

Conservative Coalition Due In Jap Ballot

TOKYO, April 17 (UPI)—Political polls and forecasters were unanimous today in predicting a conservative coalition will emerge from Sunday's Japanese general election.

An election eve neared, the major political parties in Japan agreed to disagree that spurred public enthusiasm and promised to change the strongly conservative vote recorded in last October's parliamentary election.

At stake are the entire 462 seats of the house of representatives, lower-and-all-powerful chamber of the diet.

The new house will immediately elect a premier to form a new government, replacing that of Premier Shigeru Yoshida. Evidence was given that the next premier might again be Yoshida.

The popular, 76-year-old former ambassador to London disclosed yesterday he had been invited by his own Liberal party to lead and joined the opposition in passing a vote of no-confidence.

Report Given On Pay Hikes

Salaries of all county officials except the coroner and surveyor have been raised by the county commissioners. In accordance with laws passed by the state legislature, new salaries are retroactive to the second Monday of January.

The salary of Prosecuting Attorney John N. Miller was increased $100 to $4,000 yearly, and the salaries of each county commissioner from $1,400 to $2,200. These salaries are retroactive to Jan. 1.

For the other officials—maximum and minimum salaries were set by the legislature and the commissioners granted a four percent increase to maximum. Sheriff James C. Johnson, County Clerk T. W. Stivers, Treasurer Rose Wilson and Assessor Clifford Thompson—all from $4,000 to $4,400. Sheriff Johnson's salary was $4,200 maximum, while that of Dr. J. Woodson, Coroner, remained at $4,000. The commissioners also act a maximum of $400 for Surveyor Young, but the salary of Surveyor Young was unchanged from $400.

Fire-Covered Doctor Dives To His Death

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17—Wrapping in a sheet of flame after a fiery, nine-car auto crash on the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge early Thursday, a young Navy doctor leaped 30 feet to his death in the bay below.

He was identified as Lieut. (JG) Robert R. Perlman, 24, an intern at Oak Knoll navy hospital from the east coast.

Almost miraculously, no one else was injured in the accident highway patrolmen said was touched off by a driver's loss of control in the rain.

He was the second man to die in the eastbound bridge lanes.

Perlman's car headed east, slammed into two of the rear-most stalled vehicles, knocking them across the highway center line, one into another, and then into a west-bound car. That car tank of the second car exploded, showering the front end of Perlman's vehicle, and killing him. Two drivers of the stalled cars escaped and crashed into the rear end of the ninth.

Alire from head to foot, Perlman had time to run, screaming toward the bridge rail. He tripped momentarily on the curb, recovered and then hurtled into space as other drivers ran toward him.

Nampa Quartet to Sing for Program

A quartet of vocal students from the Northwest Nazarene College, Nampa, will present music in a series of special services at 8 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the South Park Church of Nazarene here, the Rev. Harold H. Lewis announced.

The Rev. George D. Ferguson will conduct the services.

This will be the quartet's second appearance here this year. The vocalists presented music for the Youth week services in February.

The President restricted himself to rather general remarks on the important questions regarding the establishment of a national defense.

"The speech is usually critical and complex," Tew said.

Other parts of the President's speech, including his statement regarding the settlement of international problems that "none of these issues, great or small, can be solved without the will to respect the rights of all nations."

Moscow radio also broadcast a report of the speech, in Russian, for the benefit of the public.

Charles E. Bohlen, the new American ambassador, and his staff heard the President's speech by radio at the embassy.

Restoration of China and the restoration of her national rights, and such questions as restoration of German unity in accordance with the stipulations agreed upon by the two countries, were completely discussed.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—An apparently lack of liaison and cooperation between the top brass and their civilian defense chieftain is largely responsible for mismanagement of our fighting forces in Korea, including the ammunition shortages there. A radical reorganization and realignment of high-ranking officers may be necessary, in the opinion of senate investigators.

Senator Byrd, Virginia, who sponsored the inquiry, has been critical of the apparent concealment of defects from civilian supervisors. It appears to committee members that the joint chiefs of staff deliberately tried to cover up their own shortcomings.

Ray Tucker—Evidence from responsible witnesses indicates the Bradley-Collins-Vanderbilt-Pechelle group deliberately bypassed the department heads, army, navy, air force, without interference from them and strangled them in a maze of red tape.

All motions required by law or by order of court of competent jurisdiction, before the use of paper personnel to Sec. 46-188 Idaho Code.

IDEAS CALM APPROACH

Events often compel a nation's leaders to act precipitately whether they want to or not. But aside from all that, a habit of expecting urgent action from the government has grown up in many places, exerting constant and dangerous pressure on the leadership to do something.

One of the more remarkable features of President Eisenhower's tenure in the White House is his calm courage and confidence in resisting this pressure.

A President, especially a new one, can do a lot of things to score cheap points "for the record." He can make heavy demands on congress, advertising this "program" well, but knowing that perhaps only a small part has chance of enactment. This they cannot do, while the adults who have the power to stop it are in the dark by the experts on the joint chiefs of staff.

Lovett—He had to write a personal and informal letter of inquiry to General Ridgway, then our Korean commander. In other words, feeling that the joint chiefs were withholding information from him, he had to go over their heads to the military and technical advisers to officers in the field. It is almost an unprecedented action.

This behavior is typical of the professional military, however. The brass bosses told the late Admiral Nimitz he tried to impress the public with his humor and dash—martialized the likes of Bill Mitchell, when he insisted on greater recognition of air power in modern warfare. They got rid of MacArthur when he proclaimed and acted on the belief that the "only objective in war is victory."

PARTIAL REMEDY—These revelations, which will be highlighted in a forthcoming committee report, place President Eisenhower in an extremely embarrassing position. But capital hill indignation over these disclosures undoubtedly will force him to take action.

Legislative action, prescribing more specific authority and jurisdiction for the civilian secretaries, can provide only a partial remedy. Red tape must be eliminated and the chain of command tightened. But it is generally agreed that new faces are needed, if not full-scale replacement, which have not been involved in past war realities, jealousies and controversies.

Unfortunately, there was a 1916 West Point classmate of the two before Generals Bradley and Lovett, and he did not like to hear of their feelings. But he cannot permit personal bias to dictate his actions unless he wants to disappoint and disillusion many of his strongest and most influential supporters on capitol hill.

BUT MR. EISENHOWER remains undisturbed. All observers agree he is in deadly earnest in trying to give the presidency his best. He means to know his job, to know the facts of government, before he moves. He demands the same from others.

And he believes the voters will judge him and the Republican party on the full record, not by orders hastily drawn or laws hastily passed soon after the inaugural parade broke up.

It's an unusual approach, not often tried in Washington. It takes nerve. Mr. Eisenhower has it.

NAVY ECONOMY

Department of defense brass got a little nervous after the navy revealed that by putting wheels on its "Regulus" guided missile, it was saving hundreds of thousands of dollars in the development and test programs. The principal worry was that this technique would inspire congressional economy demands that all missiles be put on wheels for testing.

Guided missiles capable of carrying what is called for security reasons—a powerful warhead still costs over $100,000 apiece. That's why they aren't fired every day. It also explains why a defense line of guided-missile launching platforms built all around the U. S. to defend it from possible air and A-bomb attack, is out of the question.

The navy's "Regulus," surface-to-surface missile, in the $200,000-class. This is much higher than the air force "Matador," a similar type weapon. But by ground-testing, the navy has been able to cut its test cost per weapon well below the air force figure. Guided-missile experts argue, however, that it's impossible to test all these new weapons on wheels.

THE RUSSIAN "THAW"
Soviet-American social relations have been in the deep freeze in Moscow ever since the cold war began. But lately a terrible thaw has set in and general conversation is flowing all over the place.

Even Molotov, who is affable only upon signal, has been prodded into turning on his smile.

Perhaps the high point in this new tide of Russian-warmth was reached when, in answer to an American reporter's joke, a Soviet official replied:

"Brother, you ain't seen nothing yet."

Apparently not. But we're not sure—well able to stand it if the Russians now start to argue the merits of "Mickey Mantle vs. Joe DiMaggio," to him "Ohio" from Rosalind Russell's Broadway musical, or bemoan traffic fatalities on the Pennsylvania turnpike. The cold war would be a nice thing to be rid of, granted. But as a replacement, a sort of cool peace might be easier to take than the warm, mushy affair the Russians are currently promoting in Moscow's drawing room.

Ohio twins celebrated their birthday together. He's 65 and she's 30!

After a long and stubborn dispute, major American railroad and labor leaders and unions agreed to both re-territorialize the railroads and to be appointed by the White House, and to abide by his decision. The arbiter was appointed; he handed down a ruling a couple of weeks ago; and both the carriers and the unions accepted the award.

Peterson Ends Long Tenure With Redskins

SALT LAKE CITY, April 17 (UPI)—Vadal Peterson, 26 years baseball coach at the University of Utah, resigned Friday. He had coached the Utes to two national titles—they won the NCAA championship in 1944 and the NIT in 1947.

Peterson said he was quitting as head coach because he wanted to teach physical education. His resignation was in a letter to Utah university President A. Ray Olmsted, which read: "I will have a job."

Now, Peterson is a native of Utah. He was graduated in 1920 from the University of Utah where he was a three-sport letterman. He has been a coach at Salt Lake City since 1927.

His team won conference titles in 1937, 1938 and 1939, and finished second in 1938. In 1944 Utah went east to play in the National Invitational tournament in Madison Square garden. The Utes lost their first game and ended up with a record of 11-11, which was good for a fourth place in the western regional NOA play-offs in Kansas City and were invited to enter. They did not win and were beaten by Stanford, who won the National NCAA crown. They followed up by beating the NTT winner.

In 1947 although the Utes failed to win the title, they won conference titles and the NIT crown in Madison Square garden.

Throughout his years at Utah, Peterson's teams have won 367 games and lost 216.

He was a member of the first National Basketball Coaches association in 1950 and 1951. In 1952 he coached the West team in the East-West all-star game in Madison.

He is one of only three coaches whose teams have won both the national NCAA and NIT titles. The others are Adolph Rupp of Kentucky and Matt Belmont of City college of New York.
