

Wilson Holds up on Nominations as

Kyes Approved

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—President Eisenhower sent today the nomination of Roger M. Kyes to be defense secretary but again deferred formal appointment of the man he wants as army, navy, and air force secretary.

Kyes is a former vice-president of GM.

Mr. Eisenhower held back on the proposed nomination of the three service secretaries: Robert T. Stevens, army; Harold E. Talbot, air; and Robert H. Anderson, prospective navy secretary.

Decline Stock Disposal
Stevens and Talbot thus far have declined to get rid of stocks in corporations doing defense business with the government, so they are currently the subject of serious anxiety.

Senate Republican Leader Robert A. Taft told newsmen he understands conversations about the matter are continuing in the executive branch of the government.

Only Stock
Kyes now owns 2,842 shares of GM stock, worth about $10,000, and was to receive another 60 shares by January 1957, under a GM bonus arrangement.

Wilson was previously promised to "serve and strengthen America" in his role of defense secretary.

Only the formality of a White House ceremony stood between Wilson and the high government job for which he gave up $200,000-a-year salary as GM president and agreed to part with $2,000,000 worth of GM stock.

To Start Soon
Aides said the white-haired, 62-year-old businessman would take charge of the sprawling defense department as soon as he was sworn in.

Wilson was gratified by the overwhelming 77 to 6 senate vote confirming his nomination.

"I shall do my best to serve and strengthen America and the free world," said a businessman now as a member of a particular party, but as one of many citizens of this great country that must not fail.

Pilot Meeting With 'Disc' in Japan Related
TOKYO, Jan. 27 (AP)—An American pilot saw a small metal disc make a "whirring" noise as it fell from the sky.

A spokesman for the far-east air force said on a brief day. Brightman reported that the object was seen in an intelligence report filed last April.

He said: "I saw a disc-shaped object, about the size of a dinner plate, falling from the sky. It was moving very fast and made a whirring noise."

He said the disc was about eight inches in diameter, about one inch thick, and was seen in front of the jet and vanished from sight in a step climb.

Showed Clearly
The disc was seen March 20, 1952, about noon on a bright day. Brightman said he saw the object for two or three seconds, and then disappeared.

Two-Car Crash Kills Infant, Injures Five

A snowstorm whips the scene of a two-car collision northeast of Teton, Idaho, in which a 3-month-old daughter, Loretta Terherst, was fatally killed. The victim's family occupied the 1938 Chevrolet, left background, as it collided with the 1931 Nash Rambler, foreground. Mrs. Loretta Terherst, 3-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Terherst, died at 3:50 a.m. Tuesday in Magic Valley Memorial hospital, apparently of injuries sustained in an automobile accident at a rural intersection a half mile north and mile east of Teton. Dr. J. Woodson Creed, county coroner, said the exact cause of death was unknown and an inquest probably will be held.

Infant Dies Following Car Crash; Three Hospitalized

Loretta Terherst, 3-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Terherst, died at 3:50 a.m. Tuesday in Magic Valley Memorial hospital, apparently of injuries sustained in an automobile accident at a rural intersection a half mile north and mile east of Teton.

Dr. J. Woodson Creed, county coroner, said the exact cause of death was unknown and an inquest probably will be held.

Mrs. Terherst was reported in fair condition and a daughter, Lanna Sue, 1, in good condition by the hospital. Mrs. Vernon Nielsen, driver of the other car, was reported in fairly good condition.

Terherst and another child were shaken but were not seriously injured.

State police said Mrs. Nielsen was alone and driving south in a Nash Rambler and her family was going east in a 1938 Chevrolet.

They said the Chevrolet hit the right front of the Nash. The force of the impact threw the Nash 42 feet from where the two cars met. It went through a fence and hit a power line pole.

The Chevrolet appeared to have rolled over once, stopping on its top across a ditch. It was found in a ditch.

Considered Total Loss
Howard Tegan, Teton, was first on the scene and picked up the injured, taking them to a doctor's office in Teton where they were examined and sent to the hospital here.

Loretta was born in Twin Falls Oct. 25, 1952. The white mortuary will announce funeral arrangements.

Delay for Oil Case OKayed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—Federal Judge James R. Kirkland granted today a 90-day postponement of the government's anti-trust investigation of the nation's major oil companies.

Justice department attorneys asked for the delay to permit AT&T, Gen. Herbert Brownell, Jr., to confer with various departments and agencies of the national security aspects of the case.

Earlier, Kirkland had granted a similar, but shorter, delay to give the Eisenhower administration a chance to decide whether to proceed in the case. It claims the companies engaged in an international cartel arrangement.

Former President Truman tried to compromise the case. He instructed his attorney-general, James P. McGrath, to drop the case if the companies agreed to pay a fine of $100 million.

The companies balked and accused the government of attempting "blackmail."

State Planning on Defenses Advised

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay said today state should develop civil defense programs on their own, without depending on federal financial aid.

He recommended a "strict" federal agency to supervise and coordinate civil defense, but he opposed the federal government's dropping millions of dollars in federal money for that purpose.

McKay's position was at odds with that of the Truman administration. Former President Truman repeatedly urged congress to fund civil defense agency.

McKay outlined his views in a speech before the American Legion's national security conference.

Solons Hear On Closures

Boise, Jan. 27 (AP)—Former Budget Director Alvin H. Reading asked requests for nearly a million dollars in new buildings and the fact Northern and Southern Idaho Colleges of Education were four-year schools were "major factors" in the decision not to operate them in the current biennium.

Reading told the senate state affairs committee, investigating closure of the two schools, the decision to deny appropriations to the two schools "apparently was Governor Jordan's."

Sen. William J. Costley, D., Lewis, asked Reading if the state board of education had expressed a willingness to cut back operation of NICE and SICE to a two-year basis and Reading replied:

"I don't believe that alternative was offered either by the board or the government."

Dodged Responsibility
"In other words," Costley said, "the state board of education is unwilling to accept the responsibility for or back down on its decision to make them four-year schools."

"I don't recall any discussion on the matter," Reading replied.

Sen. Leonard Gifford, R., Owyhee, asked, "Were you aware that I went to the governor two years ago and asked if he'd sign a bill relieving these schools on a two-year basis and he gave me the bum's rush?"

Not "Virgin Idea"
Reading told the heated committee meeting that closure of the two schools was a "virgin idea" of Governor Jordan and that for numerous years he had heard talk of closing SICE or moving it either to Burley or to Pocatello.

Reading testified that in his budget preparations Jordan had called in a committee of people from throughout the state for consultation.

Under cross-examination from Sen. Leonard Gifford, R., Owyhee, Reading said, "I don't recall anyone from that part of the state" being called in to discuss denial of appropriations to NICE.

Hamilton asked if "I understood you to say the governor's decision to close the schools was made public before his message to the legislature?"

Reading was not asked from the committee.

"Ike" Creates Special Panel On Cold War

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—A special board for the cold war was created by President Eisenhower Monday to study techniques in the struggle for the minds and will of men.

The president named eight men to the board, including one of the nation's leading psychologists.

The committee will survey and evaluate the government's information and related policies and activities with particular reference to international relations and the national security.

With only 16 "shoping" days remaining, less than half the passenger car owners in Twin Falls have turned in their license plates for 1953.

Can't Last

"Don't pay too much attention to the little ones," said the weatherman. "It can't last—it's nearly February."

The AP reporter was skeptical, but saw some basis for the statement in the prediction for the next five days:

"Snow or sleet, 30 to 40 in the low mountains and snow in the mountains, mostly Wednesday and Thursday and again Sunday. Total amounts around 15 of an inch. Temperatures averaging above normal with warmer trend Friday, ranging 35-45 in afternoon and 15-25 at night."

Benson Slates Added USDA Changes Soon

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson says he will have changes in the department's policies on the farm program.

Introducing measures to aid the farm program, the new Republican Agriculture secretary said he would have changes in the department's policies on the farm program.

This information is expected to go a long way toward answering questions raised when Benson, in his first official act, announced last Wednesday a reorganization of the department's 20 bureaus in four groups.

Benson said he will be guided by a desire to save money and to make the government out of agriculture to the fullest extent possible.

Senate Okay Puts Defense Chief on Spot

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The 77-0 vote confirming Charles E. Wilson as defense secretary left him on the hottest spot in the Eisenhower cabinet.

Among the senators who helped give Wilson that overwhelming vote of confidence were some who believed his value as a cabinet official already had been impaired seriously. Some senators friendly to the new Eisenhower administration say privately that congress will not soon recover from the shock of the Wilson affair. Capitol Hill was astonished that Wilson and the President's legal advisers were unfurnished of the law's governing cabinet action.

More shock There was more shock than astonishment when Wilson and the administration failed to conform instantly to the law when it was cited. Before Wilson decided to tell his General Motors stock, there were suggestions that the law forbade him to own it might be changed, or that the national defense act definition of the secretary's duties might be amended.

That made a bad impression on the senate. Wilson, himself, made a bad first impression on the armed services committee. Friendly senators called him an arrogant witness.

Some of these same senators, however, found Wilson wholly changed in attitude and demeanor when he next appeared before the senate. He had first impression on the senate. Wilson, himself, made a bad first impression on the armed services committee. Friendly senators called him an arrogant witness.

USAF Reservists Up Squadron Roll

BURLEY, Jan. 27.—Formation of a flight of the 940th volunteer air reservists squadron, Twin Falls, appeared assured here Monday night with the signing of 15 air force reservists as members.

Another 8 to 10 reservists are expected to sign up within the next few days. The meeting was held at the army and was conducted by Col. Ivan L. Dunham, Hagerman, commander of the Twin Falls Air squadron.

If approved the local flight would include members from the 34th Cavalry group. Another flight has been formed at Gooding.

Signing of the additional personnel also appeared to assure the future of the Twin Falls Air unit in this area. It has been under threat and threatened with disbandment because of lack of interest by air force reservists.

Collins Notes Gain by ROK Army in War

SEOUL, Korea, Jan. 27.—U. S. army chief of staff, Gen. J. Lawton Collins, got a first-hand look at the South Korean army today and reported he was "impressed" with its improvement.

Fighting was light and Collins did not see much action on the inspection tour. But he was in a position to compare because it was his seventh trip to Korea since the United Nations moved 10 there to oppose communist aggression.

U. N. commander Gen. Mark W. Clark, and outgoing eighth army commander, Gen. James A. Van Fleet, made a rapid tour of forward divisions with the chief of staff. It included conferences with ROK officers.

"I have been impressed with two things up to now," Collins said. "One is the improvement in the ROK army. The other is the improvement in the allied road network."

In his tour of the front, hopping from headquarters to headquarters by light plane, Collins paid particular attention to ROK units which recently held almost two-thirds of the front.

Collins did not go below division headquarters level and seemed particularly interested in conferences with various commanders.

The army recently denied that narcotics addiction was widespread among troops in Korea.

Suit for Divorce Is Filed by Man

A divorce complaint by Raymond L. Eskridge was filed in district court Monday against his wife, Mrs. Dorothy M. Eskridge.

The couple was married at Salt Lake City, Oct. 1, 1943, and has two children. They separated last July and now live in Utah. They made a community property settlement when they separated, Eskridge states in his petition.

He charges his wife continually harassed, nagged and quarreled with him and unjustly accused him in the presence of others, of being unfaithful.

In addition to a divorce, Eskridge also asked the court to set a reasonable monthly amount for the support of the children. He did not seek custody of the children.

License Revocation Seen 'H-Bomb' in Battle for Safety on Highways of U.S.

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 27—Suspended or revoking the driving privilege of traffic violators was called the "H-bomb" of the traffic safety battle by Paul H. Blaisdell, public safety director of the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies, in a talk recently before the Delaware Safety council at the Hotel duPont here.

Asserting that public support of highway safety efforts faces something more than political or social opposition in the matter of punishing drivers, Blaisdell said a driver fears more than anything else the possibility of being ruled off the road for 90 days or more, and when facing such punishment he immediately puts on a "touching" act to retain his right to drive.

Such a driver, Blaisdell declared, turns on a "heart-rending" appeal that his job is endangered, hence his livelihood is in jeopardy, and thus food will be taken from the very mouths of his children.

"He wastes little or no time worrying about the children whose lives are in danger if he is allowed to pursue his reckless driving," Blaisdell said. "If we can learn from the blunders of the traffic violator who is his job is endangered, hence his livelihood is in jeopardy, and thus food will be taken from the very mouths of his children."

"He wastes little or no time worrying about the children whose lives are in danger if he is allowed to pursue his reckless driving," Blaisdell said. "If we can learn from the blunders of the traffic violator who is his job is endangered, hence his livelihood is in jeopardy, and thus food will be taken from the very mouths of his children."

"In these days of high prices, fines of from $5 to $25 have very little effect upon the attitude or later performance of an apprehended violator. The strongest single weapon in our quest for strict driver control is the suspension or revocation of the license."

Blaisdell expressed the hope that Delaware will soon reach the standard of revocations recommended by the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, the International Association of Chiefs of Police and other authorities on the basis of many years of experience.

Those standards, he pointed out, are the revocation of 90 out of every 10,000 driver licenses in a given year, and hearings for 70 out of every 10,000 drivers. In the most recent 13 months of complete record, he added, Delaware suspended or revoked only 4.3 licenses per 10,000 drivers, while hearings were given only 4.3 out of 10,000.

"There is," he said, "perhaps no greater need in the traffic safety program today than that of more swift and certain means of removing the driving privileges from those who no longer merit its continuation. One of the most effective means thus far advanced is the point system now in use in New Jersey, Connecticut and a few other states. Moving violations are all assigned a point score and the accumulation of 12 points over a period of three years make mandatory a hearing to show cause why the driver license should not be suspended."

In the first 500 reviews of drivers' records under the point system in New Jersey, the license was suspended in 87 per cent of the cases, Blaisdell said. He added that only three women were among the first 500 summoned, 25 per cent of the violators were in the 25-39 age group, and 20 per cent were under 21 years of age.

While the national trend in highway deaths is increasing, with Delaware showing a 64 per cent increase in traffic deaths in 1952, Blaisdell said, the number of injury and property damage accidents is rising at an even faster rate. Incomplete accident records, he declared, has forced evaluation of the progress of highway safety in terms of fatalities, rather than the injury or property damage accidents which predominate.

In Delaware, he declared, six persons are injured and 48 property damage highway accidents occur every day, while one person is killed on its highways every four days. He estimated the cost of Delaware's traffic accidents in a year at $23.29 for every man, woman and child in the state, or $48.16 for a family of four.

Big Increase Is Noted for Sale of Land

BOISE, Jan. 21.—State Land Commissioner Edward Woodley reported Monday that the sale of land in the state had increased by more than 50 percent over the preceding year.

Timber sales accounted for more than four million dollars of the total. More than four million dollars went to the public school endowment fund, with the remainder apportioned among other state institutions.

One-Third Denied
Woodley's biennial report said the land board—made up of him and five elective officials—does not feel that grant lands should be retained only until they can be sold, "but definitely feel the endowment institutions should be considered first."

About one-third of the land purchase applications, he said, have been denied.

"There has never been a time when grazing lands were in such demand as at present," Woodley reported, adding that since federal, state and privately-owned lands are sold by side on the open range in many places, it is "mandatory that a cooperative management program be effected."

No Monasilla
While dredging for monasilla sands has reached large proportions in the state and some state land has been leased for this, Woodley said, no actual production has been made to date. He pointed out that the state charges a smaller royalty than most private landowners, but also requires that the land so disturbed will be leveled and, in some instances, top soil restored, seeded and planted to trees.

Cutting the paper lumber revenue in history, Woodley said the board now considers timber a crop which, if properly managed, can add to the endowment fund perpetually.

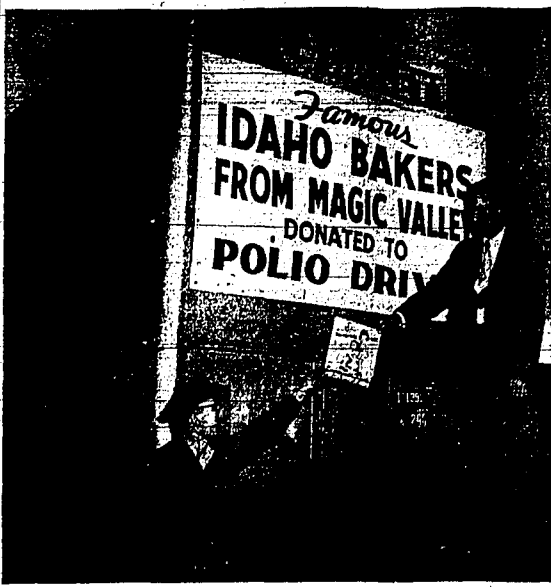

Permit Revoked
For Valley Firm
BOISE, Jan. 21.—The Idaho public utilities commission revoked a permit Monday, suspended another and ordered two firms to show cause on Feb. 13 to show why their permits should not be revoked.

A permit issued Dec. 20, 1951, to W. E. Bellman, Glens Ferry, was revoked on grounds the commission had been informed he had abandoned his subcity under it.

A permit issued Sept. 30 to Claude A. Jans, Rupert, was suspended until Aug. 1 at his request.

Hollis Collins, Dubois, to whom a permit was issued Aug. 13, 1952, received a show cause order on grounds of failure to file with the commission public liability and property damage insurance, as required by law.

The potatoes were grown on desert land being developed south of Hazelton by Harold Howe, Kimberly, Potato dealers in Twin Falls and Jerome counties donated the choice Idaho bakers, described as some of the best grown in Idaho this year. Garrett donated transportation and Hazelton FFA members loaded the potatoes. (Blair photo engraving)

M'Kay Favors Local Control Over Projects

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Secretary of the Interior M'Kay said Monday he favors a policy of "letting local people help themselves," without federal intervention, in developing the nation's natural resources.

"But in some cases," he said, "the federal government must step in to do the job."

M'Kay outlined his views in addressing 1,000 interior department employees in his first day on the job since being sworn in as a cabinet member last Wednesday. He had been ill from an attack of influenza.

No Fast Change
The cabinet official told the workers not to worry about losing their jobs in any sudden and drastic shakeup. He said there will be some changes, particularly in top-level spots where "we will put in some people sympathetic with the position of the new administration."

But he said the changes will come gradually. He also expressed belief that when government workers become better acquainted with President Eisenhower they will "worship him as I do."

Warns Listeners
The new secretary told the employees he hopes they will not believe "all the stories you have heard about M'Kay and his policies," and he declared:

"The federal government, state and local government, private enterprise and the people can develop our natural resources better than any single agency alone."

"I believe as far as possible in letting local people help themselves."

Fund Drive to Be Made by Mothers

HERNANDO, Jan. 21.—Final plans for the 1952 fund drive to raise money for the Joseph Payne Memorial Chapel will be announced by Mrs. Paul Malone, women's chairman for the current drive. The march will be held from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday, she asks all residents who wish to contribute to the drive to turn on their porchlights at that time.

Mrs. Malone will be assisted by 60 mothers who will cover their own blocks. A film outlining the march will be shown at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Owl cafe, she said, and all solicitors are urged to attend.

Mrs. Malone said the house to house canvass is nearly completed with only three organizations to report. To date the residential canvass has collected more than $100 better than last year.

Other events for the week include a card party Thursday night sponsored by the Jerome Grange and a square dance Friday night at the Moose lodge hall, sponsored by the Moose lodge and Pomona Grange. Bob Dwyer will be the caller.

During the day, M'Kay named Raymond Davis, 62, vice president of the General Insurance Company of America, as an assistant secretary. The post pays a little over $10,000 a year.
