to perfectly in teaching young Americans about their government.

Long ago we made a democratic form of government. To work well, such a system presupposes a well-informed, educated populace. Education for all is thus an indispensable element in democracy. How else do we get sound popular government?

That education ought to include a highly critical look at the very system we live by. We should be able to examine honestly all the faults of democracy in practice. And we should be able to stand up to the system as a people— to have a democratic form of government. To work well, such a system presupposes a well-informed, educated populace.

We should be able to examine honestly all the faults of democracy in practice. And we should be able to stand up to the system as a people— to have a democratic form of government.

Perhaps communism, today the most powerful rival system, should be on the teaching agenda in America. But that does NOT MEAN that teachers should have to teach about communism. For we want our budding citizens to go forth not as scholars in comparative government but as defenders of a faith, champions of the free system we have. And most educators are sure we cannot do that if we are strictly neutral in this one fundamental field, at least, we must promote.

To do so may violate the notion of pure scholastic objectivity. But we're not now and never have been living in a world where one can afford to be neutral in any one kind of government. And nobody has suggested so far that any agency of our society is better equipped than the school to do the job.

FRENCH GIVE HOPE

For six years the communist-led Viet Minh rebels have been battling the French forces in Indo-China. Many times the Reds have actually threatened the major French base at Hanoi. But, one way or another, the French have always managed to hurl back the menacing attackers.

As in Korea and in Malaya, where British units have been fighting an endless war against the communist forces, the Chinese war has seemed to offer no way out of costly, discouraging stalemate.

But recent developments have at least infused the French cause with new hope. The Viet Minh armies may be heading for their biggest defeat of the war.

It began when the Reds launched their greatest offensive of the entire six years, sending three crack divisions along south-westward into mountainous terrain in an apparent effort to encircle Hanoi—which lies to the east.

The communist drive came from the northeast, the Viet Minh stronghold, where main forces took the Reds and red China, source of materials and site of training bases. In early stages the offensive had great success.

Then suddenly the tide turned. In the French dropped 2,500 parachutists in the enemy's rear. They cut the red major supply lines and early escape routes back to their northeastern centers. Road blocks were established, and raiding French tanks fanned out to produce havoc in red territory.

The advancing wave of red armies slowed to a halt. Their initiative is gone. They find themselves holding Indo-China soil which, by itself, has no particular strategic or military value. And they find their way home cut off. Instead of pushing on, they now must figure how to get back, at the least cost to their troops and resources.

A Day of Thanksgiving

Time for giving Thanks to the Lord for raising us from meagerness of our beginnings to the beautiful plenty we enjoy now.

The Thanksgiving table our forefathers set up those many years ago was an Oasis in a desert of near-starvation days. An immigrant people, newly arrived and untrained for the needs of this wild continent, needed help to even exist. This they received from their friendly Indian neighbors.

The meaning of those early times is sometimes lost in the dazzling brilliance of our present wealth. We forget that all this is not merely the product of our labors, but also the result of the kindly benevolence of our Lord. Let us then celebrate our good fortune with humility, vowing to use His Light as our beacon.

Southern Cal Shapes up as Best West Coast Rose Bowl Representative in Decade

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 26 (UP)—The Pacific Coast conference sends Southern California, the best west coast team in a decade, into the Rose Bowl, against Wisconsin, which may be the weakest club the Big Ten has sent during the six years of the "closed shop" pact. But the PCC club is warned that it shouldn't be cocky. True, UCLA knocked over the

Badger Coach Rates Team As Underdog

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 (UP)—Wisconsin's football coach, who rates the team "Rose Bowl" today, but the Badger's trip to the post-season game is not to be taken as an extra chore for their through coach, try William. "I definitely think we'll be underdogs," he said.

Even before his team was named for the Big Ten athletic directors voted to represent the conference to play against Southern California, Williamson was at work. He spent Sunday examining the movie of Saturday's 21-1 tie with Minnesota and "badly mumbled" extra chore for their through coach, try William.

"I think we probably play the best west coast team to get into the bowl since this pact was started, but I don't see a good job," he said.

William said only two of his boys were injured, Larkie Mark Johnson and Jim Tuesday, but he anticipated that both would be in peak condition before the bowl.

"And we should have Harland Carl, too," he said. "We could use just a little in the last half of the season due to injuries and he'll make a difference in our ball club."

He pointed out that Carl was unable to play in one of Wisconsin's two defeats, the 20-7 loss to UCLA, beaten 14-12 Saturday by Southern California, as the undefeated Trojans captured the Pacific Coast conference crown and gained the Rose Bowl berth.

"Southern California is a sound, well-tuned team, good and thorough and tough," he said. "You've got to stay in there and try and slug it out with them."

Wisconsin won six games, lost two and tied one during the season while Purdue won four, lost three and tied two. The two clubs shared the Big Ten title with a conference record of four wins, one loss and one tie.

It was understood that Wisconsin was favored by 6 of the 10 athletic directors who voted, while Purdue received four ballots.

Booster Group Plans Annual Bruin Banquet

Members of the 1952 Bruin football squad and prospective basketball team will be honored at the annual Bruin Booster banquet to be held Tuesday at the American Legion hall.

The affair brings together the backers of the Bruins, the boys who make up the football and basketball squads and their fathers.

Members of the Idaho State college coaching staff will provide the entertainment. They are Vito (Babe) Garcia, football coach; Steve Bickel, basketball coach; John Vetter, athletic director; and Miller Hilt, track and boxing coach.

They are bringing along some films of Idaho State games. It is the custom of the boosters to alternate the program between the University of Idaho and Idaho State coaching staffs. The Vandal coaches were the program last year.

Howard Mall, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, will be master of ceremonies. Tickets are on sale at the Times-Tribune news office and the Roger's Club.

Rudy Ashenbrenner, president of the Spoilers, Otto Simmons, vice president and Al Westerman, secretary-treasurer, have been working out details for the banquet.

Other aid in the planning work are Ben Mottern, Lorenzo Davis and Flavia Lyford.

Charles Rated Big Favorite Over Bivins

CHICAGO, Nov. 26 (UP)—Edward Charles, comeback prizefighter, is expected to win the 10-rounder Wednesday night.

The chase for Rocky Marciano's crown.

A sparse throng of 4,000-paying fans will go for a quick knockout of the fifth meeting of the two Negro boxers.

Charles, 31, who has been billed as being on the ferocious side in campaigning for his old title, says he will go for a quick knockout of the 37-year-old Bivins.

Such a victory would almost insure Charles' boxing career. It was in 1940, the Cincinnati scout was believed to claim Joe Louis' vacated heavyweight championship.

20 Games Set for Bruins

With a long 20-game basketball schedule opening early in December, Bruins coach Dan Falkins says he is getting his inexperienced hoopers ready for the campaign. The tall, slender mentor noted Tuesday afternoon that he has three lettermen back from last year but no varsity regulars. They are Dale Thier, Larry Hovey and Bud Sweet.

At present, Falkins' varsity squad is made up of 6 seniors and 12 juniors.

On the brighter side of the prospect, Falkins pointed out that the Bruins' team last year was undefeated. Most of that group is among the juniors making a bid to repeat their feat.

While the 1953-54 Bruins are going to lack in size, they may make up the difference in scrap and hustle. Coaches they are working hard on conditioning drills which should have them ready to go by the time they start their first game at the River at Tremonton, Utah, Dec. 5.

Coach Falkins tabbed Idaho Falls as the team to watch in the coming season. The Idaho Falls eagles were state class A champions last year. They had one or two men from their championship squad.

Falkins said that the Bruins would be enough to give Idaho Falls trouble in the conference along with Caldwell which might come up with a strong hoop squad.

According to present calculations, the Bruins would have to rate at least in the conference tie race along with Postville.

However, the spirit and hustle behind the young Bruin eagles indicate some rough evening for future opposition. An example is Bob Lydum. The lanky football quarterback who is on top prospect for a forward post on top basketball team received a cracked lower leg bone in a pre-season clash.
