SPokane, May 8.—The Northwest Power Association voted to intervene in the proposed merger of the Washington Water Power company and the Portland General Electric power administration, especially those with private utilities, the association said in a resolution passed Thursday.

Other resolutions asked the federal power commission to increase the 10% holding by the Idaho Power company plan for a dam at Oxbow on the Snake river, and urged that all long-term contracts between the Northwest Power administration and private utilities be subject to a resolution request.

Cost Cut Needed.

Over 1,000 men in the electric utility industry to let engineers get to work on the problem of cutting costs. The industry has the ability to give miners a raise in an average cost of about one million hours a day, Pease said, but only 18 U.S. municipal distribution systems retain power that cheap. Monmouth, Ore., has 10 cents per kilowatt-hour, he said.

Ex-U.S. POW Gives Self up

NEW YORK, May 8.—A 27-year-old house painter and decorator came to police today he is a German spy who had been serving seven years ago and has been living as a "model citizen" at Atlantic City, N.J.

Harry Githo gave himself up to federal agents by U.S. immigration authorities that may result in his deportation to communist-dominated Poland.

He was one of the last unaccounted-for POWs who escaped from prison camps in the United States after World War II. FBI records list four as still at large.

Githo, 27, had used the name of Bert Collier since he had broken away from a Ft. Dix, N.J., stockade in June, 1944, two days before he was scheduled to be sent back to his home in Germany. He was captured at St. Lo in 1944 while serving as a private in the hard army.

The husky youth said he had built a prosperous business as a painter of houses in Atlantic City and planned to return to his home town.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON. — The most serious and threatening wrangle between the United States and Great Britain in many years does not involve high questions of foreign policy or conduct of the wars in Korea and Indo-China. This dangerous dispute has attracted hardly any notice because it concerns the importation of international wheat.

— But it has been the first quarrel between the two mainstays of anti-Sovietism since World War II. It has led to sharp exchanges in private, but formal discussions between the negotiators. It has inspired accusations in the British press that the United States is plotting to starve Britain.

It has also caused a break in the trade of European chartered boats against us after World War II.

CONGRESSIONAL ELECTIONS

The new lawmakers in Washington hardly had time to break off admiring their names on their office doors, but it's already the season to worry about keeping them there.

The 1954 congressional elections are critical for the majority Republicans. Their hold on the Senate is 48 to 47, with Senator Morse, the independent, filling out the roster. The GOP margin in the House is 221 to 210, with one independent and three vacancies.

Not much of a turnover would be required to put one or both of the two houses back in Democratic hands. A house majority is 218. The three vacancies, in Illinois, South Carolina and Kentucky, are in districts normally Democratic. Furthermore, in the 1952 elections, the GOP picked up three house seats in Virginia and one in North Carolina. These four will be extremely hard to hold.

With the marked exception of 1934, two years after Franklin D. Roosevelt's first election, the trend in off-year elections has been toward the minority party. Louis Bean, well-known election statistician, once calculated that on the average this pickup for the minority ranged from 25 to 30 seats. Any such result next year would give House Democrats a comfortable advantage.

Roosevelt's personal popularity, plus the collapse of GOP organization after the 1932 outcome, account for the 1934 reversal of election form. President Eisenhower today enjoys the same kind of popularity, and might also upset the pattern.

But there are two questions. One is whether that popularity will maintain itself at high level and thus keep it great potential for 1954. No one, of course, knows the answer to this.

The second is whether the President will bring that popularity to bear directly by stumping the nation for the congressional ticket. Already he is under considerable pressure to do just this.

The lawmakers are beginning to indicate strongly that they want him on the hustings. Mr. Eisenhower has been conferring recently with Leonard W. Hall, the new GOP national chairman, and by this early attention has shown his awareness of his party's problem. But he has given no sign he will take to the stump.

As a loyal party man and a believer in "team" operation, the President probably is predisposed to make the effort. It's just possible he might wish to see some evidence that the lawmakers are earning his help. Up to now the record is pretty bare on this score, but the big test of support for the administration lie close ahead.

VIEWS OF OTHERS

INSULT TO INJURY

Prohibition should be repealed. It has proved to be a snare and a delusion. It does not keep people from drinking, as was hoped when it was passed so many years ago.

Instead it has created an avracious and leech-like class of criminals—the bootleggers. It has actually encouraged drinking because there is a certain attraction connected with anything which is prohibited.

If that happens, the British will cost many millions. If not, the gamblers will cost them heavily. It is possible, too, that England may negotiate a harder arrangement with Russia, exchanging manufacture for market.

Ironically, the British note that, if we had agreed to sell them wheat on more favorable terms, we would not need to lend or give John Bull so many millions annually in economic and military help. That appears to be their idea of "trade, not aid."

OUR OVERRUN CITIES

Every day America's major cities get deeper into a crisis that most are doing very little about. One can't help wondering what kind of shock they'll need to far them into action.

In simplest terms, it's a crisis of too many people and too many automobiles, with not enough space for either.

The years ahead will see the problem grow worse.

In the early 1960's, U. S. population will have risen from the present 189 million to around 215 million. Clogging city streets will be 25 per cent more cars than the 53 million rolling today.

These irresistible trends will overwhelm the cities if they do not act now to prepare for the change.

Millions of new houses and apartments will be needed, since the world war II baby-crop will then be reaching the marrying and house-hunting age.

Miles of wider and better roadways will be needed, and acres of parking space as well.

Looking at the performance of most cities today doesn't give one heart that the job will be done.

They are mired in congestion. Cars move in city traffic like the crystalline particles in a mountain glacier. Factories of many sorts—schools, sewer systems, streets—aren't kept in decent repair, let alone up to the pace of population growth.

Worst of all, housing is falling woefully behind urban requirements. New construction for ownership or rental is not meeting demand in the moderate- and low-income brackets. Moreover, such housing as exists is being allowed to deteriorate and even decay at an alarming rate. Recently a New York City grand jury reported slums being treated faster than they can be wiped out.

Face it—our cities are taking on a shabby, unkempt look. They are overrun. Generally, the things we do to meet the difficulties are a small bite. Sometimes, these things only promote congestion instead of easing it.

The cities ought to be their own masters. They should not need or want to turn to the federal government for solution of their problems. They must find some way to get out of this vicious circle of higher and higher taxes with less and less revenue.

They need to plan big and drastically, not for next year, but for the next generation. Otherwise, they may wake up to find that in a curious negative fashion, they have been planning anyway—planning their own destruction.

A machine that's well oiled makes the least noise. With humans it's slightly different.

Extra-Heavy Truck Loads

Hit by Panel

BOISE, May 8 (UPI)—The chairman of a committee of highway officials studying extra-heavy truck loads on public highways said Thursday the group feels "there is grave concern whether such loads are justified."

In a prepared statement following a meeting of the group, H. H. Decker said:

"There appears little question that the granting of special permits for selected groups, permitting the movement of overloads, will result in pressures from other groups to gain the same privileges."

Further Study

The committee recommended further study of the problem.

Decker, a Boise attorney, said:

"It is obvious that engineers can build heavier pavement and bridges, but the cost resulting to taxpayers 100 percent would be prohibitive. All loadings are so material that in all probability they can never be justified on state highway systems, particularly those which do not receive the benefits from such increases which must be paid to their commensurate costs."

Decker

He said the trend in western states is already "very far" and is suffering to a "quite alarming" degree from the increase in the number of heavy trucks, even without load increases.

The three-man committee was appointed by the American Association of Highway Officials to investigate the problem of overloaded vehicles. It includes mining and other heavy trucks.

The other members are Idaho Highway Engineer Earle V. Miller, and W. A. Hodge, Washington state highway director.

Jump for Butter Production Seen

BOISE, May 8 (UPI)—Butter production in the U.S. is up about 20 per cent above that of February. The U. S. department of agriculture said 1,900,000 pounds of butter and 1,000,000 pounds of cheese were produced during March. Butter output was one per cent above the five-year average for March, rendering a general downward trend in butter production.

FOURTH DISTRICT TRACK MEET SLATED SATURDAY AT RUPERT

Sports

FROM ALL ANGLES

Fate seemed a heavy hand at the Magic Valley Cowboys Thursday night and there wasn't enough power in the stands to twist back in the stands to "win" back.

The Cowboys bowed 8-6, before the visiting Billings Muskrats came along to take over the lead.

Once again, the cowboy was raised out, slipped into a last place tie with the Muskrats.

It seems fitting enough for Ogden, the team that started up the competition, to come into first place at the same time the Cowboys were slipping into last, but a look at the final record and things could have been different.

There was the second inning of the game at Joyce park, Ogden. Vickie, the young pitcher, had one of the best innings and he slipped a grass cutter just to the left of second base that Billings shortstop Pablo Bernard came up with on the dead ball and made a great save.

He expected throw to first for the out, but Stamatios was the next man up and he topped the ball toward third. The Muskrats' shortstop, Fred Woods, struck out to leave Byrnes stranded.

That cost the Cowboys a run as the next man up, Paul Farnham, had a long drive off the outfield fence. And pitcher Fred Woods struck out to leave Byrnes stranded.

That's the baseball. It was the cowboy's turn to do his best. He could have been a big one and a few more fans in the stands could have done what the Cowboys couldn't do.

Another good game developed in the ninth. The Twins team has been winning the even consistently in area meets.

Rupert's team handed the Bruin runners one defeat in valley competition and that was by a narrow margin.

In the 100-yard dash outstanding performers are Dick Stickley, Wendell Hill, Fred Woods, and Carl Oakley's crack miller, Harry Critchfield.

The big bat of Dave Bristol led the Reds to their victory.

The other two teams developed in the ninth. The Twins team has been winning the even consistently in area meets.

In that inning he kept asking plate umpire Bob Conklin for a new ball, rejecting one after the other until he got a good one.

He was faithful tried to make it sound like a full house whooping it up and they did little Nunn. But it wasn't enough. Another 60 or 700 fans in the stands could have done what the Twins did.

It's the same old story. The Twins have blown sky-high, driving the Cowboys' jump on the Mustangs.

"It's the same old story, on the field for the Cowboys, think of the players as the ones who can't touch in the ninth when he walked three men and was setup before Billings' manager, Fred Dapper pulled him. And when faced Idaho's coach, he was asked if he was going great before he blew and the Russells chased him from the mound and went on to take the game that could have happened here Thursday.

Look for the Cowboys to be a lot harder to handle from here on in with the front office making some changes.

Pitchers - Bill Monroe, Henry Wiegland and Pete Lopez were loose and outdid Harold Carruthers. In their place the Wranglers have had Jim McGee and Harold Wright and pitcher-outfielder Marion Hill.

Both McGee and Wright did a short time ago and looked promising while Bill performed in the outfield. Bill, a veteran Plomier leaguer, set a new mark when he joined the Cowboys.

He is the first to join four different clubs in the league. He was with Salt Lake City last year.

The fourth district high school track and field teams competing at Rupert Saturday for their district meet and the hot feud between Gooding, Rupert and Twin Falls will be decided Saturday with the balance of power resting with one of the class B schools or Buhl.

Rupert is defending champion and as such must be the team to beat. They must keep their eyes on the in the meet and the schools without the depth to win first place.

Jim Roemer, Paul, finished third in the high school team last year and won the district, or he repeats, edging out the Bruins. Bill Cummins in that event, it could be the turning point for the champions.

The opening of the general fishing season is still four weeks distant but the Magic Valley chapter of Idaho Outdoorsmen Association has started to attract younger thinking about it with more than casual interest.

The IODA is sponsoring a contest for anglers under 14 years of age. Prizes for Ed and the top 10 boys top prizes will be well worth while for the junior anglers and the competition should be keen. And with the thermometer hovering above 20 degrees for the past days, the youngsters weren't the only ones waiting for the chance to be at a favorite lake or stream.

Bruins Favored As Stars Vie For Region Berths

Magic Valley high school track and field artists are set to take the first step along the road to the state meet via the district meet at Rupert Saturday.

The district will qualify men for the regional at Gooding May 16 and from their regional will come the entrants to the state meet.

Most of the schools in the valley are expected to be represented at the meet Saturday and district records are expected to take beating. Qualification races start at 12:30 with trials in the high and low hurdles, the 100 and 200-yard dashes.

The entry list for the big cinder concave is sprinkled with outstanding performers.

Toddy Tate, Kimberly, and David Jones, the latter two expected to put up a battle in the pole vault. The two high bar artists have battled it out for three years in the event of duds. In two years this spring in the Hawk Powers relay. Both have been sailing over the bar at 11 feet regularly. Bobby Boyce, Wendell Hill, capable of giving them a scrap.

The opening of the general fishing season is still four weeks distant but the Magic Valley chapter of Idaho Outdoorsmen Association has started to attract younger thinking about it with more than casual interest.

The IODA is sponsoring a contest for anglers under 14 years of age. Prizes for Ed and the top 10 boys top prizes will be well worth while for the junior anglers and the competition should be keen. And with the thermometer hovering above 20 degrees for the past days, the youngsters weren't the only ones waiting for the chance to be at a favorite lake or stream.
