ALTHOUGH a coroner's jury Thursday exonerated Lloyd Strood of any criminal intent in the fatal flight which resulted in the death of Clyde Brady, Berger, Prosecutor Max Lloyd said Friday afternoon that he will investigate further before deciding if any charges will be filed.

Lloyd said he probably will make a decision soon, but wishes to question other possible witnesses who died in Salt Lake City Tuesday.

The jury found that death was caused by a "massive cerebral hemorrhage" caused by striking his head on concrete following a blow on the jaw delivered by Fred Strood in self defense with no criminal intent.

Strood and his wife shook heads with the jury, the coroner, Dr. J. Woodson Creed, and Prosecuting Attorney Max Lloyd after two hours of testimony.

The forecast says that temperatures will rise above freezing and that there will be a chance of light rain. This is expected to help melt the snow and clear the roads.

U. N. Delegates Given OK To Sign Prisoner Trading Accord; Fast Start Slated

PANMUNJOM, Korea, (Saturday), April 11 (AP)—United Nations negotiators prepared today to sign an agreement providing for an exchange of sick and wounded prisoners of war—the first step that could lead to an armistice in Korea.

The U. N. liaison team had permission from the U. N. commander, Gen. Mark Clark, to sign the 10-point plan which would start 600 allied prisoners, including 120 Americans, home within 10 days. In turn, the allies would hand over to the communists 5,800 disabled prisoners, including 5,100 North Koreans and 700 Chinese.

Clark said in Tokyo last night he "anticipated" the agreement would be signed when liaison officers meet at 11:20 a. m. (7:30 p. m. Friday, MST).

Clark's approval of the plan came only after the communist high command again submitted a compromise offer to repatriate all prisoners but that and assume full cross armistice talks.

Submitted in Letter

The proposal was submitted in a letter from North Korean Gen. Nam Il to Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, U. N. negotiator, at Panmunjom on Friday.

In essence, the communists suggested that all prisoners—unwounded—be returned to their homes and handed over to a neutral country, Chinese Premier Chou En-lai first.

The United Nations held 65,000 such communist prisoners. The other 81,000 have not yet been returned.

The letter also called for a final plan for ending the war. Nam did it directly ask for a resumption of the talks. He said he would be directly after they are returned by saying "concrete measures" can only be discussed and decided upon after the war has ended.

Clark made no mention of the latest proposal in approving the exchange of disabled prisoners. He said his staff studied it closely last night and today to see if there was any hope for a quick settlement of the war.

Man Cleared; Lloyd Probes Case Further

(From News One)

It is now clear that the case will withdraw Strood. Lloyd said there was nothing definite, and he would stand by his client.

Strood said he knew Brady 13 months and saw him at 10:25 a. m. Monday at the home of Mrs. Brady. He said he saw Brady and his wife had heard that Brady's son had another boy to beat up the Strood boy, and also went to the party about it. Strood said Brady told Mrs. Strood he would rather talk to Strood. Bayborn objected to hearing testimony by Strood, but Smith said the jury had heard hearsay all day. He claimed Bayborn had no right to object.

Strood said he went to the store to talk with the jury. He said he had already said the matter, and Brady replied profusely. Strood said he objected to the language, and Brady said he had no objection. Strood returned the blow and Brady fell on the pavement, hitting his head.

Strood said he had spoken with Brady several times and never had trouble with him. He said that Mrs. Brady, owner of the store, said Brady came to the store March 27, and was fixing a pump in the basement. He said Mrs. Strood came in and went to the basement to speak with Brady. Bayly did not hear Brady's conversation with Mrs. Strood for 30 minutes later Strood said Brady said he was coming outside so they could talk.

Witnessed Fight

Bayly said he did not hear any of the conversation, but saw Brady hit Strood near the mouth. Strood hit Brady on the same place and Bayly said the pavement. He said the fight started about a minute after the men went outside. He said he saw Brady hit Strood, and Strood hit Brady. Bayly said Strood was unconscious a few seconds. Bayly said he went outside to see if Strood was out of any effort to continue the fight. Bayly said Strood and his wife went home.

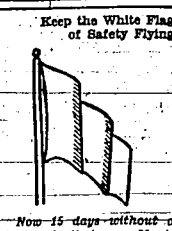

Bayly said Brady remained at the store 10 to 15 minutes, drank some pop, said he was all right, and drove home. Bayly said Strood said he was at the store. He continued much of Bayly's testimony, stating that Brady hit Strood first, and Bayly saw any conversation.

Dr. Harvard Luke said Brady came to him between 6 and 7 p. m. Monday, and he completely examined the doctor said he sent the man to the hospital for observation, suspecting some sort of brain injury or hemorrhage. He said he called a man medicine and consulted other doctors the next day. He said his examination revealed that Strood had a fracture of the skull, but he felt the patient was critical when he went to the Salt Lake City hospital.

Dr. Devo H. Affleck said he was consulted by Dr. Luke. He said at noon March 28 Brady was brought to the hospital. He said the patient was sent to a specialist who could do a decompression operation if necessary. He said the injury probably was caused by hitting the pavement rather than from the blow to the head.

Dr. Affleck said he learned Brady died when he had a massive hemorrhage of the right cerebral blood vessel. He said the man had been hit on the head, and the blow had improved at Salt Lake City, but the hemorrhage was so rapid and deep that he died. He said the man's skull was fractured, but he had no indication the man fell at the hospital, although he was not out of the hospital for an hour or so before he died. He said the most logical deduction was that there was a fracture of the skull which was ruptured completely by the impact with the pavement. Dr. Affleck said he and a jury questioned Dr. Affleck.

Dr. Gray said he made a spinal test of Brady and arranged for a test of Mrs. Brady's skull X-ray Tuesday night. Dr. Paul Huston, WASHINGTON (NEA)—The big deal whereby U. S. export-import bank lends Brazil $30 million dollars apparently is going to be completed in the immediate future, but there's still some mystery about it.

Who will get this money, eventually, and what for? The vicissitudes of detailed accounting on these matters is always a source of wonder to any little guy who ever went to a local bank and tried to borrow a thousand bucks to modernize the plumbing.

In the case of the little guy, the banker will examine everything from his charge accounts to his mother-in-law's false teeth. And not only dime more than what's necessary to pay for the modernization will be involved, but in governmental matters, they don't seem to do things that way.

Brazil Ambassador Weather Moreira Salles has returned to Washington with the government's approval for the loan to Banco do Brasil. Some minor changes may be made in the bulky document that is the loan contract. But the expectation is that the deal will soon be buttoned up.

This will end some six months of talking about it. At no time, it is understood, did the Brazilians come and "tear their hair" demanding a loan. But in September they let it be known that they could use the money, to pay off American firms from whom they had bought more goods than they could pay for, in dollars. And since the Argentines got a loan like this, why not Brazil?

Last December a delegation from Banco do Brasil, which is 62 percent government owned, came to Washington to discuss the country's financial affairs. At that time it looked as though a mere 10 million dollars would take the Brazilians over the hump.

In the first two weeks of January two U. S. export-import bank officials went to Rio to check up. There they discovered that what the Brazilians needed to set their financial house in order was more than the 10 million dollars.

At the start of the Korean war, Brazilians had ordered a lot more U. S. products than they actually needed—fearing shortages—on top of that, the Argentine wheat crop

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—Secretary Humphrey's plan to shift at least 100 billion dollars of short-term government obligations into long-term holdings paying a higher interest rate has met strong opposition from the organized labor community.

Organized labor "easy money" policies outlined by President Eisenhower in his inaugural address.

Although Humphrey's proposal appears to be a complicated one, it is in fact a simple matter involving only big deals in and purchasers of federal securities which will affect every consumer and borrower, since interest rates help to determine the price of every product on the market. If the plan goes ahead as some treasury heads expect, it may lower the general level of prices by its deflationary effect.

OLD JIM NEVER LOST FACE

"Sir, you are the greatest athlete in the world."

The time was 1912, the speaker the late King Gustaf V of Sweden, the honored athlete was Jim Thorpe, American Indian.

In the long intervals that brought moment in the Olympic games at Stockholm to his death just the other day, Thorpe watched his fame remain undiminished. A poll of sportswriters in 1950 singled him out as "the greatest athlete of the 20th century."

Son of an Oklahoma ranchman and descendant of the Indian chief, Black Hawk, Thorpe blazed his story across the sports pages of the world. Playing for tiny Carlisle school in Carlisle, Pa., he won All-American football honors in 1911 and 1912 against the cream of the big eastern colleges.

Almost singlehandedly he brought the Olympic championship to the United States in 1912, winning four of five events in the pentathlon and scoring an unequalled 8,412 out of 10,000 points in the decathlon.

At school he had won letters in five sports. His activities included running, jumping, lacrosse, boxing, basketball, hockey, archery, handball, rifle shooting, canoeing, swimming, and skating.

Once Carlisle was booked to meet Lafayette at track, a welcoming committee looked bewildered when just two Indians got on the train. "Where's your team?" they asked.

"This is the team," said Thorpe.

"Only two of you?" they persisted.

"Only one," smiled Thorpe. "This fellow is the manager."

Triumphantly soon after his triumphant return from the Olympics, Thorpe was pulled from his pedestal and stripped of his medals and trophies. Charges of professionalism were filed against him. Not realizing it would harm his amateur status, he had accepted small amounts of money for some summer baseball he had played earlier.

His honors and his great record were never restored officially. But thousands of dollars were raised for him when he was discovered to be penniless in 1951, and that summer a movie was shown honoring his career.

Although past service age, he joined the merchant marine in 1945 and served on an ammunition ship during World War II.

It's too late for Old Jim to know it, but it still would be a fine idea if they'd put him back in the record books and restore his medals to his family. He earned them.

TEMPORARY RECESSION POSSIBLE

But it will be such a sharp break with the 20-year regime of cheap money, heavy borrowing and skyscraper debts, both public and private, that many caution a temporary slump or recession. Should Russia's present peace maneuvers lead to a cut in armament expenditures, the Republicans could not endure the added burden of a military program to reduce unemployment. Although the Humphrey idea is basically sound, this may not be the best moment for its introduction.

LOW INTEREST RATES

Former President Truman and Secretary Snyder kept interest rates on government securities at a low level to reduce the cost of carrying the 267 billion dollar debt, which now totals about 4 billion dollars a year, or more than half the total federal debt. The federal establishments in Herbert Hoover's day. Interest payments on government issues averaged about two per cent. At least 100 billion dollars of the shorter term securities are due to mature in 91 days to five-year notes. This is the amount which Secretary Humphrey would like to convert into long-term securities.

CONTRIBUTED TO INFLATIONARY STRUCTURE

Besides reducing the cost of financing the Treasury, the Humphrey plan also contributed to free-and-easy borrowing and spending by the general public. They helped to lay the foundation for our current inflationary structure. The general government and other lenders charged for the vast non-governmental debt, which has reached an all-time high of 200 billion dollars. Money and credit for homes, consumer goods and industrial expansion could be obtained for four per cent or less instead of the conventional six per cent.

Moreover, the banks regard us short-term securities as money or liquid resources. Instead of holding them in their portfolios as an investment, they sell them in the market. It was floating cash in the financial blood stream, and it had a feverish effect on the nation's economy. Today's inflated wages and prices are the result.

HUMPHREY'S PLAN SUGGESTS HEMLOCK

Humphrey's plan resembles the Hemlock method. The Cleveland industrialists propose that this short-term, low-interest total of 100 billion dollars, which is due within the next five years, be converted into 50-year securities bearing an interest rate of 3 or 3 1/2 per cent.

In his opinion, banks, insurance companies, trust funds and similar institutions would buy these issues, hold them and take them off the market until maturity. Whereas this sum has served as a check-valve against the inflationary pressure, it would transform it into a savings account. He believes the resulting lowering of the general price level would mean a "deflationary" effect on the public debt, which might amount to a billion dollars annually.

The bankers, however, are not sure they want to see the debt money out of circulation. They are in for greater fluidity and flexibility. And labor leaders, in their speeches and publications howl that the still untried Humphrey program is designed to "crack the bankers" at the expense of consumers.

CDA AND AEC CLASH

Civil defense administration and atomic energy commission people didn't get along any too well at the recent series of atomic weapon test explosions near Las Vegas, Nev.

On the first blast, civil defense people almost demanded that the AEC send a photographer in at once to get pictures of damage to the two test houses, for publicity purposes.

One AEC man finally went in, but he picked up so much radiation on the assignment that he could not get into his car, and left without danger of getting an overdose. He was a key man on the test program, but his services were thus lost for the duration.

Just after the first blast, Gov. Val Peterson, the new civil defense administrator, was flown back to News-Knob in a helicopter, and was the first official to go on the air with a network broadcast.

For some reason or other, or by accident, Governor Peterson failed to mention by name Carroll Tyler or any of the other AEC officials who had arranged the entire test program. The word got around that civil defense was trying to steal the act, and that didn't promote good relations.

This, plus army insistence on moving troops closer to some of the later blasts than the scientists thought was safe, tended to mar what was otherwise a highly successful series of experiments.

AEC experts are naturally sensitive about their superior knowledge of atomic weapons and the risks in handling them. With a good safety record to their credit, they would hate to see it spotted by ignorant blundering on the part of others.

STUBBORNNESS HIS CAREER

Premier Mossadegh of Iran, who apparently never gets out of bed except to get into another one, has surprised nobody at all by refusing another British offer for settlement of the long-standing oil dispute.

It seems pretty unlikely that Mossadegh ever will find a British proposal palatable. Why should he? He has founded a successful career on opposition to Britain. It is his stock in trade. Without it he'd have nothing left but those wretched cables which he has practically elevated to the status of a uniform.

Mossadegh is plainly confident he soon will be able to market Iranian oil without British approval, so he feels no compulsion to abandon this politically rewarding stubbornness.

But to the outsider it still looks like a contest—whether Britain oil will find a world market before the lotting Iranian economy crumbles.

VIEWS OF OTHERS

NO SURPRISE HERE

The Pentagon, as was expected, has denied the charges of Gen. James A. Van Fleet that his eighth army has been held in check when it might have made the Korean war situation much more favorable to this country. The Pentagon never admits error, and it considers itself the chief of wisdom, even if it is also the well of waste of both human lives and money.

General Van Fleet now takes his place beside retired Gen. Douglas MacArthur. The great military heroes has been retained for insisting that the goal of war is victory, not defeat. While they don't have the same respect for the lives of millions of Americans, shocked at the death and injury of our soldiers in Korea, who believe the Pentagon record and strategy are disastrous.

One of the great accomplishments President Eisenhower may effect in his administration would be a thorough housecleaning at the Pentagon, and thereafter a reorganization program is designed to "crack the group of high brass" to ignore the opinions of its generals who are in the front lines. It is to be assumed that the generals of the MacArthur and Van Fleet type were given their commands in the full confidence that they had the experience and intelligence to do what they were ordered to do. It is a bit ridiculous to look back now with more than 2,000 Americans killed in Korean action, and agree that they knew more in the Pentagon in Washington than the generals at the front.

Perhaps the chiefs of staff should be routed out of the Pentagon and forced to head their individual military armies at the front. This might bring home to Washington a few of the fundamentals which two of the greatest generals in our history have had the hard-earned experience of seeing refuted. — Boise Statesman.

SO NOW THEY'RE FREE

There are so many "informed guesses" on what is happening in the Soviet Union that the average American can only shake his head and say "developments." The release of 15 Russian doctors accused of murdering two top-ranking scientists and plotting to kill others, and the arrest of their wives, are amazing developments. It lends itself to all sorts of "logical" explanations from commentators: "You pay your money and take your choice." "The painful struggles of editorialists of Pravda and other red journals to denounce the accusers who such short time ago were praised as heroic protectors of the Soviet state, and to advise people that now they have civil liberties, would be amusing if it were not so revealing. There is really nothing funny about a news so completely controlled that it can switch from all black to all white overnight without a quiver."

It is to be hoped that the people of the Soviet Union must again be sadly estranged, though perhaps more pleasantly, by the remarkable assurance from Pravda. They probably need to fear arrest without cause, or court order; that their constitutional rights are to be respected. Like the people of other nations, awaiting the word of Soviet performance, they could hardly be expected to accept this new concept of "liberty" in the Soviet Union without some reservation.

The people recognize it as a "maneuver" in the struggle to revive a dictatorship. They could never survive without use of the weapons of dictatorship which suppression of liberties is the most effective. — The Oregonian.

Six Semifinal Qualifiers Give Louisiana State Inside Track to NCAA Fight Title

POCAHELLO, April 10 (AP)—Two Louisiana State boxers fought their way through the qualifying round of the NCAA national college boxing tournament Thursday night to give the southern a commanding position in the race for the team title.

The two joined four other Louisiana State fighters who drew first round byes to give the school six men in the Friday night semifinals. Title bouts are set for Saturday night.

Wisconsin, defending national champion, lost four of its seven starters to put only three in the semifinals.

The biggest upset in tournament action was the 167-pounder Bob Moran, who took a 2-1 split decision in their 166-pound fight. Wisconsin was favored for its three preliminary victories, gave the Badgers a lead at the end of the round, but Moran fought the three more semifinals, the 162 champions were given little chance to repeat.

Wisconsin's top contender was Louisiana State, Michigan State, North Carolina A. and T., San Jose State, Washington State and Penn State. Wisconsin got one point each from California, Idaho, Syracuse, California Polytechnic, Idaho State, Virginia, North Carolina A. and T., Louisiana State, and San Jose State.

Shoshone Indians Trip Hailey on Two Hits

SHOSHONE, April 10—Shoshone's hitless wonders dined on Hailey 40 Thursday on two hits, behind the four-hit pitching of Arlyn Swafford and Ray Lewin. The Indians scored two runs in each of the fourth and sixth innings, and in each case they converted a lone base hit, walks and fielding lapses by the opposition into a run.

The victory followed by a day the Indians' one-hit 1-0 conquest of Pocatello in a game that was a doubleheader, in which Pocatello held Shoshone hitless but not runner in the second game, won by the Indians 5-0.

In five of six starts this season, Shoshone has collected only seven hits yet has won three of five games. In the sixth contest, they turned their lead at the plate to post a 10-0 victory.

Coach-Paul Ostry's nine-man staff only one error fielded against four errors by Hailey, and Lewis and Swafford gave up only three hits to Ken Coates' six pitches, and therein the outcome was written.

In the fourth inning, Lewin walked, a fast-developing opportunity, slanted a single, advanced on a sacrifice by Dale Williams, stole third and scored on a walk to John Wilson and scored on a walk and a sacrifice to Arlyn Swafford.

You can expect Shoshone's fortunes to improve, too, for Ostry has had his crew around town for a year, which will have two years of varsity play after this season.

Sophomores in the lineup included the star pitcher, Fred and Harold Tankas and Clair Kenaston. Swafford is a freshman.

Pitching Machine Holds Cowboy Camp Spotlight

Class C baseball, host of the game's experiments, has a corking good experiment under way in the pitching camp which the Magic Valley Cowboys and Big Red of the Red Sox share at Santa Cruz, Calif. Bill Wiseman, Magic Valley baseball club president, reported late Thursday the camp is being used as the proving ground for a baseball pitching machine which cost $10,000 investment by its California inventor.

Wiseman learned from his team's camp that the machine can throw the ball at 100 miles per hour. It cracks every pitch a strike, and can turn the ball high, low, inside or outside.

It greatly accelerates training exercises in which pitchers are drilled in batting practice, the club president pointed out.

And it's sparing the arms of Cowboy pitchers who already face the prospect of being overworked in Pioneer league play—unless anticipated by the Magic Valley club president, reported late Thursday the camp is being used as the proving ground for a baseball pitching machine which cost $10,000 investment by its California inventor.

Atomic Blasts Get Blame for Colored Snow

DANA, Calif., April 10 (AP)—Scientists said today a bluish-green phenomenon seen in the logging country near here might have been caused by recent atom bomb explosions in Nevada.

A salesman said he and his wife contracted a severe itch after inspecting the odd-colored snow.

MITCHELL S. Mayer, of nearby Mt. Shasta, said his doctor "doesn't know what the irritation is."

"My doctor said it is radioactive, he wouldn't know what to do about it," Mayer said.

First to Report

Mayer was the first to report the strange snowfall. He and his wife were driving from Fall River to Mt. Shasta Wednesday night when they noticed the snow falling around them.

Oh, No!

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—You can't blame that glowing blue-green snow in California on the atomic energy commission.

The AEC said today a check at the AEC showed the cloud from Nevada's most recent atomic test, the highest shot Monday, left the proving ground in practically the opposite direction from Dana, Calif.

There was a photograph of blue-green snow.

"I told my wife not to say anything about it to anybody," Mayer said, "or we'd be laughed out of the country."

Others Check

However, Mrs. Mayer persuaded her husband to drive to this small lumber town. They got two adults and two teenagers who examined the snow and agreed it was discolored.

Mayer said the bluish-green snow field covered at least three miles of the highway as he drove along and then began fading gradually until it became white again. He said the snow seemed to fade after falling, but retained its color after it had been on the ground for more than an hour.

Doctor Speaks at Meeting for PTA

JEKONIA, April 10—A talk on the care of children's teeth was given by Dr. P. J. Sipple at the Monday night meeting of the Pleasant Plains PTA.

Plans were made at the business meeting to improve the school grounds and Felix Boguski was named to investigate the purchase of a tree to be planted in the school yard on Arbor day.

Another covers sewer construction fees in the sewer improvement district and the third makes it mandatory that any property located within 150 feet of the sewer be connected with it.

Monthly reports of the police and the department were adopted for March. Building permits were approved for Mrs. J. B. King, J. A. Reed, R. C. Felt of the Buhl Planning unit, Thomas L. ### CLARK SPEEDS WAY OF NEWS ON PRISONERS

TOKYO, April 10 (AP)—Gen. Mark Clark sped his news security regulations today to permit rapid news coverage of the release of disabled war prisoners.

Clark's headquarters disclosed plans allowing immediate interviews at Minam and at hospitals in Japan with returned prisoners, who are generally and physically able to answer questions.

Interviews with released prisoners are banned under standard intelligence regulations.

News agencies and radio networks will deliver the names of all returned prisoners to families around the globe before they can be reported officially through the military. This is a radical departure from usual procedure.

A headquarters spokesman said Clark's action was taken in recognition of the "great world interest as well as the deep personal feelings" of relatives and friends of the prisoners.

He said Clark has ordered that the efforts of newsmen covering this story be facilitated to the greatest degree possible, without interfering with the speed of evacuation.

A divorce complaint by Phyllis York was filed in district court Thursday against Phillip York.

The couple was married in Elko, Nev., Aug. 11, 1951, and has one child, Mrs. York states in the complaint.

She lists their community property as household furnishings valued at $50 and a 1950 Buick in a 1941 Chevrolet sedan.

Mrs. York charges cruel and inhuman treatment and claims the defendant quarreled with her with provocation and nagged and teased at her. She further charges he has slapped her on more than one occasion, swore at her and called her vile names.

Mrs. York asks the court to award her custody of the child, the household furnishings, temporary support of $50 per month, attorney fees and $50 per month permanent support for the child.

Her attorneys are Rayborn, Rayborn and Kramer.
