TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—Despite professions of good cheer and courage in high places and abroad, the rapidly deteriorating position of the anti-Russian alliance commanded by the United States may yet provoke a comprehensive re-evaluation of its foreign policy.

As against Moscow's nonstop unity, the free nations seem to be in a state of confusion. Stalin forces shortly before his death.

Official and unofficial reports to Capitol Hill are a jumble of contradictory factors bearing on the progress of the cold war. In such a hazy atmosphere, it is difficult for both Republicans and Democrats—Tart and Bridger, Byrd and Symington—it is impossible to enact corrective legislation or to appropriate funds for national and world defense against the red.

Not since the first six months after Pearl Harbor has there been so concerned over national security measures, or the lack of them.

AMMUNITION SHORTAGES—Gen. James A. Van Fleet, the top firing line in Korea for 22 months, maintains that serious shortages of ammunition still exist. But Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chief of staff as well as civilian head at the Pentagon, says the opposite.

Addressing NATO clinicians at a military symposium in France, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said: "The future, we shall be short of much of our material. We shall be deficient in many items—critically short in some."

But the army's military commanders say when they are in desperate straits. It is their technical term with regard to supplies.

But Gen. Ridgway, Ridgway's chief of staff, painted a rosy picture of NATO's growing strength in a recent report to President Eisenhower.

COMMUNIST VS. DEMOCRATIC STRENGTH—Lieut. Gen. Curtis P. LeMay only added to the confusion in speaking before the same European group. The head of the U. S. strategic command, he said, "The world military situation is as follows: Communist strength is greater than all the military power ever assembled from the time of Genghis Khan (13th A. D.) until today."

This hyperbolic statement contrasts sharply and tragically with Defense Secretary Wilson's shock at discovering how far we lag behind Russia in aerial power, especially modern bombers. The latter's fantastic figure of 20 billion dollars has been mentioned as necessary to close the gap over a four-year period.

As if these gloomy citations of communist versus democratic strength and chances of survival in a global showdown were not enough, the British and American press are reporting that the Soviet has the second most powerful "active" navy on the seven seas, ranking only behind the United States.

ECONOMIC AID FUTILE—The world canvas is hardly more hopeful on the economic side, despite the lavish billions the U. S. has contributed to our allies in the past.

The United Nations commission for Europe recently reported the western European nations are slipping backward, especially in the essential materials—steel, coal, oil, electricity, etc.—their gains are not comparable to Russia's under the five-year plan. The commission also questioned whether American aid ever could change the situation. In view of European disunity.

In view of the recent administration change at Washington, it is doubtful as these international inventories are in no position to promise anything. They cannot commit Eisenhower and Dulles.

And this is to be expected. The free world is willing for him to do that or set. Meanwhile, and this factor keeps alive demands for a broad, nonpolitical survey, the reds are winning the cold war on all fronts.

VIEW OF OTHERS

MR. LIE ON THE SPOT

A policeman's lot is not a happy one, as all lovers of Gilbert and Sullivan know. But the lot of the secretary-general of a world organization engaged in an international police action is even less enviable, as all observers of Travels in Europe ought to know.

Mr. Lie has long been under attack in the United Nations, by some non-communist staff members as well as by the Soviet bloc, for being "too friendly" to the United States. At the same time he has been attacked by some right-wing extremists in the United States for being "too anti-communist." It is doubtful whether any human being could fill his difficult post at this difficult time without incurring such mutually contradictory charges from such sources, no matter how scrupulously he observed the neutrality of his position.

Now Mr. Lie has come out and frankly attacked the Soviet union for the crude pressure against him because he stands by the United States. His resistance to red aggression in Korea. This pressure, he says, is in direct violation of the charter, which forbids member government to interfere with the independence of the secretary general. His charge is incontrovertible, and any non-communist members who objected to his making it had better consider themselves whether the U. N. can survive by refusing to face the stark facts of life.

On the other hand, Mr. Lie maintains the position that the world organization should not be a Communist party member or (3) refuse to answer questions about Communist party membership and activities. This is on the grounds of possible self-incrimination. This complete acceptance of the American point of view is interpreted by some as "subservience" to the United States but his reasoning about it is to be realistic and reasonable recognition of the legitimate rights of the country acting as "host" to the U. N.

As the highly sensitive question of Mr. Lie's successor comes up, it is well for the world to recognize that it is Russia rather than the United States that is the real threat to the independence of the secretary-general. But it is well for Americans to respect his independence more wholeheartedly than they sometime have in the past.—Exchange.

DEVELOPMENT BY DOING

One of the knottiest problems facing the United Nations is that of reconciling the underdeveloped countries to the industrial nations upon new forms of economic aid with the industrial nations' insistence that their commitments to collective security prevent additional contributions for development.

The issue is revealed sharply in the proposal of underdeveloped countries that a fund be created to make grants-in-aid and low-cost loans to countries unable to obtain for their own development the World Bank for reconstruction and development (the "World Bank") and unable to tempt foreign private investors.

The urgency of coping with the world problem of minimizing poverty, disease and illiteracy is so great that it would be a disservice to peace to give to the present conflict of judgment. Pointing it in its darkest colors, therefore, the industrialized countries can not afford to claim that they would not have the resources to meet their poorer partners' needs even if military burdens were everywhere reduced. This is the urgent of inspiring hopelessness, should they dispel suspicions that the richer nations are motivated by selfishness, lack of understanding, or a low assessment of the poorer countries' own efforts.

With the air cleared, the proposal of a new world fund may be considered to deserve less emphasis than it has been given. More fruitful would be a fresh consideration of the development possibilities opened up by the World Bank. It has succeeded in the past in projects whose financial feasibility was anything but apparent, has loosened up the private investment markets, and has encouraged local capital-raising projects in areas where savings in only a few years were thought to be available. —New York Herald-Tribune.

POT SHOTS

OLD BLACK MAGGIO

How many times have you heard something like this: "Maybe we can get some state help." Or maybe it's "federal aid." Just like somebody just waxes a wand and there's the dough.

"Nice theory, so if one of you good conditions happens to happen to you, it is up to you to find it. We have a couple of pet projects of our own in mind.

Yeah, we know the wrinkles about, borrowing to finance pet projects, but you see there's one condition these companies seem to say away from: We don't want to pay it back!

What with all this research and continual "progress" it shouldn't be too long before scientist devise a really terrible weapon. Maybe they might even get something that can get results as fast as a woman's tears.

SO THERE!

After all this business of paying income taxes to help the boys run the federal government and the state government and what have you, we get a little consolation out of evading a tax or two.

That wasn't exactly the purpose when we abandoned the old habit of smoking tobacco but just look at the tax! The cost of the foul weed without taxes is something like 10 cents a carton. Here we're evading all those taxes and doing it legal, too.

But probably paying it all on something else!

GENTLEMAN BY THE FOUNTAIN

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

There are many other civil service organizations in the government of states, counties and cities, but they have been dealing with the enormous waste of funds on unnecessary employees of the federal government.

"Government caterers feed hundreds of thousands of employees in Washington and throughout the country," he tells us. "Usually they are able to serve food cheaper than the average person can prepare at home. This is because space, heat and other facilities are furnished without charge."

"My serious criticism is the very great abuse of the coffee drinking habit as I have observed it in Washington. It costs millions of dollars to rent commercial space in just large of the cafeteria space given away gratis."

"There are so-called snack bars in government buildings and I invite any citizen to observe the thousands of government employees lounging over the counters. Government administrators realize the seriousness of this but lack the guts to do anything to reduce the thousands of government employees who are being paid by the government. Government employees realize the seriousness of this but lack the guts to do anything to reduce the thousands of government employees who are being paid by the government."

"Civil service regulations call for a complicated system of job descriptions to determine what the job is and what the salary should be. Each department has its own system of job descriptions to determine what the job is and what the salary should be. Each department has its own system of job descriptions to determine what the job is and what the salary should be."

DULES' GOOD PRECEDENT

When Secretary of State Dulles removed the controversial John Carter Vincent from the state department on grounds he was "not up to standard," he introduced a missing element into the touchy issue of loyalty vs. disloyalty.

In the public debate that has filled the newspapers the loyalty of government servants first became a prominent question, strong emotions have clouded the argument. Often it has seemed that a man's ability and judgment were not factors at all, that only his motives were to be reckoned with.

But of course both are inevitably involved in any man's performance. A man may be loyal but incompetent, or efficient but disloyal. The task of those appraising the government's record is always one of separating the two elements and judging each on its own.

An administration of a congress which does not make this separation finds itself in the weird position of insisting that incompetence is proof of disloyalty, or vice-versa.

In Vincent's case, for example, a great part of his foreign duty was in China during the turbulent years that ushered in the communist regime. He regularly reported events and offered his evaluations of them. It now seems clear he was frequently, if not generally, wrong.

But because the issue of his loyalty had been curiously entangled with that of his judgment, the Truman administration could see only two black-and-white alternatives. They were: Fire him for disloyalty or declare him loyal and keep him.

Dulles saw plainly the irrationality of this approach. If Vincent's judgment was had on China, why must it therefore be assumed he had evil motives? Two investigating groups had found no reasonable doubt of Vincent's loyalty, and one other had found some. This hardly seemed conclusive.

So Dulles took the sane approach. He told the nation he himself could not establish evidence of any disloyalty on Vincent's part. But he asked the diplomat's resignation on the score his work was not up to state department caliber.

That freed the department of the strange necessity of keeping on a man of faulty judgment merely to demonstrate that he was not disloyal. And it allowed Vincent a graceful retirement with no blot on his record.

Those who think this decision just ducks the issue show themselves wedded to the untenable notion that disloyalty and incompetence can't be separated. It isn't a very far cry from this theory to the Russian pattern, wherein an overworked clerk's error in addition on production figures makes him automatically guilty of treason.

Dulles has set a good example. He should stick to this course, and it ought to be followed.

WHAT'S THE SCORE?

If we are consumed with anything, in these drear and darkening days between the end of winter and the start of spring, it's with the desire to know more about Dwight D. Eisenhower, the golfer.

We're kept fully and constantly informed on these momentous things which the President must keep himself occupied with—Korea, congress, European aid, aid to farmers, aid here, aid there.

It's all very well to know how our chief executive feels on the subject of inland waterways, taxes, and tariffs. But what of his love of the links?

Does he replace his drivers? Is his back-swing long and easy? How goes the chief's chip shot, the presidential putt? Is he calm in the crisis of blasting his ball from the Georgia sand trap?

We've always had the feeling that the game of golf can reveal much about a man, particularly when he feels as strongly about it as does our President.

TOUGH NUT TO CRACK

Months ago sober warnings were issued that the victorious Republicans would get a shock the day they took over the government and saw how few jobs they could count as spoils.

The GOP leaders understand now. So far their efforts to install deserving party members in the great federal bureaucracy have been about as effective as chipping away at a glacier with an ice pick.

Much of the federal personnel list is properly under civil service safeguards. President Eisenhower would seem wholly within the bounds of reason and fairness, however, with his plans to strip civil service status off policymaking jobs which were hankered into the service to keep Democrats at work.

Operation Turnover, if it may be so labeled, is proving just about as difficult for the Eisenhower team to crack as is figuring out how to break the Korean stalemate.

What this country needs is a college that teaches everything that the students think they know.

partments' habit of picking rich partner or ambassadors because professionals dependent on their pay could not squander money on lavish entertainment in foreign capitals. He said it was better to send frugal men about and thus correct the impression that the American taxpayer did not care what his government did with his money.

He had learned that private industry in a large midwestern city paid stenographers $3,000 a year to start with two weeks' vacation after one year's service. In the government an experienced stenographer draws from $2,800 to $3,175, and even a typical without experience, from $2,000 to $2,500, with all the excess benefits.

It seems futile to look to the Senate House for aggressive action while the House in the government is to compel the abolition of masses of jobs. Even the total abandonment of the appointment of labor and the assignment of its few useful functions to some other department would be a starting proposal.

A highly suitable one which would meet with a surprising show of public approval.

Class of 58 Is Initiated Into K. of C. Order

BURLEY, March 24.—Fifty-eight candidates were initiated into the Burley Knights of Columbus in day-long ceremonies here Sunday with a festive degree being conferred on each.

The largest class of candidates initiated into the order in southern Idaho.

A banquet, sponsored by Buhl, Cooper and Twin Falls Knights of Columbus councils held in the local Kiwanis lodge climaxed the day's activities.

Featured speaker was Bishop Duane D. Hunt, Salt Lake City. He spoke on the "National Shrine and its place in the world today. He also spoke briefly on sending an American envoy to the Vatican."

Archbishop Edward J. Kelly, Boise, extended his thanks to the Knights of Columbus for the honor paid to him by naming a candidate class for him. He also referred to the Knights of Columbus coat of arms and explained the meaning of the same.

Bishop Kelly is observing his 25th year in the Catholic ministry this year.

Following him as speaker was Monsignor E. B. Cody, Pocatello. He spoke on the founding of the order, its aims and its present power. He cited examples of its work in helping and providing for support of schools and educational campaigns on Catholicism.

Concluding speaker was Dan Hay, Pocatello, who advised the candidates to follow their pledges and be examples for their communities.

The banquet was attended by more than 400 members, wives and guests. Many persons were turned away because of the lack of facilities.

The Rev. Father Louis Dougherty, Pocatello, formerly located at Sun Valley and Healy, acted as toastmaster and introduced the speakers.

The ceremonies got under way early Sunday when the candidates and 50 members met at the armory and marched to the local Catholic church for mass and communion.

They attended a breakfast at the parish hall then returned to the armory about 11 a. m. for the initiation ceremonies.

The first degree was exemplified by the Buhl and Cooper councils by the Twin Falls knights and the third by the Mount of Angels degree team from Pocatello.

District officers for the affair were District Deputy Jack Behrman, E. H. Dunbar, District Master for Buhl; Max Herbold, grand knight for Rupert, and Lloyd LeBlond, grand knight for Twin Falls. John Osham, Burley, was general chairman of the event.

Supplies of Food And Liberty Are Topics at Parley

SHOSHONE, March 24—Comparisons of increasing population and decreasing food supplies in the United States and a letter entitled "Our Liberties and Our Freedoms" were discussed at the Friday night meeting of the Farm Bureau.

The meeting, held at 8:30 p. m. at the Gemes school building, was opened with a prayer by David Johnson and reports were given by Mrs. Ervin Bruan and Earl Winans.

In the farm and food discussion, a need of more production was noted over while the letter on freedom dealt with a treaty drawn up by the United Nations convention on human rights. The treaty proposes to replace the constitution of the United States.

Statements from the treaty indicate the possibility of government control of religion and the press and speech "if necessary to protect the government or of individuals."

The treaty could become law and replace the constitution if submitted by congress and ratified by three-fourths of the people.

Mrs. Bruan reported on the execution advisory committee meeting held Thursday at the courthouse. Refreshments were served by Mrs. John Stutzinger and Mrs. Earl Winans.

Kaiser-Frazer Buying Willys; $62,300,000 Price Estimated

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP)—Kaiser-Frazer corporation plans to buy Willys-Overland Motors, Inc. for an estimated $62,300,000. The deal will make Kaiser-Frazer the world's fourth largest auto company, with assets of more than 200 million.

The purchase, announced here yesterday by Kaiser-Frazer, is expected to be completed next month, its subject to approval by Willys-Overland stockholders, who will meet April 24.

Kaiser-Frazer said it was financing the purchase with 12 millions in private capital from various sources. The estimated purchase price includes the assumption by Kaiser-Frazer of certain liabilities of Willys-Overland.

Edgar P. Kaiser, president of Kaiser-Frazer, and son of Henry J. Kaiser, said the sale will give Kaiser-Frazer production facilities to boot it among the world's biggest automobile companies after General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

Willys-Overland and Kaiser-Frazer put out a total of 242,481 cars and trucks last year. Their combined total sales are running at the rate of 600 million annually.

The purchase will give Kaiser-Frazer a complete line of automobiles and utility vehicles. The Willys-Overland output of the famous Jeep, jeep station wagon and Jeep Willys will be added to Kaiser-Frazer's low-priced Henry J. and the Kaiser-Frazer line.

Kaiser-Frazer is financing the purchase with $37,500,000 put up by the Henry J. Kaiser company, a holding company; 15 millions by the Trans-America corporation, a bank holding corporation; and 10 millions in a loan from the Bank of America National Trust Savings association.

Fifteen millions of the new financing will be used to reduce the $48,117,000 in reconstruction finance corporation loans owed by Kaiser-Frazer, Kaiser said in a statement.

SHOSHONE, March 24—"Man's obligation to the land is a moral problem and a matter of patriotism," Tom Kelly, lecturer and cartoonist, told his audience at the soil conservation service sponsored meeting Friday at the Lincoln school.

From such statements as "no nation has been able to survive the destruction of its agricultural land," he illustrated his thoughts with chalk drawings.

Kelly spoke more than an hour following a brief introductory program at which Mrs. Sam Danner, president of the auxiliary of the Wood river soil conservation supervisors, took charge. Musical numbers were presented by Kathy Chilton, Mountain Home, who sang to the accompaniment of Gene Danner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Danner, Shoshone. Poor Little Hill!

You're looking at a very discouraged hill! Ever since that ribbon of paving outlined it, it has been a challenge to motor cars.

For miles and miles it winds up the side of a mountain; and it has sharp curves, and steep grades that spring out of the curves so a driver can't get a start.

Half-way up, there's a watering place—put there so drivers can stop and refill their radiators.

Yes—it has been quite a hill. But not any more!

The driver of the car in the picture above took off at the base and sailed right up to the top—and never gave a thought.

You see, he's driving a 1953 Cadillac—with its great, high compression 210-horsepower engine—and its vastly improved Hydra-Matic Drive.

We heard recently of two men who drove from Florida to Detroit—in a 1953 Cadillac.

The driver made this trip before—and as they left Knoxville he said to his passengers, "Man, are we going to find a hill between here and Lexington!"

and blue shower last week for her sister, Mrs. Alfred Thaxton, Burley. Mrs. Hacking was assisted by her sister, Mrs. Don Holmes. CARE OF YOUR CHILDREN By ANGELO PATRI At this time teachers are especially interested in the progress of their pupils. They will, of course, find the weaknesses among the youngsters and seek to have them to take the honors. It is to be hoped that the reports will be commensurate, giving particular so that parents will receive a clear idea of their children's standing. When a teacher requests assistance from parents, it is because she feels that it should be forthcoming. This is the time to strengthen the schooling. No pupil should be permitted to leave a grade with only a hazy, confused idea of what he is supposed to have learned, for it will be harmful to his progress through school. The pupil who is not thoroughly grounded in his subjects soon may lose interest in school work, perhaps hoping to abandon it in the near future. Teachers should be patient with the boys and girls, and listen to them recite their tasks until they have mastered them. Many children learn quickly, but forget almost as quickly. All children forget certain parts of what they learned, and the longer the time between study and repeating the lesson, the more they are apt to forget. That is why this modern review is so necessary. If nothing is done to refresh the minds of the children on most subjects, then, when June vacations come along, some of them will go ahead without preparation for what comes next—and right there the learning starts. Thorough study—learning and remembering—is essential for the pupils' progress in school. Teachers in the secondary schools are complaining, and I believe with justification, that many pupils enter high school, inadequately prepared. They are even weak in the fundamentals of the basic subjects—arithmetic, reading and writing—in all-around study. By writing, I mean the ability to compose and write sentences. Attention to the time for a review of the fundamentals—for a revaluation of what the pupils have accomplished—and both school and home are concerned. Let us hope for the sake of the children's learning that both the teachers and the parents cooperate and do their duty. Do you keep a record book of your child's development? A record book is valuable not only for analysis, but for accurate information—it is as easy to forget, but it is not so easy to find. To obtain a copy, send 10c in coin to Mrs. J. H. Timbers, P. O. THIS IS STILL OUR CHALLENGE . . .

WE'LL MATCH

THE FERGUSON "30"
AGAINST ANY OTHER TRACTOR

AT A SHOWDOWN DEMONSTRATION

TUESDAY, MARCH 31st Starting at 1:30 p

At the JOHN HANSEN Farm—7 Miles South of East 5 Points, Twin Falls

You have heard the claims others are making for their tractors and hydraulic control systems, their methods of attaching and detaching implements, their power, and how traction is altered for either heavy or light work.

There's really only one sure way to measure these claims—that is to compare and check them at a Showdown Demonstration with Ferguson—"the world's most copied tractor"—with the original, time-tested, field-proved Ferguson System. That's why we offer to match the performance of the Ferguson "30" with Ferguson System Implements against any other tractor doing all of the jobs listed.

The purpose of this Challenge is to enable farmers to make a fair comparison of the performance of different tractors doing the same jobs at the same time under identical conditions.

At a public demonstration, we will prove that—job for job . . . feature for feature . . . dollar for dollar—the Ferguson "30" with

Ferguson System Implements meets more of the needs of more of the farmers more of the time, doing the following jobs:

Moldboard Plowing
Disc Plowing
Tandem Disc Harrowing
Spike Tooth Harrowing
Blade Terracing
Wood Lot Sawing

Row Crop Cultivating
Field Tilling
Subsoiling
Side Delivery Raking
Loading and Spreading

Look at every tractor you would consider buying for your farm. Ask the Dealers who sell these tractors if they are willing to support their claims by matching their tractors and implements against Ferguson equipment at a public Showdown Demonstration on your farm. If they are, get in touch with us. If they are not willing, you can be certain that a Ferguson "30" still is the best buy you can make!
