RELIGIOUS INTOLERANCE

Brotherhood Week is an American institution, aimed primarily at encouraging Catholics, Jews and Protestants to live and work with mutual respect and harmony in this country.

But a look at the world's wars and revolutions of today emphasizes how much religious intolerance is at the root of all unrest. An International Brotherhood Week, practiced on a perpetual basis, would do more to restore peace to the world than any other one thing.

The whole campaign of Communist aggression is a war against all the religions of the world.

In Soviet Russia proper the latest manifestation is a purge of Jews alleged to be spies and enemies of the Communist state. It has been called the first revival of anti-Semitism since the end of the pogroms in 1945.

In Eastern Germany itself the Communist drive against the Jews is in fact analyzed as an attempt by the reds to win the support of ex-Nazis for opposition to the Christian West.

In Poland, Czechoslovakia, Austria, Hungary, Italy and France, the propaganda of the Communists has been directed against the Catholic church. In Bulgaria, Romania and Greece it has centered against the Eastern Orthodox church.

In the Middle East, Communist troublemakers now appear to be giving support to the Arabs in their war against the people of Israel. In Iran and elsewhere throughout Islam, the Kremlin's agitation has been directed up opposition to the tenets of Mohammedanism.

Communism is anti-Buddhist in Tibet, anti-Hindu in India, anti-Moalem in Pakistan. Communist persecution of Christian missionaries throughout the Orient is notorious. A prime objective of the Chinese reds has been to do away with the traditional ancestor-worship.

But the antireligious character of communism is only one phase of the general practice of intolerance today.

The trouble in Morocco, for instance, is partly political in that it is native nationalism against French colonial rule. But there are also overtones of a religious war in this struggle—Mohammedan against Christian.

In Catholic Spain, Italy and Colombia, within the past year, there have been renewed violent attacks upon Protestantism. They have their parallels in the United States in Protestant opposition to the appointment of the American ambassador to the Vatican.

These are not easy things to write about. But they are facts that must be faced if the great American principle of freedom of worship, each man to his own conscience, is to have meaning.

If the ideal of Brotherhood week, sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, is to be more than a ceremonial mockery, all narrow-minded religious hatred must be overcome.

INDUSTRY AND COLLEGES

America's colleges and universities have been ailing financially since the end of World War II. Their revenues haven't risen fast enough to keep pace with soaring costs.

Education naturally has hiked the cost of everything the school does. Its schools have been magnified by the fact that a lot of the money that comes to the colleges can't be used to pay overhead expenses like coal and light bills and janitor service.

Tuition fees can be used that way, but they cover only part of the burden. And these fees have already been boosted. Right in the postwar period that they can't be increased much more without discouraging enrollments.

Most schools, big and small, rely chiefly upon endowments and other types of financial grants to provide expanding revenue sources. But, taxes being what they are, the big grants aren't so common any more. And all too many private gifts are restricted for particular kinds of research, which usually prevents any portion being applied to the vital and continuing overhead expenses.

During and since the war, the federal government has helped colleges carry on by granting grants for specific research purposes, ordinary projects attracted weapons development. But this sort of aid has the same narrow limit upon it.

Besides, virtually all college administrators are leery of wider government aid, feeling that inevitably it will mean federal control of education.

From time to time reports scanning this gloomy picture have suggested that the one real hope for the colleges is to have business and industry take a greater share of the financial load. The idea has been growing steadily, and now a heartening new development gives it real impetus.

Led by the ten industrialists, a nation-wide council for financial aid to education has been formed to advise both business and education on programs for the latter's support.

In recent years groups of private schools have banded together regionally to seek industrial backing. Altogether some 300 schools in 20 states are participating in such programs.

If the council can substantially accomplish its objectives, the nation's system of higher education may look ahead to a gradually brightening horizon.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—Senator Tucker, R. O., and Rep. Carl Hennrich, R. Pa., have voted quietly several minutes ago the subject of public problems on the part of businessmen and manufacturers throughout the country.

The two legislators, charged with steering a revised Taft-Hartley act through congress, believe the national industrialists do not show enough interest in their most important problem—namely, labor relations.

In a view of labor-war-jars that may accompany the Eisenhower program for unshocking the domestic economy, this question is expected to become even more serious in the next few months. The unions already are talking about another round of wage boosts.

TAFT-HARTLEY ISSUE

Several House speakers have commented on Taft-Hartley revisions despite their personal criticisms of the bill. Only a few have bothered to express their views in writing. They are exerting no pressure on capitol hill friends for a good, fair, open hearing.

As a result, the principal witnesses have been union spokesmen, professors, so-called liberal economists and members of congress with large, powerful labor connections. Most witnesses do not show enough interest in the bill to present a written statement. It is so hopelessly un-uniform it led to enactment of the present legislation.

It is true that the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers have submitted their views on the bill to the Senate. But these organizations never make such a strong impression on the lawmakers as individual industrialists from their districts and states.

"LET US DO IT"

Republican leaders on capitol hill offer a logical but disturbing explanation for this apparent indifference toward such a major matter. And the same suspicion has been voiced by members of Eisenhower's staff.

It is that conservative-minded interests and groups, having helped to elect a "business administration," can now forget Washington. In short, they can sit back and watch the "let us do it" bill pass without a President's approval, but congress has the last word.

DAFFODIL DIRECTIVE

Individually, Rep. Paul Shriver, Michigan, and Rep. J. P. Duffy, Illinois, "businessmen" can get here is a directive for florists' handling of daffodils, as recently issued by agriculture.

"Unless otherwise specified, each bunch shall consist of 12 daffodils, the flowers of which are uniform in size and the stems of which are reasonably uniform in length.

Each bunch shall be arranged so that the blossoms form a fairly compact head, which has a flat surface across the back. The stems shall be fairly even in length, not over 4 inches long and shall be cut at an angle of 45 degrees from the top end."

VIEWS OF OTHERS

A TAFT BY THE CLOCK

For Idaho's Senator Walker, simply saying that his political opponent made an "inaccurate statement" about Walker apparently is too much a tactic. Anyone who says anything "inaccurate" about Walker is expected to have his statement branded as "an open, barfed lie." There is nothing halfway about his June statement.

Walker made a Lincoln Day speech at Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 10. Before the speech, he held a press conference. At this press conference he said, according to the Associated Press, "he had never sold the sale of the Tennessee Valley Authority to private enterprise, which he added, "can do anything the government can do."

He said, further, that he likewise favored the sale of all large government business.

"I think private enterprise could do even a better job of running the postoffice," he added.

All this was "brilliant" on the wires of the Associated Press the night of Feb. 10. What Walker actually said in his speech that night, the AP account did not specify.

On Saturday night at Boise, Stephen A. Mitchell, the Democratic national chairman, made a Jackson-Jefferson day speech.

"As I heard talk from Republicans about selling the Tennessee Valley Authority and other power dams," Mitchell said, "and a Republican senator from Idaho—your own junior senator—made a speech down here a few days ago in which he talked about the postoffice being run by private enterprise."

Walker was indignant at this, he said Mitchell told "I was barfed. He" about him.

"Never once in a Lincoln day speech did I utter a word about TVA, the postoffice department or even government being engaged in business," he pointed out.

Mitchell, it seems, made the bad mistake of saying Walker said all those things in "a speech." Walker said them all right—but at a news conference just before the speech.

"That is, the Associated Press said he said them—and Walker up to now has not accused the Associated Press of printing "an open, barfed lie."

In other words, Mitchell has been made out a "liar" by an hour or so.

What we know is this: What difference does it make whether Walker said these things at 5 p. m. or 8 p. m. or 11 p. m. the night of Feb. 10?

If he said them, and still believes them, why is he so anxious to brand an inaccuracy of an hour or so as "barfed lie"?

Or could it be that our junior senator regrets having said what he did that night at Chattanooga—and is now trying to wiggle out from under—Lewiston Tribune.

PRECEDENT SETTER

Some White House critics "that have come to public attention since the latter part of the year," left the presidency indicate that President Eisenhower often omits the complimentary close in his correspondence. He merely speaks his mind and signs his name, assuming that the reader will assume that he writes "sincerely."

It comes by such practice naturally. Military letters have long been written in this manner. Such formalities are considered so much waste of time, ink and paper.

That is the custom that commends itself to civilian adoption. It is not rational to assume that all "airs" should be "dear." Nor is there reason why a writer should want to commit himself "very truly" to any one individual.

The new President outstaged the top hat at one blow. Perhaps he will show the way to the abandonment of other "old-time" customs to which we all have blindly adhered—Portland Oregonian.

Matzpony often gives a girl a chance to find out what wonderful men she used to be around with.

CASE OF MISSING BASKET

Dear Post:

Somewhere in Magic Valley there are two puzzled shoppers.

The other day I was shopping in a local supermarket and noticed a man ahead of me badly loading more groceries into an already well-stocked basket. A few minutes later the clerk asked if I had seen his basket. I confessed I hadn't. He searched the store thoroughly. No basket. He had to start all over again.

I left him there to continue shopping. Then he came along with a puzzled frown and asked if I had seen his basket. I confessed I hadn't. He searched the store thoroughly. No basket. He had to start all over again.

He was still talking to himself when he came through the checking stand.

Black, Richard—Sorry, we can't make heads or tails out of your note. There was something here the other day about postage pens, but we fail to connect it with the information in your letter.

WHAT'S IN A WORD?

Dear Shooter:

There's been lots of loose talk in the last few years about the cost of living.

Statistics have been quoted on rents, clothing, etc., etc.

Now some joker comes along and says the cost of living has come down somewhat because the price of meat has gone down. It just isn't so.

Whenever someone has confused the cost of living with the cost of eating and existing, there is nothing in common. Wine, whiskey and cognac, old boy. Burn the candle at both ends. Live! And the cost of such living? Sorry, did you mean too high for me? I'm still worrying about the cost of eating and existing.

EVEN THE MUFFLER DOES THINGS TO THE POWER

BACK in the old days, any man who wanted real performance used a "cutout" on his car.

It was a device that by-passed the muffler—because mufflers have always cut down on usable power. But it made a lot of noise.

Muffling that noise is—and still getting rid of exhaust gases as fast as they come from the cylinders—has stumped the automobile people for years.

Now, Buick engineers have racked up another "first."

They have come up with a muffler of supreme quiet and zero power loss—first time in history.

It is called a dynamic flow muffler. And it is one of many advances that make the great 1953 Buick ROADMASTER even greater.

For this automobile—the greatest Buick in fifty four years—has a brilliant new V8 Engine that can turn up 188-hp. And every one of its horsepower is delivered as usable power—since none is restricted in muffler passage.

As you would expect, there is more to this magnificent motorcar than power, great though it is.

There's a finer ride, better maneuverability, easier handling—now with Power Steering as standard equipment.

And there's the amazing new Turbo Dynaflow bringing quiet, jet-fast getaway to complete and utter smoothness.

Why not come in and see for yourself just how great the greatest Buick in half a century really is?

"Guilty" Row Over Class Method

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25 (AP)—Willie Mae Turner has been found guilty because they insisted on teaching their school-age children to read.

Judge Roger A. Pfaff said that the Turner would be fined $100 for each child because of the 14-year-old air conditioner and his wife appeal.

The higher ruling judge said he made the recommendation because there has been no appeal from the higher court in the Turner case. The attorney said he would appeal the recommendation.

The judge said he was not asked for an appeal of the $100 fine which was levied by Judge Pfaff.

Turner argued during their trial that the home teaching given by her was comparable to that available in a private school.

Expulsion from California. Judge Pfaff said Turner "does not demand that the children be sent to their children's school, but she demands that they be given an education in the schools or by an accredited teacher, each of which must meet certain standards."

At each parent determine their child should study or not to be sent to school, he said, is a seasonal anarchy.

Turner has seven children ages 11 to 17, and 14 to 18 to 20.

NLRB Aides Draw Blasts From Solons

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP)—Charges that field employees of the national labor relations board sometimes use the "little tin gods" and have "intimidated and unflinched business men punctuated house labor committee hearings Wednesday on amending the Taft-Hartley labor law."

Representative Barden, D. N. C., said he had "absolute knowledge" that NLRB personnel in the board's 28 regional offices "are not doing a good job" in some cases. He said three instances had come to his attention, one in his home town.

Cites Resistance

Later, Chairman McConnell, R. Pa., told a reporter he agreed that some investigators and field attorneys for the board and its general counsel set themselves up as "little tin gods." But McConnell also said businessmen occasionally resisted giving evidence needed by NLRB investigators to dispose of unfair labor practice charges.

George J. Bott, NLRB general counsel, was in the witness chair when Barden's outburst occurred. Barden did not pin his accusations on specific NLRB employes beyond the mention of a man named McCormick.

"Outrageous" Way

He said McCormick once ordered a witness in an NLRB complaint case to "get in damn fast" with some evidence. The congressman called that an "outrageous" way for a government official to act.

The NLRB said it has an attorney named Miles J. McCormick in its Winston-Salem, N. C., regional office.

Check Shows 1 Messy Deal For Stockpile

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy's permanent investigating subcommittee has uncovered a messy deal in the nation's defense stockpiling program.

It seems that the government is storing at least 100,000 gallons of congealed palm oil. It was bought in 1949 and put into oil storage tanks at Baltimore. But general services administration reports admitted they had no experience in storing palm oil and didn't know the tanks had to be treated.

No Other Place
Only two of the eight tanks were. The oil in the others congealed. OSA has known about it for some time but had no other place to store the oil. Besides, they couldn't get it out of the tanks.

This summer, the staff finally will be moved. Joseph Z. Galbraith, head of OSA's storage and transportation division, assured the senators yesterday. But it will take a steady stretch of hot Maryland sun and probably the use of "steam jennies" to melt the rancid-smelling stuff.

Finally Made Check
A OSA inspector, Frank E. Tipple, testified he didn't inspect the stored palm oil for three years because "I couldn't get to it." Finally, he said, they cautiously removed the steel cover from a machine on one of the tanks, not knowing what would happen. The stuff was sunny as mustard left over from a wiener roast.

Mann Coffin, Shoshone, has been water-master of the two districts for the last 17 years and will submit his application for reelection. If there are other applicants, they will be submitted on the day of the meetings.

Reds Tighten Grip to Block Refugee Tide

BERLIN, Feb. 25 (AP)—All German living in the Soviet sector of Berlin will have to obtain special passes from the communist regime after March 15 to cross into West Berlin. Informed quarters reported last night.

The crackdown on intercity travel has been ordered by the secret police, partly to stem the flow of refugees fleeing East Germany and also to impress a feeling of isolation on beleaguered West Berlin.

By way of preparation, the red get-go alarmed special controls on the elevated traffic into the main east sector station on Friedriehs-strasse Wednesday morning. For several hours, trains in both directions were stopped and passengers checked.

Through train service was resumed shortly after noon. Snipping the elevated service in four-powr Berlin would seriously hamper the movements of upwards of 400,000 Germans who cross the Soviet sector border in both directions daily.

The on-again, off-again method used at Friedriehsstrasse was regarded in western political circles as a trial run. The communists have threatened to increase the isolation of West Berlin the moment West Germany votes to join western European powers in a defense alliance. This may come in three weeks.

Government Has One Thing It Can Teach Industrial Experts

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)—The something that government can teach industrial experts is the value of records.

Emmett J. Leahy, a noted analyst of business, said that private business could save "millions a year" if it followed the lead of government.

Leahy is president of the National Business Managers' Council, a non-profit organization. He headed the Hoover commission task force on federal paperwork.

"Government agencies have saved taxpayers more than $16 million dollars by housecleaning old records and practicing birth control on new ones," Leahy says. "Business and industry lag far behind."

Leahy's report got his first assignment with the navy in 1928. He and three others were hired to survey the navy's paperwork. As a result, tons of useless old records were burned. This made room for modern reports and, as Leahy says, did away with a dangerous fire hazard.

Other government agencies have followed suit.

As of today, according to Leahy, only 1/25th of all government records ever find their way into the crowded national archives.

Old records are dangerous, in the opinion of the NIMRO president. "They are great breeders of perpetual errors," Leahy says. "Every so often, experts should be invited to cull through the reports and do some wholesale throwing away. The trouble with libraries where paperwork is stored is that they generally are manned by uninterested help."

The council once made a careful survey of the archives of the state of Michigan at Lansing. It was decided that 50 per cent of the reports could be destroyed.

"Before we got around to it," says Leahy, "the building caught fire and 25 million pieces of paperwork went up in smoke. So far as I could learn none of those reports ever was missed."

"Business firms seem to be afflicted with the disease of saving valuable pieces of paper that just might come in handy sometime. A housecleaning periodically could save millions of dollars and make way for important modern records.

"More than 400 million pieces could be burned—or sold as waste," Leahy claims. "There's money in the wastebasket."

Federal agencies have been destroying 2 1/2 million cubic feet of records annually, and thus have reclaimed the active use of 57,000 file cabinets, 7,000 transfer cases, and around 3 1/2 million square feet of office and storage space.

McKay Slates Ouster for All "Bad Apples"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Douglas McKay will get rid of all the bad apples among the department's 60,000 employees.

McKay told a National Press club luncheon yesterday he will be fair but every employee and every item will be scrutinized to "justify" their necessity.

"The government should be the last word of integrity in dealing with the public," he said. He thought his department's budget could be cut, and "will make an effort to reduce it."

McKay endorsed President Eisenhower's goal of getting a balanced budget in sight before cutting taxes. "We, the Republicans, are on trial," he said. "I am sure you will like our administration, but if you don't I know what you'll do about it."

Asked about frequent clashes between the reclamation bureau and the army engineers about construction of multi-purpose projects and their ultimate uses, McKay said the possible consolidation of these two agencies "is a question which must be studied."

"Wasteful" Situation
"It is wasteful for two departments to administer the same kind of resources," he said.

McKay also said he doesn't "like the theory of the government building parallel power lines to those built by private companies."

ROK to Gain $85,500,000

PUSAN, Korea, Feb. 25 (AP)—Gen. Mark Clark has announced the United States will pay $85,500,000 to the U. S. for the final settlement of Korean money advanced to the U. S.

This disclosure was made here yesterday in an announcement signed by Clark, although the U. N. commander is in Tokyo.

The dollar payment to the ROK government will cover advances made to the U. S. in the old won currency before Feb. 25, 1948, the new won currency was issued after that date.

President Syngman Rhee has charged that the failure of the U. S. to repay the won advances contributed to South Korea's runaway inflation.

The latest payment brings to $169,900,416 the amount of won bought by the U. S. for the ROK. The won was advanced to U. S. forces for payment of debts in Korea and for sale to American personnel stationed here.

Progress Noted in Youth Center Drive

Lieut. Rex Montgomery, left, Salvation Army commander in Twin Falls, goes over the tabulation of donations to the campaign for funds to establish an arts and crafts youth center with Frank DeLaca, secretary of the Salvation Army's local advisory board and president of the Rotary club, one of the service organizations backing the project. Drive to Bring Youth Center Here Still Far Short of Goal

The campaign to raise funds to establish an arts and crafts youth center at Salvation Army headquarters to date has achieved 27 percent of its goal, Lieut. Rex Montgomery, local Salvation Army commander, reported Thursday.

The appeal, made by letter, has netted $685.50, the commander said. Some 9,000 letters were sent to days ago to residents of Twin Falls, Buhl, Kimberly, Murtaugh, Hansen, Castleford and the rural areas about these communities. In the response thus far, contributions have averaged $9.02, he said.

Many have pledged support by telephone as well as by letter. In addition, merchants, school teachers and service organizations have volunteered assistance, Lieut. Montgomery added.

The response indicates a demand and a need for such a project, he observed.

Space stands ready at the headquarters for conversion into the center. Funds will be used in obtaining equipment and redecorating the hall.

Contributions have ranged as high as $100, this amount being donated by T. G. Bacon. Three persons have given $50 each. They include Glen O. Jenkins, F. W. Harder and Warren brothers Coal and Transfer company.

Lieutenant Montgomery urged residents interested in the project to reply promptly to the letters. He said should this appeal fail, a house-to-house canvass will be made to raise the money.

He said the project is not included in Salvation Army activities for which the agency shares in Community Chest funds.

Profit Desire Of U. S. Said Threat Cause

NEW YORK, Feb. 25 (AP)—The New York Times in a dispatch from Moscow has quoted Indian fellow-traveler Dr. Sarbajit Dasgupta as saying he's going home with the "impression" the United States has made a great contribution to world development but American capitalists' desire for war profits now are at the root of threats to world peace.

Victims, 65-year-old chairman of the red-front all-India peace council, went to Moscow last December to receive a 100,000-ruble Stalin peace prize and was received last week by Premier Stalin for an hour's conversation. He is now en route home.

"The Times prefaced the account of its Moscow correspondent's interview with the Indian with the note that the dispatch had passed through Soviet censorship and apparently presents the Soviet viewpoint, intended for foreign consumption, on the Eisenhower administration and world affairs in general."

USDA Slates End for Grass Seed Support

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—The agriculture department is planning to scrap price support programs on hay and pasture seeds in an effort to trim federal farm outlays.

Howard H. Gordon, chief of the production and marketing administration, said he thinks the programs have "outlived their usefulness."

Price props on seeds for such crops as clover, alfalfa and range grasses were set up after World War II to encourage production. Farmers had plowed up soil-saving field crops during the war and planted badly needed food and fiber crops.

Gordon said supplies are now barge enough to assure farmers adequate seed without the incentive of price supports.

At the start of this year the department owned about 350 million pounds of field seeds worth nearly $2 million dollars it acquired under price support purchases.

Gordon said price supports on winter cover crop seeds to be harvested in 1955 will still stand as announced last December. But he said the cutback will affect propogating 1955 crops of hay, pasture and range grass seed.

The winter cover crop seeds now being supported at rates of from 10 to 19 cents a pound are hairy vetch, rye-grass, crimson clover and rye-grass.

Last year, more than 400,000 farmers participated in the production of 39 hay, pasture and range grass seeds under price supports ranging from 3 cents to $1 a pound.

Arthur Kleinkopf, Twin Falls, will attend a meeting of the Idaho state curriculum development and text book committee in Boise March 1 to 2.

Purpose of the meeting is to review committee work in the school health and physical education, elementary school arithmetic, business education and biology. The committee also will make some new assignments for 1955 and consider summer school workshops.

Solution

LOGAN, Utah, Feb. 23 (AP)—Faculty members have suggested that farm groups opposing the dropping of the word "agricultural" from the Utah State Agricultural College's name might accept another plan.

They suggested the school might be called Utah State College of Agriculture, Arts and Sciences, Commerce, Education, Engineering and Technology, Forest, Range and Wildlife Management and Home Economics.

Commonly, the school then would be known as Utah State college.

But the longer name, they explained, would cover all types of instruction provided by the college.

Now before the legislature is a bill to shorten the name to Utah State college. Some farm organizations have opposed the change, however, contending the result might be the dropping of farm courses at the school.

Wool Growers Aiding Benson

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 23 (AP)—The National Wool Growers association announced Wednesday it strongly favors the farm policies of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson and the new Eisenhower administration.

Ray W. Willoughby, San Angelo, Tex., association president, announced at the organization's national headquarters in Salt Lake City that wool growers in all western states are being asked to notify congress and the President that shepherds are behind the new and more private enterprise.

"American agriculture prefers to develop a farm program with less cost to taxpayers," Willoughby said in a statement.

Experts Wage Scientific War On Conditions in Polar Areas

WILMINGTON, Ill., Feb. 23 (AP)—Scientists and technicians in Arctic military garb are waging a scientific war here on snow, ice and frozen ground in laboratories which can be cooled to 99 degrees below zero.

Their work was disclosed by the army corps of engineers. Data gleaned from the research will be applied to military and civilian operations in Arctic and sub-Arctic regions.

The project gains significance from the threat posed against American cities by the existence of transpolar air routes.

Military strategists believe that conquering the polar areas scientifically is a requisite for national security.

Comforts More Childhood Ills

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—A new research center occupies a remodeled, three-story building in this Chicago suburb. It includes six refrigerated rooms in which the temperature can be dropped to 99 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

There scientists study samples of snow and ice in a basic research program eventually expected to yield the scientific and technical information needed to step up efficiency in Arctic operations.

Washington said snow, ice and permanent (permanently frozen ground) seasonally cover a third of the earth's land surface and materially hamper Arctic warfare, construction, transportation and living conditions.

But he said many of these problems will be "solved or minimized" when scientists learn "the characteristics of snow, ice and frozen ground."

Novel Double-Corridor Architecture of Valley Hospital Singled Out by Journal

Magic Valley Memorial hospital is among five American hospitals whose outstanding architecture made them subjects of a series of articles in the February issue of the Architectural Record, technical journal for architects and engineers, and the series on hospital planning in the feature of the issue.

The article dealing with the Twin Falls hospital, titled "Double-Corridor Variation Isolates Important Areas," notes the hospital was selected because its "novel variation of the double-corridor scheme gives isolated locations to critical departments, yet maintains good communication and circulation."

The scheme relates surgery to X-ray in unusually convenient ways. The radiology corridor provides access to nurses and doctors' surgery locker rooms, so that medical personnel can prepare for operations and never need enter the surgery corridor in street clothes. Routes can be opened from surgery to X-ray or be closed. The X-ray can project the operating rooms.

The article points out the same scheme also is employed in the obstetrical department on the second and third floors "to isolate the delivery corridor and yet give short routes for authorized personnel.

"There is one unusual room in the delivery suite, one labeled obstetrical surgery, for cesarean deliveries, a special request of the hospital staff," it adds.

"Further points out that the surgery section, on the first floor, is closely related to emergency and ambulance entrance, so that emergency patients requiring major surgery can be taken quickly to the operating department.

"In case of disaster, the surgical department can become a part of the emergency operation."

The outpatient department—exceptionally large, like the obstetrical department, because the hospital is virtually alone in serving "fabulous and picturesque Magic Valley—can, with all its adjunct facilities, be closed off completely, yet remains convenient for the patients," the magazine states.

The administration department, in its own wing, is well planned for functioning of its sub-groups," the article concludes.

The magazine which boasts the largest readership among members of those professions whose interests it serves, notes that the buildings selected for publication are those whose ingenuity of design, particularly in convenience of relationships among departments, is of interest to engineers and architects both in this country and abroad.

Method of Stabilizing Value of Dollar Is Primary Aim of New Administration from the money supply, thus easing or tightening credit. The idea is to tighten up credit in inflationary times, making it more difficult to do business and, therefore, flattening out booms before they become busts. In slump times, the federal reserve can make credit easier and cheaper to get, making business easier to transact and thus spurring it on.

This has not worked to perfection in past years. Consumer credit, for instance, has grown enormously in the past two years while the federal reserve has steadily tightened the money supply. But Federal Reserve Chairman Martin is known to believe that the trouble was the government's unbalanced budget.

According to his theory, so long as government deficits annually increase the money supply, through government spending and expansion of bank loans on the basis of new government securities, monetary measures do not control inflation entirely.

But, Martin is known to believe, his grip on the money supply can control all form of credit, even individual consumer credit, when the government has a balanced budget. The sound dollar policy, if it checks inflation, would reduce
